LONDON, May 3.

Lord M——d told Mr. Wilkes yeſterday, if he had been committed for life, he muſt blame himſelf, for which judicious remark he thanked his Lordſhip, as he did the bench for their JUDGMENT. When he went out of court with the proper officers, he asked them to go and dine with him at ſome tavern near, as it was late ; which was refuſed him, unleſs he had leave of the court, to which he did not come to ask ſavours of the court, but receive their JUDGMENT.

Jonathan Brown,

BEgs leave to inform the public of his return from the Weſt-Indies, and purpoſes carrying on his buſineſs of chair and harneſs making, where he formerly did, in this Place, with equity and diſpatch. As he has a wife and a large family of ſmall children to ſupport, he expects the employ of all good people, being reduced much in his circumſtances And thoſe gentlemen whom he is indebted to, would be much obliged to them for their employ, as they may depend ſoon afterwards of payment in full. The lenity they have already ſhown him, will be ever retained gratefully in mind.

A Large quantity of Land, more than 200,000 acres, on very reaſonable terms---And in order to induce farmers and tradeſmen from the northern colonies to become ſettlers on any part of the above lands, they may be aſſured that our climate here is very ſerene, clear of fogs and healthy, and our water very good ; that fevers and agues, and other diſorders, ſo common in many of the ſouthern provinces, are very rare here ; that our ſoil is equal to any in America, producing wheat, rye, winter barley, hemp, flax, Indian corn, oats, &c. in great abundance. One of the ſubſcribers, who has a large quantity of the above lands to ſell, will give 10 per cent. out of the ſales of his land for the eſtabliſhing a fund for the ſupport of a preſbyterian miniſter, and that many other gentlemen concerned, will give largely out of the amount ſales of their lands, to promote ſo laudable a deſign. WESTMINISTER, May 11.

THIS day the two houſes of Parliament having again met, the commons preſented to the Lords commiſſioners the Right Hon. Sir John Cuſt, Bart. whom they had choſen to be their Speaker ; and the Lords commiſſioners having in his Majeſty's name approved their choice, the Lord Chancellor made the following SPEECH to both houſes :

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IN purſuance of the authority given us by his Majeſty's commiſſion under the great ſeal, amongſt other things, to declare the cauſes of your preſent meeting, we are, by the King's command, to acquaint you that his Majeſty has not called you together at this unuſual ſeaſon of the year, in order to lay before you any matters of general buſineſs, but merely to give you an opportunity of diſpatching certain Parliamentary proceedings, which his Majeſty's deſire of providing, at all events for the welfare and ſecurity of his good ſubjects makes him wiſh to ſee completed as ſoon as poſſible, & with that diſpatch which the public convenience as well as your own require.

His Majeſty at the ſame time has commanded us to aſſure you of his perfect confidence in this Parliament ; and that he has the ſtrongeſt reaſon to expect every thing from their advice and aſſiſtance, and zeal for the public good, can dictate or ſuggeſt."

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

Pleaſe to inſert the following.

For the Sake of the worthy Inhabitants of 16 out of the 17 Towns, (whoſe Repreſentatives were ſo left of God, and ſince deſpiſed by Man) you'll inſert the following.

MY COUNTRYMEN,

*IT is with the utmoſt Pleaſure that I inform you, that I have heard, and been credibly informed, by one, two or three Gentleman of Veracity, from each of ſaid ſixteen Towns, that the Conduct of their famous ſhall I ſay, or rather infamous Repreſentatives? it is moſt diſagreeable to them; and that the ſaid 16 Towns will very ſoon make it very manifeſt to the world, leaſt it be deemed, as moſt certainly it will be, their particular Orders and Injunctions upon their reſpective Repreſentatives, to Reſcind——which, if ſo, much is to be ſaid in Extenuation of ſaid Repreſentatives Conduct, nay in their Favor——As for the 17th Town, viz. H-rd--ck, albeit, there are many reſpectable worthy Gentlemen who dwell there, yet that town, nineteen in twenty are afraid to act counter to the particular Orders of their Repreſentative.——As for Inſtance, tho' not quite ſimilar, yet confirming the Truth of what is above ſuppoſed to be beyond doubt——there was a Stranger, as I am informed, paſſing thro' that Town, and overtaking a Boy, a pretty ſtout Boy, ask'd him, who made him? He look'd gravely and anſwered very audibly, Br-g--r R--g---es. For the truth of this, I appeal to this luſty Booby himſelf - and doubtleſs by far the Majority of that town really think ſo, ---Who being ſo circumſtanced, I think their Condition ought the rather to excite Pity, as it cannot be otherwiſe expected, becauſe firſt Impreſſions are deep.——And it is further reported of this 17th Town, i. e. Magna ex parte, that they are reſtilinially deſcended from the Tribe of Iſſachar,——What ſhall we ſay——*Ephraim is joined to Idols, let him alone.——However,——it is a Lamentation, and ſhall be for a Lamentation.

P. S. I hear that the poor old Squaw Sotherly, who was from home in her Canoe upon a Clam Voyage, is ſo vex'd to think that ſhe ſhould be ſo far left as to carry one of the No. 17. (when nobody elſe would) over the River, in her ſaid Canoe, in his Way from Court, that ſhe has ſince burnt it, and run almoſt Crazy.——But what renders it excuſcable in the Squaw, and ſhe ſtands to it, is, that ſhe did not then know that he was a Reſcinder;—Jacob——I think the Squaw ought to be comforted——if her Vexation has not redered it impracticable.

The following Proceeding of the Town of Marblehead we received laſt Saturday Afternoon by an expreſs, & is publiſhed by their deſire.

To the Hon. JAMES OTIS, Eſq; and the other Gentlemen who voted againſt Reſcinding.

GENTLEMEN,

WHEN lawful Attempt to unite a conſiderable Part of the Subjects in dutifully petitioning to the Throne, and decently remonſtrating to the Britiſh Parliament for a Redreſs of Grievances, is called a Meaſure of an inflamatory nature, and evidently tending to create unwarrantable Combinations, and to excite an unjuſtifiable Oppoſition to the conſtitutional authority of Parliament, and to revive the unhappy Diviſions between G. Britain and her Colonies; and when it is induſtriouſly endeavoured to throw the Odium of the whole upon a few Individuals, & artfully inſinuated to be only the Attempt of a deſperate Faction, and no Ways agreeable to the Sentiments of the People in general: When this is the Caſe, it is moſt certainly the duty and Intereſt of every People who would not tamely part with their Rights and Liberties to interfere, and let the World know their Sentiments in ſuch a Caſe——WHEREFORE the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Marblehead, at a Meeting legally held for that purpoſe, have unanimouſly voted to return, in this public manner, their ſincereſt and moſt hearty thanks to you, Gentlemen, the worthy Members of the late honorable houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province, for your ſteady Reſolution in adhering to the juſt Rights and Liberties of the Subject, when it was required of you to reſcind the reſolves of a former Houſe relating to the circular Letter ſent to the other Provinces in February laſt, deſiring them to join in a dutiful Petition to his Majeſty; and to aſſure you of their inviolable Regard and reſpect for you, and all others, annimated by a Spirit of ſuch true Patriotiſm.

Per Order,

BENJAMIN BODIN, Town Clerk.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

[Further Advices by Capt. Prince, lately arrived at Boſton.]

LONDON, April 30.

FRIDAY there was a levee at St. James's but no council [illegible] the same Lord Mansfield had a long conference with his Majeſty.

On the motion made on Wedneſday laſt by Mr. Wilkes's council for admitting him to bail, which was argued by Mr. Sergeant Glynn, Mr. Recorder of London, Mr. Moreton, &c. for the defendant; and argued by the Attorney General, and Sir Fletcher Norton, for the crown; it was aſſerted, that there was no precedent of a perſon, under a criminal proſecution, being admitted to bail after conviction; and that if ſuch indulgence was ſhewn to a man who flies from the juſtice of his country, and is thereupon outlawed, he would be in a better ſituation than one who ſubmits to it; as in the latter caſe after conviction, he muſt remain in cuſtody till ſentence is paſſed, whereas in the former caſe he would be at large.

When a great law officer of the crown replied to the arguments made uſe of on Wedneſday laſt by Mr. Wilkes's council, for their client to be admitted to bail, he ſaid he muſt and would oppoſe it with all his power (ex officio) for that he had twice been blamed for not having ſtrictly adhered to his duty [meaning at ſome other period, but it was not explained in what caſe] and that he was determined not to be reprehended for the ſame fault a third time.

To the many meaſures taken againſt Mr. Wilkes may be added, that on the 19th inſt. when he dined with his friends at the King's Arms tavern in Cornhill, he was ſerved in the midſt of them, by an Agent of the Solicitor of the Treaſury, with an Exchequer writ, and bill of diſcovery upon information (conſiſting of many ſheets of paper) in order, ſhould the outlawry remain, to diſcover and ſeize all his effects, even the ſmall pittance generouſly ſubſcribed by his fellow ſubjects for diſcharging his debts as being in law forfeited to the crown; and in caſe the outlawry was reverſed, then to oblige him to prove, in an unuſual way, his full qualification to ſit in the Houſe as Knt. of the Shire, as well as to give him as much vexation and put him to as great expence as was poſſible.

This week ſeveral meetings of the moſt conſiderable freeholders of the county of Middleſex in the intereſt of John Wilkes, Eſq; were held at different places, to conſider of the preſent exigency of that gentleman's affairs.

On Thurſday Mr. Wilkes had a great levee, and great numbers of perſons gathered continually about the King's Bench priſon; but tho' a report was current that ſome outrages were intended, we do not find there were any committed.

We have pretty good authority to ſay, in farther ſupport of what has been already mentioned, that Mr. Wilkes was not the author of the political paper which (rather than at that time to give up his friends) has [illegible] him into ſo much trouble; that the late Meſſrs Charles Churchill and Robert Lloyd were the abſolute [illegible] of the celebrated North Briton No. 45, during a few days abſence of Mr. Wilkes in the country.

Thurſday D——S—— who had a bill found againſt him the laſt ſeſſions at the Old Bailey, for making a riot with other perſons, and breaking the windows at the Manſion houſe (the evening of Mr. Wilkes's election) was ſurrendered by his bail, before Sir James Eſdaile, at Guildhall, and committed to Wood ſtreet compter.

The following anecdote, taken from the three laſt volumes of Letters written by that great patriot, Dean Swift, will ſeem to the lovers of Wilkes and Liberty, to be no leſs remarkable than any of them.——The Dean, in one of his Letters, ſays, that he was concerned in a high flying Tory paper, which ended juſt at No. 45; and that all the ſubſequent numbers are balderdaſh ſtuff, and written by hackney authors.

April 30. When Mr. Wilkes deſired the populace not to take the horſes off, but to [illegible], one of them [illegible] Maſter Wilkes, as I have told you before, that horſes often draw aſſes; but as you are a man, you ſhall be drawn by men."

It is rumoured that a certain popular gentleman has been offered his pardon, on condition he will engage to ſtop proſecution againſt the E of H.

The following letter was ſent on Friday to Mr. Reynolds, Attorney at law, in Lime-ſtreet.

S I R.

"THE Writs of Error in the caſe of my Outlawry being now allowed, I deſire you to examine carefully into the ſtate of the proceedings in the action I bro't five years ago againſt Lord Hallifax, for having dared to iſſue a General Warrant. I think that action was ſuſpended ſolely by his Lordſhip's plea, that I was outlawed. I hope to live to hear an Engliſh jury, by a formal verdict, condemn a Secretary of State, who violated the firſt rights of this free nation, the perſonal Liberty of our countrymen, in the moſt outrageous and illegal manner. I therefore beg you to loſe no time in laying before my counſel, every thing proper for the proſecution of this public cauſe, which no conſideration ſhall make me decline, or delay.

"I thank you Sir, for the daily proofs you give me of your daily activity and zeal in the courſe of this great buſineſs, and deſire you to believe me ever

Your obliged humble ſervant,

King's Bench Priſon, JOHN WILKES."

Friday, April 29.

We are informed that the perſons appointed to conduct Mr. Wilkes to priſon, expreſs great ſatisfaction at his candid and polite behavior towards them; and their gratitude for the pains he took in preſerving them from the fury of the populace.

The famous number 45, having been often ridiculouſly introduced to the public view, the following ſeems to be a droll ſneer at that puerility.——"It is very remarkable that the 25 men who drew the hackney coach, in which were Mr Wilkes, the tipſtaffs, &c. had between them juſt 45 eyes, 45 arms, 45 legs.

Many things have been repeatedly urged againſt Mr. Wilkes's private character; but it ſhould be remembered, that if all which the moſt virulent of his enemies have alledged againſt him were true, it would be nothing to the purpoſe; it would not have the leaſt weight as to the propriety or equity of any proceedings againſt him. No judicial proceedings, which have been carried on againſt him, have been founded upon his private character; and if he had been the moſt virtuous man breathing, the proceedings againſt him would have been preciſely the ſame.

A letter from Glouceſterſhire relates the following remarkable and comical ſtory.—A Mountebank and his Merry Andrew (who followed him as his Livery Servant) were traverſing this county, they fixed their reſidence in a certain borough town here, in order to make conſpicuous their ſkill of medicine, and to exhibit their [illegible], to facilitate the vending of it. At the inn where they put up after having been there two or three days, & living elegantly (which undoubtedly gave the inn keeper no ſmall ſatiſfaction) the mountebank aſked him where was the uſual place for a ſtage; the man underſtood him at Huſtings, the place for polling, and after a pauſe, ſaid, Sir, do you mean to offer yourſelf as a candidate for this borough? If you do, I will give you my vote, and ſecure you eight or ten more at my peril; for really, Sir, between you and me, the old members are not very much liked, the mountebank being a facetious fellow, inſtantly caught this opportunity, and ſaid it was his full intention, and did not doubt the ſucceſs of it. The report was induſtriouſly propagated, and reaching the ears of the two former repreſentatives, they ſent a formal card to the mountebank, deſiring the honour of his company to dinner with them the following day, which he declined; notwithſtanding deſired the honour of their company to drink coffe with him at the inn on that evening; which invitation they accepted of, and came; when after much circumlocution they came to Buſineſs and told the mountebank, that not dreaming in the leaſt of an oppoſition, if that in caſe he would decline the poll they would make him a preſent of one thouſand pounds; which he refuſed, ſaying, "that when he came there it was the fartheſt of his intentions; but as he had equally as much intereſt in another borough, for five hundred pound more he would decline it;" which propoſition they readily conſented to; the money was accordingly paid, and the mountebank, quitted the town, leaving a letter with the innkeeper; and deſiring him not to open it till the next day, after his departure, wherein he related the whole ſtory, declaring he was only a Mountebank: that he had no ſuch deſign, but was forced into the ſcheme thro' ſimplicity of the inn keeper concerning the ſtage. This ſtory occaſions much merriment in the town, at the expence, ridicule & diſgrace of the two worthy, credulous members.

LONDON, May 4.

The Deſiance, an India company's ſhip, of 20 guns is blown up in the Eaſt Indies with 350 troops beſides ſailors; every body periſhed but 35 men, who were much hurt.

They write from Paris, that a very curious fowling piece of a new invention, and weighing only ſeven pounds, had been preſented, on the 24th paſt to the King at Choiſy This piece diſcharges itſelf 24 times in two minutes, only by laying hold of the barrel after the firſt ſhot, and then permitting it to make of itſelf a ſemi circle from left to right and afterwards from right to left. By this ſimple operation it re-loads and is ready again.

An aloe of the kind intitled by Botaniſts Aloe Americana Sobolifera, and ſprung from a ſeed brought by Mr. de la Condamine, from the banks of the river Amazons, we are told is now in bloom in the royal garden of the Schonbrun at Vienna. It is five feet high, and it is ornamented with upwards of forty five flower ſtalks. But the moſt remarkable circumſtance attending this Plant is, that it was raiſed from a ſeed brought from ſo great a diſtance; a circumſtance which cannot but facilitate the furniſhing our gardens and hot-houſes with exoticks, tho' it were to be wiſhed perhaps for this end, that Mr. de la Condamine, or ſome other ingenious perſon, had pointed the beſt method of bringing over plants in grain.

In the ſame garden we are told, likewiſe is, at preſent, a Palmus Japonica, with the fruit. Theſe fruits, which are more than five hundred in number, are of a beautiful red colour, and about the bigneſs of a date.

They write from Portſmouth, that his Majeſty's ſhip Royal Sovereign is got into dock, in order to be taken to pieces; but on trying her timbers, for one rotten timber, there are found ten or twelve ſound, and tho' this ſhip has been built ſixty four years 'tis tho't ſhe will bear cutting down, and make a very fine ſeventy four or eighty four gun ſhip.

We hear that the proſecutrix of Sheridan, who was convicted of raviſhing her, is ſoliciting for a pardon for him, intending him, if he tho't an object of royal mercy, for her future huſband, having, till that accident, always bore the character of an honeſt ſober young fellow. The proſecutrix has viſited him twice in Newgate.

May 4. Mr. Wilkes's appearance in the Court of King's Bench is poſtponed to Saturday.

Yeſterday Mr. Wilkes viewed all the parts of the King's Bench, the Chapel, &c. and received ſeveral petitions from the poor priſoners earneſtly ſoliciting his ſervice in the Houſe, towards obtaining an act of inſolvency, the enſuing ſeſſion; which were politely received, with a promiſe of his endeavours for that purpoſe.

Mr. Wilkes likewiſe viewed and examined a large commodious cellar, belonging to Mr. Penrice, in order to lay in a ſtock of choice wines, for entertaining his friends during confinement.

Some tools of power talk of ſigning a petition, That Mr. Wilkes may be removed down into one of the State Rooms within the priſon.

FOUR SPIES conſtantly attend in and about the King's Bench priſon, to watch the motions of the mob, inſpect Mr. Wilkes's behaviour, and to report accordingly.

Notwithſtanding the preſent rigorous meaſures ſaid to be purſuing againſt a popular gentlemen, it is certain thoſe meaſures are far from being unanimouſly approved; one party adviſing lenitives; another neuter; another the heavy vengeance of power, and the law; whilſt a fourth declares he knows not what to make of it, and heartily wiſhes to waſh his hands clear of them all.

May 5. They write from Madrid, that ſundry complaints have lately been tranſmitted home by his Catholic Majeſty's Governors in America, againſt the illicit practices of the French frequenting the iſles of Triangles, who for near three years paſt, have carried on a clandeſtine trade with the adjacent Spaniſh colonies, highly prejudicial to the intereſts of the King and the Havannah Company.

The Pearl, Liverpool, Otter and Swan men of war, ſailed from Plymouth for Newfoundland.

On Tueſday Mr. Wilkes entertained ſeveral of his friends at a turtle feaſt at the Kings Bench priſon, where a great number of loyal healths were drank and the Company broke up about nine at night.

A certain tradeſman, in the pariſh of St. Giles's in the Fields, laſt Sunday, had his child chriſtened by the names of John Wilkes, in honour to that noble aſſertor and defender of Britiſh liberty.

May 6. An account is received from, Bauff in Scotland that William Gordon, Eſq; Rear Admiral of the White died there the 25th ult.

On the 27th ult. died at Gailly Kirmbrightſhire the Hon. Lieutenant General Stewart ſon of James late Earl of Galloway.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of MIDDLESEX.

Gentlemen,

IN ſupport of the liberties of this county againſt the arbitrary rule of miniſters, I was before committed to the Tower and am now ſentenced to this priſon——— ſteadineſs with, I hope, ſtrength of mind, do not however leave me for the ſame conſolation follows me he conſciouſneſs of innocenec of having done my duty and exerted all my poor abilities, not unſucceſsfully, for this nation I can ſubmit even to far greater ſuffering with chearfulneſs, becauſe I ſee that my countrymen reap the happy fruits of my labours and cruel perſecutions, by the repeated deciſions of our ſovereign courts of juſtice in faveur of Liberty. I therefore bear up with fortitude, and even glory that I am called to ſuffer in this cauſe, becauſe I continue to find the nobleſt reward the applauſe of my native country, of this great free and ſpirited people.

I chiefly regret, Gentlemen, that this confinement deprives me of the honour of thanking you in parſon according to my promiſe & at preſent takes from me in a great degree the power of being uſeful to you. The will however to do every ſervice to my conſtituents remains in its full force and when my ſufferings have a period, the firſt day I regain my liberty ſhall reſtore a life of zeal in the cauſe and intereſts of the county of Middelſex.

In this priſon, in any other, in every place my ruling paſſion will be the love of England & our free conſtitution. To thoſe objects I will make every ſacrifice. Under all oppreſſions, which miniſteral rage and revenge can invent, my ſteady purpoſe is to concert with you and other true friends of this county, the moſt probable means of rooting out the remains of arbitrary power, and ſtar-chamber inquiſition; and of improving as well as ſecuring the generous plans of freedom, which were the boaſt of our anceſtors, and I truſt will remain the nobleſt inheritance of our poſterity, the only genuine characteriſtic of Engliſhmen. I have the honor to be, with affection and regard, Gentlemen, your obliged and faithful humble ſervant,

JOHN WILKES.

King's-Bench Priſon,
Thurſday, May 5, 1768.

LONDON

May 7. It is poſitively ſaid that the parliament will not enter into the merits of the conteſted elections, in any ſhape, at their next meeting, but that they will only go through the corn bill, and two or three others, and then be prorogued to the winter.

Several of the inferior Clergy, we hear, have lately privately met, and prepared a petition to be laid before the ſecond meeting of a certain Aſſembly for relief, and a more equal diſtribution of Church revenues copies thereof are to be printed and ſent all over E——d to be ſigned.

Mr. Wilkes's puniſhment, if he ſhould be rejected as ſitting Member, it is conjectured would be very ſlight; as the only principal point wanted is, to prevent his being in Parliament, others ſay, the reaſon of the above mitigation of his puniſhment is occaſioned by the prevailing opinion of ſeveral eminent perſons in the law, that if certain alterations had not been made, he probably might have been acquitted.

We are informed that if Mr. W—ſhould not be permitted to ſit in a certain Aſſembly, there would be no new writ for a new election, but Sir W. B. P. will take his ſeat.

According to the liſts publiſhed, there appear to be one hundred and ſeventy two Members choſen to ſerve in this parliament that were not in the laſt.

Laſt Sunday there were no leſs than forty Noblemen's coaches at the King's-Bench whoſe owners were viſitors to Mr. Wilkes.

The following Noblemen are now toaſted in all ſenſible companies, who are for preſerving the public peace of this kingdom by lenient meaſures viz. The Rt. Hon. the Lord Chancellor, his grace the Duke of Grafton, and the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Shelburne.

May 9. Saturday morning, at half an hour paſt ten o'clock, came on at Weſtminſter-hall, before all the Judges of the Court of King's-Bench, a hearing reſpecting the illegality of Mr. Wilkes's outlawry. The caſe was opened by Mr. Seargeant Glyan, in favour of Mr. Wilkes, who was anſwered by Mr. Thurloe, and a reply made by Mr. Glyon; on which the Judges were pleaſed to obſerve, that both the gentlemen had made uſe of very learned arguments, and quoted many precedents and caſes which had at various times altered their opinions, and as they were deſirous of maturely conſidering the ſeveral arguments made uſe of by the two learned council, their Lordſhips tho't proper to appoint a further hearing the beginning of next term.

Saturday Capt. Hutſon ſet out as Governor of the Muſquito ſhore.

The Portland, Capt. Higgins, now ready to ſail for South Carolina, is among the ſhips which were unrigged and unmanned on Friday by the ſailors; the Captain on Saturday morning ſent his Chief Mate to engage hands, at any price, to navigate his veſſel, that ſhe might proceed on her voyage; but the ſailors eſteeming the Mate a uſeful perſon for their purpoſe, have tho't proper to detain him.

Mr. Wilkes as a man, we hear has a very great reſpect for a certain Nobleman, but, conſidering that Nobleman as a Secr'y of State he thinks himſelf obliged to proſecute the ſuit againſt his Lordſhip, becauſe it may be attended with advantageous conſequences to the public.

May 9. His Majeſty has been pleaſed to appoint Col. Hale, to be Lieutenant Colonel of the 3d regiment of Foot guards, in the room of Col. Gore promoted.

Lately died at Focabeos, in Scotland, Major James Watſon, aged 90 formerly an officer in the Dutch ſervice, in which he continued till the ſiege of Bergen-op-Zoom.

On Saturday a great body of ſailors met in St. George's Fields in the eaſt, and went to St. James's with colours flying drums beating, and fifes playing, and preſented a petition to his Majeſty ſetting forth the great hardſhips they at preſent labour under on account of the ſmallneſs of their wages, &c. and praying relief. They divided themſelves into two parties, one went over London Bridge, the other marched through the city.

On Thurſday evening a great body of ſailors aſſembled at Deptford, forcibly went on board ſeveral ſhips lying there, and unbent their top-ſails, declaring that no ſhips ſhould ſail, unleſs the merchants would conſent to raiſe their wages. And on Friday they came up the river, went on board the ſhips on the London ſide, and unbent their topſails alſo, threatening to do the ſame to all the veſſels unleſs their demands are complied with.

May 11. Yeſterday the hon. Houſe of Commons unanimouſly rechoſe Sir John Cuſt, Bart. Member for Gratham, their ſpeaker for the enſuing Parliament.

By a Letter from Halifax in Nova-Scotia, we are informed that all the braſs ordnance, amounting to 150, which were ſome time ſince brought there from Cape-Breton, had been mounted on the fortifications of that town and citadel, ſo that it is now reckoned one of the ſtrongeſt places in America.

Yeſterday morning in the forenoon a great body of people aſſembled about the King's Bench priſon, in expectation as it is ſaid, that Mr. Wilkes was to go from thence to the parliament houſe, and deſigning to convey him thither They demanded him at the priſon, and grew very tumultuous; whereupon the riot act was begun to be read, but they threw ſtones and brickbats while it was reading, when a young fellow, ſon of the maſter of the horſhoe, a public houſe in Blackman ſtreet, being ſingled out was purſued by one of the ſoldirs, and ſhot dead on the ſpot. Soon after this the crowd encreaſing, and an additional number of the guards were ſent for, who marched thither, and alſo a party of Horſe Grenadiers; when the riot continuing, the mob were fired upon by the ſoldiers, and it is ſaid five or ſix killed on the ſpot, and about 15 wounded. Two women were among the wounded; one of whom died yeſterday evening in St. Thomas's hoſpital, and the other was not expected to ſurvive till morning.

On tueſday night, about ten o'clock, a number of people again aſſembled before the Manſion Houſe in a riotous manner, broke four of the large lamps, and about twenty panes of glaſs. Four of the Rioters were taken into cuſtody, and yeſterday examined before the ſitting Alderman at Guild-hal; when one of them was diſmiſſed, another of them was committed to the Poultry Compter the third was ſent to the ſame priſon till he can find bail for his appearance at the Old Baily, and the fourth was committed to Bridewell.

BOSTON, Auguſt 4.

Extract of a Letter from London, March 25.

"You may poſſibly have heard ſomething of the riots and combinations among the lower ſet of people that have lately broke out, all in conſequence of Mr. Wilkes's arrival here; matters are now a little quieter though far from being yet ſettled, and it is hard to tell what will be the iſſue——the parliament is far from being his friend, in ſo much that he is choſen one of the members for Middleſex, and is in confinement, he has not ſince been once taken notice of in the houſe, the members having induſtriouſly avoided mentioning his name."

The public prints from England affords us little or no intelligence reſpecting American affairs, they are wholly taken up with their own concerns; but by letters by the laſt ſhip we are informed that the miniſtry is at preſent in a very unſettled ſtate; ſo that there is no determining how public affairs will be conducted, or by whom; that Lord Chatham as yet our friend and ſupport; that our friends conſider the late act, impoſing duties upon glaſs, &c. as a ſecond ſtamp-act, and as another attempt to gain the point of taxation over the colonies; that thoſe in power are unwilling to ſee the right of parliament to tax America relinquiſhed; that wiſe, cool, firm meaſures ſteadily purſued, will obtain us redreſs, and that the ſafety of their colonies, of the whole kingdom depended upon ſuch a conduct, that reſolution and perſeverance in induſtry, frugality and Oeconomy, and determining not to import any goods from Great-Britain, would undoubtedly and unavoidably procure for us all the relief we need. Diſtreſs among the merchants and manufacturers, would be the certain conſequence of ſuch a conduct the people in general would have their eyes opened, and would ſoon very ſenſibly feel the fatal effect of the late acts of parliament and feeling muſt bring conviction, and daily create us new friends with its increaſe.

Laſt week two veſſels arrived here from the Mount, by whom we have a confirmation that the trade with the Engliſh to that place was wholly broken up: That a brig from this port arrived there the latter end of June, but as ſoon as ſhe came to anchor, orders were ſent for her to depart without any perſon coming on ſhore; the Captain however, ventured up to town, but was ſoon put under the care of a ſoldier to ſee him off again, with orders to ſail immediately, which he was obliged to comply with, tho' he urged his want of water, and proceeded from thence to Nichola Mole.

By a gentleman who arrived here laſt week from Virginia, we are informed, that the wheat harveſt was finiſhed in that colony before he came away, and that the crop is greater than they have had for many years the ears having been ſo large and full that the ſtalks could ſcarce ſupport them till reaped.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 8.

Laſt Monday Afternoon came up here a very ſevere Storm of Rain, attended with Thunder and Lightning—the Lightning ſtruck a Tree in the Weſtern Part of this Town, under which were two Cows, belong to Mr. Caleb Bull of this Place, both of which were inſtantly killed.

Middletown, July 31, 1768.

LAST night the ſhops of the ſubſcribers in ſaid Middletown, were broke open and the following goods or articles ſtolen out of the ſame, viz. out of George Philips's Store, about 6 or 8 dozen of large Barcelona handkerchiefs, almoſt a yard ſquare, 2 doz. black, the reſt ſhaded with different colours; one dozen of black cravats, three or four pieces of black ribband, one paper of white metal ſhoe and knee buckles, two doz. of Ivory combs, 1 caſtor hat, a little moth eaten, 3 or 4 pen knives, 7 or 8 dollars, 1 piſtole, and about 8 or 10 pounds in bills of this colony.

From Abel Johnſon, a ſnuff colour'd, broad cloath coat with yellow buttons, and edged with gold cord, 2 black worſted breeches patterns, one pound of ſewing ſilk of various colours.

From Francis Wetmore, 1 pair men's ſhoes, grain black'd, whole quarters.——Whoever ſhall ſecure the thief or thieves in any of his Majeſty's goals, ſo that he or they may be brought to juſtice, ſhall have FIFTY SHILLINGS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by us,

POLYNOMIAL to the PRINTERS.

Although I had heretofore fully expreſſed myſelf in ſentiments unexceptionable, and phraſeology abſolutely capable of a juſtification, in ſpite of the keeneſt criticiſm, and therefore (upon vindicable principles) then voluntarily took my leave of the public, to retire to my own dear ſelf; yet, as the delirious Phœnix, Hipponax, has ſince made ſuch ominous fluttering, in his imaginary Babel, foreboding his own ignominious exit, or total eclipſe—and the important criſis overtaking him ſo precipitately; a detail of the circumſtances thereof ſeems to be wanting, for an Epilogue, to complete the memoirs of his chimerical Æra, and form the revolution entire——Therefore hope you will once more add to my inexpreſſible ſenſations of obligation to gratitude for paſt favors by publiſhing the following

Litchfield, 6th July, 1768

ON the very day that your laſt paper made its firſt appearance among us, (in which the ſcene was opened for Hipponax to ſhine away ſo conſpicuouſly) a vagrant ragamuffin, ſtrolling directly from a neighbouring village, in a ſouth weſt courſe (having only few inſtances of croſſing his own track, "going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it") unfortunately happened, in a tavern in this metropolis, to make a notable miſ-take of particular private property; and to avoid a more unlucky diſcovery endeavoured to render himſelf ſcarce, by abſconding——But this inſtance of neighbourly boldneſs being noticed, and ſeconded by his other oddities, ſo far correſponding with that preternatural, Herculean wielding of Engliſh grammar, that unprovoked, barbarous aſſaſſination of the natural rights of common ſenſe, and ſtudied tranſgreſſion of the indiſpenſible rules of chriſtian charity, &c. blazing forth ſo egregiouſly, in that heterogeneal product, or tautological manufacture of a tutelar Demon, by the inſtrumentality of Hipponax, that he was ſhrewdly ſuſpected to be the very Amanuenſis, and to have made this tranſient viſit to learn what reception his jargon might receive——Whereupon information being preſently made to lawful authority, the fugitive was immediately indicted, purſued, apprehended on the New-Milford road, remanded and examined by the name of Hipponax to which he readily anſwered, nor denied the facts alledged in his indictment, but defended under a plea of lunacy, or a vertigo occaſioned by criminal familiarity with the ſpirits of vegetation, imported from the Weſt Indian iſlands——yet he retained ſenſe enough however, to hear pronounced in his ſentence (among other things) and repeated in a written mandate, delivered to the conſtable, "Take Hipponax, and whip him ten ſtripes "on his naked body." Thence the convict was conducted through a croud of people (whom curioſity had hurried together to behold a living author, an itenerant manufacturer, and exotic plagiary, in one threatned ſkin, intercepted in his progreſs, treated like a ſcoundrel, and wading in trouble) to the place of flagellation! where (maugre all his boaſted philoſophy) he reluctantly ſuſtained the ſhock of regular diſcipline, with ſuch apparent ſenſibility, and rare puſilanimity, (frequently invoking his deſerted guardian-genius, and the ſpectators of his miſchance, with importunate requeſts to ſever his head from his ſhoulders, and thereby diſlodge him from an uncomfortable manſion of clay) that he convinced the whole circle he thought himſelf a mortal, and ſcarcely chargeable with any witchcraft, though then in the very act of literally accompliſhing his own vague predictions, in ſubmitting to become the early object of his late ſarcaſtical imprecation, by hugging a public whipping poſt, as "the deſerver of his deſerts which he really deſerved, on account of his late public performances," and thereby exhibiting a ſenſible ſpecimen how the feminine might harmonize with the neuter, in one complex idea. But the ceremony of the ſcourge being performed, and the penitent diſengaged from his wooden miſtreſs, (after ſome bitter reflections, rather than otherwiſe, he willingly diſappeared.

So now you ſee the phraſe complete——in black and white,
And Hipponax himſelf will hardly dare deny it,
For on my honeſt word you have the ſtory right,
Firſt harmleſs Polynomial was miſconſtru'd quite,
By that grave Matron who did thereupon indite,
That inconſiſtent meſs of vapour, ſpleen and ſpite,
But he reſum'd his pen, and lac'd her ſtays ſo tight,
"She got the laugh herſelf," for her attempt to fight,
(Like famous Don Quixote) a wind mill of the light,
And prudently deſiſts a theme ſo unpolite,
But Hipponax (till now aſleep and out of ſight,
A Riffraf Polyglot! fit tool for ſuch a bite!
Awakes, chagrin'd to ſee his female favourite,
In ridicule for her alarm, and needleſs fright,
And by the force of truth, ſo fairly put to flight.)
With mythologic whim, in moſt bombaſtic plight,
Aſcends on fancy's wings, chimera's greateſt height,
There takes the quill——looks down——attempts to read and write,
Perverts the ſenſe of words, and ſeems to ſtrain to——
But through miſtake, beſmears, by gueſs, with all his might,
Himſelf, his dioceſe, and darling vanquiſh'd wight,
Inſtead of making one or other ſhine more bright,
(We never know our ſkill, till once we come to try it.)
But mark the turn of fate! how tranſcient his delight!
Fortune may ſmile to day, to morrow ſhe may ſlight,
Here both extremes at once befal our Errant Knight!
Repeated crimes degrade, while officers indict,
And ten ſucceſſive ſtripes great Hipponax backbite,
Till weary of the ſport, he vaniſh'd like a kite,
And left no more to add, except to bid good night.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.

We can aſſure the public that the aſſembly of this province ſo early as February laſt, took into their conſideration the act of parliament impoſing a duty on paper, glaſs, &c. and thereupon, under the ſenſe of the oppreſſion of that act, prepared and ſent to their agents in London, full and poſitive inſtructions to unite with the agents of the other colonies in an application to parliament praying a repeal thereof. That this was done long before the receipt of the circular letter from the Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, and before the houſe could certainly know what meaſures would be purſued by the legiſlature of that or any other colony. That upon receipt of the circular letter, by the Speaker of this province, which was after the adjournment of the houſe, he immediately wrote to the Speaker of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, acknowledging it, and aſſuring him that he ſhould take the earlieſt opportunity of laying it before the aſſembly of this province. That this was done in the May ſitting. But as the houſe had before given the above mentioned inſtructions to their agents, in a good degree anticipating the deſign of the circular letter, and concluded that they ſhould be more capable of purſuing the meaſures proper and neceſſary to ſupport the rights of the colonies, from information which they expected to receive from their agents and otherwiſe, they poſtponed the further conſideration of that letter, and other public buſineſs, to their ſitting in September, and adjourned to an earlier day in the month than uſual for that purpoſe——when there is not the leaſt room to doubt but that they will purſue every meaſure that ſhall be further neceſſary to aſſert the rights of America in general, and thoſe of their conſtituents in particular.

Laſt night Capt Carver, formerly of the New England troops, arrived here from Fort Pitt, and informs us, that the garriſon were very healthy about a fortnight ago. This gentleman has been employed ſeveral years as a draughtſman, and has been exploring the heads of the Miſſiſippi, the Scioto and lake Superior, in which ſervice he has given great ſatisfaction, having made ſeveral diſcoveries of great utility. He went 1500 miles to the weſtward of Michillimackinac, and travelled 1100 miles on lake Superior, part of the time without any other companion than a Frenchman and an Iroquois Indian.

Capt. Carver met Colonel Wilkins and his troops, about 30 miles on this ſide Fort Pitt.

Extract of a Letter from Amboy, dated July 22, 1768.

——"Laſt night the office of the treaſurer of the eaſtern diviſion was broke open, and a quantity of money, in dollars and paper ſtolen, to the amount of between ſix and ſeven thouſand pounds. The money was in an iron cheſt, in which the public money, when cut from the ſheets, and ſigned by the treaſurer, is put. It appears that the villains firſt broke open a ſcrutore, in which was ſome few Johannes, and ſome old bills the amount of about thirty or forty pounds, which they took; in the ſcrutore they found the key of the cheſt, which was drawn to the eaſt window, where it was opened, and the money carried off."——

SUPPLEMENT to the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

MONDAY, Auguſt 8, 1768. [NUMB. 18[illegible]]

The humble ADDRESS of the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and commons in Parliament aſſembled, preſented to his Majeſty on Saturday the thirteenth day of May, 1768.

Die Sabbati 13° Maii, 1768.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign

WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return your Majeſty our moſt hearty thanks for that gracious and paternal attention to the welfare of your people which has induced your Majeſty at this time to interpoſe your own more immediate authority for putting an end to that dangerous diſturbance of the public peace, thoſe outrageous acts of violence to the proſperity of your Majeſty's ſubjects, and that moſt audacious defiance of the authority of the civil Magiſtrates, which have of late prevailed to ſo alarming a degree in and near this great metropolis.

Your Majeſty's expreſs command, ſignified by your royal proclamation, that all the laws for preventing, ſuppreſſing, and puniſhing, all riots, tumults, and unlawful aſſemblies be put into immediate execution, will, we hope effectually prevent the continuance or repition of theſe diſorders.

But ſhould any of your ſubjects continue ſo loſt to all ſenſe of their own true intereſt, as well as duty as to go on to interrupt, by their lawleſs & deſperate practices, that quiet and peaceable enjoyment of every right and privilege alloted to each individual among us by our excellent conſtitution, which it has ever been your Majeſty's firſt object of chief glory to ſecure and perpetuate to us all; permit us your Majeſty's truly dutiful and grateful ſubjects the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, to aſſure your Majeſty of our ready concurrence in every meaſure that may contribute to enable your Majeſty moſt effectually to maintain the public authory, and carry the laws into due execution; and of our determined reſolution, moſt chearfully and vigorouſly to ſupport your Majeſty againſt every attempt to create difficulty or diſturbance to your Majeſty's government.

Aſhley Cowper, Cler. Parliamentor.

His Majeſty's moſt gracious Anſwer

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I RECEIVE with great Satisfaction this loyal, dutiful & ſeaſonable addreſs of both Houſes of Parliament. It is with the utmoſt concern that I ſee this ſpirit of outrage & violence prevailing among different claſſes of my ſubjects. I am however convinced that the vigorous exertion of lawful authority which will continue to enforced joined to your ſupport and aſſiſtance, will have the deſired effect of reſtoring quiet and good order among my ſubjects."

LONDON.

May 21. This day is expected, the following bills will receive the royal aſſent, by virtue of a commiſſion from his Majeſty.

The bill for further continuing certain laws to prohibit, for a limitted time, the exportation of corn, grain, meal, malt, flour, bread, biſcuit and ſtarch, and alſo the extraction of low wines or ſpirits from wheat and wheat Flour barley meal & pulſe into this kingdom free of duty, from any part of Europe; and for allowing the importation of oats and oatmeal, rye and rye meal, into this kingdom duty free, for a limited time, and for continuing ſuch other laws as are near expiring.

And the bill of naturalizing John Daniel Leautier.

After which both houſes ſtood adjourned.

A change in the Admiralty is confidently talked of, & will take place ſoon.

They write from Edinburgh, that on Saturday morning laſt, about four o'clock a detachment of the regiment in the caſtle marched out on the Weſtward, in order to quell the diſturbances which have happened by the Colliers refuſing to work till their wages be heightened.

Yeſterday the Rt. Hon. George Grevile, Eſq; ſet out for his ſeat at Wooton in Oxfordſhire, for the ſummer ſeaſon.

Yeſterday upwards of one thouſand glaſs grinders, from Southwark and other parts, went in a body to Palace-Yard, Weſtminiſter, in order to petition for an augmentation of their wages.

Sunday night the Horſe Guards patrolled from London bridge to the King's bench, to keep the peace.

An article having appeared in ſeveral papers laſt week, that the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor had ſent for a party of guards from the Tower to do duty at the Manſion houſe we are deſired to aſſure the public that no guards were ſent for by his Lordſhip; he only called in the civil power to aſſiſt his own people in ſuppreſſing any outrages, which might be committed by the mob.

A letter from Briſtol, dated March 14, ſays, "Yeſterday morning a body of ſailors, to the amount of about 20, made a movement on the Quay, and viſited ſeveral ſhips with a deſign to perſuade others to join them in a demand of raiſing their wages from 25s. to 30s per month; but prevailed on no more than to make the number 40. In the afternoon they attempted the ſame thing, and ſome of them went on board the ſhip Colſton, then going down the river, bound for Barbadoes, and endeavoured to bring the people to join them and and not go in the ſhip without advanced wages; whereupon many people were gathered together, & ſeveral merchants; when after perſuaſive arguments to the one and threats to the others if they broke the peace, they diſperſed, the merchants being determined not to ſubmit to ſuch illegal proceedings."

It is ſaid the mourning for her late royal Highneſs Princeſs Louiſa-Anne, will be but for ſix Weeks.

L O N D O N, May 24.

The Edinburgh Evening Courant has the following extract of a letter from London, dated May 14 —— "I have the pleaſure to acquaint you, that we are at preſent greatly quieter than we have been for theſe ten days paſt; and it is to be hoped our diſturbances will ſoon be at an end. The ſpirited conduct of the Lord Mayor has greatly contributed to this ſalutary effect; and the approbation he has received, both from the King and ———, has probably damped the ſpirits of thoſe ſecret abettors of riot to whom I am afraid moſt of the late ſhameful proceedings may be attributed. The ſtory of Allen, the young man unfortunately ſhot by the ſoldier, is now talked of in a very different manner. From the evidence laid before the Coroner it appears he was greatly to blame. As for Mr. W——, nothing more tranſpires about him."

Jonathan Brown,

BEgs leave to inform the public of his return from the Weſt-Indies, and purpoſes carrying on his buſineſs of chair and harneſs making, where he formerly did, in this Place, with equity and diſpatch. As he has a wife and a large family of ſmall children to ſupport, he expects the employ of all good people, being reduced much in his circumſtances. And thoſe gentlemen whom he is indebted to, would be much obliged to them for their employ, as they may depend ſoon afterwards of payment in full. The lenity they have already ſhown him, will be ever retained gratefully in mind.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

BY THE HONORABLE

William Pitkin, Eſq;

Governor and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Engliſh Colony of Connecticut, in New-England, in America.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS robbery and theft are contrary to the laws of our Sovereign Lord the King, the bane of ſociety, as well as deſtructive to public peace and good order: The ſuppreſſing of which, as well as detecting the perpetrators, is greatly for the emolument of the ſtate.——And whereas it has been certified by his Excellency William Franklin, Eſq; Commander in Chief of the province of New Jerſey, that the treaſury office was, by ſome perſon unknown, robbed of a large ſum of money——alſo requeſting aſſiſtance in this colony, for detecting the perſon or perſons concerned therein. Upon which I have thought fit to iſſue this Proclamation, requiring all Juſtices of the Peace, Sheriffs, and Under Sheriffs, and all perſons whatever, in this colony, to give their aſſiſtance in detecting and bringing ſuch groſs offenders to condign puniſhment.——For information relative to ſaid robbery or theft, and for encouragement to vigilance in the premiſes, I have cauſed his Excellency's proclamation herewith to be publiſhed.

Given under my hand at Hartford, this Fifteenth Day of Auguſt, in the eighth Year of the Reign of his Majeſty George the Third, King of Great Britain, &c. Anno Domini, One Thouſand, Seven Hundred and Sixty Eight.

WILLIAM PITKIN.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY

WILLIAM FRANKLIN, Eſq;

Captain General, Governor and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Province of New-Jerſey, and Territories thereon depending in America, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the ſame, &c.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it appears to me on oath, that the houſe of Stephen Skinner, Eſq; Treaſurer of the Eaſtern Diviſion of this province, at Perth Amboy, was in the night of the 21ſt inſtant robbed of money to the amount of Seven Thouſand Pounds, and upwards, by ſome perſon or perſons unknown, part of the ſaid money being in dollars, a ſmall part in gold, and the reſt chiefly in new bills of credit of this province: And altho' diligent ſearch hath been made after the perpetrator or perpetrators of this daring and atrocious robbery, he or they remain as yet undiſcovered.

I have therefore thought fit to notify the ſame by Proclamation, hereby requiring all Judges, Juſtices of the Peace, Sheriffs, and other Officers of this province, to be particularly vigilant in diſcovering the robber or robbers, and ſecuring the ſaid money, and for that purpoſe to examine all perſons they ſhall have reaſon to ſuſpect of being concerned in committing the ſaid crime.

And in order to encourage a zeal and activity in this matter, I DO hereby, with the advice of his Majeſty's council (beſides paying the ſum of FIFTY POUNDS, provided by the government in caſes of burglary) promiſe to recommend to the General Aſſembly that proviſion be made, in the ampleſt manner, to reward any perſon or perſons who ſhall detect, apprehend, or cauſe to be apprehended, any or either of the perſons concerned in the ſaid robbery, ſo that he or they be convicted thereof: And over and above the ſaid reward, I DO hereby promiſe his Majeſty's moſt gracious pardon to any accomplice who ſhall diſcover and proſecute to conviction, any one or more of the ſaid offenders.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms, at the City of Burlington, the Twenty ſixth Day of July, in the Eigth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, Anno Dom. 1768.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOS. REED, jun. D. Secry.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

N. B. Mr. SKINNER, by Advertiſement, promiſes a farther Reward of One Hundred Pounds.

By the K I N G,

A PROCLAMATION, for ſuppreſſing Riots, Tumults, and unlawful Aſſemblies.

G E O R G E R.

WHereas it has been repreſented to Us, that divers diſſolute and diſorderly perſons have, of late, frequently aſſembled themſelves together in a riotous and unlawful manner, to the diſturbance of the public peace, and particularly, that large bodies of Seamen, conſiſting of ſeveral thouſands, have aſſembled tumultuouſly upon the river Thames; and, under a pretence of the inſufficiency of the wages allowed by the Merchants and others, have, in the moſt daring manner, taken poſſeſſion by violence, of ſeveral outward-bound ſhips ready to ſail and, by unbending the ſails and ſtriking the yards and topmaſts, have ſtopped them in the proſecution of their voyages; and that theſe acts of violence have been accompanied with threats of ſtill greater outrages; which have ſpread terror and alarm among thoſe moſt likely to be immediately affected thereby; and it has been further repreſented to Us, That ſome of the ſaid diſſolute and diſorderly perſons have audaciouſly attempted to deter and intimidate the civil magiſtrates from doing their duty: We having taken the ſame into our ſerious conſideration, and being duly ſenſible of the miſchievous conſequences that may enſue from the continuance or repetition of ſuch diſorders, have thought fit, by and with the advice of Our Privy-Council, to iſſue this Our Royal Proclamation; hereby ſtrictly requiring and commanding the Lord Mayor and other the Juſtices of the Peace of Our City of London, and alſo the Juſtices of the Peace of our city and liberties of Weſtminſter and Borough of Southwark, and of our counties of Middleſex, Surry and Kent; and all other Our Peace Officers, That they do ſeverally uſe their utmoſt endeavours, by every legal means in their Power, effectually to prevent and ſuppreſs all riots and tumults and unlawful Aſſemblies; and to that end to put in execution the laws and ſtatutes now in force for preventing, ſuppreſſing, & puniſhing the ſame; and that all Our loving ſubjects be aiding and aſſiſting therein: and we do further graciouſly declare, that the ſaid Magiſtrates and all others acting in obedience to this Our command, may rely on Our Royal protection and ſupport in ſo doing.

Given at Our Court at St. James's the 11th day of May, 1768, in the eighth year of our reign.

L O N D O N, May 21.

A few days ſince, two ſoldiers were ſentenced to be flogged in the tower, for joining the mob in Southwark, getting drunk, and roaring out, Wilkes and liberty forever. They received 45 laſhes each, three times, viz. every other day, and were afterwards, ordered to the drill for 45 days, that they might have their bellies, full of that celebrated Number.

May 25. A letter from Hamburgh mentions, that the brave people of Corſica, after having in vain implored the aſſiſtance and protection of divers foreign courts againſt the tyranny of the French King, had unanimouſly reſolved to ſell their liberty and lives together, rather than ſubmit to the arbitrary dictates of the grand Monorch.

They adviſe from Leghorn, that the court of Verſailles had of late propoſed very flattering offers to General Paoli, which the more than Roman virtue of that celebrated patriot had induced him to refuſe.

According to recent advices from Hamburgh, it was given out, that the brave Corſicans had been refuſed either aſſiſtance or protection, in defending the liberties of their country, by every European power to whom they had applied, ſo that it was expected they muſt ſoon ſink under the yoke of French tyranny.

May 25. A ſhip has lain ſome days in the river with the King's Broad Arrow, and ſeveral officers on board, for attempting in an illicit manner to carry ſeveral Tanners, with their working tools, and neceſſary ingredients for carrying on ſuch a manufactory abroad, contrary to ſeveral ancient & modern ſtatutes in that caſe made and provided. This cargo, it is ſaid, was intended for Embden, but was diſcovered by an officer in the Exciſe.

The maſter callico Printers have, unſolicited, raiſed the price of their manufacturers labour in conſideration of the advanced price of every kind.

The corn lighterman, and the meeters are now gone to work in the river at the old price and go on very peaceably.

One of the ſoldiers on Tueſday, before the King's Bench priſon cried out, "We are all ready to fire on our enemies the French and Spaniards, but never will on our own countrymen."

Some diſputes having lately ariſen between the coalheavers and ſailors belonging to colliers, relating to the unloading the coals, they yeſterday had ſeveral Skirmiſhes, and it is reported ſeveral of the coalheavers were killed. The coalheavers met yeſterday in Stepney Fields, in order to have a trial of Skill with their antagoniſts, but the guards from the tower prevented further miſchief.

It is rumoured that our ambaſſador at the Court of Portugal will ſpeedily be recalled.

May 26. We hear that a number of Col. Fraſer's late batallion of Highlanders, both officers and private men, are preparing to embark for the Iſland of St. John's, which lies in the gulf of St. Lawrence, betwixt Nova Scotia and Cape Breton; they have had lands granted them by the Government, on that iſland, and will, it is hoped, make a very uſeful Settlement to this nation in caſe of any future rupture with France.

Thurſday laſt the General Aſſembly of the Church of Scotland [illegible] Edinburgh. On this occaſion, his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Glaſgow, made a grand appearance,

His Grace opened the Aſſembly with an elegant ſpeech from the throne, to which the Moderator made a very ſuitable return. His Majeſty's moſt gracious letter to the Aſſembly was then given in by his Grace and read with all due honour and reſpect and ordered to be recorded, of which the tenor follows:

" GEORGE, R.

" Right Reverend and Well beloved, We greet you well. The unwearied attention which you have ſhown to the great cauſe of religion and virtue, and the frequent proofs we have experienced of your duty, loyalty and affection for our perſon & government, have the juſteſt title to our royal protection; it is therefore with the higheſt ſatiſfaction that we renew, on this occaſion, thoſe aſſurances which we have ſo often given of our ſteady reſolution to maintain and ſupport the Church of Scotland, as by law eſtabliſhed, in the full and free enjoyment of all her juſt rights and privileges.

" We cannot too earneſtly recommend to you the continuance of that harmony, which will give dignity to your procedings; and that avoiding narrow diſtinctions, private annimoſities, and perſonal altercation, you confine your deliberations to the great and laudable Work of promoting every Chriſtian virtue, & diſcouraging every tendency to vice and immorality. And you cannot render a more eſſential ſervice to your country, or a more acceptable one to me, than by inculcating the inſeperable duties of a ſtrict obſervance of the tenets of our holy religion, and a perfect obedience to the laws of our happy conſtitution.

" We have again made choice of our right truſty and right well beloved John Earl of Glaſgow to be our Commiſſioner, to repreſent our perſon in this Aſſembly, whoſe fidelity zeal, and attachment, we have already experienced, and whom we are convinced will not only be acceptable, but pleaſing to you; & we cannot doubt but he will, by a ſteady adherence to the duties of his high office, promote thoſe great ends which we have ſo much at heart. That your endeavours for thoſe laudable purpoſes may meet with the ſucceſs which they deſerve, and that this preſent meeting of the General Aſſembly may from your wiſe conduct, be brought to a happy concluſion, by the moſt entire unanimity, cordiality, and brotherly love, amongſt all its members, is our ſincere wiſh; & ſo we bid you heartily farewell."

Given at our Court at St. James's, the 23d day of April, 1768, in the eighth year of our reign. By his Majeſty's Command, (Signed) WEYMOUTH.

EDINBURGH, May 20.

We are adviſed from the Weſtern iſlands of Scotland, that a number of Settlers have lately embarked for America, from theſe iſlands; in particular betwixt forty and fifty families have gone from the iſland of Jura alone for Cape fear in Carolina to ſettle thereabouts, and in Georgia; ſome of them are perſons in good circumſtances.

On the 15th inſt. at 15 minutes paſt four in the afternoon, a ſmart ſhock of an earthquake was felt at Leyburn in the North riding of Yorkſhire, and in the neighbourhood, and though the air for ſome days before was very cold, it became now remarkably ſultry and hot. This earthquake was preceeded with a rumbling noiſe, like thunder at diſtance, and its courſe ſeemed to be from Weſt to Eaſt.

A few days ago ſeveral manufacturers in the woolen and caſt ſteel, were engaged by French agents, at Brimingham, Sheffield, Woolverhampton, &c. to go to Paris, and other parts of France, on promiſe of great encouragement.

A correſpondent at Deal informs us, that the Dolphin and Swallow ſloops of War, ſpent the whole Southren Summer in getting thro' the Streights of Magellan into the South Sea, where they ſuffered greatly by ſtormy and tempeſtuous weather. They entered the South Sea the 9th of April, 1767, when the Dolphin loſt ſight of the Swallow, and has not ſince ſeen or heard of her. As the Swallow was a bad ſailer, and ill calculated for ſuch a voyage, it is feared ſhe is loſt.—They touched at Tinnian, which they give a very indifferent account of.

We hear, that the Officers and Seamen on board the Dolphin under Commodore Wallace, will receive the ſame advantages of promotion and pay, as thoſe in the late expedition under Commodore Byron.

It is ſaid, that the Books and Journals kept on board the Dolphin man of war, during her late voyage to the South Seas, has been delivered ſealed up, for the inſpection of the Lords of the Admiralty.

Letters from Rome adviſe, that the Pope told the Spaniſh Miniſter at his laſt audience, that it would be to no purpoſe to ſay any thing more about revoking his brief againſt the Court of Parma; that what he had done was to eaſe his conſcience, and in conformity to the oath which he had taken to defend the rights of the holy church. "We are drawing (added the Pontiff) towards the laſt day of our life, and we would willingly appear before the tribunal of the Almighty, not as perjured, but conſcious of having done our duty. We know that this our proceeding will be diſapproved, perhaps will give much offence to the potentates of the earth. Nevertheleſs, we have taken our reſolution, and are prepared againſt all events. Should we be obliged to ſhed our blood, even to the laſt drop, we ſhall be content to make ſuch ſacrifice, and render thanks to God, who may perhaps, place us among the holy Pontiffs that are revered by the Church, tho' in the number of them we have not the merit to be reckoned." The Ambaſſador aſked the Holy Father, in what terms he ſhould deliver an anſwer to his Court? "In the preciſe terms (replied the Pope) wherein I have juſt expreſſed myſelf."

The laſt letters from Civita-Vecchia ſay, that two regiments of Neapolitan troops were daily expected at Orbitello, which gave great uneaſineſs, as fatal events were foreſeen, if the diſpute between the Courts of Rome and Parma was not amicably determined.

They write from Gibralter, that repeated ſhocks of an earthquake had lately done great damage on the coaſt of Barbary, particularly in the neighbourhood of Tunis, where ſeveral houſes have been thrown down.

LONDON.

Mr. WHITEFIELD, in his ſenſible, well wrote Letter to the Vice-Chancelor of Oxford, lately publiſhed, among other things, pertinent to the purpoſe, ſays,——"If matters proceed in this channel, what ſtamp, Reverend Sir, may we ſuppoſe our future Miſſionaries to the Iſlands and Continent will be of? To my certain knowledge all of them are not looked upon as very burning & ſhining lights already.——But if what little light of true religion ſome may have, is to be thus damped by acts of expulſion before they leave the Univerſity, and even this little light, as far as lies in the power of man, is to be thus turned into total darkneſs how great muſt that darkneſs be? Surely it muſt be worſe than Egyptian darkneſs; a darkneſs that will be moſt deplorably felt by all true lovers of our common ſalvation both at home and abroad.

"You need not be apprized, Reverend Sir, that a deſign for the eſtabliſhment of Epiſcopacy in our Iſlands and plantations, hath been upon the tapis; and that it hath been, in part at leaſt, the ſubject of annual Sermons for ſeveral years laſt paſt. No longer ago than in the year 1766, the preſent Biſhop of Landaff inſiſted upon the neceſſity and expediency of it in the moſt explicit manner; nay, his Lordſhip carries the matter ſo far as to aſſure us, that this point namely, the eſtabliſhment of Epiſcopacy, being obtained, "the American church will go out of its infant ſtate; be able to ſtand upon its own legs, and without foreign help and ſupport and ſpread itſelf; and then, adds his Lordſhip, this ſociety will have been brought to the happy iſſue intended." Whether theſe aſſertions of his Lordſhip, when weighed in a proper ballance, will not in ſome degree be found wanting, is not for me to determine. But ſuppoſing the reaſoning to be juſt, and his Lordſhip's aſſertions true, then I fear it will follow that a ſociety, which ſince its firſt inſtitution hath been looked on as a ſociety for propagating the Goſpel, hath been all the while rather a Society for propagating Epiſcopacy in foreign parts; and if ſo, and if ever ſhould appear that our Right Reverend Archbiſhops and Biſhops do in the leaſt countenance and encourage the unſcriptural proceedings at Edmund-Hall, how muſt it increaſe the prejudices of our Coloniſts, both in the Iſlands & on the Continent, againſt the eſtabliſhment of Epiſcopacy; that perſons of all ranks, from Quebec down to the Floridas, are at this time prejudiced, and more than prejudiced is very notorious; but how will the very tho't or the introduction of Lords Biſhops even make them ſhudder, if their Lordſhips ſhould think proper to countenance the expulſion of ſuch worthy, and truly religious Students, whilſt thoſe who have no religion at all perhaps may not only meet with countenance, but approbation and applauſe."

LONDON, June 9.

YESTERDAY morning Mr. Wilkes was brought from the priſon of the King's Bench to the Court. The Judges came about nine. At the opening of the court, Mr. Wilkes made a ſhort ſpeech, that he was perfectly ſatisfied with the ſtate of the argument, as it was left by Mr. Serjeant Glynn; that he did not mean to quit the firm and ſolid Ground on which it reſted, and was perſuaded, from the juſtice of court that his outlawry muſt be reverſed. The Attorney-General then in ſupport of the outlawry entered upon a very long argument to which one of Mr. Wilkes's Council replied. The Judges afterwards delivered their opinions very fully, and were unanimous that the outlawry was ILLEGAL, and muſt be REVERSED. Their Lordſhips differed as to their reaſons, but all concurred in the reverſal, and the irregularity of the proceedings.

The Attorney General then demanded judgement on the two verdicts. Mr. Wilkes deſired to avail himſelf of ſeveral points in arreſt of judgement. He ſaid that when he had the honor of appearing before that court on the 20th of April, he had ſtated the caſe of the alteration of the reccords at Lord Mansfield's own houſe; that his Lordſhip had replied; but that however his Lordſhip had delivered only his own opinion; and the opinion of one Judge, however diſtinguiſhed for great ability, was not the judgement of the Court, which he deſired and ſubmitted to, and begged that his Counſel might argue that, and ſome other points of importance. Several things were afterwards mentioned by the Attorney General and by Mr. Wilkes's Counſel. At laſt the Court fixed next Tueſday to debate, whether both verdicts ought not to be ſet aſide on the objections as to the reccords having been altered, and that the informations were not filed by the proper officer, but by the ſolicitor General; ſo that it is poſſible that Mr. Wilkes may be diſcharged on Tueſday next.

BOSTON, Auguſt 18.

The merchants and traders in this town have lately had ſeveral Meetings to conſult meaſures for the better regulation of the trade which at preſent labours under great difficulties and diſcouragements; And being convinc'd that a further importation of unneceſſary goods from Great Britain would involve the importers in ſtill greater difficulties, and render them unable to pay the debts due to the merchants in Great Britain.——They unanimouſly Voted not to ſend any further orders for goods to be ſhipp'd this fall and that from the firſt of January 1769, to the firſt of January 1770, they will not ſend for or import either on their own accounts or on commiſſions, or purchaſe of any factor or others, who may import any kind of goods or merchandizes from Great Britain, except coal, ſalt, and ſome articles neceſſary to carry on the fiſhery. They likewiſe agreed not to import any tea, glaſs, paper or painters colours, until the acts impoſing duties on thoſe articles are repealed.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, to his friend in Boſton, dated May 12. 1768.

"We are all ſhockingly impatient to hear from Boſton, it is a long while ſince. It is tho't Wilkes's outlawry will not be reverſed, as there is no precedent for an outlawry for a libel. This was ſuggeſted by the Judges themſelves."

It is ſaid the grand penſioner, always ready with his council, has adviſed the C--mr.s to remonſtrate home againſt the civil authority of Connecticut, for declining to iſſue writs of aſſiſtance for a general ſearch of contarband goods, in the baſe unconſtitutional manner they have been granted in another province.---Perhaps the ſame advice may be given relative to the chief J---ſt--ce of Philadelphia, who we hear has alſo acted in a like worthy manner upon a ſingular demand,

Acta Eruditorum. No. 1.

Or the Hiſtory of the WISEACRES,

ONE of the firſt acts of the Commiſſioners after their arrival, was the eſtabliſhment of divers Holy Days for the obſervance of all officers of the Cuſtoms in N. America. There is St. Bridget, and St. Figet, St. Bernard and St. Becket, St. Budget, and St. Commencement; the day of the Nativity of the American Board, with leave vouchſafed to their underlings, if they think fit, to keep all days of faſting and thankſgiving appointed by the Governor and Council. Are theſe men to be informed that the Governor of this Province, be he who he may, and what he may, as the King's Lieutenant and Repreſentative here is their maſter? I have no objection to celebrating the days of the creation and annihilation of the Board of North American Commiſſioners as holy-days. But then I contend that the former ſhould thro' all ages be kept as a day of ſolemn faſting, humiliation and prayer, for the deliverance from the worſt of temporal evils, and the latter as a high Jubilee and thankſgiving for the greateſt temporal mercies received.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 18.

On Sunday laſt arrived the Duke of Cumberland Packet, Capt. Goodrich, who ſail'd from Falmouth the 19th of May conſequently brings no news ſo late as we have had.

We hear that it is expected in the Spaniſh Weſt Indies, that a War will ſoon happen between Spain and Gr. Britain.

On Sunday evening arrived a Schooner from So Carolina, with ſome Troops (Invalids we hear) deſtined for Halifax.

HARTFORD, Auguſt 22.

On Saturday the 13th Inſtant, the following melancholly Accident happened in Windſor, viz. Four young Women whoſe Names were Thrall, who had been at Work abroad in the Afternoon, after they had compleated their Labour, agreed to divert themſelves in the Water, in a ſmall River in that Place: Accordingly, they pulled off their Stockings & Shoes, and joining their Hands, immediately went into the River; but not being acquainted with the Depth of the Water, and the Bottom being very uneven, the young Woman that was foremoſt fell into a deep Place, which ſhe did not diſcover till it was too late to ſave herſelf, and pulled two of her unhappy Companions after her, by which Means they were all unfortunately drowned, and the other very narrowly eſcaped ſharing the ſame Fate. Two of the above young Women were Siſters, one of which was about 21, the other about 19 Years of Age. The other was a near Relation. Their Bodies were ſoon after taken up, and the next Day decently interr'd. The Rev'd Mr. Ruſſell preached a Sermon ſuitable to the Occaſion.

An Anſwer to a very important Queſtion, viz. Whether any Community has a right to puniſh any ſpecies of theft with death?

Relative to this queſtion, let it be conſidered

FIRST, That in a ſtate of nature, men are in a ſtate of individuation; each man is ſui juris, is under his own direction——owes no duty to, nor is under any obligation to any ſociety of men, as ſuch.

2. That men may, for their more comfortable ſubſiſtance, form themſelves into ſocieties, erect a form of government among themſelves, enact laws, and appoint men to execute the ſame, &c.

3. That a ſociety or government thus erected and impowered is poſſeſſed of, juſt ſo much power, as the individuals of that ſociety or government have granted. It being impoſſible for ſuch a ſociety founded on a compact between the individuals, by force of the compact, to acquire a power, which the individuals had not granted; or could not grant.

4. That when men from a ſtate of individuation, thus form themſelves into ſociety for the purpoſe aforeſaid, it muſt be upon the expreſſed or implied conſent of every member of that ſociety.

5. That when the individuals of ſuch a ſociety, have inveſted it with certain rights and powers, they themſelves of ſuch rights and powers, are ſo far diveſted; that is, they cannot exerciſe a power, which they have given up to the community, to exerciſe for them.

6. That thoſe rights which the individuels give up to the community, muſt be ſuch as are alienable, and not ſuch as are unalienable in their own nature conſequently if the individuals ſhould attempt to grant to the community, rights unalienable in their own nature, the community would acquire nothing by ſuch a grant, it being impoſſible for one to receive, what the other could not give.

The obſervations preceeding, being ſecurely founded, it follows, That the right any community has to put any individual of that body to death for any ſpecies of theft muſt be received from the individuals themſelves, by their expreſs, or implied conſent, which ſuppoſes neceſſarily, that each individual has ſuch a property in his own life, that he has a right to ſubject it to ſuch a penalty at pleaſure. This is the point, the turning point in the queſtion. To this it muſt be ſaid, that if we would enjoy the benefit of ſociety, in having our lives and properties ſecured in a better manner than could be in a ſtate of nature, we muſt give up ſome rights to the community which we juſtly poſſeſs, excluſive of all mankind; but theſe muſt be ſuch rights as are alienable in the nature of them. Our eſtates may be ſubjected to the controul of the community, our bodies to puniſhment, not extending to life. Our characters may be declared infamous for certain crimes and miſdemeanors, by act of the community, and all by our own conſent. Theſe and ſuch like rights we may, and do give up to the community, with this expectation, that the advantages which we ſhall receive from the community, will abundantly compenſate——With this expectation, every man enters into ſociety; for he would be a mad man, to enter into ſociety upon a proſpect that he ſhall be leſs happy in that ſtate, than in his own natural ſtate of individuation, and mad to diſtraction if he would give up his life to enjoy the benefit of a community unleſs he could enjoy it when he was dead.

It muſt be noted at the ſame time that ſome things are eſſential to our being, ſome rights are in their own natures unalienable——theſe we cannot part with or give up. Could a community have right, with the conſent of its individuals to declare a man infamous, who had not made himſelf ſo - - not, unleſs they had a right to declare a falſhood: The character of a man being inſeperable from our being no conſent of his, or act of community could make it different from what it is. The ſame may be ſaid of many other things, that they are inſeperable from our beings, and for that reaſon cannot be parted with. If then we have no power or right to part with ſuch things as are inſeperable from our beings, can it be in our power, or have we a right to part with our being itſelf? We have two forms of exiſting, one is the preſent, the other is to take place in another ſtate;————and both together are to be eternal as to an hereafter; and if the preſent manner of our exiſting depends on our conſent, why may not the other; and if we have a right to do an act, which will virtually, as it may happen, put a period to that, and thus extinguiſh the whole of our exiſtance.

But the truth in this point is, we received our being without our conſent; and cannot part with it without our conſent. We received our being, in every form of its exiſting to improve, but not to diſpoſe of. As the author of our being, gave it of his own good pleaſure, and appointed the two ſeveral, forms of our exiſting as above; his and not ours, is the right to ſay, how long it ſhall exiſt in the preſent form, or in that which is to ſucceed, and when, and for what reaſon either ſhall termine and come to a period.

As a conſequence therefore, we as individuals have no right to give up our lives to the community, to be taken from us, for any ſpecies of theft whatſoever. The community therefore, as they can have no power but what they receive from individuals, have no right to take our lives from us for the crime aforeſaid, either with our conſent, or without it. If this then is the caſe, may not a man whom the community is about to apprehend for the crime aforeſaid, knowing the conſequence of his being apprehended will be death, reſiſt unto blood, and juſtify upon the principle of ſelf defence, in as much as he has as good right to reſiſt the community, as a ſingle man, if they attempt to deprive him of life without right. Dreadful conſequence!

may I not add, that if an individual has a right to give up his life to the community, to be taken from him for the crime aforeſaid, that he would have had as good a right to take away his own life for the ſame crime, had he not given up his right to the community: for the right of community to take away his life as aforeſaid, being founded on his conſent, is by conſtruction taking away his own life---Where then the crime of ſelf murder? I tremble at the queſtion.

I am ſenſible by this time the reader is impatient to aſk, Whether a community has a right to puniſh murder with death, conſiſtent with theſe principles? I anſwer, they have, for there is an eſſential difference between murder and theft.

When mankind was in a ſtate of nature, before they had formed themſelves into civil ſocieties, when there was no government excepting parental, murder was puniſhable with death. By the law of nature, he that had taken away the life of another wrongfully, forfeited his own; not to any community, but to every individual man. The murderer by ſuch an unnatural, wicked act, gave ſuch full proof of his want of integrity, and total corruption of heart, as rendered him utterly incapable of giving mankind that ſecurity with regard to their own lives, which they individually had a right to, that they might ſlay him, and juſtify their ſo doing, upon a principal of ſelf preſervation. This was the ſenſe Cain, no doubt had of this matter, upon his murdering Able, which mad him ſay, And it ſhall come to paſs, that every one that findeth me, ſhall ſlay me,--- Did Cain ſay this, becauſe he knew, that GOD had commiſſioned every man thus to become an avenger of blood? No, for as yet there was no prohibition againſt murder itſelf, but from a full ſenſe of that dictate of nature, juſt mentioned. But after the flood, agreeable to that law of nature, GOD gave a ſtatute, viz. That, that man who had ſhed man's blood, by man ſhould his blood be ſhed. Thus it appears that murder is to be puniſhed with death, both by the law of nature, and the expreſs command of GOD; but no ſpecies of theft by either; excepting ſtealing a ſoul of Iſrael, which was made capital by a ſtatute founded on the pecular circumſtances of this people.

The community therefore have a right to puniſh murder with death; and when they enact a law for that end, that crime is ſtrictly ſpeaking, not made capital by this law. GOD and the laws of nature had made capital before and there is no giving up life in this caſe by the conſent of the individuals, which has proved to be, not in their power, as there is in the caſe of theft &c. The conſiſtent underſtandging of ſuch a law, muſt be, that whereas each individual in a ſtate of nature, had a right to deſtroy the murderer, they now give up this right to the community, that the community may take away the life of that man who has forfeited it, and has a right to the enjoyment of it no longer.

I have ſaid what I deſigned reſpecting the right any community has to puniſh theft with death. A word as to the policy of it. He that committed a burglary in the Jewiſh ſtate was to make full reſtitution, or be ſold for the theft. GOD as their king and legiſlator, judged this a ſuffient ſecurity in this caſe -- if ſufficent for that ſtate, why not for this?

If only murder was made capital, the mind would ſhrink back, with horror at the thought, of perpetrating a crime attended with ſo diſtinguſhing a puniſhment. But when a number of crimes are made capital, the unthinking part of mankind, judging very much of the heinouſneſs of crimes, by the puniſhents that attend them; the horror of this crime is much abated, ſo that they can commit murder or theft almoſt with equal eaſe. 'Tis probable therefore, that as the number of capital crimes are increaſed, the inſtances of murder will be multiplied. For this reaſon the fewer capital crimes there are, the better.

COMPLAINANT. [No. 20]

Horridus——pelle lybiſtidis urſæ

"Mr. COMPLAINANT,

You ſay in No. 14.—The moſt filthy, putrefying entrails of a BEAR are polite ornaments among the Hottentots."—I would be glad to know whether there are a vaſt many BEARS on the Cape of Good Hope where the Hottentots live? Yours
Ignoramus."

NOW in anſwer to this inquiſitive gentleman, I would obſerve theſe following things.—1ſt. If the word bear does not ſuit him ſo well, I deſire him to add beaſt in the room of it; and let this ſtand as part of the errata to my miſcellanies, in all future generations. 2d. If there be no bears in thoſe parts, moſt certainly the entrails of that animal will, being far fetch'd and dear bought, be much more genteel and polite, than the guts manufactured in their own country, that is, if we take it for granted (which perhaps Mr. Ignoramus will not) that the inhabitants of Caffraria, are actuated by the ſame prejudices that the reſt of the world are. 3d. This gentleman ſhews but little knowledge of the world, if he queſtions the truth of my aſſertion, merely becauſe there are not "a vaſt many bears at the Cape of Good Hope"; and that for theſe ſeveral reaſons, viz—1ſt. "Polite ornaments" are uſually raiſed, produced, or manufactured in another country. 2d. The polite part of mankind will not frequently make uſe of ſuch things for ornament as their country produces "a vaſt many" of----by way of caution obſerve, (for I would avoid all diſputes upon ſo perplexing and knotty a point,)—I don't ſay this is right and proper, but only it is fact—further. I don't declare it to be univerſally the caſe, but only ſometimes.—(O ye ſons of contention and Logomachy! learn by my example to explain yourſelves, and make proper diſtinctions before you enter the field of battle)—but to return from this digreſſion,—4th. Suppoſe Bears are not natives of the ſouthren part of Africa; ſuppoſe there are none to be found at home through all that continent from pole to pole, but only in Muſcovy; yet it is as poſſible for a ſtragling couple to wander down into ſome of the Hottentot territories, as for a family of elks to traverſe New Haven county, and finally embark at Milford for Great Britain: Now ſuppoſe this ſtragling couple to be taken up and ripp'd open, muſt we not imagine the nobility of that country emulating one another in price, for purchaſing ſo rare and curious a ſet of viſcera?—After all I would ſay, 5thly, There are not a "vaſt many bears" I believe, at the Cape of good Hope, and if there were, they never would be "polite ornaments."

My good, grave, ſerious reader! don't be offended; I muſt take notice of my correſpondents---and now I will take occaſion from what has been ſaid, to fill up the remainder of the paper with ſome obſervations upon Bears. I am ſometimes ſerious, and ſometimes ludicrous; but you muſt thank Mr. Ignoramus for this week's chapter of bears; and in purſuing the ſubject, I purpoſe to be very methodical, as I have hitherto been, communicating all I have to ſay, by one, two, three.

1ſt. With regard to bears, (and in particular white bears) I refer my reader to a learnead diſſertation in my good old friend Triſtram, (O Triſtram! Triſtram! art thou gone? what fooliſh hackney ſcribler is he that pronounces thee "void of wiſdom?") I confeſs this is all digreſſion,—but digreſſions are ſo much in faſhion, that I am under no apprehenſions of ſevere criticiſm on that account, for (to extend the digreſſion a little further) I have lately heard ſome ſermons and ſpeeches in court, that met with great applauſe, which were all digreſſion from one end to the other. 2d. A Bear is a very honorable animal on ſundry accounts, Firſt, two noted conſtellations in the heavens are called the greater bear and the leſſer bear, or urſa major and urſa minor; nay this black quadrupede is ſo dignified by aſtronomers that even the pole ſtar is ſaid to be the very tail of even the leſſer bear. Secondly, not only aſtronomers, but emperors have heaped honor upon this pretty looking animal: The emperor Frederick IId near 600 years ago inſtituted the order of the bear, as a military order in Switzerland, by way of grateful acknowledgement for the great ſervice the Swiſs had done him, and in favor of the Abbey of St. Gall: and to render the appearance of theſe celebrated knights the more ſpledid, they wore upon their coller a medal, on which was repreſented a bear; and perhaps ſome of theſe Swiſs knights might firſt have introduced bears guts among the Hottentots however this is only conjecture: I would not have Mr. Ignoramus catch me up too quick upon it.... Thirdly. The greateſt perſonages find noble entertainment in fighting a bear; and he that would think it beneath himſelf, and out of character to ſtand a conflict ſword in hand with a private gentleman, acts a noble part when he draws upon Sir Bruin. Fourthly. A certain author (Savar. dict comm T 2. p 937) ſays, "that the paw of a bear, ſalted and ſmoked, is ſerved up at the table of princes." Fifthly. This animal is not only highly honored by princes and emperors, but it has a dignified place in the commercial world, as its ſkin produces a fur in great eſteem; and even the gentlemen of the medical faculty have taken notice of the oil of this animal as ſerviceable in rheumatiſm, gout, &c vide Alleyn's diſpenſ. p. 15. What an honorable beaſt is this? and what wonder if ſo poliſhed a people as the Hottentots, eſpecially ſince their connexions with Europe ſhould not procure (at any rate) ſome of their entrails, to make a brillaint appearance (at leaſt) on great feſtivals and birth nights? But before I conclude my paper, I will be a little ſerious in my anſwer to my correſpondent's queſtion:——It is indeed a matter of diſpute with me, whether this animal be a native of Africa? Virgil repeatedly ſpeaks of preſons clothed in the ſkins of African bears, as particularly Aceſtes in the line perfixed to this paper — Pliny denies that bears are ever produced in that country "ob calidiorem cæli temperiem," becauſe of the too hot temperature of the air; but Cardanus, Solinus, &c. ſpeak of the "beauty of the Numedian bears." We read frequently in the claſſick Writers of the bears of Numidia and Lybia, and I know not what diſtinction in this reſpect is to be made between thoſe African countries, and the Cape of Good Hope, however Lipſius conjectures (and perhaps very juſtly) that theſe African animals, which the Romans called urſi and we tranſlate bears, were a different ſort of animal from the creature uſually known by that name in Europe, more reſembling a lion, for which he gives reaſons that I have not time or room to recite.

Pleaſe to inſert the incloſ'd in your next, and you will oblige many of your Readers, and in an eſpecial Manner the Sons of Liberty.

To the Freemen of the Colony of Connecticut.

GENTLEMEN,

THERE is nothing I ſo ardently wiſh, as the continuance & right improvement, of our invaluable charter privileges, and as nothing can ſo infallibly direct us in making a wiſe choice of our civil rulers, as the knowledge of their public conduct for a ſeries of years in the general aſſembly. I am therefore requeſted by a number of freemen and ſons of liberty in this colony, to recommend it to you, that you would be pleas'd at your next meetings for election of repreſentatives, to give them ſpecial inſtructions that they publiſh a journal of their proceedings of the General Aſſembly, and that the ſame be lodged in the town clerk's office, in each town in this colony, for the inſpection of the freemen; and that in all votes of an intereſting nature, ſuch as granting money out of the colony treaſury, leavying taxes on the people, &c. with the names of the voters, pros and cons, be inſerted therein.——I have this to ſay in favour of this practice, that it will be a more infallible direction to the freemen, in the choice of civil rulers, than any informations they may receive from deſigning or party men: and furthermore, that publiſhing a journal of the proceedings of the aſſemblies, is practiſed by every province on the continent, where galleries are not provided for all perſons to be preſent, and hear the debates and proceedings of their aſſemblies, who are deſirous of being made acquainted with them; and in ſome governments printing the names of the voters, pros & cons, in all intereſting debates, and reſolutions. A journal of the houſe of repreſentatives of the province of N. York, I have now lying before me, which contains the names of the voters on each ſide the queſtion, in all reſolves which their conſtituents would be deſirous to know.——In this private method of conducting the affairs of our general aſſembly, we are ſingular and alone, and act diverſly from every colony on the continent of North America: Whereas being an elective government, we ſtand in more need of ſuch knowledge, and information.

I am likewiſe requeſted to recommend it moſt earneſtly to you, that you inſtruct your repreſentatives, to make a final Settlement of the colony's accounts, and that all monies, by bonds or mortgages long ſince due to the government be collected & paid into the treaſury——that all money due to the colony, retain'd both principal and intereſt in the hands of contractors, attornies, sheriffs collectors, or others, in what ſtation ſoever, be bona fide paid into the treaſury, before they ſhall proceed to levy any other taxes on the inhabitants of this colony——And that ſome proper ways and methods be deviſed to leſſen the buſineſs of the general aſſembly, and that the ſame be confin'd to matters of general concern to the government——that 140 members might not be obliged to ſit at the expence of the colony for more than one month, twice in a year annually, when great part of that time is ſpent, by the members of that honorable houſe in gravely hearing the ſum total of the liſts of the ſeveral towns, with the additions and fourfolds—the returns made of ſome perſon (to by far the greater part of the members unknown) choſen to fill the important office a lieutenant or enſign of the militia, in ſome remote pariſh in the colony—and hear the law proceedings of ſome trifling cauſe, pending between two litigious perſons, and often ſolemnly to give leave for a new proceſs, to the no ſmall emolument of gentlemen in the law, but more frequently to the benefit of petty foggers, to the advantage of the sheriffs, but more frequently their bayliffs, whoſe buſineſs is to promote ſuits at law.——We are duly ſenſible theſe things muſt be heard, judg'd and determin'd by proper courts and judges; but at the ſame time we are of the opinion, the general aſſembly of the colony of Connecticut, is too reſpectable a body, and attended with too much expence, to ſit two months in a year, to hear and determine trifles, or thoſe things which are not of general concern to the government.

I am gentlemen,

This week ſeveral workmen in the manufactory of Baize at Colcheſter, were engaged to embark for Boſton New England.

Laſt night a Gentleman laid a wager of 100 guineas to five that Mr Sergeant Glynn will be returned member for Middleſex.

The following toaſt is now univerſally drank in the moſt polite companies in this Metropolis Champaine to Mr. Wilkes and real Pain to his Enemies.

We are informed that a celebrated Comedian, who died a few days ago, was poiſoned by a mere accident.

It is ſaid orders are iſſued for double quarantine to be performed on board all ſhips coming from any port in the Mediterranean.

From the Sherburne Mercury, June 13.

We cannot but flatter ourſelves that moſt of the readers of our paper are ſuch friends to Liberty, that they will receive with the moſt heart felt pleaſure the news we give them this week, that Mr. Wilkes, the great aſſertor of the Liberties of this Country, is now reſtored to all the rights and privileges of it, of which he has been long deprived by an illegal proceeding——And it is but a juſt debt of gratitude to ſay that the people owe more to him, than to all or any of the patriots of the preſent times. Beſides the total overthrow of that arbitrary and dangerous practice to public liberty, General Warrants the ſpirit, intrepidity, and firmneſs, with which he declares againſt a Lord Chief Juſtice, for having altered a record at his Chambers, will, there is reaſon to think, have ſuch an effect, that it will be never attempted again; which cannot but be wiſhed for. And the eyes of the people are ſo opened to their juſt rights, that there is much likelihood that all the ſlaviſh remains among us of Star Chamber proceedings will be totally aboliſhed.——Mr. Bingley, who has lately been ſerved with an attachment for publiſhing the North Briton, No. 50, when he appeared in the Court of King's Bench on Tueſday laſt, to ſhew cauſe why an attachment ſhould not be iſſued againſt him, intended to make a defence himſelf.——Council having declined undertaking to make it for him; but he was not permitted by the Court to do it: he has however ſince appealed to the public, by publiſhing the Defence he intended to have made in Court, in which the ſpirit of the liberty of antient Rome, even in its pureſt days of freedom, breathes forth. After aſſerting and ſhewing how the charges brou't in No. 50. againſt Lord M——, are founded in fact, he concludes, 'However, my 'Lords, whatever my offence may be, I deſire to have it determined by a Jury of my 'own countrymen. The favourable and 'glorious appeal of Engliſhmen is to GOD 'and their country. To them I ſtand or 'fall. I ſhall refuſe to anſwer any queſtions by way of interrogatories on attachment 'there can be no pretext for denying me a 'trial by Jury. The way of attachment is 'a Star Chamber proceſs; to which I will 'not ſubmit: it is unlawful: it is unprecedented in ſuch a caſe. My Lords, I am 'an Engliſhman, and I demand, as my 'right a trial by Jury.'

ANECDOTE.

WHEN Mr Wilkes appeared before the Court of King's Bench and the L—— C—— J—— declared Mr Wilkes was not before him——A gentlemen asked the ...... Ambaſſador, then preſent, Whether he did not think it very extraordinary?

The Ambaſſador replied——No, not in England. In my country, it would have been very extraordinary; for we believe in the real preſence.

PHILADELPHIA Aug. 22.

On Saturday laſt a man was committed to Gloucaſter Goal, on ſuſpicion of being concerned in the robbery of the Eaſt Jerſey Treaſury. The reaſons which induced the Juſtices to commit him were, that he had with him a quantity of Jerſey bills, moſtly new, which he ſeemed anxious to exchange for any other money; that he gave a very improbable account of the manner in which he got it, and ſeemed very deſirous of going into a retired part of the Jerſeys, to live for ſome time. That he ſaid he had been Clerk of a ſhip on a voyage to the Weſt-Indies, but could not ſign his name to his examination.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 22.

Thurſday laſt Capt. Cochran arrived here in 7 Weeks and 3 Days from Glaſgow, in Scotlan——Letters by him inform us,—That Proviſions of all Kinds were extremely cheap and plenty in Scotland, Meal being ſold for only 6d. a Peek;——and ſuch Ameriaan Flour as had been carried there would not ſell at all.——That the Harveſt all over Great Britain was exceeding fine, and Crops very large. That one Farmer in particular, in England, having kept a Stack of Wheat near two Years, in hopes of higher markets, having now been obliged to remove it, found three Quaters of it entirely deſtroyed by Rats, of which 132 were kill'd on the Spot, while many eſcaped alive. A juſt Judgment for ſuch Avarice!——May all Wretches who act on ſimilar Principles meet with as adequate Puniſhments.——That the Report of the French King's Troops going to take poſſeſſion of Corſica, had alarmed ſeveral of the Potentates of Europe; ſome of whom were taking Meaſures to prevent them; and that in all probability, thoſe Proceedings would kick up ſuch a new duſt in Europe, as muſt finally end in a War.

THE ſchooner Betſey, Capt. Benjamin Boden arrived at Marblehead laſt Saturday from Falmouth, which place he left the 22d of June, in the afternoon, and informs, that he was told juſt before he ſailed, that the public papers of that day contained an account that John Wilkes, Eſq; was ſentenced to pay a fine of five hundred pounds ſterling, and to remain in priſon during the term of one year and one day.

Capt. Boden endeavoured to procure a paper, which contained this news of the perſon who gave him the above information, but could not; and as he was juſt upon ſailing, had not time to look farther: The papers he has brought are no later than thoſe received by Capt. St Barbe.

RETIREMENT.

IS happineſs the grand purſuit,
The graſping aim of anxious man?
Who (rational and obſerving)
Thinks it lies in noiſey city.
Or in the din of thronging courts?
Strange the deluſion and miſtake!
View with attention, only view,
The man retir'd to rural life,
And ſee with what propriety.
How advantageouſly he lives.
Soon as the ſun, vicegerent of the day,
Awakes the ſenſative creation,
(Bleſſing the earth with his prolific rays)
Calmly he riſes and with pleaſure ſees
The verdure and the product of his farm.
And hears the lows and bleetings of his flocks,
(Proofs of fortune and increaſe of intereſt.)
And while he's thus delighted, his ruddy
Peaceful and moſt friendly joan, rejoycing
Reminds him of the muſic of the grove.
The ſolemn bonds of judge ne'er bind his [mind,
Nor fawning clyents trouble his abode,
And gaſtly ſheriffs to him are ſtrangers.
Thus quietly, thus pleaſingly obſerv'd
Nature's gifts and nature's bounteous ſtores,
His doors being ſhut his family attend,
And unmoleſtedly to nature's God,
Their joynt and grateful adorations pay.
His meals are reliſh'd with the beſt of ſauce
Unpamper'd ſtomach and good appetite,
(Sure guard againſt the hypocondriack)
His labour ſteady yet not fatieguing,
Being uncontroul'd by grim neceſſity.
Divert he may, nor will it interfere
With his well concerted œconomy:
Perhaps the fav'rite well accouter'd gun
Will be the choice, with faithful Tray to rouſe
The fearful deer, or ſtart the ſkulking [partridge.
But if the book ſuits beſt to recreate,
The ſpeckl'd trout (angl'd) is at command,
Nobly ſupporting domeſtic friendſhip.
And if a tranſient friend ſhould chance to [call
He freely ſhares the rich tho' ſimple repaſt.
But firſt the beachen bowl or larger can
Muſt ſlacke his thirſt and bid him welcome.

WARSAW, May 14

THE Government is afraid to march the crown troops againſt the confederates, leſt they ſhould refuſe to fight their countrymen, or even be inclined to join them.

There is a diſcovery juſt made, of a plot formed by the regiment of dragoon guards (which is the king's body-guard) who have declared for the Confederates. The officers of this regiment are nearly all proteſtants.

Letters from Courland announce the approaching arrival of 50,000 Ruſſian troops This corps conſiſt principally of Coſacks and Calmucks.

Confines of Poland, May 19 The Tartars are forbid by their chief, to engage in the ſervice of the Confederates. And we learn from good hands, that the Porte, informed of the true ſtate of things, will not take any part therein. As to the Ruſſians, they are entrenching themſelves under Warſaw, in order to wait for their reinforcements.

Extract of a letter from Warſaw, May 14.

"The Confederates of Podolia are daily reinforce'd ſo that their number now amounts to upwards of 30 000. and the roads between this city, Lemberg and Caminieck, are dangerous to travel. The Confederates entered upon the eſtates of Prince Czartoiſki, Waywode of Reſſe, beat all the militia there, and took away a great quantity of arms and ammunition, which is the way they treat all who will not join their party. Prince Gaſpar Lubomirſky, General of the Ruſſian troops, fell into their hands: They treated him pretty roughly, and obliged him to acknowledge himſelf debtor to their Confederacy 2,000 000 of Poliſh florins.

"The contagion of the rebellion ſpreads to that degree that even the King's troops ſeem to be animated with it: ſome of whom it is pretended have declared for the confederates."

Extract of a letter from Warſaw, May 16

"The accounts we received from the interior parts of the kingdom continue to be very melancholy, adviſing that the diſturbances increaſe in ſome provinces and that a new Confederacy is formed in the Waywode of Biechi. It is, however, ſome conſolation that the Grand Seignior has declared he will not aſſiſt the Confederates, and that he has even demanded that the Ruſſian troops ſhall immediately evacuate Poland."

Paris, May 23. They write from Rochfort, that a ſhip arrived there from Goree in Africa, has brought advice, that an epidemical diſtemper prevailed in that iſland, which had carried off the Governor, and ſeveral other perſons; that an Engliſh Governor having cauſed the ſon of a Mooriſh King to be put to death, ſeveral Sovereigns upon the coaſt had entered into an alliance, in order to revenge themſelves againſt the Engliſh, and for that purpoſe had aſſembled a very conſiderable army.

Paris, May 1. It is now aſſured, that eighteen or twenty battallions are in march for the ports of Provence, from whence they are to be tranſported to Corſica. Some are of opinion, that the ſaid Iſland is to be erected into a kingdom for the Duke of Parma, whom Spain is to furniſh with the means of ſupporting the dignity of a King, for which purpoſe ſhe has already obtained the conſent of certain European powers; others pretend, that Paoli has lately made a voyage here incog. for the ſake of concluding a treaty, by which the Corſicans ſubmit themſelves entirely to the King, and that in conſequence thereof his Majeſty is ſending there a Governor, an intendent, counſellors, [illegible] cers, and the other neceſſary officers for ſettling an adminiſtration in Corſica, agreeable to the French government. The Marquis de Chauvelin, late envoy extraordinary at Genoa, is nominated to command theſe troops.

BASSATERRE, (in St. Chriſtophers) July 9.

Extract of a Letter from London, of April 30.

"I have but few Occurrences of a public nature to communicate, except concerning Mr. Wilkes, who is the occaſion of much clamour and noiſe among all ranks and ſexes. This celebrated Excile is now in the Kings-Bench; how long the mob will let him ſtay there I know not: they made an attempt the night before laſt to deſtroy that priſon; and would have done ſo, if he had not, in the moſt earneſt manner deſired them to deſiſt. It ſeems the K— ſays he ſhall not ſit in the houſe; nay, his m----r declares if he is ſuffered, ſhe will not ſtay in the Kingdom."

QUEBEC, July 14

On Wedneſday evening, the 6th inſt. arrived here, from Cork, the ſhip Andrews, Capt. Allen, in whom came paſſengers Joſeph Bumbarry, Eſq; Lieutenant Evans, and others: In their way hither they ſtopped, and went aſhore, at Coudre, and on their return to the veſſel, in the boat, run againſt the hawſer, ſtav'd the boat, and were all unfortunately left to the mercy of the ſea; Mr. Evans and two others ſav'd themſelves by catching hold of ſome of the ropes of the ſhip, and Mr. Bumbarry, after being about fifteen minutes in the water, was, with great difficulty taken up, but died ſoon after his being put on ſhore here, & his remains were decently interred on Saturday laſt: He was a gentlemen of a good family and fortune. A man and his wife, who were in the boat, were drowned.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 14.

Captains of ſhips, and all others concerned are deſired to take notice that there is a pirate upon the coaſt of Porto Rico in the Weſt Indies. She is a briganſine, Bermudus built, called the Kouli Khan; is ſingle decked, about 56 feet keel, carries ſixteen carriage guns, 24 ſwivels, and two coborns, & is navigated by 32 men of different nations, commanded by one Lawrencine, and generally ſails under Engliſh colours. She has taken a brig from St. Euſtatia, a ſloop belonging to Coracoa a ſloop and a ſchooner belonging to Jamaica, and a ſloop called Succeſs from Antigua. The particulars of the capture of the laſt we hope to be able to give our readers next week.

July 28. We hear the weather has been ſo remarkably favourable thro'out the whole colony, that few people remember ſo fair a proſpect of plentiful crops, as appears at preſent. May providence long continue its bleſſings, and enable us to enjoy the fruits of our labour, in liberty and peace!

To the PRINTER.

IT is with infinite pleaſure I ſee the various merry conceits of the honeſt citizens and traders, as to the number 45; forty five gentlemen meet and eat forty five pounds of beef, drink forty five pots of porter, ſpit forty five times in the fire, and then—What then? Why then they drink themſelves mighty patriots, men of wit, and champions for Wilkes and Liberty. But, with all humble ſubmiſſion and deference to their ſuperior judgements, I beg leave to ſay, that they always omit the true joke, which is to collect 45 guineas, and ſend it to the banker's towards paying his debts. What does the people in power care, who chafes, who frets," or who eats and drinks at forties and fives? But, if Mr Wilkes is made an independant man, and goes into the houſe free from incumbrances, he will become terrible to bad miniſters; and his friends who thus pay his debts furniſh hiſtory with the moſt exalted inſtance of generoſity and ſpirit, that ever was in this or any other country. I therefore, do moſt humbly entreat all thoſe patriotic and anti miniſterial wags, jokers, funny fellows, and liberty men all, never more to communicate their jokes and conundrums on the noble number 45 except the article concludes thus: "and after the ſociety had eat, drank, ſmoked, danced and ſung, all to the tune of forty five, forty five guineas were collected, and ſent to the bankers towards extricating Mr. Wilkes from his pecuniary incumbrances."

A Lover of a true Joke.

To the Printer of the GAZETEER.

THERE happened in the time of Lord Chief Juſtice Holt, a riot in Holborn, notice of this being ſent to Whitehall, a party of guards were commanded to march to the place, but they firſt ſent an officer to the chief Juſtice to acquaint him with the deſign, and deſired him to ſend ſome of his people to attend ſome of the ſoldiers, in order to give it a better countenance. The officer having delivered the meſſage, Lord Chief Juſtice Holt ſaid to him, "ſuppoſe the people ſhould not diſperſe at your appearance, what are you to do then?" Sir anſwered the officer, we have orders to fire upon them Have you, Sir; replied his Lordſhip? then take notice of what I ſay: "if there be one man killed, and you are tried before me, I will take care that you, and every ſoldier of your party, ſhall be hanged: Sir, added he. Go back to thoſe who ſent you, and acquaint them that no officer of mine ſhall attend ſoldiers; and let them know at the ſame time, that the laws of this kingdom are not to be executed by the ſword; theſe matters belong to the civil power, and you have no thing to do with them."

Upon this the Lord Chief Juſtice ordered his tipſtaffs with a few conſtables to attend him, and he went himſelf in perſon to the place where the tumult was, expoſtulated with the mob, aſſured them that juſtice ſhould be done upon the perſons who were the objects of their indignation: and thus they all diſperſed quietly. See L. C. J. Holt's Life.

PRO GREGE.

To the PRINTER.

—A Controverſy in the news papers has often dwindled into the vileſt ſcurrility and abuſe, and the characters of the good and the bad have been equally blended together, both being committed to the mercy of the worſt of men. This is ſo far true that at this moment it may be fairly aſſerted, that no man has a character to loſe or to preſerve amongſt us; by which one of the nobleſt incentives to honorable actions is entirely deſtroyed.

The whole iſſue of any diſpute reſpecting public fame is now turned upon this ſingle point, who ſhall firſt obtain the cry of the papers? No matter by what means. The merits of the queſtion are ſeldom enquired after. Wilkes and Liberty! are ſufficient to ſatisfy every underſtanding, and ſtands ſuperior to every argument and reaſon which can afterwards be brought againſt it. If you aſk any of thoſe gentlemen who appear moſt inflamed, Pray, Sir, what is the reaſon of your anger? or upon what does the point turn? He will, in general, anſwer, Oh, Sir! I don't know the facts; that is entering upon the particulars; but it is a very black affair; an infamous attack on private property; or a terrible —; juſt as the ſubject happens to ſuit: in which he that is moſt in the wrong is ſure to make the greateſt noiſe; and experience vindicates this aſſertion to the breaſt of every one who will recollect, that the final judicial deciſions have in general turned out contrary to the firſt impreſſions.

QUEBEC, July 21.

Friday laſt ſailed from this port for England, his Majeſty's 15th regiment of foot, under the command of Lieut. Col. Irving; a corps intrepid, brave, and particularly beloved both by the inhabitants where they have been quartered, and corps they have done duty with in all places where they have ſerved. They had the honor of being diſtinguiſhed at the principal ſieges and battles, both in this country and the Weſt Indies. When they came over in 1758, they were 783 rank and file, of which about 57 are gone home with them, and about 40 of that number have been wounded during the courſe of the late war.

Capt. Allen from Cork, having ſtopt at Coudre, the boat with a number of paſſengers went aſhore, but on their return the boat ran againſt the Hauſer and ſtav'd to pieces, and were all unfortunately left to the mercy of the ſea; Mr. Evans and two others ſaved themſelves by catching hold of ſome of the ropes of the ſhip, but Joſeph Bumbary, Eſq; and another man and his wife who were in the boat were drowned.

Yeſterday the 8th regiment came up from the Iſland of Orleans, where they had been cantoned for ſome time, were landed and marched into Barracks.

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 25.

Extract of a letter from London, dated May 14.

"This capital, the reſidence of the King, is now a daily ſcene of lawleſs riot and confuſion. Mobs are patroling the ſtreets at noon day, ſome knocking all down that will not roar Wilkes and Liberty;—Courts of juſtice afraid to give judgement againſt him:—Coal heavers and porters pulling down the houſes of coal merchants, that refuſe to give them more wages:—Sawyers deſtroying the new ſaw-mills:—Sailors unrigging all the outward-bound ſhips, and ſuffering none to ſail till merchants agree to raiſe their pay:—Watermen deſtroying private boats, and threatning bridges:—Weavers entering houſes by force, and deſtroying the work in the looms:—Soldiers firing among the mobs and killing men, women and children, which ſeems only to have produced an univerſal ſullenneſs that looks like a great black cloud comming on, ready to burſt in in a general tempeſt. What the event will be, God only knows; but ſome puniſhment ſeems preparing for a people who are ungratefully abuſing the beſt conſtitution, and the beſt King any nation was ever bleſt with; intent upon nothing but luxury, licentiouſneſs, power, places, penſions and plunder. Mean while, the miniſtry, divided in their counſels, with little regard for each other, worried by perpetual oppoſitions, in continual apprehenſions of changes, intent on ſecuring popularity, in caſe they ſhould loſe favour, have for ſome years paſt had but little time to attend to great national intereſts, much leſs to our ſmall American affairs, whoſe remoteneſs makes them appear ſtill ſmaller.

"The Biſhops are deſirous of ſecuring the church of England in America, and promoting its intereſt and enlargement, by ſending one of their order thither; But tho' they have long ſolicited this point with government here, they have not yet been able to obtain it; ſo apprehenſive are miniſters of engaging in any novel meaſure."

All perſons indebted to the ſubſcriber, are hereby notified to pay the ſame on or before the firſt day of October next, or they may expect trouble:—And all perſons who have any demands againſt me the ſubſcriber, are deſired to bring in their accounts by ſaid time, in order for ſettlement.

N. B. The dwelling houſe in which he now lives, is to be lett upon reaſonable terms, and to be entered upon by the middle of November next, is well accomodated for a merchant or tradeſman, in the main ſtreet and in the centre of the town. For further particulars apply to

BOSTON, Auguſt 22.

ON Monday the 15th Inſt. the Anniverſary of the ever memorable FOUTEENTH of AUGUST, was celebrated by the SONS OF LIBERTY in this Town, with extraordinary Feſtivity. At the dawn the Britiſh Flag was diſplayed on the Tree of Liberty, and a Diſcharge of fourteen Cannon, ranged under the venerable Elm, ſaluted the joyous Day. At eleven o'Clock, a very large Company of the principal Gentlemen and reſpectable Inhabitants of the Town, met at the Hall under the Tree, while the ſtreets were crowded with a concourſe of People of all ranks, public Notice having been given of the intended Celebration. The muſic began at high Noon, performed on various Inſtruments, joined with voices; and concluding with the univerſally admired American Song of Liberty, the Grandeur of its Sentiment and the eaſy Flow of its Numbers, together with an exquiſite Harmony of Sound, afforded a ſublime Entertainment to a numerous audience, fraught with a noble Ardour in the cauſe of Freedom: The Song was clos'd with the Diſcharge of Cannon and a Shout of Joy; at the ſame time the Windows of the Neighbouring Houſes were adorned with a brilliant appearance of the fair Daughters of Liberty, who teſtified their Approbation by Smiles of Satisfaction.—The following toaſts ſucceeded viz.

1 Our rightful ſovereign GEORGE the the Third.—2 The Queen, Prince of Wales, and the reſt of the Royal Family.—3 The Sons of Liberty throughout the World.—4 The glorious Adminiſtration of 1766.—5 A perpetual Union of Gr. Which being finiſhed, the French Horns ſounded; and after another Diſcharge of the Cannon, compleating the Number NINETY-TWO, the Gentlemen in their carriages, repair'd to the Greyhound Tavern in Roxbury, where a frugal and elegant Entertainment was provided. The Muſick played during the Repaſt: After which the following Toaſts were given out, and the Repeated Diſcharge of Cannon ſpoke the general aſſent.

1 The KING! 2 QUEEN and ROYAL FAMILY! 3 Lord Camden! 4 Lord Chatham! 5 Duke of Richmond! 6 Marquis of Rockingham! 7 General Conway! 8 L. Dartmouth! 9 Earl of Cheſterfield! 10 Colonel Barre! 11 General Howard! 12 Sir George Saville! 13 Sir William Meredith! 14 Sir William Baker; 15 John Wilkes Eſq; and a ſpeedy Reverſal of his Outlawry!* 16 The FARMER OF PENNSYLVANIA! 17 The MASSACHUSETTS NINETY-TWO! 18 Proſperity and Perpetuity to the Britiſh Empire, on Conſtitutional Principles! 19 North America! And her fair Daughters of Liberty! 20 The Illuſtrious Patriots of the Kingdom of Ireland! 21 The truly heroic Paſchal Paoli, and all the brave Corſicans! 22 The downfull of arbitrary deſpotic Power in all Parts of the Earth; and Liberty without Licentiouſneſs to all Mankind! 23 A perpetual Union & Harmony between Great-Britain and the Colonies, on the Principles of the Original Compact! 24 To the immortal Memory of that Hero of Hero's William the third! 25 The ſpeedy Eſtabliſhment of a wiſe and permanent Adminiſtration! 26 The right noble Lords, and very worthy Commoners who voted for the repeal of the Stamp-Act from principle! 27 Dennis DeBerdt, Eſq; and all the true Friends of America, in Great-Britain, and thoſe of Great Britain in America! 28 The reſpectable Towns of Salem, Ipſwich and Marblehead, with all the Abſentees from the late Aſſembly, and their Conſtituents who have publickly approved of the Vote agaiſt Reſcinding. 29 May all Patriots be as wiſe as Serpents, and as harmleſs as doves! 30 The Manufactories of North-America, and the baniſhment of Luxury, Diſſipation and other Vices Foreign and Domeſtic! 31 The Removal of all Taſk-maſters, and an effectual Redreſs of all other Grievances! 32 The Militia of Gr. Britain and of the Colonies! 33 As Iron ſharpeneth Iron, ſo may the Countenance of every good & virtuous ſon and Daughter of Liberty that of his or her Friend! 34. The Aſſemblies on his vaſt and rapidly populating Continent, who have treated a late haughty & 'meerly miniſterial' mandate ' with all that contempt it ſo juſtly deſerves'! 35 Strong Halters, firm Blocks and ſharp Axes, to all ſuch as reſpectively deſerve either of them! 36 Scalping Savages let looſe in tribes, rather than Legions of Placemen, Penſioners and Walkerizing Dragoons! 37 The Amputation of any Limb, if it be neceſſary to preſerve the Body Politic from Perdition! 38 The oppreſſed and diſtreſſed foreign Proteſtants! 39 The free & independent Cantons of Switzerland 40 Their Highmightineſſes the States General of Seven united Provinces! 41 The King of Pruſſia 42! The republic of Letters! 43 The Liberty of the PRESS 44 Spartan, Roman, Britiſh virtue, and Chriſtian Graces enjoined! 45 Every man under his own vine! under his own Fig-Tree None to make us afraid: And let all the People ſay, AMEN.

Upon this happy Occaſion, the whole Company, with the approbation of their Brethren in Roxbury conſecrated a Tree in the Vicinity; under the Shade of which on ſome future Anniverſary, they may commemorate the Day, which ſhall liberate AMERICA from her preſent Oppreſſion! Then making an agreeable Excurſion round Jamaica Pond, in which Excurſion they received the kind Salutation of a friend to the Cauſe, by the Diſcharge of Cannon. At Six o'Clock they return'd to Town: and paſſing in ſlow and orderly Proceſſion thro' the principal Streets, and round the State-Houſe, they retired to their reſpective Dwellings.—It is allowed that this Cavalcade ſurpaſs'd all that has ever been ſeen in America.——The Joy of the day was manly, and uninterrupted Regularity preſided thro' the whole.

The APOLOGIST, No. 1.

"Tales ſunt Hominum mentes quali pater ipſe
"Jupiter auctiſera luſtravit Lampade terras."

MANY perſons are ſo unſtable, ſo much addicted to continual ſhifting, and changing, that 'tis no uncommon thing to find them to day quite the reverſe of what they appeared to be yeſterday. Nothing is more obvious than that ſome of the wiſeſt of men at certain periods, under ſome peculiar circumſtances and upon ſome particular occaſions have diſcovered uncommon degrees of weakneſs. Some men entertain ſuch exalted opinions of their own importance, have ſuch an exorbitant regard to their own private intereſts, that however patriotic they might otherwiſe be, they would ſacrafice the intereſt of a whole county to ſerve their IMPORTANT SELVES.

Mr. Partiſan is a gentlemen who makes great pretenſions to philanthropy, & patriotiſm, ſo long as every thing of a public nature is ſuppoſed to redownd to his private benefit, & advantage; but the moment theſe claſh, the tables are turned.—He is indeed a ſenſible fellow, tho' few are ſo ſenſible of it as himſelf.—He cauteouſly endeavours to act many things out of ſight, has a thouſand little cloſets, and falſe doors where he hides, & comes out again; a thouſand breathing holes at which he blows ſometimes hot, ſometimes cold, and ſeems to aim at blinding the world with cloud and ſmoak. Neverthe eſs his meaning may ſometimes be collected from the wink of his eye. He, and the whole famely of the Partiſans are deſerving the title of a petulent, pragmatical faction—they are a ſett of counterfeit, or rather mock ſons of liberty of whom every true ſon of liberty ought to beware—few appear to be greater ſticklers for the defence of thoſe darling objects, LIBERTY and PROPERTY than they; yet they are found to aim at nothing but the promotion of their own private intereſts.

Not many years ago, when (the county houſe at Weſtcheſter being deſtroyed by fire) the courts of that county for the ſake of greater convenieocy were ordered to be removed from the borough of Weſtcheſter to White plains, what could have been more equitable? at that time, this was highly reaſonable, and altogether juſt, and righteous, this was then a thing of a public nature—a matter which reſpected the whole county—an affair in which all were equally concerned. The public buildings of ſaid county being removed out of the queſtion, the common conveniency of the whole ought much rather to be conſulted than that of any of it's parts excluſively: & the ſaid borough being remote from the centre, no good reaſon could be offered againſt ſuch removal,—ſuch privilege was never meant to be given and granted to any one particular town or pariſh in excluſion of the reſt nor to be poſſeſſed in ſuch a manner as that the ſame could poſſibly be, by them and their heirs and aſſigns forever held by preſcription. Theſe Burgeſſes had no inherent title, no better natural claim to this privilege than the other parts of ſaid county. They had enjoyed this privilege for a long time, had been greatly benefitted thereby, had a ready received more than their equal ſhare of the profits thereof; and therefore no injuſtice could acrue to them on account of ſuch removal.—In ſhort Mr. Partiſan's arguments in favour of ſuch alteration of the place where, upon that occaſion, cannot at once be recapitulated. He had no private intereſt to ſerve in that caſe, and therefore he treated impartially upon the ſubject.—But ſince the court-houſe and goal which lately ſtood erected at F——d in this county; (at that town which he has the honor to call the place of his NATIVITY) are both totally deſtroyed by fire; ſince the major part of the inhabitants of this county, are thereupon, by way of application to the g-n---l a---m-ly of this colony humbly begging for ſuch alteration of the laws in that caſe made and provided as that the town of N--w--k may be made the head or county town, and the place for holding the courts &c. as being by far the moſt conveniently, and commodiouſly ſituate for that purpoſe, Mr. Partiſan appears to be quite another kind of perſon.—"Tempora mutantur et ille mutatur cum illis."

Now ſuch alteration will by no means do,—a matter which has been ſo long eſtabliſh'd ought not to be diſturbed—'tis a degree of preſumption to offer to interrupt ſuch an ancient poſſeſſion—things of this nature ought always to remain in ſtatu quo;—Now, an alteration of this kind, would hoiſt a flood-gate to inconceivable miſchiefs;——'twould be the ruin of that worthy town, and the greateſt injuſtice to it's inhabitants;———Now, ſuch alteration will not, muſt not, cannot, ſhall not be made;——but why not pray ſir?——why! becauſe the inhabitants of this town, have enjoyed this privilege a a great while;--many of them have found it by long experience to be of great utility:--they have been greatly benefitted thereby; have become opulent, great, and powerful;——they have not been uſed to the exorbitant expence of attending courts abroad, at a diſtance from home;-- they have long been the head, and now to become the fag end as it were, this would be too great a diſparagement.———Indeed ſome have argued on this occaſion, that the ſouth-eaſt corner of this county, is neareſt the centre of the ſame—ay! much nearer the centre than the town of N--w--k, but as this is deſigned for an apology, let it be remembered that reaſon is too often blinded by prejudice, and prejudice heightened and encreaſed by intereſt.---Mr. Partiſan is touch'd in a tender ſpot: the private intereſt of his little faction is herein greatly affected: proper allowances ought always to be made for human frailty——"Humanum eſt errare." 'Tis therefore to be hoped the public will in ſome meaſure excuſe him, and let this ſerve for an apology, until they hear again from their humble ſervant.

ERLANDER.

LISBON, May 20.

THE Popes Brief againſt the Edicts of the Duke of Parma and Placencia has been ſuppreſſed here by an edict which the King publiſhed the 5th of this month, which declares the ſaid Brief to be ſurreptious and ſedicious, tending to diſturb the public tranquility, contrary to the laws and cuſtoms of Portugal, – an attempt upon the liberty and independency of his Majeſty's Crown, incompatible with the paternal and pious intenſions of his Holineſs, and as ſuch nul, ipſo facto and ipſo jure. The printing, publiſhing, or having in cuſtody the ſaid brief, is alſo forbid, on penalty of being guilty of high treaſon.

Manheim, May 25. According to advices from Verſailles, the marriage between the Dauphin and the Archdutcheſs Antonietta Joſepha is entirely agreed upon, but the celebration of it, on account of the ages of the parties, will not take place till the year 1770.

Rome, June 15. Yeſterday an expreſs arrived here with advice, that a body of Neapolitan troops took poſſeſſion of Benevento the 11th inſtant, and that the Prelate Lante, Governor of that place had left it, in order to return here. It is aſſured, that theſe troops intended likewiſe to take poſſeſſion of Ponte-Corvo, another town belonging to the Pope.

Genoa, June 18. Mr. Spry commander of the Engliſh ſquadron in the Mediterranean, and Miniſter Plenipotentiary from his Britannick Majeſty to this Republic, had an audiance of the Doge laſt Tueſday.

Vienna, June 22. Letters from Trieſte inform us of the deplorable and cruel end of the Abbe Winckelham, who had acquired very great reputation by his various reſearches into the Grecian and Roman antiquity. Having paſſed ſome time in our City, where he met with a moſt honourable reception by all perſons of diſtinction, he had ſet out from hence loaded with favours by our moſt auguſt Sovereign. The Empreſs Queen had given him among other preſents, three medals of gold, having the impreſſion of the late Emperor Francis, of her Imperial and Royal Majeſty, and of the reigning Emperor ; when arrived at Trieſte, he unfortunately could not meet a ſhip to return to Rome where he had fixed his reſidence, he was therefore obliged to ſtay ſome days at an Inn where another paſſenger lodged, who inſinuated himſelf into the good graces of the Abbe by his polite behaviour. and gained his friendſhip. One morning at ten o'clock, coming into the three medals above-mentioned, while Mr. Winckelman was employed in opening the box in which they were depoſited, the perfidious villain threw acord with a running knot round his neck ; but the knot ſtopping at the chin, the aſſaſſin gave him three ſtabs with a knife. The buſtle which this occaſioned, drew thither a valet de chambre, whom the murderer ſeized by the throat, and threw him with ſuch violence againſt the ground that he loſt his ſenſes, he then made his eſcape. Mr. Winckelman died the ſame evening having firſt made his will, and appointed Cardinal Albani his executor. Before he deſired the perſons preſent, to convey by ſome means his ſentiments of reſpect and grutitude to the Empreſs Queen, the Prince de Crunitz, and ſome other noblemen. The murderer, whoſe name is unknown, has not yet been diſcovered.

LONDON, June 18.

We hear that J. T. diſplayed his talents ſo well in expatiating on the manifold evils which the Eſſay on Woman might have been productive of, that the audience were of opinion he would grace the Spiritual Bench, And one of our poets has it,

That Kings can read,
And Kings we know can give.

It has been tho't prudent, it ſeems, to put a padlock on the pen and tongue of a certain gentleman during the uſual period of one Britiſh Parliament.

Sorry are we to convey a piece of news to our readers that we are ſenſible will give the greateſt part of them a heart felt ſorrow.---They will deeply feel we know for a man who has been by many ſtiled and thought the patriot of his country, who has already ſuffered a long exile, and impriſonment, and muſt now undergo a heavy ſentence. But the time may come that we may acquaint them of his having riſen ſuperior to all, like the celebrated Dr. Lucas of Ireland : who after being perſecuted, exiled and oppreſſed by every cruel act of unminiſterial tyranny, has, through the love and ſteadineſs of the people, riſen ſuperior to all, proved himſelf to be one of the greateſt patriots that ever Ireland produced, and has done his country the moſt eſſential ſervices.

They write from Hamburgh, that two thouſand tons of naval & ordnance ſtores are now buying there and at Altena, for the ſervice of France.

It is ſaid that a Britiſh ſquadron will ſoon make its appearance in the Bay of Biſcay

We are told that ſome Merchants of great eminence have a plan to lay before the Government, which is likely to effect a happy accommodation between the mother country and the American Colonies.

So ſoon as the Britiſh ſquadron for the Mediterranean appears in thoſe ſeas, a ſpirited requiſition relative to Corſica, demanding a categorical anſwer, will be made by the Britiſh Court to that of Verſailles ; our patriot Miniſters being reſolv'd that the French power in the Mediterranean ſhall not be encreaſed by the acquiſition of ſo valuable an iſland.

A war is again talked of by many of our politicians as utterly unavoidable.

We are told that large bodies of the French forces are ordered down into the ſea coaſts : a circumſtance which gives much ground for political ſpeculation

It was this morning currently reported on the Royal Exchang that the expreſs which is juſt arrived from Senegal, brought advice that the French have taken one of our men of war at or near Goree.

Private letters from Hague mention, that the King of Pruſſia had propoſed the exchange of certain territories on the continent for one of the Dutch iſlands in the Weſt-Indies.

The King of Pruſſia, we hear, is as deſpotic at the Hague as at Berlin. The Pruſſian Envoy is always conſulted by the Stadtholder ; and his opinion always prevails both in the cabinet and the aſſembly of the States General.

'Tis ſaid that the great Prince from the Continent is expected to pay a viſit ſpeedily to this kingdom ; and, we hear, that a very magnificent review will be ordered immediately after the arrival of his Majeſty.

'Tis generally thought that ſome great names are at the bottom of the libels which have been lately publiſhed on our Courts of Judicature.

Yeſterday being the laſt day of Trinity Term, the publiſhers and venders of ſome late North Britons appeared in the Court of King's Bench, Weſtminſter ; when one of the venders, a widow, with a large family, was diſmiſſed, and the reſt gave in bail for their appearance next term, which begins on the 7th of November.

June 21. We hear that our ambaſſador at a certain Court has been ordered to demand a categorical anſwer with regard to the deſigns of that court on the iſland of Corſica ; and that contrary to all expectation, inſtead of the retort courteous he had received the reply valiant.

STray'd or ſtolen from the ſubſcriber of Farmington, the 7th inſtant, a bay mare, with a ſaddle and bridle and a butternut-colour'd great coat, mail'd to the ſaddle. She has four ſcars on her, in the following places, viz. one on the right ſide of her head, near her eye, another about the middle of her body, another on her hip, and the other upon her hind leg, all on the ſame ſide, very plain to be ſeen ; her head has been newly trimed, both paces and trots ſhod before, about 14 hands high. Whoever will take up ſaid mare, and return her to the owner, or ſecure her ſo that he may have her again, ſhall have a reaſonable reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by

To the Freemen of the Colony of CONNECTICUT.

GENTLEMEN,

RETIREMENT has been as much my delight, as agriculture has my employment ; yet I have not been altogether an unconcern'd and inattentive ſpectator of the affairs of the world, and eſpecially the proſperity of this free corporation, of which, for a great many years, I have had the honor to be a member. I have been careful to read the public prints, as often as I could obtain them in my obſcurity, and of late years found them ſtuffed with harrangues on liberty, civil and religious, both of which on mature deliberation, I have thought the richeſt jewels in all our poſſeſſions on earth ; but the latter, viz. religious liberty, is the moſt valuable : This was purchaſed at a great price. Our forefathers having erected churches upon the principles of chriſtian liberty unadulterated, God has been pleaſed to own and bleſs theſe churches, and to ſucceed the adminiſtration of his ordinances in them, I doubt not, to the ſaving converſion of multitudes of precious ſouls. But it is matter of great ſurprize to me, that there ſhould be found many, who have been born and nurſed in our churches, that have, under a pretence of liberty of conſcience, violently forced themſelves from communion with the churches to which they were related by ſolemn covenant, and have engaged in an unnatural oppoſition to their own mother. Surely ſuch muſt have "uſed their liberty as an occaſion of offence," and juſt alarm to every one that has a regard for the doctrines, worſhip and diſcipline of theſe churches, inſtituted according to the word of God, and ever revered by our fathers——And the alarm is greater, in as much as warm applications are made to the General aſſembly of this colony, that they would repeal the laws for the ſupport of public worwip. Memorials of this ſort have been frequent of late years ; and unleſs I have been miſinformed, there was one of the ſame tendency at the laſt ſeſſions, laid over to be determined at the next. A gloomy proſpect opens to view, on ſuppoſition petitions of this ſort are granted ! Ignorance, error, enthuſiaſm and barbarity, muſt be the certain conſequence of a demolition of theſe churches, and what a manifeſt tendency a repeal will have upon this demolition, I leave every one to judge——for my own part, I ſoberly think, that if the wholſome laws for the ſupport of a regular orthodox miniſtry ſhould be repealed, there would not, in five years time, be one pariſh in twenty ſupplied with an able, learned, and pious miniſter. No one then will be very ſevere upon me that my fears are rouſed in ſuch an important caſe as this ; and if I ſhould wiſh it was in my power to contribute in the leaſt to relief in ſuch a caſe, I am ſure I ought to do it, tho' at the expence of my whole farm. I will venture then to ſuggeſt to my brethren, the freemen of the colony, this method, viz. that at the approaching proxy, we give our votes for ſuch, and only ſuch men, to be our repreſentatives, as are hearty lovers of, and ſtaunch friends to, what ſome call the ſtanding churches, and the ſupport of their worſhip and diſcipline, whether called Congregational or Saybrook arian. And indeed, the ſolemn oath, my brethren, we are under, will oblige us to chuſe ſuch men, as the moſt likely to maintain both our civil and religious rights ; And if any of my brethren aſk what particular character will deſcribe the men before mentioned I will give my poor opinion both in the negative and poſitive. Negatively,

1ſt. Don't let us vote for ſuch men, who, contrary to the principles of the law providing for the ſupport of a regular and orderly worſhip, grant peculiar privileges to thoſe who petition that they may be releaſed from taxes and not be obliged to contribute to the ſupport of any public worſhip.

2d. Not for ſuch men as turn their backs upon the public worſhip & ordinances of God's houſe where they belong, tho' it be under a pretence that God meets them when in oppoſition to his expreſs commands, and their moſt ſolemn covenant vows.

3d. Not for ſuch men as oppoſe, and are out of temper with all public expence in building meeting houſes, ſupporting miniſters and ſchools even tho' they ſhould pretend their righteous ſouls were griev'd at what they call needleſs expence in erecting coſtly houſes, and call it oppreſſion, and fleaing from the poor.

4th. Not for ſuch as are at the head of an uneaſy party in any place, clamouring at all expence for the purpoſes before mentioned.

5th Not for ſuch who, to ſupport themſelves in their wilful oppoſition, contract an intimacy with thoſe who once they would have ſcorn'd to ſet with the dogs of their flocks, and forſake their former reputable acquaintance.

6th. Not for thoſe who tho' they deny themſelves to be Separates, yet in their conduct are favourers of them.

7th Not for thoſe who make ſolemn promiſes before God and the public, and yet regard not theſe promiſes in practice, but make conſcience of violating them.——But in the affirmitive, or poſitive, I ſay.

Let us chooſe men directly of the contrary character and behaviour ; carefully avoiding men of the former and ſtudiouſly embracing men of the latter character, in our choice, I can't but think will leave a happy influence on preventing the threaten'd ruin, ſo much dreaded by an aged Freeman, and who is alſo the OLD FARMER.

BOSTON, September 8.

THIS Morning arrived here Capt. Lyde, in 7 Weeks from London, and has bro't papers four days later than thoſe received by the Earl of Halifax Packet Captain Jefferies, lately arrived at New-York : Thoſe by Capt. Lyde are as follows, viz.

WHITEHALL, July 12.

THE King has been pleaſed to conſtitute and appoint the Lord High Chancellor ; the firſt Commiſſioner of his Majeſty's treaſury ; the Lord preſident of the Council ; the firſt commiſſioner of the Admiralty ; his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State ; the Chancellor of his Majeſty's Exchequer ; the Lord Biſhop of London ; and the Surveyor and Auditor General of his Majeſty's revenues in America, for the time being ; together with Joame Jenyns, Edward Eliot, George Rice, John Roberts, Jeremiah Dyſon, William Fitzherbert, and Thomas Robinſon Eſq'rs to be Commiſſioners for promoting trade, and for inſpecting and improving his Majeſty's Plantations in America, and elſewhere. And his Majeſty has thought fit to direct, that Wills Earl of Hillſborough, one of his ſaid principal Secretaries of State, ſhall duly attend the meetings of his ſaid Commiſſioners.

LONDON.

July 7. We hear that all the marching Regiments on the Engliſh Eſtabliſhment are ordered to be reviewed ſeparately by their reſpective Officers, and to make due return thereof to the War Office on or before the firſt of Auguſt next—We alſo hear that a general Survey, of the Navy is ordered to be made forthwith, and a due return made thereof to the Lords of the Admiralty with all convenient ſpeed ; to which end on Tueſday next the proper ſuperior Officers will be appointed by the Lords of the Admiralty.

Orders are given for three men of war of the line to be built at Milford Haven, in Pembrokeſhire.

It is ſaid an additional body of 15 thouſand ſeamen will ſoon be taken into the Governments ſervice.

We hear orders are ſent to Ireland for all the fortifications of that kingdom to be immediately put into a proper ſtate of defence.

It is rumoured that ſeveral men of war of the line will ſpeedily be put up in commiſſion for an important expedition.

July 13. By a Gentleman juſt arrived from Calais we are informed, that the common topic of converſation at that place, Dunkirk, & other ſeaports in France, is of an approaching war with England. He further ſays, that he was ſurprized to ſee in Calias many of the doors and windows of houſes, and on ſome carriages, "No 45. and Liberty" chalked.

One day laſt week, at a certain Coffee-Houſe not 100 miles from St. James's, a wager of 1000 guineas to 20, was laid that war would be declared between Great Britain on the one part and France and Genoa on the other, before the third day of Auguſt next.

Some letters from Leghorn mention, that the Genoeſe had been thrown into the greateſt conſternatiom on the receipt of a memorial from Great Britain,

It is rumoured, that the bombardment of a capital ſea port in the Meditebranean, has actually been threatned.

It is ſaid admiral Keppel will ſoon be appointed to command a ſquadron now fitting out at Portſmouth and Plymouth.

We hear orders are ſent to the out ports to the Shipwrights to work a day and one tide in fitting out ſeveral men of war intended for immediate ſervice.

Charleſtown, S. Carolina, Aug. 5.

" The petitions of General Lyman, and others, to the crown, for grants of land, and eſtabliſhing new governments in the interior parts of the continent, are finally ſet aſide and rejected.

BOSTON, September 8.

There was great talk in England, of a WAR with France, when Capt. Lyde left London, on account of ſeveral very large fleets in France, and their taking part with the Genoeſe againſt Corſica.

New-Haven, Sept. 9.

Laſt Monday David Powers, an Iriſhman, was cropt, branded and whipt, in this town, for breaking open a houſe in Amity. He was honored at Hartford with a like compliment ſome time ago, and is now a candidate for a greater promotion.

Laſt Wedneſday Iſaac Fraſier was executed at Fairfield purſuant to the ſentance of the ſuperior court, for the third offence of burglary ; the lenitive laws of this colony only puniſhing the firſt and ſecond offences with whipping, cropping and branding. He was born at North Kingſton, in the colony of Rhode Iſland. It is ſaid he ſeem'd a good deal unconcerned, till a few hours before he was turned off—and it is conjectured by his conduct, that he had ſome ſecret hopes of being cleared ſome way or other.

Hartford, September 12.

We have received very melancholly accounts from Farmington, Simſbury, Windſor, Eaſt-Hartford, Bolton, Coventry, Mansfield, and Tolland, of the damage done to the Indian corn in thoſe towns, by the untimely froſts we had laſt week—all that was in the meadows, and low lands is almoſt entirely deſtroyed, and the owners have cut up the ſame for fodder for their cattle.—This town has ſuffered but very little by the above froſts.

☞ A brief account of the life of the notorious Iſaac Fraſier, who was executed laſt Wedneſday at Fairfield may be had at P. Office.

LONDON, June 25.

From the EXTRAORDINARY NORTH-BRITON, N°. VII.

“IF thoſe who have the adminiſtration of juſtice, & men in power, ſhould endeavour to deprive their fellow ſubjects of that liberty which they ought to enjoy (& which is their birth-right) either by making or keeping them ſlaves they muſt be conſidered as the baſeſt of tyrants who abuſe that authority which ought to be employed for the good of the whole community.

“ Thoſe who are appointed the guardians of our live ands liberties, are under an indiſpenſible obligation to ſtudy and provide for the common good of mankind; but if they ſhould be ſo abandoned as to neglect this care and duty, & thereby ſuffer the natural rights of the ſubjects to be taken from them, either by iniquitous laws, or the powerful influence of bad miniſters and wicked favourites, they of all others are to be looked upon as the worſt ſpecies of helliſh tyrants, becauſe the moſt grievous and laſting tyranny is that eſtabliſhed by law.”

July 2. They write from Paris, that an expreſs had arrived there with advice that the landing of the French troops in Corſica had not been attended with the leaſt oppoſition on the part of the iſlanders.

Letters from Gibralter mention, that the emperor of Morocco's Ambaſſador, who lately arrived there, demanding the payment of a large ſum of money, had been obliged to return home, without the leaſt ſatisfaction as to the inſolent demands of his maſter.

A few days ago a French Dancing maſter had the addreſs to carry off a young lady from a boarding-ſchool whoſe fortune, at her own diſpoſal, is 25,000l.

Extract of a letter from Genoa, June 4

“ The treaty concluded between our republic and the court of Verſeilles, for the ceſſion of the iſland of Corſica, is juſt made public and contains the following articles:

I. The Republic of Genoa cedes the kingdom of Corſica, including its fortreſſes, to France, who is to pay for he artillery and ammunition found therein, according to the eſtimation which ſhall be made.

II. The Sovereignty of that iſland ſhall ſtill appertain to the republick.

III. All private property ſhall be inviolably maintained.

IV. The Corſicans ſhall be accounted ſubjects of France, during the time that he ſhall poſſeſs that iſland.

V. France ſhall be under an obligation to keep ſixteen battallions in the iſland.

VI. France guaranties the Genoeſe commerce againſt the Corſicans or Barbarians.

VII. In caſe the republick ſhould be deſirous of retaking poſſeſſion of that Kingdom, ſhe muſt reſtore to France all the expences which that Crown ſhould have incurred in this affair, for which purpoſe an exact account is to be kept of all the money advanced, as well as the revenues collected.

VIII. France engages to leave the poſſeſſion and ſovereignty of the iſland of Capraja to the Republick.

“ Beſides theſe articles, there are three others. which are kept very ſecret by the Governments.”

Extract of a letter from Warſaw, June 11.

“ We hear that two new confederacies are formed, one at Kein, in Gr. Poland, and the other in Samagotia. The Empreſs of Ruſſia, looking on the Confederates as diſturbers of the public tranquility, has reſolved to make her troops act againſt them, with more vigour than ever, as appears by a declaration juſt delivered.

“ The report continues, that General Kreczetnikow has been beat by the Confederates of Bar; & that the Archbiſhop of the Greeks aſſiſted in perſon at the pillage of the baggage of the Ruſſian General.”

July 5. In laſt Saturday's Gazette is publiſhed an order of Council of his Majeſty, that the Governor, or Commander in chief for the time being of Nova-ſcotia, do forbear to paſs any grants under the ſeal of that colony, for any parcels of land in his Majeſty's iſland of St. John, unleſs his Majeſty's order in Council, directing the ſame, ſhall have been produced to him on or before the firſt day of May, 1763.

A letter from Harwich, dated July 1, ſays, “ Wedneſday arrived here in his way to Holland, the Daniſh Ambaſſador, in order to meet the King, his Maſter, who is expected here in twelve days on his way to London.

The Genoeſe garriſon of Calvi, which had been relieved by French troops, is arrived at Genoa; and the garriſons of Adjaccio and Bonifacio were hourly expected.

The Garriſons of all the forts in the Ban-Fiorenzo have been augmented by the Corſicans, who are likewiſe erecting many new batteries & forming magazines there.

July 7. We hear orders are given for one of the royal yachts at Greenwich, to be in readineſs to ſail for Holland to bring over his Daniſh Majeſty, eſcorted by a man of war.

We hear the apartments in St. James's Palace, lately occupied by the Prince of Brunſwick, will be ſuperbly fitted up and ornamented for the reception of his Majeſty the King of Denmark.

Extract of a Letter from Leghorn, June 14.

‘ We have received advice from Corſica, that at the General Aſſembly held at Corte, it was reſolved to treat all thoſe as enemies who ſhould make any attempts againſt the liberty of the inhabitants of that kingdom, and to defend with vigour the rights of the country, which have been acquired by the blood of ſo many citizens. Purſuant to this reſolution all the inhabitants are forbid, on pain of death, to furniſh with proviſions any of the places occupied by the French. The inhabitants of Capraja have likewiſe received orders not to lend their Gondolas to the French; and Gen. Paoli has promiſed the inhabitants his protection, & that of the whole nation, & has ſent ſome detachments of troops to the coaſt, to watch the motions of the French. Theſe advices add, that the inhabitants of the iſland are ſo highly animated in the defence of their Liberty, that the very women offer themſelves to fight againſt all thoſe who would endeavour to reduce them under the yoke of the Genoeſe.”

Extract of a Letter from Warſaw, June 15.

“ There is a new Confederacy formed at Proſnowick. The Nobleſſe going to church there, as uſual before the opening of the Dyetine as ſoon as maſs was ſaid, one of the nobles gave a ſignal, whereupon they all drew their ſabres. One of the Members of the Regency demanded to know, What this meant? to which they anſwered, We are going to confederate. The conſequences of ſuch a ſtep were repreſented to them, but to no purpoſe, for they cried out with more Vehemence, Confederacy! Confederacy! They were aſked, if they wanted to rebel againſt the King? No, ſaid they, if the King chooſes to join us, we will join him; and all the Nobles here at preſent muſt ſign this inſtrument, (producing the act of confederacy): After which they obliged them all to ſign the act. The news of the Nobleſſe of Samogitia being confedrated, is confimed.”

REFLECTIONS on LIBERTY.

From Reflections on the Caſe of Mr. Wilkes, &c.

LIBERTY, as this writer obſerves, is unqueſtionably the greateſt good which the infinite benevolence of heaven can beſtow on man: Without it, all other bleſſings are precarious in the enjoyment, and conſequently trifling in their value. This ineſtimable treaſure is the birth-right of the happy natives of this iſland, handed down to them, thro' a long ſucceſſion of anceſtors, with continual increaſe and improvements. The name of it is in the mouth of every Engliſhman, but few are ſufficiently appriſed in what part of the conſtitution it really conſiſts.

Excellent as our laws are, though they are deſiredly ſtiled the perfection of human reaſon, yet we muſt look ſtill father than them, for the true foundation of our liberty.

In every government, of whatever kind, from a deſpotiſm to a democracy, there muſt exiſt, ſomewhere or other, a power ſuperior to the laws, namely the power which makes thoſe laws, and from which they derive their authority. The freedom, therefore, of any country wholly depends upon the hands in which the ſupreme legiſlative powers is lodged; & the liberty of a nation is exactly proportioned to the ſhare the body of the people have in the legiſlature, and the checks placed in the conſtitution, on the executive power. That ſtate is truly free, where the people are governed by laws, which they have a ſhare in making, and to the validity of which their conſent is eſſentially neceſſary. And that country is abſolutely and totally enſlaved, where one ſingle law can be made or repealed without the interpoſition or conſent of the people.

Let us apply theſe principles to the queſtion, in what the liberty of England conſiſts.

Is it in magna charta, the bill of rights, the habeas corpus act, or any of the other numerous and excellent laws in favour of the rights and liberties of the people? or is it in all theſe taken together? Clearly not; for thoſe laws may all be repealed in a ſingle day, by the ſame power that made them. In what then does it conſiſt? it conſiſts in the right of the people to chouſe repreſentatives, and in the right of thoſe repreſentatives, (in conjunction with the two other branches of the legiſlature) to make, repeal, & alter the laws by which the people are to be governed; to inſpect into the due and faithful execution of thoſe laws; and to call the miniſters thro' whom the king exerciſes his executive power, to a ſtrict and ſevere account, for every neglect or abuſe in the diſcharge of their important truſt.

This in a few words, compriſes the whole of Engliſh liberty; & it is ſolely to theſe great conſtitutional rights that we owe the ſuperior excellence of the laws, under the government of which we have been ſo long a flouriſhing and happy people. While theſe rights remain inviolate, no ſingle act of oppreſſion, no particular grievance whatſoever, need alarm the people, for they have (by means of them) the legal conſtitutional power of redreſs in their own hands. But the moment either the rights of their repreſentatives when elected, or the people in electing them, are infringed, there is an end at once of ſecurity and liberty, the boaſted laws in favour of the ſubject, may be at one ſtroke, or by degrees, repealed, and the deſpairing people left without any means of redreſs but what are given by the immutable laws of nature to all mankind.

Of theſe rights, as that of free election in the people is the firſt in order, ſo is it in importance, and it is indeed the corner-ſtone of the whole conſtitution. For of what avail to the people are the powers and rights of any ſet of men, if thoſe men ceaſe to be their repreſentatives, which they clearly do whenever the freedom of elections is invaded by the hand of power. God forbid that we ſhould ever ſee ſuch an ivaſion openly and ſucceſsfully made. I am perſuaded we never ſhall. But yet there are ſome circumſtances in the preſent ſtate of affairs, which call for the moſt ſerious attention both of the people at large, and their repreſentatives.”

LONDON, June 22.

It is ſaid the Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's ſquadron in the Mediterranean has ſent home an expreſs, containing ſome diſpatches of great importance.

The controverſy relating to the fitneſs of ſending Biſhops to America is ſtrongly agitated in ſeveral of the provinces of North America at this time.

It is ſaid that divers ſamples of mineral ores have been ſent hither from North-America, conſiſting of lead, iron, copper, and ſilver, from mines lately diſcovered there, all of which are ſaid to be valuable.

June 24. Yeſterday Mr Wilkes gave a very genteel entertainment to ſeveral of his friends in the King's Bench in honour to his Majeſty's birth-day.

A letter from Leghorn, dated June 3, adviſes, that the French have landed 9000 troops on the iſland of Corſica, and that Gen. Paoli has iſſued orders for all the Corſicans, from 16 to 60 years of age, that are able to bear arms, to prepare to attack them; but theſe letters ſay, that he is in great want of money, artillery, and ammunition.

It is given out, that in a late grand meeting relative to the affairs of Corſica the majority are of opinion, that thoſe brave people ought to be vigorouſly aſſiſted.

We are informed that a ſcheme is on foot to apply part of the Crown revenues in America towards the conſtruction of a certain number of ſhips of war, and the eſtabliſhing regular arſenals & dock-yards, in the principal maritime provinces on the continent.

June 29 It is ſaid that the King of Denmark, who is ſhortly expected here, propoſes to ſtay only a few days in London; after which his Majeſty intends to viſit Bath, Briſtol, Birmingham, and other noted places in this kingdom, and likewiſe to take a view of our principal ſeaports and docks, and then to ſet out on his return home.

They write from Genoa, of the 28th ult. that a courier arrived there that day from Paris, with the Ratification of the treaty concluded between France and that republic. The ſame letters add, that 2000 French troops had already landed in Corſica, part of them at Ajaccio, and part at Calvi.

THE Connecticut COURANT

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

BY THE HONORABLE

William Pitkin, Eſq;

Governor and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Engliſh Colony of Connecticut in New England, in America.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS by letters from one of his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, information is given, and affidavits tranſmitted, of the murder of William Odgers, one of the officers of his Majeſty's cuſtoms for the port of Penzance, in the county of Cornwell: ſaid murder therein charg'd on Melchiſedec Kinſman, of the Iſland of Great-Britain, who in April laſt ſailed from Falmouth for New York: ſignifying alſo his Majeſty's pleaſure, that all legal methods be taken for apprehending ſaid Kinſman, (if found within this government) to the end that he may be brought to juſtice.

Agreeable to his Majeſty's pleaſure thereby ſignified, I have thought fit to iſſue this proclamation, requiring all his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, ſheriffs, and other civil officers within this colony, to exerciſe all proper care for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Melchiſedec Kinſman, who is deſcrib'd to be a well ſet man, about five feet eight inches high, about thirty years of age, florid complection, his hair light brown, but wore a wigg when he left England.

For encouraging any perſon or perſons, for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Kinſman, I ſhall ſtate the cauſe to the general aſſembly of this colony, and motion a generous reward.

Given under my hand at Hartford, this 12th day of September 1768, in the eighth year of the reign of our ſovereign Lord George the third, by the grace of God, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, King defender of the faith. &c.

WILLIAM PITKIN.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for April.

An impartial Hiſtory of the late Proſecution againſt the Right Honourable Lord BALTIMORE, for a rape on SARAH WOODCOCK——againſt ELIZABETH GRIFFENBERG, and ANN HARVEY, for being acceſſories to the Guilt imputed to his Lordſhip.

MISS WOODCOCK, the heroine of the following narrative, was a Milliner in King Street, Towerhill, and lived with her father and ſiſter.——She was at this time engaged for marriage with a young man, whoſe name is Davis.

In December laſt a gentleman came to her ſhop ſeveral times, at the diſtance of a day or two, and bought few trifles; he afterwards called again, and having found a pretence to ſit down, he propoſed her going with him to the play; ſhe replied that ſhe never had been to the play, and never intended it.

This reply ſeems to have cut off all hope of ſucceeding in the common way, for he came no more to the ſhop.

On Monday, the 14th of December, a gentlewoman, a ſtranger came to her ſhop, who ſaid her name was Harvey, and having learnt her name pretended that ſhe had been ſtrongly recommended to her, and beſpoke a pair of laced ruffles, ſhe fetched the ruffles the next day, Tueſday, and having bought ſome more things, deſired her to bring them home the day following, in the afternoon.

The next day, Wedneſday, the 16th of Decembeer, betwen four and five o'clock in the afternoon, ſhe went accordingly to a houſe in Curtain-Row, juſt by Hollowaymount. Mrs. Harvey received her very genteely, and immediately ordered tea: She ſaid ſhe could not ſtay, but while ſhe was excuſing herſelf, a little man, whom ſhe afterwards diſcovered to be Iſaac Iſaacs, a Jew, came in, and with many compliments to Mrs. Harvey, began to talk of going to viſit a lady in the city, and Iſaacs ſaid, as he muſt have a coach, he would ſet her down. Mrs. Harvey then turning to Miſs Woodcock, told her the lady ſhe was going to ſee was one to whom ſhe had promiſed to recommend her; that ſhe would want a great many things, and urged her to go with her. Miſs Woodcock all her excuſes being overruled conſented; the Jew went with a pretence to fetch a coach, which almoſt immediately appeared, and they all hurried away together. She did not at firſt diſcern what coach it was, becauſe ſhe got into it in the dark; but ſhe ſoon found it had handſome glaſſes, and took notice that they drove at a great rate, without whipping the horſes.

In about half an hour they arrived at a magnificent houſe, which ſhe was told was the lady's; She went up ſtairs with Mrs. Harvey, who led her through a ſuit of rooms, and in the third ſhe found an [illegible] man ſitting, whom ſhe afterwards knew to be Dr. Griffenberg. This good gentleman got up with great politeneſs, asked her to ſit down, and pretending to go and ſee for the lady, went out and bro't word ſhe was coming.

After waiting half an hour, a man came in, in a linen night gown, whom ſhe inſtantly knew to be the ſame ſhe had ſeen at her ſhop; he pretended not to have been well, and Dr. Griffenberg gave her to underſtand that he was the Steward. He told Miſs Woodcock, that he had promiſed to recommend her to ſome great ladies, which however ſhe did not remember, and ſaid he would go and ſee for them; he returned, and brought word that they were gone out, but would ſoon return; after ſome time, he ſaid he would call the Houſekeeper, and in that character introduced Mrs. Griffenberg, the worthy wife of the Doctor.

Tea was brought in, and with much perſuaſion ſhe drank one diſh; after this the ſuppoſed Steward brought in a heap of nicknacks, ſuch as purſes, ſmelling-bottles, tetotums, & a ring. He ſaid he bought them all for her, but ſhe refuſed to accept them; ſhe conſented however to play with him for them at tetotum, but ſhe would not accept them after they were won.

In the mean time ſhe ſaid more than once to Mrs, Harvey, "I ſhould be glad if you would let me go home." She replied, "we will go home preſently." She was then urged by the gentlemen to ſee the houſe, which ſhe declined, becauſe it grew late, ſaying, ſhe could ſee it another time: He then ſaid, "will you promiſe to ſee it another time?" She refuſed to promiſe, ſhe ſays, becauſe ſhe never intended it; and then he ſaid, "you ſhall ſee the houſe to-night." Still however he pretended to be a ſervant, and carrying her into a room where there was a harpſicord, he asked Mrs. Griffenberg if ſhe was ſure all the family was out, becauſe if ſo, he would play Miſs ſome muſic. This being done, they returned to the room where they had drank tea, and the girl again earneſtly deſired ſhe might go home; but ſupper was ordered, and her remonſtrances were ineffectual.

While Mrs. Griffenberg went out to order ſupper, Lord Baltimore took her up behind the window-curtain, under pretence of ſhewing her where ſhe was; but here he began to behave with ſuch indecency as threw her into a great paſſion, ſhe ſtruggled, & got from behind the curtain, upon which Mrs Harvey and Dr. Griffenberg, came up, ſeemingly to help him; ſhe fought with them all, ſaid ſhe would go home directly, and made up to the door: my Lord ſaid ſhe ſhould ſtay to ſupper; ſhe repeated that ſhe would go directly, but he made her ſit down by him at the table, though ſhe refuſed either to eat or drink, he offered her a glaſs of ſyllabub, which ſhe ſtruck out of his hand, and getting up again, in an agony of diſtreſs, ſaid, with many tears, that ſhe would go home, and made to the door; he ſaid it was too late, and that no coach could be got; "I want no coach," ſaid ſhe, "and here I will not ſtay on any account;" this was about eleven o'clock; ſhe continued to weep, intreat, and expoſtulate in vain; at length he flew in a paſſion, as ſhe expreſſes it, ſaying that ſhe could not nor ſhould not go home, and left her. When he was gone, the two women, Harvey and Griffenberg, and the Doctor, continued to expoſtulate with her another hour, perſuading her to be reconciled, and to go up ſtairs to bed; but ſhe perſiſted in declaring ſhe would go to no bed in that houſe: At laſt they ſaid, if ſhe would ſit up all night, they would not, and that ſhe ſhould go up ſtairs, where there was a bed; & having again endeavoured to perſuade her to undreſs, without effect, they went to bed, and left her: She walked about the room all night crying, and in the greateſt diſtreſs, going often to the window to look for the return of day; as ſoon as it was light, ſhe opened the window, to ſee if ſhe could jump out, but as it was up too pair of ſtairs, ſhe ſaw it was impoſſible to jump out and ſave life.

She continued at the window till between eight and nine o'clock on Thurſday morning, and then happening to ſee a young woman, whom ſhe thought had an honeſt appearance, and might go and acquaint her father with her ſituation, ſhe threw down her handkerchief, which ſhe ſays was as wet with tears as if it had been dipped in water; the young woman not ſeeing from whence it came, took it up, and was going on, but being called to from the window, ſtopped; the priſoner was then going to direct her to her father, but the two women jumped out of bed in their ſhifts, pulled her away with all force, and abuſed & inſulted her. "You have much reaſon to make all this work," ſaid they "when you're in a houſe where a gentleman will do ſo much for you!"

After ſome time ſhe was left in this room alone, but my Lord and Dr. Griffenberg ſoon came in, which terrified her very much; ſhe continued crying, in a great agony, and ſaid ſhe would go home; my Lord at laſt told her ſhe ſhould go home at twelve o'clock, and ſhe replied only by intreaty and tears.

LONDON, July 7.

It is ſaid, a numerous body of Britiſh merchants intend to petition his Majeſty againſt the arbitray deſigns of France upon the Liberties of Crſica.

We hear from Corſica that Mr Murati, who lately commanded at Capræa, is to have the command in the Gulf of San Fiorenzo, & the direction of the towers and batteries there, which are all to be furniſhed with large artillery. Conſiderable magazines are forming, & the garriſons have been augmented.

According to one of the articles that have appeared to the treaty between France & Genoa, the former engages to put Genoa again in poſſeſſion of the iſle of Capraja If ſo, the French will be obliged to make war againſt the Corſicans, as there is no likelihood that the latter will voluntarily evacuate that Iſland, of which they made the conqueſt laſt year.

They write from Porto Farrio, that the French Commandant at Corſica, had intimated to the Gondoliers of Capraja to hold themſelves in readineſs to tranſport French troops where ever they might be wanted; while on the other hand, Gen Paoli had expreſly ordered the inhabitants of the ſaid iſland no longer to lend their gondolas to the French aſſuring them at the ſame time of his protection. The garriſons of all the forts in the gulph of San Fiorenzo have been augmented by the Corſicans, who are likewiſe erecting many new batteries, and forming magazines there.

We hear that at a late conference with the French Ambaſſader, the Count de Chatelet, had with the Earl of S——e, Secretary of State for the Southern department, the Count obſerved, "that the French King in ſending ſo many troops to Corſica, did no more than his duty in aſſiſting his ally, the Republic of Genoa, againſt their rebel ſubjects." Lord S——e replied, "We do not conſider the Corſicans as Rebels." Your proclamations ſtile them ſo, "anſwered the Count."

We hear from Corſica, by the way of Leghorn, that in a General Aſſembly lately held at Corte, it was reſolved to defend the rights of the Kingdom with vigour, and to regard thoſe perſons as enemies, who ſhould attempt to infringe them. The Corſicans are forbidden, under pain of death, to furniſh any of the French garriſons with proviſions; and the Inhabitants of Caprea are ordered not to lend their gondolas to the French.——Gen. Paoli has aſſured the whole nation of his protection, and has ordered out ſome detachments to obſerve the motions of the French troops.

It is confidently aſſerted by the political world, that the arrival of his Pruſſian Majeſty on the territories of Holland will put the finiſhing hand to ſome treaties that have been a conſiderable time in agitation, tending to introduce a new ſyſtem of politics, in the trade, connections, and future grandeur of that Republic, by extending their mercantile influence in ſeveral parts of Europe, as well as in Aſia, Africa, and America.

They write from Genoa that the Senate had received advice, that the Corſicans had ſent off their wives, children and effects to certain ſtrong holds in the mountains of Nebbio, while the whole ſtrength of the iſland had been muſtered to watch the motions of the French.

July 11. Friday ſome Diſpatches, ſaid to be of importance, were received at the Secretary of States Office from Commodore Spry, Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Squadron the Mediterranean.

ly 12. It is reported that a treaty is ne- ing between his Pruſſian Majeſty and General of the Corſicans.

reported that a number of Engliſh ſhip ters are now employed at Genoa, in the ſtion of ſome men of war of the line, are building in conſequence of a late con- with France.

e Utrecht Gazette, under the London of June 14, has the following article:

"Mr. Wilkes is not the only object of the frequent Councils held at Court, and at which the King very often aſſiſts. The new ſubjects of complaint of the Americans, who obſtinately refuſe to ſubmit to the impoſts laid on them in 1767; the ſending of the French troops to Corſica; the troubles which agitate Poland; and among others the great objects which demand the attention of the Miniſtry."

July 13. The controverſy relating to the fitneſs of ſending Biſhops to America, is ſtrongly agitated in ſeveral of the provinces of North America at this time.

We are informed that a ſcheme is on foot to apply part of the Crown revenues in America towards the conſtruction of a certain number of ſhips of war, and the eſtabliſhing regular arſenals and dock yards, in the principal maratime provinces on the continent.

They write from Boſton New England, that their cod and whale fiſheries this ſeaſon promiſed to turn out extremely advantageous, many ſhips full laden having been already ſent to the Mediterranean markets.

In laſt Saturday's Gazette is publiſhed an order of council of his Majeſty, that the Governor, or Commander in Chief for the time being, of Nova-Scotia, do forbear to paſs any grants, under the ſeal of that colony, of any parcels of land in his Majeſty's iſland of St. John, unleſs his Majeſty's order in council directing the ſame, ſhall have been produced to him on or before the firſt day of May, 1769

Quære, to the Gentleman of the Law, Are both of the Sentences valid?

NEW-YORK, Sept. 15.

Thurſday Morning laſt, departed this Life in the 40th Year of his age after a painful and lingering illneſs, at his ſeat at Bloomindale, near this City Mr. James McEvers, many years one of the moſt conſiderable Merchants in this Place; he lived and died with the character of an honeſt man, and a moſt merciful creditor. His remains were decently inter'd in the Family Vault in Trinity Church Yard the ſaturday following.

Capt. Joſeph Hudſon from Cadiz, mentioned in our laſt, acquaints us, that the Spaniards had not the leaſt thoughts of a War; that Caſh was ſo ſcarce in Spain, there was not a ſufficiency to pay either the Navy or Army; and that they had not the leaſt account of any Engliſh Men of War being expected in the Mediterranean.

Friday laſt his Excellency the Hon. William Penn, Eſq; Governor of Pennſylvania, accompanied by the Rev. Mr Richard Peters, Benjamin Chew, James Tilghman, and John Allan Eſqrs. arrived here from Philadelphia, in their way to Sir William Johnſon's, to be preſent at the Indian Treaty to be held this Month at Fort Stanwix; and ſet out for Albany next day

BOSTON, September 15.

Yeſterday Morning the Brig Lydia, Capt. Scott, arrived here from England. She left London the 16th of July, but we don't find any account of impreſſing, nor any further Articles relating to War than by common Reports.

It is conjectured that there are Troops to come here; but at preſent we can find no authentic Accounts of it, nor that any Perſon has declared they actually are, tho' there is great Probability they will ſoon be here if ever.

A Gentleman at Halifax, writes as follows, viz. September 4 We have News from England to the 15th July——great Expectations of a French and Spaniſh War——Fleets equipping, and hot preſſing for Seamen——The King has appointed a grand Council to conſider the Affairs of America, which I hope will have a good Tendency; the Council conſiſts of the Principal Secretaries of State, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a Number of the firſt Miniſtry.——I hope they will act ſo candid as to conſider the Remonſtrances from the Colonies, as I think they deſerve Attention.

By authentic Advices from London, by Captain Scott, we learn, that the Petition of our Aſſembly to his Majeſty had not reached His Royal Ear, tho' it had been delivered to the Secretary of State for this Department: That the Houſe of Commons were divided with reſpect to the Meaſures to be taken with America, pretty much the ſame as they were when the Repeal of the Stemp Act was in Queſtion---one Third were for enforcing the late Acts at all Events---another for a Repeal on Condition of a previous Bill to aſſert the Right of Parliament over America, and the other Third for a Repeal without any Conditions;—and that the Privy Council were pretty much in the ſame State—That the People at Home begin to be convinced, that if the Shackles under which Trade labours were not ſoon removed, Remittances would be ſlow and precarious, and that the Wheels of Trade would ſtop of themſelves, and would ſoon be felt in the Decay of the Manufactures.

We hear that Mr. Wilkes had received the Letter ſent from hence by a number of gentlemen who are well attached to the cauſe of liberty; but that this veſſel ſailed too ſoon to ſend an anſwer; that he ſhould anſwer it by the next.

HARTFORD, Sept. [illegible]

Tueſday laſt a young gentleman who was waiting on Miſs ——'s (the agreable and accompliſhed Daughter of the Rev'd Mr. Bliſs of Concord) to the Commencement at New Haven, be, miſtaking the Place to croſs Agawam River in Springfield, drove his Chaiſe into deep Water, by which Means the young Lady was unfortunately drowned. Her Body was taken up the ſame Day, and decently interred. We hear the Marriage Ceremony was to have been celebrated between them on their Return to Boſton, and that the young Gentleman is in an Agony of Grief on the Occaſion. The Horſe was alſo drowned.

On Wedneſday laſt the Commencement of Yale College was ſolemnized at New-Haven, when the following Gentlemen were admitted to the Degree of Batchelors of Arts, Viz.

Jonathan Bird, John M'Clarren Breed, Thomas Brockway, David Brooks, Joſeph Church, Benjamin Dow, John Ford Abel Forward, Samuel Fowler, John Auguſtus Graham Joſiah Graves Jonathan Hart, Jehiel Hoadley, Seth Hunt, Thomas Huntington, Lemuel L'Barron Amaziah Lewis Jeſſe M'Intier, Theophilus Munſon, Joſiah Norton, Allen Olcott, John Paddeford, Elijah Perkins, Seth Sage, Buckingham St John, Oliver Stanley, Edmond Welles, Nathaniel Well, Thomas Wooſter.

The following were alſo admitted to the Degree of Maſter of Arts, viz.

Roger Conant, Hezekiah Wyllys, Robert Walker, Timothy Woodbridge, Samuel Eells, Samuel Mills, Joſeph Howe, Ralph Wheelock, John Cheſter Williams, Jonathan Judd Apollos Leonard, William Woodbridge, Hezekiah Tomlinſon, Elijah Fitch, Ichabod Lewis, Jonathan Bull, Thomas Groſvenor, Roſwell Grant Samuel Whiting Gideon Buckingham Ephraim Woodbridge William Billings Iſaac Lewis John Elderkin Thomas Yale Job Swift Daniel Brewer Aaron Church Selden Church Joſeph Kirby Elam Potter Blackleach Burritt Joſiah Hale Thomas Jeduthan South Samuel Norton Seth Coleman John Tyler Jacob Hough Starling Graves John Foot Samuel Orton Manaſſeh Cutler Theophilus Chamberlain Thomas Wells Bray Aaron Kinne.

The day following there was a large Convention of the Church Clergy, at the ſame Place, at which Dr. Cooper, Preſident of Kings College, in New-York, was preſent. A Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Charles Inglis of New-York.

Laſt Friday one Anthony O'Niel, a tranſient Iriſhman, who was convicted of Burglary, and committed to the Goal in this Place in April laſt, was ſentenced by the Superior Court, then ſitting, to be crep'd, branded and whip'd 15 Stripes, which Puniſhment was accordingly inflicted.

The ſame Day James Harding, alias James Hanning, who has been mentioned, was whip'd, crept, and branded at the ſame Place, for the like Crime. He was complimented in the ſame Manner ſome Time ſince in New-Haven, for breaking the Store of Mr. Todd of that Place.—This is the ſecond Time he has been puniſhed for Burglary—Freſier's End muſt tell him what will be the unavoidable Conſequence of a third Offence.

I PETER II. 4, 5 To whom coming as unto a living Stone diſallowed indeed of Men, but choſen of God, and precious ye alſo as lively Stones, are built up a ſpiritual Houſe, an holy Prieſthood, to offer up ſpiritual Sacrifices acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt.

I ſhall (ſays the Author)

I. Shew you the Form of the Houſe, that is, of Goſpel Churches, about which many of Chriſts followers ſeem to be at ſo great a Loſs.

II. Next to the Form, I ſhall conſider the Matter of this Houſe; or obſerve [illegible] ture, of whom Goſpel Churches ſhould [illegible] compoſed; who are not fit to be Church Members.

III. I ſhall ſhew you the Rock on which this Houſe is built, and let you ſee, how Chriſt the Foundation ſupports and influences the whole Building.

IV. I would open the Charter of this Houſe, and let you ſee how many the Immunities, and Privileges, and Powers are, which it includes.

V. I ſhall enumerate the ordinary ſtanding Officers in this Houſe; and obſerve to you by whom they ſhould be choſen, and ſo give you their Character and their Work.

VI. I ſhall produce the Keys of this Houſe, and let you know with whom Chriſt hath lodged the Uſe or Exercise of them.

VII. I ſhall take Occaſion to ſay ſomething of the Door and Entrance into this Houſe, and ſo vindicate at large the Method obſerved by Congregational Churches in their Admiſſions.

VIII. I ſhall enlarge on the Work or chief Buſineſs to be done in this Houſe; where I ſhall mention its Watch, its Diſcipline, and the work of Church Members one towards another, and towards them which are without.

IX. I would ſhew you ſomething of the Glory of this Houſe; where I ſhall obſerve to you how ſar Goſpel Churches were from ſtanding for Cyphers in primitive Times.

X. I ſhall take Notice what it is that obliges Proteſtants to proteſt againſt Popery; or will warrant a Diſſent, or going off from any Church whatever. Where I ſhall obſerve to you, in how many Particulars Antichriſt hath ſet up his Poſt by God's Pillar.

The APOLOGIST. No. 8.

EVERY mortal who is a well wiſher to his country, who is not poſſeſſed of a narrow, contracted diſpoſition who has the ſoul of a man, and is not too inordinately attached to his own dear ſelf ;—in a word every true patriot muſt acknowledge the truth of this maxim, and forever confeſs, that the public, ought to be preferred to the private good.

" ————— This world, 'tis true,
" Was made for Cæſar ; but for Titus too.
" ———————————
" ————— The univerſal cauſe,
" Acts, not by partial, but by gen'ral laws,
" And makes what happineſs we call,
" Subſiſt—not in the good of one but all."

'Twould be the groſſeſt abſurdity, as well as injuſtice for any one man, or particular ſet of men, to attempt to monopolize every deſirable privilege, or to engroſs to themſelves every advantage and ſeeming conveniency.

The whole world of mankind ; more eſpecially thoſe of the ſame kingdom, of the ſame province and of the ſame county, to many purpoſes ought to be conſidered as one entire family By nature all mankind have equal right to the bleſſings of this earth —how abſurd muſt it therefore be for any to pretend or vainly to imagine this world to have been made ſolely for their uſe ! or to conduct as though none had right to the privileges of it ; but themſelves ! and even to frown upon the advocates for the public good, the liberties and common intereſts of the people !

While two thirds of the inhabitants of this county appear to be ſincerely engaged for the removal of the courts to N—w—k and three fourths of the other third to be indifferent about the matter : the remaining few ſeem to have worked themſelves up into a kind of pragmatical faction, and to aim at making a moſt ſtrenuous oppoſition, at all adventures, in doing which, if they would keep themſelves within the bounds of moderation, law, & reaſon, they would not be unjuſtifiable —But Mr. (Borrow the ſofter term upon this occaſion) Mr. Partiſan and the reſt of theſe grumbletonians, appear to be ſo exaſperated that they ſeldom name one of the advocates for the public good of this county but with ridicule and contempt. Their conduct towards thoſe who eſpouſe the cauſe of the liberties of the people ſeems to be very extraordinary : nevertheleſs we eſteem this kind of treatment too weak, too childiſh to merit our notice : yea we are ſo ſenſible of the righteouſneſs of our cauſe that we rather pity than regard their effrontaries Should any however threaten us with hanging, burning burying, and the like,—be it remembered that this is againſt the peace of our ſovereign Lord the King his crown, and dignity ; and contrary to the laws both civil and divine.—Should a declaration be made that undue meaſures were taken laſt ſpring to induce a number of the F—ſ—d—ns to ſubſcribe in favour of N—w—k, the truth of ſuch declaration would have nothing but a bare ipſe dixit for its ſupport.——No Mr. Partiſan, there was no need of undue meaſures in the caſe ; thoſe who ſubſcribed, did it with the utmoſt ſeeming freedom, and many more would undoubtedly been glad to have had the opportunity. This we apprehend to be ſo far from being an underhanded practice that we ſhall probably give them a ſecond opportunity of the like nature, and make no doubt but that hundreds of your own town inhabitants would gladly ſubſcribe our next memorial, for 'tis a well known fact, that near one third of them are ſituate nearer to N-w-k than to the place where our county houſes lately ſtood erected, and ſurely if ſelf intereſt is allowed to be the governing principle they ought not to be blamed, nor treated with any ſcurrilous reflections therefor. But this perhaps may all ſeem too much like a digreſſion ———the point is here ———Inaſmuch as the public buildings of this county are totally demoliſhed, the inhabitants are fully determined to purſue their motion for the alteration already prayed for ;——By far the major part of us are of opinion that N-w-k is moſt conveniently ſituate for the purpoſe, and though nothing has yet been fully determined upon this point ; yet we are not at all diſcouraged ; but intend to pray again that equal juſtice may be done to the inhabitants of this county as far as the nature of the thing will admit. And is it not moſt unchriſtian like for any to be offended on that account ? we do but aſk, we do but pray the general aſſembly to favour us in this particular, and have we not a right even to do thus much ? ſome pretend that we have a right to demand it as our undeniable privilege to fix the place for ourſelves : but we have not yet gone ſo far. But inaſmuch as the honorable general aſſembly have been wont to take cogniſence of theſe kind of matters, we mean only to aſk it as a favour. This is a privilege which we ſhould think hard to be denied : but to endeavour to convince Mr. Partiſan, and his aſſociates of the reaſonableneſs of this requeſt may be the ſubject of the next apology from their humble ſervant,

BELANDER.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

[The Tryal of Lord Baltimore, continued from our laſt]

BREAKFAST was brought, but ſhe taſted nothing, and when twelve o'clock came ſhe was ſcarce in her ſences. My Lord, to ſooth her, pretended he meant nothing but honour, for that he loved her to diſtraction ; he ſaid he would write to her father, and make ſuch propoſals to him as ſhe ſhould like, and that if ſhe did not like them, and like to ſtay, ſhe ſhould go home with her father. He accordingly wrote the following billet :

'Your daughter Salley ſends you the incloſed ¶, and deſires you would not be uneaſy on her account, becauſe every thing will turn out well, with a little patience and prudence ; ſhe is at a friend's houſe, ſafe & well in all honeſty and honour : nothing elſe is meant, you may depend on it ; and, Sir, as your preſence and conſent is neceſſary, we beg of you to come in a private manner to Mr. Richard Smith's, in Broad ſtreet, New Buildings.'

When he had written this billet, he put the pen into her hand, and directed her to write at the bottom, 'Dear Father, this is true, and ſhall be glad if you will come directly—this afternoon. From your dutiful daughter,' &c.

My Lord pretended that his name was Richard Smith and the houſe ſhe was in was in Broad ſtreet Buildings : and though before he wrote this atteſtation he confeſſed his name was not Smith, yet alledging that R. Smith lived within a few doors, and that when her father came thither he would ſend for her, ſhe ſays ſhe wrote as ſhe was ordered, and that his putting the pen in her hand, and ſaying ſhe muſt write, would alone have been a ſufficient inducement, when ſhe was in his power.

My Lord having thus artfully obtained an atteſtation, which would appear to falſify a ſubſequent complaint, left her with Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Griffenberg, till dinner ; ſhe ſtill continued crying, going often to the window to ſhew her diſtreſs, but was always pulled away by one of the women.

She was preſent at dinner, and in the evening, by order of one of the women, the windows of the room where ſhe had paſſed the night, and from whence ſhe had ſpoken to the young woman, were nailed up. When my Lord knew this, he appeared to be very angry, and aſked Mrs. Griffenberg what ſhe meant by ordering the windows to be nailed up, to make his ſervants think he was going to murder ſomebody, or do ſomething bad.—But that he might ſuffer no diſappointment by the windows being open, he turned to Miſs Woodcock, and ſaid, 'Madam, I aſſure you, if you offer to open a window, or make any diſturbance any other way, I will fling you out of the window, or do for you.' This terrified her exceedingly, and ſhe tho't perhaps he would murder her.

She continued pleading and weeping the whole day, and they pretending her father was coming ; my Lord, Dr. Griffenberg, his wife, and Mrs. Harvey, ſupped together ; but Miſs Woodcock taſted nothing. She was at length taken up into the room where ſhe had paſſed the preceding night, and ſtill abſolutely refuſing to go to bed, ſhe walked about in the ſame manner, in the greateſt diſtreſs, and in the morning awakened the women, who again ſlept together, with her crying. They only derided and reproached her. Mrs Harvey told her, ſhe did not ſuppoſe my Lord would do any thing to her, or keep her againſt her will ; to which ſhe replied, 'why then will he not ſuffer me to go home ? It never can be my will to ſtay here.'

This was Thurſday, the third day of her confinement, when my Lord came to her, he found her weeping, and in the ſame diſtreſs as before ; ſhe told him he had no compaſſion, and aſked him if he himſelf had been a father. 'if ſo,' ſaid ſhe, 'ſurely you cannot but conſider what my father will feel for the loſs of a child whom he tenderly loves.' He replied, that he had conſidered her father, and ſent him ſomething that the buſineſs might not ſtop. She replied, that ſhe knew he would not uſe the money ; 'why then,' ſaid my Lord, 'you ſhall write to him yourſelf ;' 'my writing,' ſhe replied, 'will be to no purpoſe, for I muſt write what you pleaſe, or my letter will not be ſent.' He anſwered, that ſhe might write what ſhe would, and left her.

The women, however, remained to ſee what ſhe did : ſhe ſays, that knowing the letter would come into his hands, and that if it did not pleaſe him he would not ſend it ; ſhe wrote what was not true, that ſhe was treated with as much honour as ſhe could expect, hoping by this means, the only one in her power, to get the ſight of her father and friends ; yet it appears that even in this letter, ſaid to be written with no other view, there was no direction where her father and friends were to come ; in this letter at my Lord's requeſt ſhe mentioned the Two Hundred Pounds. and deſired to know if it had been received.

Soon after my Lord pretended to receive a letter from Richard Smith, giving an account that her father had been at his houſe, in conſequence of the firſt letter ; but that he would not ſtay till ſhe could be ſent for. This falſhood ſhe eaſily detected ; and finding no change likely to happen in her ſituation, ſhe paſſed this day in terror and grief, ſtill weeping and expoſtulating, and ſtill refuſing either to eat or drink.

About twelve at night Iſaacs, the Jew, brought her anſwer from her ſiſter to the ſecond letter, urging her to appoint a place where they could ſee her.

The time was now come for her to go up ſtairs, which ſhe ſaid ſhe would not do, till my Lord promiſed her he would not meddle with her nor come near her.

She then went up as uſual with Mrs Griffenburg and Harvey, who again earneſtly preſſed her to go to bed ; ſhe ſtill wept, and refuſed ; but at laſt finding her ſtrength exhauſted, ſhe ſaid, 'may be I may lie down ſome time in the night, in my cloaths ;' Mrs Griffenberg then left her with Mrs Harvey, and about half an hour afterwards ſhe lay down ; ſhe was ſoon greatly alarmed by the return of Mrs Griffenberg, fearing it had been my Lord ; ſhe therefore got up, and walked about, lying down, and reſting by turns, and thus ſhe paſſed the night.

In the morning, Saturday the 19th of December, ſhe earneſtly intreated Mrs Harvey to intercede with my Lord for her diſmiſſion, telling her ſhe was tenderly attached to a young man, whom ſhe was ſoon to marry ; ſhe added, 'I dare ſay, if you have a mind, you can let me go yourſelf ;' ſhe ſaid no, and having riſen ſomething ſooner than uſual, on account of the poor ſufferer's tears and diſtreſs, they went together down ſtairs, but found themſelves obliged to return, every door being locked, ſo that at the foot of the ſtairs they could get no farther.

After waiting above ſtairs about an hour, the doors were opened, and they went down into the breakfaſt room, and my Lord ſoon came to them. She pleaded her ſituation, a marriage engagement, juſt about to take effect, in conſequence of a tender attachment on both ſides ; this threw him into a rage ; he threatned and abuſed her in the groſſeſt terms, and he ſaid to Iſaacs, the Jew, who was preſent, 'carry the ſlut to a mean houſe like herſelf.' This ſhe ſaid exceedingly terrified her, as ſhe thought he meant a bawdy-houſe, eſpecially as he went abruptly away, in great anger ; ſhe remained with Iſaacs, the pimp, and the bawds, and being terrified by the threats, as ſhe thought of a bawdy houſe, ſhe at length yielded to their importunity and perſuaſion, deſiring my Lord might be called in, and told him, that if her father came, and terms offered, ſhe would conſider them, and begged God to direct her.

She had taken nothing this day, the fourth of her confinement, but a diſh of tea, and about noon was ſo much out of order, and ſo faint, that ſhe could hold up her head no longer.

Between two and three o'clock my Lord told her that by faſting ſhe had loſt the ſtrength that might help her againſt what ſhe was ſo much afraid of ; he then went and mixt a draught, which at his earneſt intreaty, and ſolemn aſſurance there was nothing hurtful in it, ſhe ſwallowed.

After having taken this draught, which ſhe ſaid ſhe believed to be phyſical, but of which ſhe mentions no effect, except that ſhe had more ſpirits, ſhe lay with her head upon the elbow chair till nine o'clock at night ; at the uſual time, he ſaid ſhe muſt go to bed again, but ſhe refuſed to go, till he had again promiſed not to come near her, or meddle with her.

This night he led her up, and earneſtly preſſing her to go to bed, left her to the two women ; he had before ordered Mrs Griffenberg to make her ſome whey, and between two and three ſhe brought her ſome red wine and a bit of toaſt, which ſhe took : She had not yet lain down, but when Mrs Harvey was in bed, and Mrs. Griffenberg gone, ſhe walked about, and lay down in her cloaths by turns, ſpending the night as uſual in great terror and diſtreſs, leſt my Lord ſhould come to her. She again tried the force of complaint, expoſtulation, and intreaty, upon Mrs. Harvey, but they had no more effect than wind upon a ſtone.

GENTLEMEN,

MY Apprehenſions that ſome of his Majeſty's Troops are to be expected in Boſton, ariſe from Information of a private Nature: I have received no public Letters, notifying to me the coming of ſuch troops, and requiring Quarters for them; Whenever I do, I ſhall communicate them to his Majeſty's Council.

The Committee appointed to take the State of our public Affairs into Conſideration, reported the following Declarations & Reſolves.

WHEREAS it is the firſt principle in Civil Society, founded in Nature and Reaſon, That no Law of the Society can be binding on any Individual, without his Conſent, given by himſelf in Perſon, or by his Repreſentative, of his own free Election:

And whereas in and by an act of the British Parliament paſs'd in the firſt Year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary, of glorious and bleſſed Memory, entitled, An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and ſettling the Succeſſion of the Crown; the preamble of which Act is in theſe Words, viz. "Whereas the late King James the Second, by the Aſſiſtance of divers evil Councellors, Judges and miniſters employed by him, did endeavour to ſubvert and extirpate the Proteſtant Religion, and the laws & Liberties of this Kingdom"; It is expreſly among other things declared, that the levying Money for the uſe of the Crown, by pretence of Prerogative, without Grant of Parliament, for a longer time or in other Manner than the ſame is granted, is illegal:

And whereas in the third Year of the reign of the ſame King William and Queen Mary, their Majeſties were graciouſly pleas'd, by their Royal Charter, to give and grant to the Inhabitants of the his Majeſty's Province, all the Territory therein deſcrib'd, to be holden in free and common Scoccage: and alſo to ordain and grant to the ſaid Inhabitants certain Rights, Liberties and Privileges therein expreſly mention'd; among which it is granted, eſtabliſh'd and ordain'd, That all and every the ſubjects of them, their Heirs and Succeſſors. which ſhall go to inhabit within ſaid Province and Territory, and every of their Children, which ſhall happen to be born there, or on the Seas in going thither, or returning from thence, ſhall have and enjoy all Liberties and Immunites of free and natural Subjects, within any dominions of them, their Heirs and Succeſſors, to all intents purpoſes and Conſtructions; whatever as if they and every of them were born within the Realm of England:

And whereas by the aforeſaid Act of Parliament made in the firſt Year of the ſaid King William & Queen Mary, All and ſingular the Premiſes contain'd therein, are claim'd demanded and inſiſted on, as the undoubted Rights and Liberites of the Subjects born within the Realm:

And whereas the Freholders and other Inhabitants of this Town, the Metropolis of the Province in ſaid Charter mention'd, do hold all the Rights and Liberties therein contain'd to be ſacred and inviolable: At the ſame Time publickly and ſolemnly acknowledging, their firm and unſhaken Allegiance to their alone rightful Sovereign King GEORGE the 3d the lawful ſucceſſor of the ſaid King William and Queen Mary to the British Throne: Therefore.

RESOLVED, That the ſaid Freeholders and other inhabitants of the Town of Boſton, will at the utmoſt Peril of their Lives & Fortunes, take all legal and conſtitutional Meaſures to defend and maintain the Perſon, Family, crown and Dignity of our ſaid Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Third; and all and ſingular the Rights Liberties, Privileges and Immunities granted in the ſaid royal charter; as well as thoſe which are declared to be belonging to us as British ſubjects by Birthright, as all others therein ſpecially mention'd.

And whereas by the ſaid Royal Charter it is ſpecially granted to the Great and General Court or Aſſembly therein conſtituted, to impoſe and levy proportionable and reaſonable aſſeſſments, Rates and taxes upon the Eſtates and perſons of all and every the proprictors & Inhabitants of the ſaid Province or Territory, for the Service of the King, in the neceſſary Defence and ſupport of his government of the Province, and the protection and Preſervation of his Subjects therein: Therefore,

VOTED, as the opinion of this Town, That the levying Money within this Province for the Uſe and ſervice of the crown, in other Manner than the ſame is granted by the Great and General Court or Aſſembly of this Province, is in violation of the ſaid Royal Charter; and the ſame is alſo in Violation of the undoubted natural rights of Subjects, declared in the aforeſaid Act of Parliament, freely to give and grant their own Money for the Service of the Crown, with their own conſent, in Perſon, or by Repreſentatives of their own free Election.

And whereas in the aforeſaid Act of Parliament it is declared, That raiſing or keeping a ſtanding Army, within the Kingdom in time of Peace, unleſs it be with the conſent of Parliament, is againſt Law; It is the Opinion of this Town, that the ſaid Declaration is founded in the indefeaſible Right of the Subjects to be conſulted, and to give their free Conſent, ——in Perſon, or by repreſentatives of their own free Election, to the raiſing and keeping a ſtanding army among them; And the Inhabitants of this Town, being free Subjects have the ſame Right, derived from Nature and confirmed by the British Conſtitution, as well as the ſaid Royal Charter; and therefore the raiſing or keeping a ſtanding army, without their Conſent, in Perſon or by repreſentatives of their own free Election, would be an infringement of their Natural, conſtitutional & Charter Rights; and the employing ſuch army for the enforcing of Laws made without the Conſent of the People, in Perſon, or by their Repreſentatives, would be a Grievance.

The foregoing report being divers Times diſtinctly read, and conſidered by the Town—The Queſtion was put, Whether the ſame ſhall be accepted and recorded? and paſs'd unanimouſly in the Affirmative,

Upon a motion made and ſeconded, the following Vote was unanimouſly paſſed viz.

WHEREAS by an Act of Parliament of the firſt of King William and Queen Mary, it is declared; that for the redreſs of all Grievances, and for amending, Strengthening and preſerving the laws, Parliaments ought to be held frequently, and inaſmuch as it is the Opinion of this Town, that the People labour under many intolerable Grievances which unleſs ſpeedily Redreſſed, threaten the total Destruction of our invaluable, natural, conſtitutional and Charter Rights.

And Furthermore, As his Excellency the Governor has declared himſelf unable, at the Requeſt of this Town, to call a General Court which is the Aſſembly of the States of this Province, for the redreſs of ſuch Grievances:

VOTED, That this town will now make Choice of a ſuitable number of Perſons to Act for them as a Committee in Convention, with ſuch as may be ſent to join them from the ſeveral towns in this Province, in order that ſuch Meaſures may be conſulted and adviſed as his Majeſty's Service and the Peace & ſafety of his Subjects in the Province may require.

Whereupon, the

Hon JAMES OTIS, Eſq;
Hon. THOMAS CUSHING, Eſq;
Mr. SAMUEL ADAMS, and,
JOHN HANCOCK, Eſq;

were appointed a Committee for the ſaid Purpoſe; the Town hereafter to take into Conſideration what Recompence ſhall be made them for the Services they may perform.

VOTED, That the Selectmen be directed to write to the Selectmen of the ſeveral Towns within this Province, informing them of the foregoing Vote, and to propoſe that a Convention be held, if they ſhall think proper, at Faneuil-Hall, in this Town on Thurſday the 22d of September, Inſtant, at Ten o'Clock Before-noon.

Upon a Motion Made & ſeconded, the following Vote was paſſed by a very great Majority. viz.

WHEREAS, By an Act of Parliament of the firſt of King William & Queen Mary it is declared, that the Subjects being Proteſtants, may have Arms for their Defence: It is the Opinion of this Town, That the ſaid Declaration is founded in Nature, Reaſon and ſound Policy, and as well adapted for the neceſſary defence of the Community;

And Foraſmuch, As by a good and wholeſome Law of this Province, every liſted Soldier and other Houſholder (except Troopers) who by Law are otherwiſe to be provided, ſhall be always provided with a well fix'd Firelock, Muſket, Accoutrements and Ammunition, as is in ſaid Law particularly mentioned to the Satisfaction of the Commiſſion Officers of the Company;————and as there is at this Time a prevailing Apprehenſion, in the Minds of many of an approaching War with France: In order that the Inhabitants of this Town may be prepared in Caſe of ſudden Danger: VOTED, That thoſe of the ſaid Inhabitants, who may at preſent be unprovided be and are requeſted duely to obſerve the ſaid Law at this Time.

The Honorable Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; communicated to the Town a Letter lately received from a Committee of Merchants in the City of New York, acquainting him with their Agreement relative to a Non-importation of British Goods——Whereupon the Town by a Vote expreſſed their high Satisfaction therein.

The Town taking into ſerious Conſideration the preſent Aſpect of their public Affairs, and being of Opinion that it greatly behoves a People profeſſing Godlineſs, to addreſs the ſupreme Ruler of the World on all important occaſions, for that Wiſdom which is profitable to direct;

VOTED unanimouſly, That the Selectmen be a committee to wait on the ſeveral Miniſters of the Goſpel within this Town, deſiring that the next Tueſday may be ſet apart as a day of Faſting and Prayer.

Ordered, That the Votes and proceedings of the Town in their preſent Meeting, be publiſhed in the ſeveral News Papers.

The town voted their Thanks to the Moderator for his good ſervices, and then the Meeting was diſſolved.

Atteſt.

WILLIAM COOPER, Town Clerk.

Tueſday laſt arrived at New-York the Ship Britannia Capt. Munds, in 6 weeks and 4 days from London by whom there is public prints to the third of Auguſt which contain the following articles viz.

LONDON, July 16.

BESIDES the bombardment threatned to a certain city in the Mediterranean, as mentioned in the papers, ſome other places belonging to the Barbary ſtate are likely to feel the effects of provoking a maritime power.

People have got ſuch a notion of an approaching war with France, that wagers are daily laid on that ſubject, in almoſt all the coffee houſes.

July 18 Saturday morning ſome Diſpatches of great Importance were ſent off from the Secretary of States's Office for his Excellency the Earl of Rochford at Paris.

We are aſſured, that the Squadron fitting out at Plymouth, deſigned to reinforce Commodore Spry in the Mediterranean is ordered to be got ready for ſailing with the utmoſt expedition. It is likewiſe ſaid, that upon it's joining the Commodore he will hoiſt his Flag as a rear Admiral of the red.

They write from Marſeilles, that ſeveral Frigates of War and long Galleys are now building in the Ports of Trieſte and Fiume, for the French Service.

It is currently reported, that a conſiderable remove will immediately be made among the members of his Majeſty's Council in a certain American province.

JULY 29. They write from Leghorn that General Paſchal de Paoli, had very narrowly eſcaped being ſurprized by the enemy lately, while at the head of a ſmall reconnoitring party in the neighbourhood of Erbalongo.

Letters from the Hague, dated July 1, ſay, 'Notwithſtanding the vigilance of French ſpies diſperſed all over the ſeven provinces, many private ſubſcriptions are every day procured for the brave Corſicans.'

Wedneſday orders were ſent to Portſmouth, for a ſloop of war to be immediately got in readineſs, to carry over ſome diſpatches to his Excellency General Gage, commander in chief of his Majeſty's forces in North America.

It was yeſterday reported, that ten regiments of infantry, are ſpeedily to be embarked for America, to ſupport the meaſures of government more effectually.

It is ſaid the preſent mode of levying the exciſe and cuſtom duties in North America, is held by the inhabitants, in greater deteſtation than even the late ſtamp act.

It is rumoured, that ſome diſagreable advices have juſt been received from South Carolina.

By ſome recent accounts from a gentleman who is juſt arrived from France, we are told, the French have actually at this very time no leſs than twenty ſail of the line, beſides frigates and two bomb veſſels, now in the ſeveral wet docks and harbour of Breſt, which have all undergone a thorough repair this ſummer; lower maſts are in and rigged; top maſts juſt run up, and entered through the caps; topſail yards thrown fore and aft, lay in the tops ready for rigging.

BOSTON, September 22.

Saturday evening laſt his excellency the Governor received a letter from his Excellency Gen Gage, commander in chief of his Majeſty's forces in North America, adviſing him that in obedience to his Majeſty's commands, he had directed two regiments viz. the 14th and 29th, under the command of Lieu. col. Dalrymple to embark at Halifax and proceed to Boſton as ſoon as poſſible, one of them at preſent to be at Caſtle William, the other in the town, and that proviſion be made for them agreable to act of parliament.——On Monday morning the governor laid the ſame before his Najeſty's council.

His excellency alſo laid before the council an extract of a letter which he had received the day before by cap Bruce from London, from the Right honourable the earl of Hillſborough his majeſty's principal ſecretary of ſtate for the colonies, ſetting forth that his Majeſty had thought fit to ſignify his pleaſure, after having taken the opinion and advice of his principal ſervants, that the troops intended for the relief of North America in the next ſpring, conſiſting of two regiments from Ireland, ſhould be immediately ſent over to America and landed at Boſton——That tranſport veſſels were preparing with all poſſible diſpatch in order to proceed to Cork to take on board ſaid regiments, which are to be augmented by draughts to 500 men each.

The frigate which will convoy the tranſports from Ireland to Boſton, together with a ſhip of the line preparing for the reception and conveyance of Lord Botetourt his Majeſty's lieutenant governor general of Virginia to remain in theſe ſeas in caſe the commander in chief of his majeſty's forces ſhall be of opinion that his Majeſty's ſervice requires it.

A committee of his Majeſty's council was choſen to confer with the ſelect men of the town in regard to the proviſion neceſſary to be made for the above troops.

It is reported via Marblehead that the two regiments deſtined for this place were embarking on board 6 or 8 men of war and armed veſſels, and expected to ſail on thurſday

Extract of a letter from London

"I am obliged to you for the intelligence reſpecting public affairs; what will be the iſſue I tremble to think, as there does not appear to be the leaſt diſpoſition in the adminiſtration to grant any relief to the well-grounded complaints of the colonies"

Extract of a Letter from London, by Capt. Bruce, dated Auguſt 4, 1768.

"THE warm and unthinking people in this part of the world, imagine that you are all diſtracted; they ſay that your waywardneſs and preſumption are the effects of over indulgance and miſtaken tenderneſs; at firſt they eſpouſed your ſide, next they began to cool in their regard, and laſt of all, you may depend on having their utmoſt hatred and ill-will; your late proceedings in Boſton, have lowered all the ſtocks 4 per cent.——But thoſe who are moderate and therefore not ſo apt to judge raſhly, and who are acquainted with America, cannot imagine that you have unanimouſly riſen in oppoſition to acts of parliament; they therefore impatiently wait for further advices from your quarter, which they hope will be of ſuch a nature as to molify the reſentment of the people here;——This is the fervent wiſh of many.

HARTFORD, Sept. 26.

The Freemen of this town, at their annual meeting on tueſday laſt, made choice of Capt John Lawrence, and Mr. Benjamin Payne, to repreſent them in the General aſſembly, at New Haven in October next.

☞ To-Morrow will be publiſhed and be ready for ſale, at the Heart and Crown in Hartford, ELLSWORTH's ALMANACK, for the year 1769.

New Haven, September 23. 1768

☞ The public are advertized, that in the 5th Maſters Theſis printed this year, which is marked with an index, to be diſputed, viz. An ſi quis a mala actione, &c. a very material error eſcaped the correction of the preſs; under it ſtands Affirmat, whereas it ſhould have been Negat, as was deſigned.

Boſton, Auguſt 8 1768

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

THIS morning, Sunday, the 20th of Dec ſhe took ſome breakfaſt, and my Lord inſiſted upon her taking another draught, and then left her till the afternoon. This day alſo ſhe eat ſome dinner.

When he returned, he deſired her to be compoſed, & to talk to him. He began to ridicule religion, & ſaid, that, as a philoſopher, he believed neither God nor Devil, heaven nor hell; ſhe deſired that they would bring a bible, and ſhe would prove to him that there were all.

This circumſtance is not indeed much to the honour of the poor girl's underſtanding; but it certainly marks very ſtrongly the pious ſimplicity of her character. An attempt founded upon a notion, that this man, who, as a philoſopher, denied the exiſtance of God, would yet admit the authority of a book, ſaid to be written by his inſpiration may well account for apprehenſions, which others may think groundleſs, and a conduct which in ſome particulars may appear inconſiſtent and abſurd. Her diſcourſe however, ſhe juſtly obſerved, might convince him of the difference there was between him and her; ſhe told him that he might be aſſured it was impoſſible ſhe ſhould comply, and therefore again intreated that ſhe might go home.

After ſupper, about nine o'clock at night, Dr. Griffenberg and the two women went out of the room, and left her and Lord B. together; he then made ſeveral violent attempts to accompliſh his purpoſe; he pulled her into his lap, preſſed her againſt the wainſcot, threw her into an elbow chair, and practiſed every indecency, except the laſt, notwithſtanding her cries, ſtruggles, and intreaties; after two hours ſpent in this matter, her cries bringing nobody to her aſſiſtance, he called Mrs. Harvey, and ſaid, 'we muſt go to bed.' He inſiſted upon leading her up ſtairs, which exceedingly terrified her, not knowing how far ſhe might be able to defend herſelf, if he ſhould throw her down upon the bed. When they got into the chamber, Mrs. Harvey pretended ſomething was forgot, and left them together; ſhe imagined this was intended between them, and begged & pleaded he wou'd not meddle with her; her intreaty, however was ineffectual; he took all the indecent liberties with her perſon that he had taken below ſtairs, yet ſtill ſhe prevented him from compleating his purpoſe.

When Mrs. Harvey came again into the room, he told her, that if ſhe did not that night undreſs herſelf and go into bed he would force her to go into bed with him; he then went away & ſhe went to bed with Mrs. Harvey.

She paſſed this night without reſt, frequently ſtarting in great terror from a confuſed ſlumber, crying out, O! he is coming, he is coming! She again pleaded with Mrs Harvey to prevail with him to let her go, but ſhe was obſtinate and unfeeling as before.

When ſhe came down ſtairs in the morning Monday the 21ſt of December, ſhe was in tears as uſual, intreating to go home, or to ſee her friends; Lord B. told her, that if ſhe would go and have her face waſhed, and another cap on, and clean things, and leave crying ſhe ſhould ſee her father; 'for what,' ſays he, 'can your father think to ſee you in that dirty condition, and your eyes ſo bad with crying?' He ſaid, if ſhe would go up, he would ſend for her father, and ſhe ſhould ſee him; ſhe therefore went up, and being furniſhed with a cap and linen, by Mrs. Griffenberg, ſhe put them on.

When ſhe came down he ſaid ſhe ſhould take an airing in the coach, and ſee her father when ſhe came back. It was now between one and two, and ſoon after, word was brought that the coach was ready, and ſhe was given to underſtand that ſhe muſt go.

The coach was in a court yard, divided from the ſtreets by gates. L. B. handed her into the coach, and got in himſelf immediately afterwards; he placed himſelf between her and the door on one ſide, and directed Mrs. Harvey to place herſelf on the ſame ſeat, between her and the door, on the other ſide: Dr. Griffenberg and his wife ſat on the oppoſite ſeat, backwards.

When they were placed in this order, the gate was opened, and they drove away with great violence; when they came to Weſtminſter Bridge, ſhe was ſtruck with an apprehenſion that he was going to carry her abroad, but he aſſured her, they ſhou'd return to dinner; when ſhe ſaw the four and five mile ſtones, ſhe expreſſed her apprehenſions of his carrying her abroad more ſtrongly, but he treated them as a jeſt. At length ſhe knew he was near Epſom, by a finger poſt, and they then began to talk of a country houſe there; when they arrived, ſhe was aſked how ſhe liked it, and ſhe anſwered, it was a worſe priſon than the other.

They arrived about four o'clock, and ſoon after went to dinner. After dinner, Griffenberg and the women again left them alone; Lord B—— immediately took her up behind the window curtain, and renewed the indecencies that had been practiſed before; ſhe pleaded, ſtruggled, and intreated, but in vain; ſhe deſired he would take her life, which ſhe ſaid ſhe would part with freely, but never with the other; to which he anſwered, that it muſt be ſo that night, whether ſhe would or no: When the women came in again, they took her into other rooms, to ſee the houſe, which ſhe told them was the worſt ſight ſhe had ever ſeen. The two women repeated Lord Baltimore's words, and ſaid, 'it muſt be ſo to night.' Theſe words, though not explained, threw her into an agony of diſtreſs, and ſhe cried very much. Lord Baltimore notwithſtanding, & the two women, all joined together, and ſaid, 'ſhe might as well do it quietly, for it muſt be ſo that night.'

After ſupper Lord Baltimore ordered them to go to bed. The women then led her weeping into a bed chamber, and began to undreſs her; ſhe was in ſuch a tremble and fright, that having no ſtrength left, ſhe was not able to reſiſt, but ſhe wept and begged that God would take away her life; this however produced neither pity nor remorſe. Mrs. Harvey ſaid, that ſhe never ſaw any one make ſuch a peice of work in her life; that if ſhe was going to be killed, ſhe could not do more. She anſwered ſhe had much rather be killed; upon which the good Dr. Griffenberg, who was in the room, it ſeems, though ſhe did not know it, cried out, 'O! my dear Miſs Salley, don't cry ſo, don't take on ſo, it will be all well by and by.' Her cap being pulled off, and the reſt of her cloaths unpinned, they led her out of that room into the next, and ſet her down in an elbow chair; here, when they had ſtripped her to her linen, the curtains being opened, ſhe ſaw that Lord Baltimore was in bed; the cloaths being turned up, they forced her upon the bed, covered her, drew the curtains, and tucked them up. Lord Baltimore immediately turned upon her, & forcing himſelf between her, with all his weight, held her lips together, that ſhe might not cry out, and in the midſt of tears and ſtruggles, and ſuch cries as ſhe had power to make, he perpetrated the crime which he had ſo often unſucceſsfully attempted before.——He then turned from her, and and left her, as ſhe expreſſes it, to live or die as ſhe could, not uttering a ſingle word the whole night. She was, ſhe ſays, wholly overcome with confuſion and terror, and lay trembling leſt he ſhould come to her again, ſo that the drops of ſweat ran from off her body. In the morning he repeated the violence of the night, when ſhe again ſtruggled, and cried out, for which he only reproached her, ſaying he never heard ſuch a noiſe in his life, & that ſhe would raiſe the whole houſe.

He then ſuffered her to riſe, and ſhe hurried on a few things in a looſe manner, being in haſte to get away; but he ſaid ſhe could not get out, and muſt ſtay till he let her out.

When ſhe was let out of this room, ſhe went into that where they began to undreſs her, and where ſhe found Mrs. Harvey in bed. She ſat down, and burſting into tears, began to complain of having been ill treated; to which the lady replied, in a manner ſuitable to her character and and profeſſion, 'yes, you made noiſe enough, I heard you, but you'll like it well enough by and by.'

Finding her complaints roughly anſwered, and reflecting that ſhe had now loſt all that was dear to her in the wold, except her life, ſhe reſolved to alter her carriage, and do every thing they deſired that was not criminal, as ſhe ſays, for three reaſons; firſt, that ſhe might not be uſed ill; ſecondly that ſhe might not be ſent abroad; and thirdly, that ſhe might find ſome opportunity of returning again to London, her only hope being, that by ſtanding at the windows, ſhe might ſome time or other ſee ſome of her friends.

In conſequence of this reſolution, ſhe went in the afternoon on board a boat, in a piece of water belonging to the ſeat, and being deſired to run, becauſe it was cold weather, ſhe complied; ſhe alſo wore ſeveral things that by my Lord's order were bought for her, and complied ſo far as to wear ſuch ribbons as my Lord ſaid he liked beſt.

Hoping thus to have in ſome degree acquired their confidence, ſhe formed a little ſcheme to lead one of the women that attended her to that part of thepark where there was a foot way, that might lead her out of it but her purpoſe, probably being foreſeen was prevented.

This night my Lord did not aſk her to go to bed with him, and ſhe lay with Mrs. Harvey.

BOSTON, Sept. 26, 1768.

On Thurſday laſt the 22d Inſtant, a number of Gentlemen, upwards of Seventy, from the different parts of this province, aſſembled at Fanneil-Hall in this Town: Theſe Gentlemen by the appointment of the ſeveral towns to which they belong, to the number of Sixty-ſix Towns, beſides Diſtricts, then and there conven'd to conſult and adviſe the moſt effectual meaſures for promoting the peace and good order of his Majeſty's ſubjects in the province, as far as they lawfully might under the preſent very dark and threatning aſpect of the public affairs.——The Debates and proceedings are open: Their firſt ſtep was to prepare an humble Petition to the Governor of the Province, praying that his Excellency would be pleas'd to convene the conſtitutional Aſſembly of the Province; and three of the Number were appointed to preſent the ſame.

The PETITION is as follows, viz.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE Committee choſen by the ſeveral Towns in this Province, & now conveened in Boſton, to conſult and adviſe ſuch meaſures as may moſt effectually promote the peace and good order of his Majeſty's ſubjects in this government, at this very dark and diſtreſſing time, take the earlieſt opportunity openly to diſclaim all pretence to any authoritative or government acts: Neverthe leſs as we freely and voluntarily come from different parts of the province, at the earneſt deſire of the inhabitants, and muſt be ſuppoſed to be well acquainted with their prevailing temper, inclination and ſentiments, under the preſent threatning aſpect of our public affairs, we think ourſelves indiſpenſibly obliged, from a ſenſe of duty to his Majeſty, to whom we and the people of this province bear the firmeſt allegiance, and from the tendereſt concern for the welfare of his ſubjects, with all due reſpect to your Excellency, to declare our apprehenſion of the abſolute neceſſity of a General Aſſembly.

If ever this people needed the direction, the care and ſupport of ſuch an Aſſembly, we are humbly of opinion that their preſent circumſtances immediately require it.

Your Excellency cannot be inſenſible of their univerſal uneaſineſs: Ariſing from the grievances occaſioned by the late Acts of Parliament for an American revenue: From authentic information that the dutiful and loyal Petition of the late Houſe of Repreſentatives has not been allowed to reach the preſence of our gracious King: From the diſſolution of the late General Aſſembly: From undoubted advice that the enemies of Britain and the Colonies are ſtill unwearied in the moſt groſs miſrepreſentations of the people of the Province to his Majeſty's miniſters, as being on the eve of a general inſurrection: And from the alarming intelligence that the nation by means of ſuch miſrepreſentations is incenſed to a high degree, ſo that it is generally apprehended that a ſtanding army is immediately to be introduced among the people, contrary, as we apprehend, to the Bill of Rights——a force repreſented to be ſufficient to over awe and controul the whole civil power of the province; and muſt render every right and poſſeſſion dreadfully precarious.

From theſe weighty conſiderations; and alſo that people may not be thrown into total deſpair: That they may have a freſh opportunity at the next meeting of the parliament of taking off the impreſſion from the minds of the nation, made by ſuch miſrepreſentations as is before mentioned, and by that means preventing the moſt unhappy conſequences to the parent country as well as ourſelves: We beg leave moſt earneſtly to pray, that your Excellency would commiſerate his Majeſty's truly loyal ſubjects of this province under their deplorable circumſtances, and reſtore to them the full poſſeſſion of their invaluable charter rights to a general aſſembly, and cauſe one to be immediately convened: That the moſt effectual meaſures may be taken in the manner preſcribed by our happy conſtitution for the redreſs of grievances. For the preventing an unconſtitutional encroachment of military power on the civil eſtabliſhment. For the promoting the proſperity of his Majeſty's government, and the peace, good order, and due ſubmiſſion of his ſubjects in the province, and making the neceſſary proviſion for the ſupport of government: And finally, for the reſtoration of that harmony, union and affection between the nation and the colonies, which appear to us to be in the utmoſt danger of being totally and irrecoverably loſt.——As in duty bound the Committees ſhall ever pray.——

In the Name and Behalf of the Committees,
THOMAS CUSHING, Chairman.

His Excellency was pleaſed to decline receiving the Petition; but delivered to the Gentlemen the following Writing viz.

Gentlemen,

YOU muſt excuſe me from receiving a Meſſage from that Aſſembly which is called a Committee of Convention; for that would be to admit it to be a legal Aſſembly; which I can by no Means allow.

The ſaid Writing not being ſigned by the Governor, the Gentlemen, at the requeſt of the Committees, declared in Writing under their Hands that his Excellency delivered the ſame to them, in Conſequence of their offering him the Petition.

The Day following the Chairman acquainted the Committees that he had received of the Secretary of the Province a Writing ſigned by the Governor, dated Yeſterday, which was publickly read, and is as follows.

By his Excellency FRANCIS BERNARD, Eſq;
Captain General and Governor in Chief of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, and Vice Admiral of the ſame.

To the Gentlemen aſſembled at Faneuil Hall, under the Name of a Committee of Convention.

AS I have lately received from his Majeſty ſtrict Orders to ſupport his conſtitutional authority within this Government, I cannot ſit ſtill and ſee ſo notorious a violation of it, as the calling an Aſſembly of the people by private perſons only. For a meeting of the Deputies of the Towns is an Aſſembly of the Repreſentatives of the people to all intents and purpoſes: and it is not the calling it a Convention that will alter the nature of the thing.

I am willing to believe that the Gentlemen who ſo haſtily iſſued the ſummons for this Meeting were not aware of the high nature of the offence they were committing; and they who obeyed them have not well conſidered of the penalties which they will incur if they ſhould perſiſt in continuing their ſeſſion and doing buſineſs therein. At preſent ignorance of law may excuſe what is paſt; a ſtep further will take away that plea.

It is therefore my duty to interpoſe at this inſtant, before it is too late. I do therefore earneſtly admoniſh you that inſtantly and before you do any buſineſs, you break up this aſſembly and ſeperate yourſelves. I ſpeak to you now as a friend to the Province, and a well wiſher to the individuals of it.

But if you ſhould pay no regard to this admonition, I muſt as Governor aſſert the prerogative of the Crown in a more public manner. For aſſure yourſelves, (I ſpeak from Inſtruction) the King is determined to maintain his entire ſoverignty over this Province; and whoever ſhall perſiſt in uſurping any of the rights of it will repent of his raſhneſs.

Province Houſe, Sept. 22. 1768. FRA. BERNARD.

[A Paper, probably the ſame, had been the Day before delivered to the Chairman by the Secretary, ſaid to be by Order of the Governor, but not being ſigned, it was by a Vote of the Committees returned to the Secretary, with Aſſurance to him that they ſhould, be always ready to pay all due Reſpect to any Meſſages which they might be aſſured ſhould come to them from the Governor of the Province.]

On Saturday five Gentlemen were appointed to wait on his Excellency, and humbly preſent to him the following Meſſage, viz.

May it pleaſe your Excellency.

THE Committees from a number of Towns in this Province, now convened at Faneuil Hall, having received from your Excellency a Meſſage containing a Remonſtrance againſt our thus meeting, and an Admonition to break up and ſeperate ourſelves inſtantly, and before we do any buſineſs, have taken the ſame into our ſerious and attentive conſideration; and we aſſure your Excellency that tho' according to the beſt of our abilities, we have conſidered the matters that are hinted by your Excellency as the foundation of your Meſſage, yet we are not able to collect ſufficient information therefrom, to place our preſent Meeting and proceedings in the ſame light in which they ſeem to lie in your Excellency's mind. We do aſſure your Excellency moſt freely, that neither the views of our Conſtituents in ſending us, nor the deſign of any of us in this Meeting, was to do, propoſe or conſent to any thing oppugnant to or inconſiſtent with, the regular execution of Government in this his Majeſty's Province; and that tho' the Letters from the Selectmen of the Town of Boſton, to the reſpective towns from which we come, might firſt give riſe to our being choſen and ſent; yet that neither the ſaid letter from the Selectmen of the town of Boſton, nor any Votes of the ſaid Town accompanying the ſame, were conſidered by our reſpective towns in the chooſing, nor by us in our aſſembling, as the foundation and warrant of our convening. But, may it pleaſe your Excellency, being aſſured, that our conſtituents, as well as ourſelves, have the moſt loyal and affectionate attachment to the perſon and government of our rightful ſovereign King GEORGE the third, we beg leave to explain to your Excellency the real cauſe & intention of our thus convening.

Your Excellency cannot be unacquainted with the many difficulties under which his Majeſty's ſubjects on the whole continent of America apprehend themſelves to labour, and uneaſineſs which his ſubjects in this province have repeatedly expreſſed on the ſame account the minds of the people who have ſent us, are greatly diſturbed that the humble and dutiful Petition of their repreſentatives for the removal of thoſe difficulties, has not been permitted to reach the royal ear; and they are greatly agitated with the expectation of a ſtanding army being poſted among us, and of the full exertion of a military government; alarmed with theſe apprehenſions, and deprived of a houſe of repreſentatives, their attention is too much taken off from their daily occupations; their morals and induſtry are in danger of being damaged, and their peaceable behaviour diſturbed for want of ſuch perſons as they can confide in, to adviſe them in theſe matters, and to make application for their redreſs.

Your Excellency will further naturally conceive that thoſe of his Majeſty's ſubjects who live remote from Boſton, the centre of their intelligence, and whoſe occupations do not admit of much knowledge of public affairs, are ſubjected to many miſrepreſentations of their public concerns, and thoſe generally of a moſt aggravated kind; nor is it in the power of the moſt knowing perſons among us to wipe off the pernicious effects of ſuch rumours, without the appearance of a public enquiry.

Induced by theſe motives, and others of the ſame kind, our conſtituents thought it no ways inconſiſtent with government, to ſend Committee men to meet with ſuch Committees as might be ſent from the ſeveral towns in the province, to confer upon theſe matters and learn the certainty of thoſe rumours prevailing among us, and to conſult and adviſe as far as comes legally within their power, to ſuch meaſures as would have the greateſt tendency to preſerve the peace and good order among his his Majeſty's ſubjects and promote their due ſubmiſſion; and at the ſame time to conſult the moſt regular and and dutiful manner of laying our grievances before our moſt gracious ſovereign, and obtaining the redreſs of the ſame. This we aſſure your Excellency is the only cauſe and intention of our thus convening; and we are exceeding ſorry it ſhould be view'd by your Excellency in an obnoxious light.

Your Excellency may be aſſured, that had our conſtituents conceived, or did their Committee thus conven'd, conceive this proceeding to be illegal, they had never ſent us, nor ſhould we pretend to continue our convention but as your Excellency in the Meſſage with which you have been pleaſed to favour us, has not been ſo explicit in pointing out the criminality of our preſent proceeding as we could have wiſhed, but has left us to our own judgment and underſtanding, to ſearch it out, we would with all duty to your Excellency, as the repreſentative of our rightful ſovereign, requeſt of your Excellency to point out to us wherein the criminality of our proceedings conſiſts, being aſſured we cautiouſly mean to avoid every thing that has the leaſt appearance of uſurpation of government, in any of its branches, or any of the rights of his Majeſty's ſovereignty, or that is in the leaſt incentive of rebellion, or even a mental diſaffection to the government by law eſtabliſhed and exerciſed.

Your Excellency will be pleaſed in your well known knowledge of human nature, and the delicacy of Britiſh privileges, to be ſparing in your frowns on our preſent proceeding, we being at preſent inclined to think, till better inform'd, that if criminality be imputed to us, it will be applied only to our doings, & not to the profeſſed manner and deſign of our meeting: But if your Excellency has a different apprehenſion of the matter, we intreat an explanation of the ſame; and aſſure your Excellency we ſhall deliberately attend to it. Nothing could give us more uneaſineſs than a ſuggeſtion that our proceedings are criminal; not ſo much from a fear of perſonal puniſhment, as from a fix'd averſion we have to any thing inconſiſtent with the dignity of our ſovereign, and the happineſs of his extended dominion; and we flatter ourſelves that when the real deſigns of this convention is underſtood, it will prove an argument to evince the entire loyalty of his Majeſty's ſubjects in this Province, and their diſpoſition to peace & good order.

In the name and behalf of the Committees of a number of Towns in this Province, conven'd in Boſton. Septr. 24 1768.
THOMAS CUSHING, Chairman.

Theſe Gentlemen reported alſo in Writing, that they had accordingly waited on his Excellency, and that he was pleaſed to ſay he could not receive the Meſſage.

The Committees then appointed nine Gentlemen of their Number, to conſider and report the moſt effectual Meaſures conſiſtent with the expreſs Deſign of their convening, to promote the peace and good order of his Majeſty's Subjects in the province; and then the Committees adjourned till Monday (This Day) Ten o'Clock.

We are aſſured that the Number of Committees from the ſeveral Towns, now conven'd in this Place have been daily increaſing from Thurſday laſt——We hear from various Parts of the Province that many Towns are to make Choice this Day. In all Probability, a very great Majority will be in Town by the Middle of the Week

It is ſaid that a certain Number of Gentlemen in this Province are determined jointly to uſe their utmoſt endeavours to place the loyalty of the People before his * in its true reſpectable light——to ſeperate ſuch a Number, and thereby fruſtrate ſo good a deſign, will be doing great Diſervice to his * as well as a ſubſtantial Injury to the People.

The Thoughts of a Standing army are more and more alarming to this People, who have hitherto ſupported the due Execution of conſtitutional Law, without the neceſſity of ſuch Aid. His *'s C——l have lately diſcovered a true Patriotiſm and love of their Country, in affording ſuch Advice, as (if taken) will probably be the means of preventing the greateſt of all temporal Evils.

It is reported the Governor has ſaid, that he has three Things in Command from the Miniſtry, more grievous to the People, than any thing hitherto made known; it is conjectured 1ſt That the Inhabitants of this Province are to be diſarmed, 2d, The Province to be governed by Martial Laws; And 3d, That a Number of Gentlemen who have exerted themſelves in the cauſe of their country, are to be ſeized and ſent into Great Britain.

Unhappy America! when thy Enemies are rewarded with Honors, and Riches; but thy Friends puniſhed and ruined only for aſſerting thy Rights, and pleading for thy Freedom.

We hear, the Workmen for ſome Days paſt have been preparing the Barracks at Caſtle William for the reception of the Troops which are hourly expected to arrive from Halifax; and don't learn that any preparations are making to Quarter them in the town, the barracks there being tho't ſufficient to contain them.

It is ſaid G——r B——d, after many ſevere expreſſions between him & his C—l, was pleaſed to ſay, that he ſhould not meet them again till Col. Dalrymple's arrival.

On Thurſday laſt, the Day ſet apart for public Prayer, was obſerved with the greateſt Solemnity. Perhaps the Lord's Day was never kept with more Decency, if we may judge by the Appearance in the Streets, and the calm as well as ſerious Countenances of People at the public Worſhip diſcovered their Hearts deeply affected with ſincere and rational Devotion; and this was a perfectly Freewill Offering, neither injoin'd nor inforc'd by human authority.

We hear that the Gentlemen of the firſt Knowledge in the Law have given it as their Opinion that whoever attempts contrary to a plain Act of Parliament to quarter Troops on the Inhabitants, muſt be anſwerable for any unhappy Conſequences.

We have it from good authority that the C——l of this Province upon G—r B——d's motion, reſpecting providing Quarters for one Regiment among the Inhabitants of this Town, plainly told him, that while the Barracks at Caſtle William were more than ſufficient to receive thoſe daily expected, his Motion was in the face of an Act of Parliament, and if carried into execution, might be attended with the moſt ſerious Conſequences——They have alſo voted that Troops being ſent here in conſequence of ſome Children baltuing on the 18th of March laſt, muſt be owing to the moſt unkind and injurious Repreſentations.

Corte June 4. The French invaſion of this iſland is now no longer doubtful. At the opening of the General Conſulta for this year, our magnanimous Chief Paoli made a noble harangue; in which he recapitulated the proceedings of the laſt General Conſulta, when a treaty of accomodation, by the interpoſition of France, was agitated. He ſpoke with uncommon ſpirit, yet with a proper temper. He clearly ſhewed that the French, after amuſing our nation with fair appearances, had in the end proved entirely deceitful. And they being now to come againſt with hoſtile intentions, his Excellency moved to the people to reſolve upon ſuch meaſures as they ſhall judge proper for ſo trying an occaſion.

It is unneceſſary to deſcribe the feelings of the nation in conſequence of this animating harangue. It is ſufficient to ſay, that we are all ready to ſacrifice ourſelves for our liberty and independancy. And if France does not ſend a very great force againſt us, ſhe will meet with more reſiſtance than ſhe probably expects. If indeed that great nation ſhall exert all her power to cruſh our little ſtate, and no other nation ſhall give us any ſupport, we muſt fall a ſacrifice to tyranny.

The ſeveral marching regiments of Foot are now recruiting, with the utmoſt diligence to compleat their ſeveral corps to the full compliment of men.

On Monday two fine large oxen were ſold in Smithfield market for 120 guineas.

It is certain that Lord Rochford is coming over from Paris, but it is the opinion of thoſe who know ſomething of the preſent ſituation of France, that not to his Lordſhip's private buſineſs, but to the tickliſh poſture of affairs between us and that eternal reſtleſs court, is to be attributed his intended return home: It now being beyond a doubt, that the moſt arrogant anſwer, as firſt mentioned in this paper, has been given to the repreſentations of the Earl, our miniſter, in reſpect to the undemoliſhing of a very principal part of the fortifications of Dunkirk.

They write from Corſica, that General Paoli, has ſecured the approaches to many of his ſtrong holds by ſinking of mines, filled with gunpowder, and ready to be ſprung at a minute's warning.

It is ſaid that ſeveral foreign veſſels are now loading with ammunition and ſtores for the iſland of Corſica.

There are many among us who imagine that Great-Britain is not inattentive to the operations of the French, and as we underſtand that there is a generous ſpirit of our cauſe in the people of England, we are in hopes of aſſiſtance from that quarter.

Friday ſome diſpatches of real Importance were received at the Secretary of State's Office from the Court of Verſailles.

Yeſterday was held a full Board of Admiralty, when Expreſſes were ſent off to the Commiſſioners of the Dock-yards at Portſmouth and Plymouth.

On Friday his Majeſty's ſhip Roſe failed from St. Helen's on her Voyage for Boſton.

ſtead of getting into parties about the matter, ought [illegible] unanimouſly to agree to ſuch alteration:
for ſo long as all are by nature equally en-great reaſon to complain.

When this matter was firſt put [illegible] in agitation, they who eſpouſe the cauſe of t[illegible]ne liberties of this people, did not ſo much a[illegible] dream of ſuch a vigorous, party ſpirited [illegible]pposition from a ble that ſuch alteratio[illegible], muſt be for the common good of the coun[illegible]ty that they would not willingly have been [illegible] ſeen to make any kind of oppoſition. But, [illegible] whatever may have been the pretenſions [illegible] of Mr. Partiſan and his aſſociates;—The true ſtate of the caſe is this; When this County was firſt erected the inhabitants of the weſtern & northweſtern parts were few, very few in compariſon to thoſe of the eaſterly & northeaſterly parts thereof. At that time the townſhips of G—h, D—n—y, R—f—d, N—f—f—d, and R—d—g, excepting only the firſt ſociety in G—w—h, were in a great meaſure, if not wholly deſtitute of inhabitants; whereas they are now become populous, and in a great meaſure filled with inhabitants even to the remoteſt corners. At the ſame time the great town of W———y, on the northeaſterly part, contained near one quarter of the then inhabitants of this county, whereas that town is long ſince taken off from this and annexed to the county of L———d by which means the place where, hath become far remote from the centre.——————At preſent this county contains ten towns, five whereof compoſe one regular and almoſt uniform ſettlement from eaſt to weſt upon the ſea coaſt with N——k in the centre: the other five being a northern teer of townſhips are nearer adjacent to N——k than to the place fixt by law for the holding our courts the town of N———n only excepted which is only about two miles further diſtant.

that by means of ſuch alteration pray-for, an addition of twelve mile travel would be occaſioned only to the inhabitants of S———d, and of part of F——d and of about two miles of the town of N—t—n; whereas by that means a ſaving would be made of twelve miles travel to the inhabitants of the towns of N-w-k, S--nf-d, G-w-h, R-f-d, and of ſeveral miles to each of towns of D--by, N———d, & R——f [illegible] f even to the inhabitants of about one th[illegible] & and from eight to about twenty [illegible] is now whereas from the weſterly and [illegible] eaſterly & parts thereof it ariſes to twelv[illegible]ly to eight to FORTY miles. And tha[illegible] four miles; diſproportion be ſaid to d[illegible] northweſterly ſhall 30 miles travel be e[illegible] & from twelve inhabitants, and to the[illegible] ſuch a manifeſt generations, while they [illegible]ſerve no notice?

no more than their [illegible]tailed to the weſtern public taxes of the [illegible]e poſterity, to future only eight miles t[illegible] from eaſtward who bear vance can be re[illegible] equal proportion of the tice to any perſ[illegible] county, are favoured with ſidered that [illegible]o travel? Or when this griemuch more [illegible]dreſſed without doing injuſſituate for [illegible]on whatſoever; when it is con-ther town [illegible]N——w——k is in all reſpects now no [illegible] commodiouſly, and conveniently altera[illegible] the purpoſe aforeſaid than any oreaſ[illegible] in this county: and that there are qu[illegible] public buildings in the way of ſuch
[illegible]ion, muſt not this appear to be a moſt
[illegible]nable, moſt righteous and equitable re-
[illegible]ſt?

However if Mr. Partiſan and his petty faction will not after all be convinced, let it be imputed rather to their being blinded with the powerful force of intereſt than to their want of ability to diſcern what is juſt and reaſonable. But if notwithſtanding they are in ſome meaſure obliged to own the reaſonableneſs of this requeſt; they will ſtill undertake to ſay, that be it ever ſo reaſonable, ever ſo juſt, and equitable; yet they KNOW, ſuch alteration will never be made ſo long as the honorable upper houſe of a——ſſ——ly conſiſts of the ſame members as at preſent; give the apologiſt leave to ſay, that this would be a very unjuſt aſperſion of the characters of thoſe worthy patriots who now compoſe that honorable board. We who eſpouſe the cauſe of the liberties of the People of this county, do not pretend to have made ſo free as to have diſcovered the minds of the honorable council, or to know upon what principles they were pleaſed to negative our firſt memorial; but think it our duty to ſay it was upon Principles that were truly honeſt, and that the contrary ought not to be preſumed.

Nevertheleſs thus much we know, that they as well as we are ſenſible that our laws are not like thoſe of the Medes and Perſians; but are ſubject to repeated alterations, & emendations, and that their not having ſeen ſufficient reaſon for the alteration prayed for already is no argument that they will not be convinced that the reaſons offered are ſufficient, upon further conſideration; and whenever they ſhall judge it expedient to make ſuch alteration, it will undoubtedly be done.

But our antagoniſts are further emboldened to ſay they KNOW this, from four things, which they offer as reaſons of the knowledge, viz.

1ſt. Becauſe———2d. Becauſe other counties are in like ſituation———3d Becauſe they can hold this privilege by preſcription, and———4th Becauſe they have partly erected, what they call a goal, near the place where &c. Theſe however may be expected to be anſwered in ſome of the next apologies that may flow from the pen of the truly patriotic

BALANDER.

Agreeable to his Majeſty's pleaſure thereby ſignified, I have thought fit to iſſue this proclamation, requiring all his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, ſheriffs, and other civil officers within this colony, to exerciſe all proper care for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Melchiſedec Kinſman, who is deſcrib'd to be a well ſet man, about five feet eight inches high, about thirty years of age, florid complection, his hair light brown, but wore a wigg when he left England.

For encouraging any perſon or perſons, for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Kinſman, I ſhall ſtate the cauſe to the general aſſembly of this colony, and motion a generous reward.

ON Wednesday, the 22d of December, they were again on the water, in a close boat, In the afternoon two gentlemen & a lady arrived as visitors, having as she was told, been sent for from London. They entertained themselves with what was called Italian shades; some sheets were sewed together, and hung up, with candles placed only on one side; the spectators are on the dark side, and the performers placing themselves between the sheets, & the candle on the other side, are perceived by their shadows on the linen. Lord Baltimore was among the performers, and the Lady that came down from London said, "that is Lord Baltimore that acts the old man." This accident acquainted Miss Woodcock by whom she had been injured, having never heard his name before.

On Thursday, the 24th, being Christmas eve, they returned to London, in the same manner as they had came down; she was told at night that she must go to bed to my Lord, but she avoided it, by making an excuse applicable to her sex.

On Friday, being Christm[illegible] day, Lord Baltimore introduced her to th[illegible] other part of his Family, his daughters, an[illegible] Madam Saunier, their governess, telling them that she had been recommended by her fathe[illegible] as a companion to the young ladies.

She was now in another part of the house; she saw nothing of Mrs. Ha[illegible]y; Mrs. Griffenberg came in only now [illegible] then, and my Lord appeared only at meals; yet she neither told her situation to Madam Saunier, nor attempted to escape from the house, though the persons with whom she was now associated, as they supposed her to be with them at her own desire, would certainly have done nothing to prevent her.

She says she concealed her situation from Madam Saunier, because she supposed, being my Lord's servant, she would be as the others had been; but nothing appears to account for her not endeavouring to get out of the house.

She was fetched this night [illegible] my Lord's Bed by Mrs. Griffenberg; but though several indecencies were offered, al[illegible] which she again resisted to the utmost of her power, yet her situation prevented the repetition of what had been done at Epsom.

[illegible] except that she endeavoured to procure a pen, ink and paper, that she might write a letter to her father, and throw it out of the window, but could not suceed, and that she suffered many things to be bought and made up for her. It appears that the ladies and a visitor being at cards, she was at liberty to retire, and was some time by herself.

She slept this night in bed by herself, a room at the top of the house having been fitted up for her. It appears that the next day, Sunday, the 27th, she went about the house unattended, and was great part of this day alone in her room, though the women came often, and interrupted her.

In the afternooon, as she was standing at a corner window which looks towards Hamstead she saw Mr. Davis, the person to whom she was engaged, and he saw her; she ran into another room, which was empty, & exchanged a few words with him from the window; she was thrown into great confusion by this interview, and when he asked her if all was well, she says she was ready to drop, & fearing to be surprized; she abruptly bid him good bye, shut down the window, and retired.

This night she slept alone, in a garret.——The next day, Monday, the 28th, L. Baltimore told her he had sent for her father to meet her at Mrs. Griffenberg's, in Dean street, Soho. He told her she must say she was easy and satisfied, and willing to stay, which she promised to do: but added, that she must see her father alone.

She was accordingly sent in a hackney coach accompanied only by Mrs. Griffenberg, and a little girl, about eight years of age, to Soho. It must be confessed, that supposing at this time she was earnestly desirous of getting away, and, as she alledged, upon her cross-examination, in fear of her life, it is very difficult to account for her not running into the first shop or house she saw open, when she got out before her. She certainly might have outrun Mrs. Griffenberg, and if endeavours had been used forcibly to detain her, she would have been able to appeal to a crowd of people in two minutes.

When this was urged to her, she had nothing better to say, than that she did not know but that some of my Lord's servants might be about, and that she did not think of it. Neither of these reasons are surely satisfactory, & what is worse, they destroy each other; for if she was deterred from attempting to escape, by the mere doubt of persons being near who would prevent it, she certainly thought of it; and if she did not think of it, she was not certainly deterred from the attempt by any doubt about my Lords servants.

After she had waited at the house about two hours, that is, till four o'clock, without seeing her father, Lord Baltimore and Dr. Griffenberg came, and brought an account that her father had taken Mrs. Harvey into custody; a messenger soon after informed them, that in consequence of Miss Woodcock's conference with Mr Davis, from the window Lord Baltimore's house was beset with Justice Fielding's men! In this situation, my Lord seemed in earnest to procure an interview between Miss Wo[illegible] and her father, [illegible] see her father, and things should be settled to her mind, she would procure Mrs. Harvey's discharge.

A messenger was therefore procured to carry a letter to the old man, from his daughter, appointing him to come to Ben Kenton's at the crown and Magpye, in Whitechapel, whither the company went immediately, Lord Baltimore, Miss Woodcock, Dr. Griffenberg, the messengers, the Doctor's niece, and the little girl.

When they came thither, the messenger was dispatched with the letter to Woodcock's which was but at the other end of the Minories, who brought word that he had been abroad all day, in search of his daughter, and could not be found. Lord Baltimore said, he would send to him again at ten the next morning, and Miss Woodcock wrote a second letter to the landlord of the house where her father lived, to tell him this.

They then set out again for Dr. Griffenberg's, and in the way called at Sir John Fielding's; the man who had carried the letter was with them; he went into Sir John's, and told him that Miss Woodcock was in a coach at the door; he returned to them in a short time, and Sir John's clerk with him, who brought a card to her, with his compliments, telling her she should see her friends there; but instead of then putting herself into Sir John's protection, she gave the card to Lord Baltimore, as referring to him what answer should be given; He said she should not go to Fielding's. She immediately acquiesced, and dismissed the clerk, telling him she desired to see her friends at Dr. Griffenbergs.

When they got to Dr. Griffenberg's, messenger after messenger came to tell them of Fieldings men being about the house, and a great mob in the yard; this so much alarmed my Lord, that he was afraid to go home, lest they should take her out of the coach.

To be concluded in our next.

BOSTON, October 3.

The following was unanimouſly agreed upon as the RESULT of the conference and conſultation of the committees choſen by a number of Towns and Diſtricts viz. Ninety ſix Towns and 8 Diſtricts, conven'd at Boſton, the Twenty ſecond Day of September, 1768.

THE Inhabitants of a Number of Towns in his Majeſty's Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay, being greatly alarm'd at the preſent Aſpect of our public affairs, and deeply diſtreſs'd in their Minds upon authentic Advice that the humble and dutiful Petition of their repreſentatives to our moſt gracious Sovereign for the Redreſs of their Grievances have not reach'd the Royal Preſence, at a time when they are threatned with the poſting of Regular Troops among them, while they are in an unuſual Manner depriv'd of the benefit of a General Aſſembly the grand Council of the Province. And being deſirous to the utmoſt of their ability to promote Peace, good Order and due Submiſſion among their Fellow Subjects in their Province have in their ſeveral Town Meetings legally aſſembled choſen us to meet together in Convention, in Order to conſult and adviſe for that purpoſe, & alſo for the legal, regular and prudential Methods of obtaining the redreſs of our Grievances.

The ſaid Committees, having met for the Purpoſes aforeſaid, and after conference and conſultation on the Premiſes thought it adviſeable to prefer a dutiful Petition to his Excellency Governor BERNARD, his Majeſty's Repreſentative in this Province therein ſetting forth, and explaining to his Excellency, the Nature and deſign of their meeting, and ſupplicating him to convene a General Aſſembly of the repreſentative Body of the People: but his Excellency having conſidered their thus Meeting as unlawful, refuſed to receive the Petition; and ſent them a Meſſage admoniſhing them to ſeperate themſelves; and alſo afterward he refuſed to receive [illegible] the ſaid Committee thought neceſſary to ſend to his Excellency, in conſequence of his Meſſage and admonition to them; the committee therefore conſidering that the peaceable and good intention of their convening, might poſſibly be miſunderſtood' thought it neceſſary that their proceedings ſhould be made known to the World, by inſerting the ſame in the public prints, that ſo every ſuſpicion of any illegal Deſign or Behaviour might be removed.

And the ſaid Committees conſidering themſelves only as ſo many private Fellow Subjects conven'd from Divers Towns in this Province, at the requeſt of their inhabitants, have made known to each other the loyal & dutiful diſpoſition of the ſame; and their deſire that no irregular Steps ſhould be taken by the People, but that all unconſtitutional and prudential Methods ſhould be cloſely attended to, for the redreſs of their Grievances; and the ſaid Committee in purſuance of the pacific Intention of their meeting, have conſidered that the gracious attention of his moſt ſacred Majeſty to the cauſe and grounds of our complaints, is the only regular Source of relief from our preſent Diſtreſſes; and that the Houſe of Repreſentatives in February laſt did in their faithful care and concern for the intereſt and Welfare of this Province, prefer ſuch a Petition to his ſacred Majeſty as by them was thought beſt adapted to obtain relief; and at the ſame time did write Letters to divers noble Lords, and others to intreat their Attention to our public Difficulties: Which Petition to his Majeſty we are in hopes has before this Time reached the royal Preſence, and will ere long have the deſired effect. And as we cannot but ſtill entertain hopes that his Excellency our Governor will ſoon think fit to call a Houſe of Repreſentatives, who may, if they ſee occaſion therefor, prefer further Petitions to his Majeſty for our redreſs; we are therefore humbly of opinion and flatter ourſelves it will not be taken amiſs if we declare, & which we are aſſured is the Sentiment of the ſeveral Towns to which we belong, that tho' the preſent Appearance of our public affairs is alarming & diſtreſſing, yet that the common cauſe of obtaining the redreſs of the heavy grievances under which we labour, will be the beſt ſerved by a firm Adherence to the principles of the conſtitution, and a cloſe attention to the Peace and good order of Society. And tho' we are ſatisfied from the Knowledge we have of the loyalty and Attachment of the Inhabitants of this province to the perſon and Government of our moſt gracious Sovereign, that any Tumults & Diſorders that may have happened, have not ariſen from the leaſt diſaffection to the government as by law eſtabliſhed, or the want of Loyalty to our King on the Britiſh Throne, but merely from a preſſing Anxiety of Mind on the Account of heavy and increaſing Grievances —— which Grievances were very clearly ſet forth by the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province in February laſt, in the aforeſaid Petition & Letters, wherein they expreſs their deepeſt Concern that the Parliament has thought proper to paſs divers Acts impoſing Taxes on his Majeſty's Subjects in America with the ſole and expreſs Purpoſe of raiſing a revenue; & they add, "that if theſe Acts of Parliament ſhould remain in force and his Majeſty's Commons in Great Britain ſhall continue to exerciſe the power of granting the property of their Fellow Subjects in this Province, his Majeſty's People here muſt then regret their unhappy Fate in having only the name left of free ſubjects. —— And in their letter to their Agent they ſay, that the coloniſts cannot be conceived to have any property, if their Money may be granted away by others without their conſent, and that this is moſt certainly the preſent Caſe." and ſpeaking of a ſtanding Army, they appeal to the Tranſactions of the Parliament to ſhew the Sentiments of the Nation of the Loyalty of the People of the Province, and juſtly affirm that their good diſpoſition renders a ſtanding Army needleſs; They further declare that as Engliſhmen they have an averſion to an unneceſſary Standing Army, which they look upon as dangerous to their civil Liberty. And further, that the Time may come when an united Body of Penſioners and Soldiers may ruin the Liberties of America." Yet conſidering the invaluable Bleſſing and happy conſequences of Peace and good order, and the great Advantages reſulting therefrom, for producing convincing Arguments and placing Truth in the moſt conſpicuous point of View; and alſo conſidering the horrible Nature and dreadful conſequences of Tumult and Diſorder, we think it our Duty, as Friends to our common Cauſe, as embarked in the ſame bottom of Provincial happineſs, to give our free and ſincere Advice not in an authoritative, but meerly a friendly Manner, that we ſhould all of us compoſe our Minds and avoid any undue expreſſions of Reſentment, and each one of us prevent ſo much as in him lies all Tumults and diſorders into which our preſent Calamities may betray us; and to attend with all due Patience, and a regard to good order, the Reſult of his Majeſty's Wiſdom, from whence we may reaſonably expect to receive our much deſired Relief. —— And it is our firm reſolution, in our ſeveral Stations, as by our Allegiance required, and by our Loyalty inclined, at all times, to yield every poſſible aſſiſtance to the Civil Magiſtrates in the Suppreſſion of riots and tumults, and in preſerving the peace; being humbly of opinion, that the Poſſe Comitatus, when legally called in Aid of the Civil Power, will ever be ſufficient to reſtrain all Orders of Men within the bounds of the law, and the Limits of the conſtitution. We from the bottom of our Hearts not only diſclaim and deteſt all Pretences of 'uſurping' any of the 'rights of Sovereignty', but alſo of arrogating to ourſelves any the leaſt authority whatever. We clearly hold, and whenever lawfully called thereunto will at the utmoſt Hazard of our lives & Fortunes maintain that the 'Sovereignty' of his moſt ſacred Majeſty King GEORGE the third is alrea[illegible] all parts of the widely extended and ſtill happily ſpreading Britiſh Empire: and may God forbid that we ſhould ever once be leſs to think or wiſh, much leſs to aſk any Thing in 'Oppugnation' of the ſame, 'Ignorance of the law' neither in a court Temporal or Spiritual, is a proper 'Plea' or 'Excuſe'. We would appear not as Attorneys, Proctors or Pettyfoggers, but as plain Honeſt Men, humbly conſulting Peace and Order, and for the beſt temporal Felicity of our country and of Poſterity. We would wiſh as far as is in our power ever to promote and cultivate that Harmony, and Union between Great Britain and her Colonies, on which the happineſs of both ſo much depend. We think ourſelves happy in being connected with the Parent State, in that Subordination, which forms the happieſt Bond of Union between the Colonies themſelves. We have been taught, that it is the Duty of all Men, to implore the Throne of heavenly Grace; & have but lately heard there are thoſe who deem it criminal for aggrieved Fellow Subjects to join in humble dutiful, and loyal Supplications to their Monarch. While the People wiſely obſerve the Medium between an abject ſubmiſſion, and a ſlaviſh ſtupidity, under grievous oppreſſion on the one hand, and irrational Attempts to obtain Redreſs on the other, and ſteadily perſevere in orderly and conſtitutional Applications, for the recovering the Exerciſe of their juſt Rights & Liberties, they may promiſe themſelves ſucceſs. And while they ſtedfaſtly maintain thoſe invaluable Bleſſings which are derived to them from GOD and Nature, and the happy conſtitution of the Government under which we live, they may ſafely rely on the influence and direction of Him who ruleth according to his Pleaſure, with unerring Wiſdom and irreſiſtible influence, in the hearts of the Children of Men; under whoſe Favour no Grievance can be durable, and without which no enjoyment can be truly valuable.

Wedneſday Morning arrived here from Halifax, the Launceſton of 40 Guns the Mermaid of 28, Glaſgow of 20, Beaver of 14, Senegal of 14 and Bonetta of 10, and two armed Schooners, together with ſeveral Tranſports, having on board the 14th Regiment, under the command of Lieut. Col. Dalrymple, and the 29th Regiment, under Lieut. Col. Carr; alſo the Grenadiers and other company of the 59th Regiment, with a detachment of the Royal Regiment of Artillery; in all about 1000 Men.

On Thurſday the Boats from the Fleet came up and ſounded the Bay all round the Town, and on Friday the Ships of War came up and ranged themſelves on the North Eaſt Side of the Metropolis, as if intended for a formal Siege: And about noon on Saturday, the 14th Regiment landed at the Long Wharf, & having formed, marched with drums beating, Fifes Playing, and Colors flying, up King ſtreet to the Town Houſe, where they halted till the 29th Regiment came up, then marched to the Common, where they were joined ſoon after by the detachments of the 59th Regiment and of the train of Artillery, with two Field Pieces. —— About two o'Clock, Lieut. Cooper of the 14th, came to Mr. Brown, Overſeer of the Factory, and requeſted to ſee the Rooms, and know what Number of Soldiers they might contain: Mr. Brown ſhewed him the rooms, on which he retired; but ſpeedily returned, and ſaid it was Col. Dalrymple's poſitive Orders to have the Factory cleared in two Hours for the reception of the Soldiers. Mr. Brown deſiring to ſee the Col. in Perſon, was conducted to him in the common, and complained to him of the Hardſhip of being turned out of Doors from a Houſe he had been placed in by the Province, and that without legal Warning. The Col. anſwered he received orders from Govr. Bernard to lodge his Troops in the Factory Houſe, and he would obey them. Mr. Brown replied, he diſputed the Governor's power to vindicate ſuch Orders and would not comply with them. Colonel Dalrymple during the converſation having reach'd the Factory, tarried ſome time, and on departure ſaid that he would for the ſake of the people go once more to the Selectmen and ſee whether they would make any Proviſion for his men, who muſt otherwiſe lie in open Air. He accordingly went and applied for the Shelter of Faneuil Hall till Monday Morning, declaring upon his honor that the utmoſt care ſhould be taken not to injure any Thing in that Building, which contains many of the public Papers and Town Arms. Some time after the Col. came to Mr. Brown, and told him he need give himſelf no further trouble till Monday, when he could not ſay but the Governor might renew the demand. About twilight the 14th Regiment marched down to the Hall, where they ſtood under Arms till near 9 o'clock, when the Door, by ſome means or other being opened, they took up their Lodging there that night but the place not being ſufficient to accomodate the whole of that Regiment, a Part of them by the Governor's Permiſſion, took up their Quarters laſt Evening in the Town Houſe —— The 29th, having brought their Field Equipage with them, are encamped on the Common, with the Artillery.

Col. Dalrymple commands in chief the Land Forces, and Capt. Smith the Ships of War.

We have now the appearance before this Town of 13 or 14 Ships of War, and two Regiments in the Common with a Train of Artillery, and all this mighty and expenſive Parade, is, as this E———y has told the C—l, in conſequence of the diſorders on the 18th of March laſt, which were nothing more than a few diſorderly Boys hallooing before Mr. Inſpector William's Door that Evening. —— We are now become a Spectacle to all North America; may our conduct be ſuch as not to diſgrace ourſelves or injure the common cauſe.

Laſt Thurſday the G———r called a C———l at Caſtle William, but all his Efforts could not induce them to countenance the quartering of Troops in this town contrary to Act of Parliament. —— We hear he has ſummoned them to attend as on this Day, at his Seat at Roxbury, about 5 Miles from Boſton.

It is obſerved that the Enemies to this town and Province are much chagrin'd to perceive this Town in that peace and good Order which has aſtoniſhed the Gentlemen of the Military, who by the Repreſentations made to them might have expected to have found us in a ſtate of diſorder and rebellion.

Not the leaſt attempt has been made or even contemplated to oppoſe the landing of the King's Troops, or their encampment on the Common; whoever among us ſhall preſume to act counter to Law, muſt anſwer for any unhappy conſequences —— It is not doubted but the Poſſe Comitatus, in any of the civil Magiſtrates when neceſſary, will be ſufficient to maintain every individual in the Exerciſe & Enjoyment of his rights and Property.

The beſt Families in Town & country have and are laying aſide the uſe of India Teas, & many are determining not to eat drink or wear any thing Foreign, until relieved under our preſent Burdens.

When an armed Force is bro't in upon a peaceable Country againſt their conſent, and in Violation of their Rights as men and Britiſh Subjects, we have reaſon to believe that ſome unheard of Oppreſſions are coming upon us.— If no Evil is deſigned againſt us, why are Troops quartered in our Towns? Surely it is not to protect us. We want no protection; no Danger threatens the Inhabitants of this Country from a Foreign Enemy. The laws are Fully and quietly executed. The Sowers of Diſcord, the Enemies of Great Britain and America, the Villains that have inſidiouſly alienated the Affections of his Majeſty's Subjects from each other, are the only Perſons who pretend they are in danger; their Conſciouſneſs of Guilt is a Fury that continually haunts them, a Vulture that conſtantly gnaws their cowardly Hearts, and a certain Forerunner of that Vengeance, which ſooner or later, in this State or another, will aſſuredly overtake them, though all the Force of Great Britain ſhould guard them." Hand may join in Hand yet iniquity ſhall not go unpuniſhed. Theſe wretches may depend on it, that our injured King and the accuſed People of Great Britain, need only know them to hate them as we do.

BOSTON, October 6.

We hear His Majeſty's Council has adviſed his Excellency the Governor to authorize and appoint one or more Perſon or Perſons to furniſh and ſupply the Officers and Soldiers put and placed in the Barracks, with Fire, Candles, &c. as particularly mentioned in the Act of Parliament.

We hear that Joſeph Goldthwait, Jun. Eſq; is appointed Commiſſary for the Purpoſe above mentioned.

This Morning fell down and came to anchor off Caſtle William, the Senegal Sloop of War; the Magdalane armed Schooner ſailed alſo for Halifax.

The Lydia, Captain Scott, ſails this Day for London: We hear that Captain Allen, of the Gaſpee armed Schooner, goes Paſſenger in the Lydia, with Diſpatches from the Commander of the Troops here.

We hear from North Yarmouth, that as three Men were hunting for Bears in the Woods there, they purſued one into a Cornfield, — one of the Perſons hearing a ruſtling, ſuppoſing it to be the Bear, he fired, but happening to be one of his Comrades was killed on the ſpot. — The Perſon that fired was named [illegible], and the Perſon killed was named Griffin.

Thurſday laſt the Convention, having finiſhed their Buſineſs, diſpers'd.

We hear there are above 200 Families in this Town that have agreed not to uſe any more TEA. We alſo hear the Inhabitants of Charleſtown have unanimouſly agreed to the ſame.

We hear from Brookfield, that Mr. Joſhua Upham of that Town, a Gentleman of the Law, and his two Brothers, with a Number of other Gentlemen, have lately erected a Building 50 Feet in Length, and two Stories high, for a Manufactory Houſe, and are collecting Tradeſmen of ſeveral Sorts for the Woolen Manufactory, and they propoſe to keep a large Number of Looms conſtantly at Work.

We hear from Wilbraham a Part of Springfield, that a Number of Gentlemen have agreed together to purchaſe 2000 Sheep, to be Paſtured upon the Plains there, under the care of a Shepherd.

HARTFORD, October 10.

Next Thurſday the General Aſſembly of this Colony is to meet at New Haven.

We hear from Great Barrington, that laſt Week a Perſon was killed there by the Fall of a Tree.

A SLOOP about Sixty Tons Burthen, now lying at Hartford, well found, a good ſailing Veſſel, well calculated for the Weſt India Trade; —together with a Sixteen Foot Boat.

The following Articles of Intelligence were brought by Capt. Davis, from London, whoſe Arrival was mention'd in our laſt.

Yeſterday Afternoon about 5 o'Clock died at his Palace at Lambeth, aged 75, the moſt Reverend Thomas Secker, L. L. D. Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, and Metropolitan Preſident of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, and the Society for the propagation of the Goſpel in foreign Parts, a Governor of the Charter Houſe, a Truſtee of the Britiſh Muſeum, a Vice-Preſident of St. George's Hoſpital, & one of the Lord's of his Majeſty's moſt Hon. Privy Council.

His Grace was a learned and pious Prelate, and in his Sermons gave a noble ſpecimen of practical preaching, adapted to the circumſtances of the congregation, delivered with a becoming freedom, which he preſſ'd home on the Hearts of his auditors; and his charity was unbounded, —inſomuch that not only the poor in and near Lambeth have loſt a great benefactor, but many other indigent perſons, to whom he was an annual contributor, will lament his Death.

Auguſt 5. Tueſday Evening the Earl of Bute embarked at Dover for France.

A correſpondent ſays, that it is generally thought a noble Lord at preſent labours under a political as well as corporal indigeſtion, which is the cauſe of his going abroad.

They write from Hamburgh, that the diſputes between England and her Colonies have effectually put a ſtop to the further migration of Foreigners to ſettle in North America.

The report of two noble Lords being ſpeedily to embark for America wants confirmation, tho' it is pretty confidently believed that vigorous meaſures will be immediately taken by the miniſtry.

They write from Boſton, that a ſolemn Faſt has been appointed to be kept thro'out the province of New England, and the colony of Connecticut, on account of the preſent ſituation of public affairs.

His Majeſty's Ship Rippon, is getting ready as faſt as poſſible, we hear, for North America.

Aug 8 The Right Rev. the Lord Biſhop of London, Dr. Terrick, is talked of to ſucceed to the See of Canterbury.

It is ſaid that the inhabitants of New York have begun a ſubſcription for raiſing a regiment of provincials, for the better ſecurity of that colony.

On Thurſday the body of the late Archbiſhop of Canterbury was opened in the preſence of Dr. Addington, Dr. Ford, John Ranby, & Caeſar Hawkins, Eſqrs. when it appeared the bones in one of his Grace's thighs and arms were greatly decayed, eſpecially that in the thigh, which was as it were, almoſt hollow; and the gentlemen of the faculty were ſurprized that his Grace lived ſo long in ſuch pain as he had been for ſome weeks paſt.

The Archbiſhop's Will was yeſterday opened, and we are informed that his Grace has left the largeſt part of his fortune to charitable purpoſes, after the payment of ſome annuities to ſome particular friends.

It is ſaid the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Chatham has neither been conſulted nor as yet given his opinion on the preſent diſputes between Great Britain and her Colonies.

On the GRAVE.

HERE lie our bodies in a peaceful habitation and in a quiet reſting place. Here they have thrown off every Burthen, and eſcaped from every Snare; the Head achs no more, the Eye forgets to weep, the Fleſh is no longer racked with acute Pains nor pines away under lingering Diſtempers, here we receive a final Releaſe from Pain, and an everlaſting Diſcharge from Sorrows: Here Danger never threatens with her terrifying Alarms, but Tranquility ſoftens their Couch and Safety Guards their Repoſe Reſt then, ye precious Reliques, within this hoſpitable Gloom; Reſt in gentle Slumbers 'till the laſt Trumpet ſhall give the welcome Signal, Ariſe; ſhine, for your light is come, and the glory of the Lord is riſen upon you. Where now is Wealth with all her golden Mountains? Where is Honour, with her proud Trophies of Renown? Where are all the vain Pomps of a deluded World? Can they adminiſter any Support in this laſt Extremity? The Body ſleeps in Death; the Soul launches into the inviſible State But who can imagine the delightful Surprize when they find themſelves ſurrounded by Guardian Angels inſtead of weeping Friends? How ſecurely do they wing their Way and paſs through unknown Worlds, under the Conduct of theſe Celeſtial Guides!——The Vale of Tears is quite loſt, they arrive on the Frontiers of inexpreſſible Felicity. They are come to the City of the living GOD, while a Voice ſweeter than Muſick in her ſofteſt Strains,——ſweet as the Harmony of hymning Seraphim, congratulates their Arrival, and beſpeaks their Admiſſion: Lift up your Heads: O ye Gates, and be ye lift up ye everlaſting Doors; that the Heirs of Glory may enter in. Here the Spirits and Souls of the Righteous are eſcaped from a perplexing Wilderneſs of Pain and received into a Paradiſe of Delights? eſcaped from the Territories of Diſquietude, and ſettled in Regions of unmoleſted Security. Let me live the Life and die the Death of the Righteous. Oh! let my latter End and future State be like theirs

BY THE HONORABLE

William Pitkin, Eſq;

Governor and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Engliſh Colony of Connecticut in New-England, in America.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS by letters from one of his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, information is given, and affidavits tranſmitted, of the murder of William Odgers, one of the officers of his Majeſty's cuſtoms for the port of Penzance, in the county of Cornwall: ſaid murder therein charg'd on Melchiſedec Kinſman, of the Iſland of Great-Britain, who in April laſt ſailed from Falmouth, for New-York: ſignifying alſo his Majeſty's pleaſure, that all legal methods be taken for apprehending ſaid Kinſman, (if found within this government) to the end that he may be brought to juſtice.

Agreeable to his Majeſty's pleaſure thereby ſignified, I have thought fit to iſſue this proclamation, requiring all his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, ſheriffs, and other civil officers within this colony, to exerciſe all proper care for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Melchiſedec Kinſman, who is deſcrib'd to be a well ſet man, about five feet eight inches high, about thirty years of age, florid complection, his hair light brown, but wore a wigg when he left England.

For encouraging any perſon or perſons, for apprehending and ſecuring the ſaid Kinſman, I ſhall ſtate the cauſe to the general aſſembly of this colony, and motion a generous reward.

Given under my hand at Hartford, this 12th day of September 1768, in the eighth year of the reign of our ſovereign Lord George the third, by the grace of God, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, King defender of the faith, &c.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

[Lord Baltimore's Trial concluded]

SHE ſays, that at this time ſhe was herſelf afraid, that if he [illegible] had ſpoken to Davis out of the window, he would murder her that night? yet ſhe encouraged him to carry her again to his houſe by telling him that they could not take her out, unleſs ſhe would, and that ſhe would not go with Juſtice Felding's men.

But notwithſtanding, when they came to Lord Baltimore's, and ſhe ſaw men, whom ſhe believed to belong to Juſtice Fielding, ſtrive to ruſh into the court yard after the coach, ſhe called out as ſhe alighted, "let them come in;" my Lord, ſhe ſays, then pulled her into the houſe, and ſaid ſhe ſhould not ſtay.

This night ſhe went to bed to my Lord, at his earneſt deſire, to avoid force, and upon his promiſe not to meddle with her, which ſhe ſays he kept.

On Tueſday morning he propoſed that ſhe ſhould write to her father, which ſhe did, deſiring him and her friends to come with all decency and reſpect becoming a [illegible] houſe.

This letter was never ſent; it came into the hands of one Brown, an attorney, who kept it [illegible] produced it at the trial, a circumſtance which did not eſcape proper notice in the court.

Soon after this letter was written, and ſhe tho't ſent away, Mr. Watts, an attorney, who had been employed by her friends, came to ſerve Lord Baltimore with a habeas corpus; he was introduced to her, and told her he came, by the deſire of her friends, to know whether ſhe was there by her own conſent; ſhe anſwered 'yes.' She ſays ſhe did not know what to think of Mr. Watts, and therefore went and opened the window, and looked out, to ſee if any of her friends had come with him. She ſaw ſeveral friends, and particularly one Mr. Cay, pretty near her, yet when Mr. Cay himſelf aſked her if ſhe was there with her own conſent, ſhe anſwered him as ſhe had done Mr. Watts, 'yes;' but added as ſhe had done before, 'I want to ſee my father.' Mr. Cay replied, 'your father will never come within theſe walls;' upon this ſhe turned away trembling, and ſaid, 'then I never ſhall ſee him.' 'That,' ſays ſhe, 'was my way of thinking at that time.' It is ſurely very ſtrange, that ſhe ſhould not expreſs her deſire of deliverance, when ſhe ſaw her friends ſurround the houſe, and that ſhe could poſſibly imagine any man in the kingdom would venture to ſpirit away or deſtroy a perſon known to be in his houſe forcibly detained, by a number of people who came to demand her. Yet perhaps it is ſcarce more ſtrange than her attempt to convince a philoſopher of the exiſtence of God, by appealing to the bible.

The habeas corpus being ſoon after ſerved, ſhe was, in obedience to that writ, taken by Lord Baltimore to Lord Manſfield's.

She ſays, not knowing that Lord Manſfield was a magiſtrate, ſhe did not chooſe to tell him the particulars, even when nobody was preſent but his Lordſhip, and a gentleman whom he deſired to be preſent. But though ſhe might not know his power, ſhe knew he was not in Lord [illegible] intereſt; for being aſked what [illegible] to be the reaſon at her going [illegible] Manſfield's ſhe anſwered, 'I [illegible] my friends were taking ſome [illegible] the gives of this interview [illegible] Lord M. 'Child was you carried [illegible] your will?' Anſ. 'yes, my Lord [illegible] kept there againſt [illegible] againſt my will' [illegible] your will?' Lord M. [illegible] Anſ. 'yes.' Lord M. 'I think [illegible] with this man?' [illegible] are you [illegible] Anſ. [illegible] as things are as they are, I [illegible] not ſeeing my friends [illegible] in which this anſwer [illegible] much more the appearance of [illegible] ſentiment [illegible] a conſequence of reflection [illegible] thought, [illegible] of a mere general compliance with an extraordinary promiſe, or a timid concealment of the truth, ariſing from uncertainty and ſuſpicion [illegible] for which, conſidering each her own account, there ſhould be no cauſe.

This is the ſubſtance of the girl's teſtimony, in ſupport of a charge, which, as Lord Baltimore obſerved, in [illegible] ſhort addreſs to the court, before he called his own witneſſes, is eaſy to be made, and [illegible] to be diſproved. It was confirmed by [illegible] teſtimony of a man-midwife, who [illegible] examination, marks of great force appeared upon her body.

Lord Baltimore's defence, as he obſerved, neceſſarily depended upon circumſtances only which were ſtrong in proportion to their variety and concurrence.

They conſiſted chiefly of his own ſervants and dependents, and it could not be otherwiſe in the nature of the thing; their characters are certainly ſuſpicious, for Lord Baltimore's houſe appears to have been ſuch a one as a ſervant of good morals and diſpoſitions would not have lived in. Among others, he propoſed to examine Dr. Griffenberg, but the doctor having been convicted of an aſſault with an intent to commit a rape himſelf; for which he was fined and impriſoned, the court refuſed to hear his teſtimony.

The general view of the evidence for L. Baltimore, was to prove that Miſs Woodcock eat and drank, and appeared to be contented, chearful, and even playful, during great part of the time in which, by her account ſhe was forcibly detained for a purpoſe which filled her with horror, weeping and faſting, and overwhelmed with diſtreſs; and ſhe admits, in her croſs-examination, that after ſhe had ſuffered the laſt act of violence, ſhe did appear chearful in conſequence of the reſolutions for which her reaſons have been given.

He produced, however, at leaſt one witneſs of a reſpectable character, who, with regard to the ſubject on which he was examined, is worthy of undoubted credit, the rather, as the teſtimony he gives relates to matters to which Lord Manſfield was himſelf a witneſs, and which therefore if not true, his Lordſhip muſt know to be falſe: For a man even of a bad character would ſcarce venture to ſay, upon oath, what Lord Manſfield muſt know to be a lie.

Mr. Cay, at Lord Manſfield's requeſt, was preſent during his firſt examination of the girl, and the account he gives of it is this:

That Lord Manſfield firſt aſked her, how ſhe came to go away from her father in that manner; in an anſwer to which ſhe begged to 'be excuſed.' My Lord Manſfield then aſked her if ſhe was under any conſtraint from Lord Baltimore, or confined by him; to which ſhe anſwered, 'not in the leaſt,' (or words to that effect) 'for I had agreed to ſtay with him;' that he repeated this ſeveral times, and ſhe ſtill ſaid, 'I agreed to ſtay with him.' That Lord Manſfield having aſked her age, and being told ſix-and twenty, added, 'becauſe if you was not of age, I ſhould not take your anſwer ſo eaſily; I ſhould take you away;' ſhe replied, 'as I am of age, I know you cannot do it, my Lord,' and repeated it ſeveral times.

This ſhews that ſhe well knew who Lord Manſfield was, and not only what he could do, but what he could not do.

Robert Roſe, a ſervant to Lord Manſfield, depoſed, that he was preſent at the converſation between Miſs Woodcock and her father and ſiſter, after the examination by L. Manſfield; that ſhe aſked them what made them ſo uneaſy, ſaying, ſhe was very well off, and very happy; that after he had heard this, he was a little while abſent, and when he returned he heard [illegible] back! All my friends will think me a [illegible]' They ſaid 'go, all your acquaintance have a good opinion of you;' upon which ſhe turned round to him, & deſired him to let Lord Manſfield know, that ſhe had agreed to go with her friends.

My Lord then ordered her in, with all perſons concerned in the affair, and upon her declaring ſhe would go home with her friends, he ſaid, 'gentleman, I would have you take notice of this anſwer, for when this lady came before me, on her private examination, ſhe expreſſed at firſt her inclination to return with Lord Baltimore.'

Mr. Baron Smith having ſummed up the evidence, concluded to this effect: 'In point of law, the fact is fully proved on the priſoner; the defence can only be collected from circumſtances, from theſe you muſt judge, whether the evidence of the proſecutor is, or is not to be believed. The ſtrong part of the caſe on the behalf of the priſoner, is her not complaining when ſhe was at L. Manſfield's, the ſupreme magiſtrate in the kingdom in criminal matters; you have heard how he has explained and accounted for her conduct, which you muſt judge of. Upon the whole, if you believe ſhe made the diſcovery as ſoon as ſhe knew ſhe had an opportunity of doing it, and that her account is true, you will find all the priſoners guilty; if you believe ſhe did not make the diſcovery as ſoon as ſhe had an opportunity, and from thence, or other circumſtances, are not ſatisfied her account is true, you will find them all not guilty, for if he is not guilty, they cannot be ſo.'

The priſoners were acquitted.

Upon the whole the following reflections naturally occur: It is not pretended, even by Lord Baltimore, that he accompliſhed his purpoſe till the girl had been five nights in the cuſtody, though it is allowed that he attempted it the firſt night; it is certain, therefore, that ſhe reſiſted till the purpoſe was accompliſhed, and the ſame motive that produced this reſiſtance would certainly have produced an eſcape if it had appeared to her to have been poſſible; for upon what principle can we account for her voluntary continuance in a place where ſhe was expoſed to attempts that ſhe reſiſted, & ſollicitations that ſhe refuſed?

From her reſiſtance till the laſt night, it may eaſily be concluded, that on that night ſhe did alſo reſiſt; and tho' Lord Baltimore, in his defence pretends that as a man of pleaſure he abhorred force, there is a fallacy in that pretence which ought to be detected. It is generally ſuppoſed, that the firſt violation of chaſtity, however effected, make a repetition of the ſame act with the ſame perſon comparatively eaſy; as a man of pleaſure, he might give the firſt night to thoſe that were to come, and pay the forced enjoyment as a kind of tax, to ſecure an agreeable poſſeſſion for the future.

There is alſo reaſon to conclude, that what has generally happened in other caſes of the ſame kind, did actually happen in this, & that after violation, the girl ſuppoſing all to be loſt that ſhe could loſe, particularly her reputation, and that her return back to her friends and lover, upon the terms on which ſhe ſtood when ſhe left them, was impoſſible, might think a continuance with L. Baltimore the leaſt of two evils; ſomething alſo muſt be allowed to the eaſe and ſplendor of the ſituation which, by returning ſhe might hope to ſecure. If this was the ſtate of her mind, when ſhe was firſt examined by Lord Mansfield, it is ſtill natural to ſuppoſe, that when ſhe had ſeen her friends, and was aſſured that the way back was ſtill open, and her reputation was unſullied by her misfortune, the ballance of her mind turned in favour of the oppoſite ſcale and ſhe refuſed connexion with her friends before a return to Lord Baltimore.

Theſe remarks however, are not meant to impeach either the integrity or underſtanding of the jury.

The priſoner challenged 15, ſo that out of 27 who anſwered to their names, he had eventually the choice of 12; but the report that they firſt acquitted Lord Baltimore, and found the women guilty, which has been very widely propagated, and zealouſly maintained, is not true.

LONDON, July 21.

THE talk of appointments of Biſhops in our colonies is again revived, and it is expected an attempt will be made next ſeſſion of Parliament, for leave to bring in a bill for aſcertaining the ſame, and for providing a proper fund for their maintenance; until ſundry lands which will be granted in the nature of globe, be ſo far cultivated, as to enable them to live as becomes their ſacred character, without the impoſition of tythes, ; or plaguing the people with eccleſiaſtical courts; which, it is tho't will meet with no oppoſition from the colonies.

July 25. Six more men of war are ordered for Boſton as faſt as poſſible who are to take more troops on board; government being now determined that the laws paſſed in England reſpecting America ſhall be obſerved and enforced, and their officers protected, at all events.

July 28. Robert Eden Eſq; brother to Sir John Eden Bart. is appointed Lieut. Governor of Maryland.

☞ Auguſt 4. American affairs at preſent draw the attention of the whole nation. The Right Hon. Lord Botetourt is juſt appointed governor of Virginia, and Lord Lieutenant of all America. He is preparing to ſet out, a 60 gun ſhip being appointed to carry him over to Boſton, where it is ſaid there will be a general meeting of the governors. The preſent ſtate of the colonies enquired into, their claims and grievances examined, and every thing relating to them adjuſted on a new and firm footing.

Lord Botetourt has an eſtate of 25, or 30, 000 pounds ſterl. a year. Is Lord Lieutenant and Cuſtos Rotulorum of the county of Glouceſter, Conſtable of Briavel's caſtle, and Col. of the Glouceſterſhire militia.

Lord Chatham recovers ſo ſurprizingly in his health, ſtrength, and ſpirits, that great expectations are formed from his Lordſhip's being able to give a conſtant attendance (which his almoſt continual indiſpoſition has prevented ſince his advancement to a coronet) in the houſe of Peers the enſuing ſeſſions.

This morning early Mr. Wilkes ſat out in a poſt-chariot from the King's bench priſon, accompanied by the Marſhal of the K's bench and two other gentlemen for Guilford, in order to be preſent at the trial of the ſoldiers for the murder of Mr. Allen, junior.

A correſpondent informs us, that a detachment of the m—— were ſent laſt week to conſult the oracle at Hayes, about the meaſures proper to be taken with the North Americans, at this critical juncture, & that they had received the following oracular anſwer: 'You muſt purſue vigorous meaſures with moderation.'

Aug. 8. Juſt publiſhed, The true Sentiments of America, in a Collection of Letters ſent from the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay, to ſeveral Perſons of high Rank in this kingdom, &c. 158 pages. This is a work very proper to be read by all who would form a juſt opinion of the differences at preſent ſo unhappily ſubſiſting between Great Britain and her colonies, particularly between her and the province in the title.

We are informed, that a C—b—t C—n—l was held laſt week on the affairs of America, and that all the members were unanimous for coercive meaſures.

BOSTON, September 26

We are aſſured that the late Committee of Convention, in their Letter to the Gentleman in London to whom they have intruſted the preſentation of an humble Petition to the Sovereign for the redreſs of the intolerable and repeated grievances we are under, have taken particular care to vindicate a certain gentleman of the firſt fortune and character here, from the aſperſions contained in a letter ſaid to be written in Boſton, to a friend in London, and genteely introduced into the Boſton Chronicle of the 12th Inſtant. In this Letter the writer, after giving ſuch account as he judged proper of a riot that happened on the Tenth of June laſt in conſequence of an unuſal exertion of naval power, adds, that 'it did not end here; the mob ſeized a very fine pleaſure boat of Mr. Harriſon's, dragg'd it thro' the ſtreets, and at laſt burnt it before Mr. Hancock's door.' The inſinuation has too thin a covering not to be eaſily ſeen thro'; St. F——s Blank, the ſuppoſed writer, evidently intended that the good people of England ſhould believe that the burning of this ſame beautiful barge before Mr Hancock's door, was done under his direction and influence; whereas it is notorious here, and St. F——s well know it, that the riot was diſperſed principally by Mr. Hancock's exertion, whoſe regard to peace and good order, has been always too apparent to need the ſaying any thing to chaſtiſe the inſolent pen. Mr. Hancock has been, and is ſtill, a ſteady and warm patriot; for which reaſon St. F——s Blank owes him, as he does all others of that character, an inveterate hatred. This is one of thoſe letter writers, who have done all in their power, to deſtroy all that harmony, love and affection between Great Britain and her colonies, which a true friend to both wiſhes might forever ſubſiſt: Theſe are the letter-writers who have been perpetually teizing and fretting the mother country by their inceſſant miſrepreſentations, till they have induced her to believe the neceſſity of ſending a ſtanding army to prevent a 'general inſurrection!' But the time will come, when the nation will open her eyes, the maſk will be uncovered, and THE PERSONS KNOWN, who have for eight years paſt been attempting if poſſible, to deceive M—y itſelf. —O B——d! 'Is there not ſome choſen curſe——ſome hidden thunder in the ſtores of heaven——red with uncommon wrath, to blaſt the man ——who owes his greatneſs to his country's ruin!"——

BOSTON, October 13

Sunday morning at ten o'clock, in conſequence of orders given out on Saturday, the ſoldiers quartered here, aſſembled in the common, without their arms, where they formed with their officers in their proper ſtations. Mr. Kneeland, chaplain to the 59th regiment, read prayers, and preached a ſermon adapted to the occaſion. The ſervice was attended with great decorum.

Remain in Boſton Harbour, his Majeſty's ſhips of war as in our laſt. The 29th regiment ſtill encamped in the common; the 14th in the court-houſe and Faneuil-Hall; the detachment of the 59th and company of the train of artillery likewiſe in ſtores on Griffin's wharf. But we hear that Captain Montreſour, Barrackmaſter general for America, has taken up ſeveral dwelling houſes, warehouſes, and ſugar houſes, to which they will ſoon remove.

A Gentleman juſt come to town from New-London, informs us, that a ſloop arrived there laſt week, after a paſſage of 42 days from Cork, the maſter of which ſays, that the tranſports from England, to take on board the troops deſtined for Boſton, were arrived there, and it was expected would ſail in about a week after him for this place.

PHILADELPHIA, October 6.

Letters from Fort Pitt, of the 29th ult. ſay, "That on the 17th, Enſigns Hamlinton and Traſey, having ſome words, a challenge enſued, and notwithſtanding the endeavours of their brother officers, they could not be prevented taking their ſatisfaction, which they did the next morning; they were ſo eager that but 200 yards beyond the centinels, they exchanged piſtols and fired ſo quick, that the party ſent to bring them in priſoners, believed that but one piſtol was fired, tho' it appears each ſhot at the other, and enſign Traſey received a ball in the right breaſt, of which wound he died on the 24th in great miſery.

NEW-YORK, October 13.

Extract of a Letter from Kingſton in Jamaica, dated Sept. 3, 1768.

"The 29th ult. at 40 Minutes after 9 o'Clock, in the Morning, we had here a very conſiderable Shock of an Earthquake; it is remarkable, that Day is annually held as a Faſt in Commemoration of the great Storms that happened on it, in 1712 and 1722: It was very awful, and made Numbers beſides me look with Aſtoniſhment.

Yeſterday His Excellency General Gage, Col. Robinſon, Col. Maitland, Major Small, and ſeveral other Military Gentlemen, embarked on board a Veſſel bound to Rhode-Iſland, in their Way to Boſton.

HARTFORD, October 17.

Laſt Tueſday as two children of Mr. Thomas Root of Enfield, one of which was about 4, the other about 2 years old, were playing by their father's barn, the youngeſt of them, went in at one of the ſmall doors which was open, and the wind (as is ſuppoſed) ſhut the door, and prevented the child's getting out again, when the other let fall a cole of fire into ſome ſtraw that lay near the barn, which immediately enkindled to a flame, and communicated itſelf to the Barn, which was ſoon burnt to the ground, together with the body of the child which could not be found.

The night following, the dwelling houſe of one ——— Roſe of Bedford, by ſome accident took fire, which was not diſcovered till it was all in a blaze. ——Mr. Roſe, who was about 70 years of Age, was not able to make his eſcape out of the houſe, before it fell in upon him, by which means he unhappily periſhed in the flames.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in this Place, dated Auguſt 2d, 1768.

——"As for News, we have but little——the Diſturbance at Boſton with the Officers of the Cuſtoms was for ſome Time, miſrepreſented and made a great Noiſe; and it was generally believed that a Fleet and an Army would have been ſent to America.——But it now appears that the Miniſtry are reſolved to purſue lenitive and conciliating Meaſures relative to the Colonies——The Cauſe between the Mohegan Indians, and the Colony of Connecticut, has for ſome time been at a ſtand; but the Lords of the Treaſury, a few Days ſince, took it under their own protection, and ordered their Sollicitor to bring it to a hearing as ſoon as poſſible, at the expence of the Crown, but Mr. Johnſon, I believe, does not expect to return to America till next Spring.——

General Lyman, is ſtill here, waiting for Sir William Johnſon, to ſettle the Line with the Indians, and purchaſe the Land for a new Colony on the Ohio, of which he tells me he has a certain Promiſe of being appointed Governor."———

BRIDGWATER, (in the Maſſachuſets Bay) October, 1768

On the 25th ult. Doct. JEPSON of Hartford, and Doct. ROBERTS of Boſton, arrived here; and on the 27th the former performed the opperation of Lithotomy on one Capt. Snell of this place; he is a very corpulent perſon, in the 68th year of his age; from whom was extracted a very large Oblong Stone, which weighed 6 ounces and 1 drachm and meaſures 4 inches in length——He is now in a fair way of recovery, under the care of Doct. The APOLOGIST, No. 4.

TO be poſitive in a matter, the certainty whereof cannot abſolutely be known, argues a great degree of weakneſs, as well as raſhneſs, and imprudence. Yet ſuch is the temper of mankind, that many are ſo fond, of having every thing turn out agreeable to their own unreaſonable deſires, that they do not ſtick at affirming, in the moſt peremptory manner, that ſuch, or ſuch a thing will, or will not be; juſt as it may happen to ſuit their own turn. Some who have ſet themſelves up in oppoſition to thoſe who eſpouſe the cauſe of the liberties of this people, have even dared to affirm that the prayer of our memorial will not be granted, though they can give no better than what commonly paſſes for the old woman's reaſon for ſuch bold aſſertion. This however is offered as a reaſon againſt us by the more intelligent part of theſe opponents viz. That other counties in this colony are under ſimular circumſtances, and that an alteration in this particular inſtance, would probably therefore lay a foundation for other alterations of the ſame kind. This, ſay they was a principal circumſtance improved againſt us by ſome of the honorable council at the laſt general aſſembly; but we are rather inclined to imagine that they muſt herein labour under a groſs miſtake; becauſe we dare not ſuppoſe that any of the members of that honorable board were ſo ſenſible of their obligations to diſpence equal juſtice to the people, as to be in any meaſure influenced by ſuch a trivial circumſtance. For who cannot eaſily ſee that the whole amount of that argument, is no more than this, viz. That juſtice ſhall not be done in this particular inſtance leſt a door be thereby opened for doing juſtice in other caſes of the like nature? and if this be the caſe what is it but to ſpeak evil of dignities, for any to pretend that they were governed by ſuch a principle? and yet we are loth to ſuppoſe that theſe kind of ſuggeſtions have been thrown out by any of our opponents with a view to aſperſe the characters of thoſe worthy patriots for whom they as well as we pretend to entertain a great degree of friendſhip. But there is not ſuch an exact ſimilitude between the circumſtances of this, and ſome other counties, as ſome are ready to imagine. Whatever may have been the occaſion, the inhabitants of the town of F—f—d have not apparently increaſed on account of its being the county town: very few have removed from other parts into that town, and there made purchaſes of lands, tenements, and hereditaments at an extraordinary high rate, as in other county towns, on account of it's being the head town of this county; but almoſt every tenement in that town is ſtill remaining in the tenure and poſſeſſion of the original proprietors or their offspring. Again, it is no deed of charity any longer to continue this privilege to them, for there is not one town in this county nor perhaps in this whole colony, which ſtands in ſo little need of any excluſive advantage: the ſoil of that whole townſhip being remarkably fertile which added to their having ſo long already enjoyed this excluſive privilege to the great detriment of thouſands, in the county & being principally great farmers they are become the moſt independant people of and perhaps in this whole colony. But in caſe it were otherwiſe.—ſuppoſing that inſtead of one or two perſons, fifty or a hundred had really at a great expence ſeated themſelves down in that ſpot on account of its being a county town; yet would this be a ſufficient argument againſt the alteration prayed for? can it be thought reaſonable that thouſands, and thouſands in this county ſhould rather be greatly injured, and diſregarded, than that thoſe few be diſobliged?

Another objection againſt the alteration prayed for is that Mr. Partiſan and his aſſociates claim to hold this privilege by preſcription.—Could it be made to appear that this privilege was granted to the town of F—f—d in everlaſting excluſion of all the reſt of the towns in this county; this might be ſomething to their purpoſe. In that caſe it might have been juſtly ſaid that Woodbury was wrongfully taken off from them and they might have diſputed the right of the general aſſembly to take from them ſo valuable a part of their property.—But there was never any grant in the caſe of F—f—d [illegible] the head or county town by a [illegible], and becauſe at that time it was thought to be moſt convenient for the people of the whole county, but when this becomes inconvenient the ſame reaſon which then fix'd it down at F—f—d, will now fix it in a more convenient part of the county; and the legiſlature of this colony have equal right to repeal, and to alter, as to make, and enact laws: Neither ought any ſtatute to be ſuffered to remain in force any longer than it is found to be for the general good of the people, for whoſe benefit the ſame was made. But to pretend to claim this privilege by preſcription is the groſſeſt abſurdity. Have they been in the actual poſſeſſion of this privilege beyond the memory of man? have they ſo long held the ſame againſt the reſt of the inhabitants of this county? or have they not rather held this with and for the benefit of the whole county? if ſo it can be to no purpoſe for them to talk of preſcription.———And in ſhort the moſt judicious of them are ſo ſenſible that all theſe things cannot avail them, that they have appeared to be wholly at a loſs in what manner to oppoſe us. Like men greatly intimidated one while they ſeemed to have got into a perfect dilemma: at length however, being willing to catch at any thing which had the leaſt appearance of an expedient; with great vigour and ſeeming courage they undertook to erect a building under the appellation of a goal near the place where,———which they have now ſo near compleated that they begin to triumph over the whole country as having thereby moſt aſſuredly gained their point; but this matter it is to be hoped will appear in it's proper light when the public ſhall hear again from their humble ſervant

BELANDER.

Extract from Lamentations, Chap. xxiv. in the New London Gazette, Sept. 9, 1768. No. 252.

WO unto the cities of the Eaſt, whoſe inhabitants are lead aſtray after the deluſive appearances of falſe and ſelf deſigning patriots: who amongſt other cities, are admoniſhing the Wind—ham—tes, and cauſing them to reject as traitors, thoſe noble ſons of freedom, who from principles of true patriotiſm, and at riſque of all, have boldly defended the cauſe of liberty and their country; and to promote [illegible] a former accuſation, has evinced his more ardent love of his own honor and intereſt, than his country, by his endeavours to promote the former, at the expence of the liberties of the latter. How are ye turned aſide? why are ye thus [illegible]? where is your former ſagacity? your quickneſs of apprehenſion in the cauſe of liberty, and the weighty affairs of the ſtate, that you ſhould be thus deluded? awake from your deluſion! look well to your ways! for there is the utmoſt danger when the loudeſt pretenſions are made in the cauſe of liberty! and at the ſame time, the ſilent actions beſpeak the heart more plainly to aim at the promotion of ſelf, tho' at the ruin of his country and others.

I am, with great eſteem, a friend to all ſincere [illegible].

The APOLOGIST. No. 5.

Qui mordere nequit, dentes exponere non decet.

NOne are more apt to deſcend to ungenerous artifices, none more ready to catch at every ſeeming advantage, and imaginary expedient, than thoſe who are aiming to ſupport a bad cauſe. And altho' by all their ſtratagems, they may not be able to prevent the execution of juſtice, nor greatly to injure their antagoniſts; yet they ſeldom fail to ſhew their teeth. Nay it frequently ſo happens that when they make the greateſt buſtle, they do themſelves the leaſt ſervice; and their loweſt artifices, many times redound to the greateſt benefit of that ſide which they mean to oppoſe. An over anxious concern to ſupport a cauſe, is rather a ground of ſuſpicion that the ſame is ill founded: and to make uſe of every flimſy objection, argues a want of ſuch as are more ſolid and ſubſtantial.

They who have ſet themſelves up in oppoſition to the main body of the people of this county; they who appear to be againſt the alteration which the people are ſo earneſtly ſeeking after; not being able to produce any forceable argument againſt the ſame, catch at every phantom, graſp at every ſhadow of an objection, that has the leaſt appearance of being in any meaſure likely to be improved in their favour. Thus have they with great zeal embraced that viſionary, that airy, and mere imaginary expedient of erecting a ſuperb, magnificent ſtructure, near the place where———in F—f—d, under the appellation of a County Goal. But the manner, and circumſtances of this tranſaction, is what ſeems now to want an apology.

Every county in this colony, being obliged by law to keep and maintain a ſufficient goal. That of this county, together with our Court Houſe, being deſtroyed by a ſad cataſtrophe as heretofore mentioned; the civil authority, on that occaſion, in general meeting aſſembled at F—ſ—d, by a very ſmall majority, voted that a tax of one halfpenny on the pound, ſhould be levied on the inhabitants of this county, which (as was ſuppoſed) would raiſe the ſum of about five hundred pounds, to be applied to the building of a goal, to anſwer the then ſeeming exigency. This, it is to be preſumed, was voted, not becauſe the major part of the authority there preſent, were againſt the alteration prayed for, but in obedience to the law, and with a view to the indemnity of ſaid county; and that preparations might be making for the erecting a goal, againſt ſuch time as the place where the ſame ſhould be erected, ſhould by the G——r——l A——m——ly of this colony be prefixed, and determined. And inaſmuch as the then next G——r——l A——m——ly was near at hand, they imagined that there was no occaſion of any further tranſactions reſpecting the matter, until the will and pleaſure of ſaid A——m——ly ſhould be known in the premiſes; and accordingly diſperſed without doing any thing more about the matter. Neither have the ſaid authority, whoſe only prerogative it is by law, ever yet tho't it expedient to give, neither have they ever yet given out any orders or directions for building a goal in this county, nor appointed any committee for that purpoſe. Nevertheleſs, the honorable county court held at F--ſ--d, ſoon after the meeting of ſaid authority as aforeſaid, viz. on the third Tueſday of April laſt, inadvertently, as it is to be preſumed, and not with deſign to exceed the limits of their juriſdiction, undertook to appoint not only collectors for the purpoſe of gathering ſaid tax, but a committee to take care of, manage and carry on the building of a goal, which ſaid committee without any other appointment, and without any other authority, as well as without any particular inſtructions, immediately projected a large capacious edifice, agreable to their own plan, and proceeded to erect the ſame at ſaid F--f--d, near the place where, and have ſince almoſt finiſhed and compleated the ſame: notwithſtanding eight, out of ten towns in this county, early remonſtrated againſt this kind of proceedure.

This however ſeems to be the dernier reſort of our opponents. Mr. Partiſan, and his aſſociates flatter themſelves, that this will be a ſufficient barrier againſt the alteration prayed for. But ought not this unwarrantable, this irregular tranſaction much rather to be improved as an argument againſt them? ought not this county now to be conſidered, as being, as really deſtitute of a goal, as if this building had never been erected? we preſume to ſay that ſaid committee have not rightfully applied any of the public money of this county to the ſaid building, neither do we know that they have ventured to apply any of our monies in that way: neither do we pretend to lay any claim to the ſaid building. This county therefore being now deſtitute of a Court Houſe and Goal, why ought not the common good, and conveniency of the ſame to be conſulted in regard to the place where thoſe buildings ſhall be erected? ſome of the moſt ſenſible of our opponents themſelves own, that in caſe a new county was now to be erected, to be compoſed of the ſame townſhips which are now included in this, N-w-k would undoubtedly be the moſt proper place for the county town. But if N--w--k would then be the moſt convenient part of the county for that purpoſe, it muſt be ſo now; for there is no room for a diſtinction between what it would then be, and what it now in fact is. Nay if it be granted that ſaid building belongs to the county, yet inaſmuch as the major part choſe to have the ſame devoted to ſome other uſe than that of a goal, how could this be ſuppoſed to alter the caſe? ſurely then, this mighty bulwark, this airy caſtle, tho' it may have coſt more than a thouſand pounds, cannot be improved as an invincible argument againſt us; but reaſon and righteouſneſs will undoubtedly take place in ſpite of Babel. And that juſtice may be done in this caſe, and peace and tranquility again be reſtored to this county; is the hearty deſire of their, and the publick's humble ſervant

BELANDER.

To Mr. APOLOGIST,

SIR,

"HOW much ſoever, as an individual; or as an inhabitant of the prime ſociety in F—f—d, I may be thereby affected; yet I muſt acknowledge, that in the cauſe wherein you have lately embarked, you have done real juſtice, and that you have undoubtedly ſet the matter of that intereſting ſubject in it's proper light. Our people in general are not ſo ſanguine as may be imagined:—but few appear to be warmly engaged in in the oppoſition, many are rather indifferent about the matter, and ſome even of this pariſh might be nam'd who really appear to be in favour of the removal of our courts to N—w—k. We are not all ſo extremely ſelfiſh as to deſire to incommode the whole county in order to ſerve ourſelves. But believe me ſir, you have increaſed the reſentments of our exaſperated ſons of oppoſition, (who ſeem to be ſenſibly touch'd with the force of what you have already offered upon the ſubject) to that degree, that they have thereupon taken occaſion to handle your character in a manner, which to me appears very unbecoming.

I had the mortification to be preſent, the other day, at head quarters, where a number of them who ſometimes reſort thither to hear the news, converſe with politics, and to regulate matters of ſtate, were convened. The Apologiſt was their main ſubject. Belander was not only vilified, and reproached; but even threatned in a high degree; which was ſo pleaſing to mother Grumpus, who is not only maſter of the houſe, in the preſence of her huſband; but alſo chief commandant of that party of obſervation; that ſhe preſented them with a generous bowl on the ſame account; by the ſtrength of which ſtimulous, they renewed the attack with redoubled vigour. But what I more particularly noticed, was their confidence in the ſtability of the honorable council. I told 'em however that in caſe the arguments in favour of the removal ſhould appear in a much more ſtriking light than what they had done before, they would undoubtedly be allowed their proper weight, and that theſe worthy patriots were endowed with too much honor not to retract, in caſe they ſhould find themſelves to have been in an error. I find alſo that theſe violent oppoſers have lately concerted a new plan in order to defeat you, and to fix the courts at F—f—d; which is by encouraging the inhabitants of R—d—g to pray the ſame removed to that town: when at the ſame time they know, that there is not the leaſt proſpect of ſuch removal, neither would they themſelves be in any meaſure ſatisfied therewith; but had much rather the removal ſhould be to N—w—k. They alſo make great dependance upon an objection which they ſay you have not as yet made any remarks upon, viz. that ſuch removal would affect the whole colony in regard to diſtance. I only add that I am heartily ſorry for the ill treatment you have received from any of our people; but make no doubt, you will bear, with wonted patience, firmneſs, and ſteadineſs of temper the injurious reflections of theſe invidious calumniators and ſtill retain a cordial friendſhip towards your very humble ſervant Z.

The APOLOGIST, No. 6.

YES, the Apologiſt (tho' it be of but little conſequence) will ever retain his wonted friendſhip, not only to his much reſpected friend Z; but towards mankind in general, & eſpecially towards his fellow ſubjects. Even his moſt ſanguine opponents, inſtead of abuſive treatment in return may ſtill ſhare his friendſhip; they may ſtill depend upon his good wiſhes, ſo far at leaſt, as that they, as well as he, may live to become better men, and better chriſtians. He never meant to tantalize, nor affront; but with a view to the public good of this county, with all plainneſs and ſimplicity to endeavour to convince them of the abſurdity of their conduct. And are they become ſtill more his enemies, becauſe he has told them the truth?—they who can be offended without a cauſe, may as well be pleaſed without amends. Has any particular perſon taken any thing in the Apologiſt to be particularly pointed at him? it muſt be rather owing to his having therein found a garment that happens to fit him, than to it's having been purpoſely deſigned for him in the making. Belander hath only made a random ſhot and if any are hit, it is to be hoped, it is only thoſe who have been moſt deſerving. But to return to the point in hand. If the removal of our courts to N—w—k would affect the colony as ſuch immediately, there is indeed ſome degree of force in that objection: but the fact cannot be admitted. Such removal can never be ſuppoſed to affect the colony as ſuch. It would indeed occaſion an additional travel of twelve miles to thoſe who may be obliged to attend our courts from the eaſtward of S—tf—d ferry; but who are thoſe? the colony? or individuals? they are a few individuals only who can be ſuppoſed to be thus affected, for it cannot rationally be ſuppoſed that ſo much as one to a thouſand of the inhabitants of this colony who belong to the eaſtward of ſaid ferry, will ever have occaſion to attend our courts. But admitting their number to equal that of any one town within this county who expect to be benefitted by ſuch removal, (which is the moſt that can be admitted) yet the odds in favour of ſuch removal would ſtill be as 7 to 4, in point of diſtance, and as 8 to 3 in point of choice. By a removal of the ſtate houſe at H—tf—d, or that at N—h—n, the colony would be immediately affected inaſmuch as thoſe are the ſeats of the g——n——l a——m——ly: but the ſame cannot be ſaid with any degree of propriety in regard to any other county in this colony. What reaſon therefore can poſſibly be aſſigned againſt the removal of our courts to N———k? F——f—l—d cannot produce any charter for this privilege; they have not poſſeſſed the ſame in excluſion of the reſt of the towns in this county for time immemorial, no injuſtice can accrue to them on account of ſuch removal. If other counties are in as bad a ſituation (the loſs of their public buildings excepted) which might without prejudice to the colony be altered for the better, and yet are ſuffered to remain unaltered; that is no argument againſt an alteration in this, if, in like manner, as tho' a few individuals in a pariſh deſtitute of a houſe for public worſhip, ſhould, with a view to their own private benefit, erect a houſe for that purpoſe in ſome remote corner of the pariſh, previous to any legal determination of the ſpot where the ſame ſhould have been erected, and, when nothing more than a vote of ſuch pariſh had been obtained for levying a tax for the purpoſe of building a houſe for public worſhip; if in like manner a few individuals in F—f—d have erected a building where it beſt ſuited them, which they are pleaſed to denominate a goal, yet conſidering the manner and circumſtances of this building, ought it not to be viewed as a ſtanding monument of their over anxious concern to ſecure this privilege to themſelves, to the detriment of thouſands who have as good a natural right thereto as they?———upon the whole therefore, if Mr. Partiſan and his aſſociates will only make themſelves eaſy; if they will refrain from taking any underhanded methods to prevent equal juſtice to the inhabitants of this county in regard to the place of holding our courts, ſo far at leaſt as the nature of the thing will admit, they ſhall hear no more upon this ſubject from their humble ſervant

BELANDER.

To the FREEMEN of the Colony of Connecticut.

GENTLEMEN,

IN this paper No. 194 I preſumed to offer you a ſhort addreſs, repreſenting the eminent danger theſe churches are in, from repeated attempts made by ſome to obtain a repeal of thoſe wholeſome laws providing for the ſupport of an orthodox learned miniſtry, and a regular orderly worſhip; and alſo repreſenting the importance of our chooſing men of the beſt character to repreſent us at the general aſſembly now ſitting. I had no apology to make, for the freedom I uſed with you, excepting my very advanced age, my relation to you as your brother, and a fellow member of this free corporation, and the vaſt importance of the caſe, about which I, and many good people, much better than myſelf, were juſtly alarmed. And I hope the ſame will be a ſufficient excuſe for my once more crawling out of my obſcurity, to congratulate you on the happy choice you made of worthy gentlemen to repreſent us in our honourable general aſſembly; (happy to my certain knowledge in many inſtances) and the hopeful proſpect we have, that all attempts made for a repeal, will meet with a deſerved contempt and abhorrence. Tho' I am very old, yet I am not ſo childiſh, as to imagine, that my feeble, but honeſt addreſs, influenced in ſo wiſe a choice. However I do rejoice in thinking that there is yet ſo much virtue left, among the body of the people, as that they will not tamely ſubmit to a demolition of thoſe churches, and to ſee religion and ſabbath day turned out of doors. And if there is ſo much concern for the religion of our fathers, among the body of the people, may we not reſt aſſured, that a collection of the beſt of our people, convened in the ſupreme court of the colony, will ſooner burn at the ſtake, than grant petitions that ſtrike at the very root, & tend to ſap the very foundation of religion, as a repeal inevitably would? a due concern indeed till we hear the event may be well: but let us not be over anxious, for all poſſible obligations are upon our good deputies to frown upon ſuch petitions rather than to grant them———and I doubt not, in their wiſdom to diſcover, nor yet in their integrity to attend to thoſe obligations——are they diſpoſed to pleaſe, by acting agreable to the minds of their conſtituents, ſo far as conſiſts with right? why then they will be far from granting a repeal. For could I ſuppoſe the body of this people, to be willing at this day, to ſee our faithful miniſters unable to attend upon the duties of their office, thro' ſordid poverty, and the churches to become the nurſes of ignorance enthuſiaſm and barbarity; this would infer a greater declenſion and backſliding, than has happened thro' my obſervation for more than eighty years paſt.

Are they concerned for the good of the ſtate, to ſee the people of this colony flouriſh as a civil ſociety? why then they will never grant a repeal, nor favour any thing that tends that way. For wherein conſiſts the proſperity of a ſtate? why not only in numbers, but in the frugality, health, riches, induſtry, honeſty, and amity among the individuals, that conſtitute the community. Theſe things, if any thing in the world, tend to make a people flouriſh. And is there any thing better calculated to its end, than religion is to ſubſerve all thoſe purpoſes?

Our good rulers therefore, eſpecially our legiſlators, will never ſay in words, nor by their reſolves, it is none of our buſineſs what becomes of religion; but will rather ſay, that ſince all contrivances of human authority can't in many caſes detect, much leſs puniſh, and in that way prevent the violations of moral obligations, the beſt ſecurity we have of a regard to them, (with which the good of the ſtate is ſo nearly connected) is a principle of reverence to God, deep laid in the heart, which will not fail to manifeſt itſelf in the exerciſe of all ſocial virtues in outward life. And the ſupport of goſpel order in theſe churches in human view, and with a divine bleſſing, is the thing to beget and nouriſh religious ſentiments; and therefore far be it from us, that we ſhould lift theſe hands to ſtrike up that, which under God, is ſo great a prop in the ſtate. Neither conſcience or good policy would ſuffer us to do it; now then let us, brethren, confide in God, and in our political fathers, as his inſtruments. I doubt not our honourable aſſembly will be very generally agreed, in rejecting with abhorrence, all memorials for a repeal; for which they will deſerve to be thanked by all good people, and will be highly revered by the OLD FARMER.

A SUPPLEMENT to Lamentations, Chap 92, in the New-London Gazette, Sept. 9th, 1768, No. 252.

WO unto the cities of the eaſt, whoſe rulers are gone aſtray, after (worſe) than the vanities of the Gentiles (the promoters of their own honor and intereſt) for how do I hear your councillors, your judges, your aſſembly men and your merchants, declaring it moſt politic, to have a ſuperior court independent of councillors; and at the ſame time with boots and ſpurs made ready, to carry the intelligence, that the appointment of a chief is likely to be made of one without:—and the ſignal is given——the bells are rung backwards——the ſtate is in danger——the philiſtine muſt be brought home and ſlain. And how do I hear another proclaiming, that this colony never ſtruck ſuch a fatal blow to their privileges, as the making ſuch choice; not conſidering how cautiouſly he tendered the ſame, when he ſo earneſtly ſolicited the office of diſtributor for you. And how is a third, juſt before proxy indefatigable in his endeavours, by every artifice in his power, to win upon the minds of the populous? But O unhappy! ill ſucceſs clouds all with diſappointment! And how do I hear them all together, addreſſing you in the language of inſpiration, juſt before proxy, to beware of thoſe (as traitors) whom they ſuſpect to ſtand in their way, or will be likely to deſern (thro' their pretended zeal, flaming in the cauſe of liberty and their country) their laudable deſigns; their own ſilver ſhines, and their great (!) Goddeſs Diana. O! that this people would be wiſe, and conſider that the wolfe never makes his appearance but in ſheep's cloathing; and that ſelfiſh deſigns are always cloaked under the moſt pompous pretenſions for the cauſe of liberty and the country: yet though grand in their appearances, they dwindle into tapers, upon the failing of their ſchemes. And without correſponding actions they are no more to be regarded, than the crackling of thorns under a pot.

Friday laſt in the Afternoon arrived here Capt. Tyler, in ſix Weeks and four days from Briſtol; and Yeſterday Capt. Jenkins from London, in 59 Days; by whom we have the following Advices to 27th of Aug Viz.

LONDON, Auguſt 13.

A Correſpondent, on whoſe veracity we can depend has ſent us the following early & authentic intelligence, which A——a received on ſunday, by an expreſs from Boſton.

"The aſſembly have unanimouſly refuſed to ſubmit to any tax or impoſition whatever from Great Britain, and ſent their reſolution to the governor, in anſwer to his meſſage, requiring ſubmiſſion to the acts of parliament, & to eraſe out of their journals whatever impeached or rejected the authority of the B——ſh legiſlature. Upon this the governor diſſolved the aſſembly purſuant to his inſtructions; however, before he could effect this, they ſent their reſolution to the other colonies."

It is ſaid, advice has been received of ſome late diſturbances ſimilar to thoſe of Boſton, have broke out in Virginia.

On Saturday a ſchooner arrived at Portſmouth with a packet from North America; the officer immediately ſet out for London expreſs. A report prevails, that the Americans had hung out a flag of defiance, that they are up, and have uſed the 23d regiment very roughly: but we cannot entirely depend upon this report.

Yeſterday there was a privy council, at which many great officers of ſtate aſſiſted, ſaid to be on account of affairs in the North-American colonies.

A clergyman near London, in his ſermon on Sunday laſt, aſſerted, that no perſon could be a friend to Religion, who was an enemy to the preſent Adminiſtration.

Aug. 27. Tueſday the right hon. Lord Botetourt accompanied by a numerous retinue ſet ſail from Spithead on his Excellency's voyage to Virginia, in order to take poſſeſſion of his new government.

NEW-YORK, October 20.

On Monday arrived the Harriot Packet, Capt. Oake, who left Falmouth the 26th of Auguſt, with him came Paſſengers, John Scott, Eſq; colonel of his Majeſty's 26th Regiment of Foot, and Member of Parliament for the county of Fife, in North Britain; alſo the Hon, Lieut. James Southerland, (Son of the Right Hon. the Lord Duffes, and Lieut. in the ſaid Regiment.

BOSTON, October 20.

Laſt Saturday towards Evening came to Town from New York His Excellency General GAGE, Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Forces in North-America, accompanied by the Colonels Robertſon and Maitland Majors Small and Sheriff and Captains Kemble, Mathuſire and Gamble. The General was received by the Troops under Arms in the Common, and on his Entrance was ſaluted with 17 Guns by the Train.

It has been reported that the Head Quarters for the Army is to be in this Town,

The Troops remain as per our laſt.

Tueſday laſt ſailed from hence, his Majeſty's Ship Launceſton of 40 Guns, the Martin Sloop, of 14 Guns, and the St. Lawrence armed Schooner for Halifax.

Remains in this Harbour. His Majeſty's Ships Mermaid, Romney, Glaſgow, Beaver, Bonetta, Senegal, and Hope Schooner.

We hear from Hingham, a Town ſituate on the Sea Shore to the Southward, and whoſe Trade is conſiderable with this Metropolis, that the Traders from thence have come into Reſolutions to purchaſe no Bohea Tea, and that the Inhabitants thereof are alſo determined not to make Uſe of any in their families.

A Correſpondent, on whoſe veracity we can depend has ſent us the following early & authentic intelligence, which A——a received on ſunday, by an expreſs from Boſton.

"The aſſembly have unanimouſly refuſed to ſubmit to any tax or impoſition whatever from Great Britain, and ſent their reſolution to the governor, in anſwer to his meſſage, requiring ſubmiſſion to the acts of parliament, & to eraſe out of their journals whatever impeached or rejected the authority of the B——ſh legiſlature. Upon this the governor diſſolved the aſſembly purſuant to his inſtructions; however before he could effect this, they ſent their reſolution to the other colonies."

It is ſaid, advice has been received of ſome late diſturbances ſimilar to thoſe of Boſton, have broke out in Virginia.

On Saturday a ſchooner arrived at Portſmouth with a packet from North America; the officer immediately ſet out for London expreſs. A report prevails, that the Americans had hung out a flag of defiance, that they are up, and have uſed the 23d regiment very roughly: but we cannot entirely depend upon this report.

Yeſterday there was a privy council, at which many great officers of ſtate aſſiſted, ſaid to be on account of affairs in the North-American colonies.

A clergyman near London, in his ſermon on Sunday laſt, aſſerted, that no perſon could be a friend to Religion, who was an enemy to the preſent Adminiſtration.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

COMPLAINANT, [No. XXI]

A nymph, and a ſwain to Apollo once pray'd,
The ſwain had been jilted, the nymph been betray'd :
Their intent was to try if his oracle knew E'er a nymph that was chaſte, or a ſwain that was true.
Apollo was mute, and had like to have been poſ'd,
But ſagely at length, he this ſecret diſcloſ'd ;
*He alone won't betray, in whom none will confide ;
And the nymph may be chaſte that has never been tried.*

NO man living, let his preſent deſigns, principles, and conduct be what they will, can abſolutely determine what his behaviour will be under ſome future change of circumſtances. We may be conſcious of our own integrity, and yet it would be the higheſt preſumption to bid defiance to temptations —— The beſt chriſtian upon earth has no ſufficient warrant to engage or promiſe, an heroic triumphant behaviour in his conflict with death——men may know their own hearts now, but they know not what they will be [illegible] able now, but bold is the man that engages unſhaken fortitude and conſtancy, when hitherto untried ſtorms and hurricanes beat upon him———I hate to hear perſons vaunt themſelves of their own fortitude and patience, and condemn others for want of ſuch graces, when they themſelves never were call'd to trial——I never determine that a man will prove an excellent ſoldier, merely becauſe he ſets by his own fire ſide and condemns thoſe that are in actual ſervice for cowardice——— let me ſee that man in the field, and I ſhall be able to form a better judgment of him—— Hazael reſented the very ſuſpicion of its being poſſible that he ſhould be guilty of ſuch barbarous things as the prophet told him of ; Is thy ſervant a dog, ſays he, that he ſhould be guilty of ſo great evil ?—but as great an evil as he then thought it, he was dog enough to do it afterwards——that thro' the grace of Chriſt ſtrengthening us, we can do all things I deny not ; but then this grace is ſovereign, and it is uſually given to the humble, while thoſe that exalt themſelves are abaſed——— and the ſturdieſt, moſt ſelf ſufficient profeſſor in the country, cannot abſolutely determine that he (without this efficacious grace) ſhould not fall as Judas did, was he tried in the like manner, the devil in his heart, and thirty pieces of ſilver before his eyes——the conſtitutions of mankind are ſo different, their foibles ſo very various, that 'tis impoſſible for us to determine, concerning any unjuſtifiable conduct in others, the preciſe degree of temptation by which they were prompted or actuated———never will the Complainant draw his pen in the defence of vice ; but even vice itſelf, or perſons chargeable with ſome particular acts of it, may meet with treatment from men, unmerciful and cenſorious — what does an American prude know of the difficulties ſhe would have to encounter, if ſhe had to contend with the craft of experienced, hard-hearted bawds ; and the power and wealth of a libertine nobleman ——— her virtue expoſed by his luſt, and her life for the ſecurity of his honor ; a priſoner——ſurrounded by mercenary dupes——no one to converſe with, but thoſe engaged for her deſtruction ———how does ſuch a prude know that ſhe ſhould in any reſpects have acted more wiſely than miſs WOONCOCK did, in the affair of my L— BALTIMORE ?——— "O ! ſays madam Prim, I never would have lain in bed with him all night at Epſom"—— but, pray madam, what would you have done ? ——if the houſe had been unlocked and unguarded, you would have been a ſtranger to the avenues from it——and if you had known them, you would have been frozen to death to have gone out for protection naked——— to have ſat up in the bed-chamber would have been but little better ——It is eaſier to ſet down, and determine the expediency of conduct under particular circumſtances, at leiſure, after unforeſeen events have taken place ; than it is in that hurry of paſſion, that crowd of undigeſted thoughts, which ariſe in the preſent emergency———'tis not an uncommon thing to find ſo great a difference in the conſtitutional circumſtances of mankind as this ——one, having a natural diſlike (or at leaſt, no prevailing [illegible] ſpirituous liquors, keeps to thoſe that are cooling and aqueous ——another, partly from a different temperature in animal nature, partly from habits imprudently contracted, and partly for preſent relief under bodily diſorders, makes ſo free with ſpirits, as to bring damage upon his moſt valuable intereſts——now, if it be true, that the firſt had as high a reliſh from his water, or ſmall beer, as the other had from his wine, or brandy, and a prohibition in the former caſe had been as difficultly obeyed, as in the latter ; that is if it would have been as hard for the one to have been confined to wine, as the other to water——then where is the virtue on either ſide ?——they both follow inclination ——I never can act in a charitable manner, if I cenſoriouſly condemn a man as having done, what I never would have done under the like circumſtances, till I am perfectly acquainted with thoſe circumſtances——till I am able to determine the force and degree of propenſity, conſidered in every view———If a butcher be, by the laws of England, an improper perſon to decide in caſes that touch human blood, we may conceive ſurely of the impropriety of thoſe that are impotent, or ſine virilitate to determine the degree of temptation in matters relating to unchaſtity ———let not the hearty robuſt man cenſure the cries of the weak and pained, becauſe perhaps if he felt the ſame he would himſelf make as much, if not more ado———a ſermon upon patience and reſignation, never comes with ſo good a grace from parſons who have always been proſperous, eſpecially if it abound in reproof, as if it proceeded from the mouth of one, in whoſe life providence has given opportunity and occaſion to exemplify the graces he recommends———we are all in a ſtate of trial, and ought not to be " high minded, but fear " ——the ſoldier in garriſon may act his part well, but he muſt be very preſumptuous in determining that he ſhould act it as well if a party of the forlorn hope.——

To the PRINTERS of the PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE.

Looking over the Gentleman's Magazine for June laſt, I found the incloſed piece, which I do not remember to have ſeen printed before ; the maſterly manner in which it is wrote, and the importance of the ſubject, make an apology for requeſting its publication in your impartial paper, unneceſſary.— Why the piece publiſhed in the Chronicle, No. 87, on the ſame ſubject, and taken from the ſame Magazine, ſhould find a place in that paper and this be paſſed over, thoſe who are acquainted with the party diſputes amongſt us, would find it hard to determine. W.

Mr. URBAN,

THE oppoſition of the colonies to the new method of taxation, will probably bring the ſubject of virtual Repreſentation again before the public. As I have never yet ſeen this kind of repreſentation preciſely ſtated, give me leave to communicate to the public, thro' the channel of your Magazine, my idea of it, in which you will find no eſſential difference between virtual and actual repreſentation in England ; but a very ſtriking diſtinction between theſe, and no repreſentation at all of America.

My notion of Virtual Repreſentation is this ;

A numerous ſociety being willing to unite themſelves under the ſame form of government, and to be ſubject to the ſame laws conſent, for convenience ſake, that the whole, in a national aſſembly, ſhall be repreſented by a part ; and, to avoid confuſion in chooſing that part, they farther conſent that certain claſſes among them ſhall have the privilege of electing the members that are to compoſe it ; but at the ſame time they ſtipulate, that as well thoſe who repreſent, as thoſe who are repreſented ; and thoſe alſo who have not the privilege of electing in common with thoſe who have ; all ſhall ſhare alike in the advantages reſulting from the deliberations of the national aſſembly ; and all ſhall contribute alike, in proportion to their reſpective ſituations and circumſtances, to the neceſſary expences of government.

Thus, Mr Urban, you ſee, that, according to this ſyſtem, thoſe who repreſent, and thoſe who are repreſented, and thoſe who elect, and thoſe who do not elect the repreſentatives, are all entitled to the ſame benefits, and are ſubject alike to the ſame taxations, every other circumſtance but that of the privilege of election being ſimilar. And hence it follows that virtual repreſentation in Great Britain, is in effect the ſame as actual repreſentation ; the laws enacted for the government of the whole, affecting the whole equally, without the leaſt diſtinction——To illuſtrate this more clearly ;

Birmingham is ſaid not to be actually repreſented, becauſe, tho' a populous place, and a great manufacturing town, it ſends no members to parliament ; yet the inhabitants of Birmingham enjoy in every reſpect the ſame freedom, and the ſame national advantages, that the inhabitants of the towns do that are repreſented. No law was ever made that affected the property of the people of Birmingham, but what affected the property of the WHITEHALL, Auguſt 13.

THE King has been pleaſed to appoint the Right Hon. Norbone Baron de Botetourt, to be his Majeſty's Lieut. and Governor General of his Majeſty's Colony and Dominion of Virginia in America.

William Edington, Gent. to be Commiſſary of the Muſters and Judge-Advocate at Annapolis-Royal in Nova-Scotia, vice ——— Sheriff, deceaſed.

Captain William Sheriff to be Deputy Quarter-Maſter General to the Forces ſerving in North-America.

LONDON, Aug. 17.

His Majeſty having, from his Royal attention to the preſent ſtate of his Colony of Virginia, tho't fit that the Government of it ſhould no longer be adminiſtred by a ſubſtitute. His Majeſty's intenſions were ſignified in the moſt gracious manner to Sir J. Amherſt expreſſing the ſtrongeſt wiſhes that he would take the command upon him, and the fulleſt confidence in his ſervices, accompanied at the ſame time with aſſurances that if it was not agreeable to him upon this occaſion to repair to his government, his Majeſty would conſider of a proper method of rewarding his eminent and faithful ſervices by ſome eſtabliſhment of equal emolument: that Sir Jeffery Amherſt having thereupon declined going over to America, his Majeſty has tho't fit to appoint Lord Botetourt Governor of Virginia. Such is, as we are informed, the true ſtate of the caſe, in reſpect to the government of Virginia.

As to the malevolent inſinuations in reſpect to the Noble Lord whom his Majeſty has honoured with the appointment to the government of Virginia, it would be want of reſpect to the beſt of men to ſay more than that his character and reputation are two well eſtabliſhed to be prejudiced by ſuch illiberal, indecent, and unwarrantable abuſe; the publication of which upon every occaſion, and the application of it to the moſt reſpectable characters according as it may anſwer the wicked purpoſe of inflaming the minds of the people, and creating public diſcontent, has well nigh diſtroyed all confidence, and is become too deſervedly a ſubject of national reproach.

Lately died at Corke, Henry Boyle Graves, Eſq; Captain in the 58th Regiment, and a good officer.

Aug. 16. We hear that ſeveral C———t ladies, celebrated for their beauty and devotion to the Cyperion Goddeſs, are ſtrenuouſly contending for the honour of making conqueſt of a great perſonage lately arrived here, for which purpoſe the whole artillery of female art is uſed. The conteſt chiefly lies between two, who miſs no opportunity of ſhooting Cupid's arrows from their ſparkling lambent eyes, at his ———, but hitherto without any apparent effect: however there are ſo many ſnares and ambuſhes laid for him, that it's fear'd he can hardly avoid being caught in ſome of them.

A certain perſon of diſtinction (a man of pleaſure) being lately aſked by a friend his opinion of the conſtitution of G—— B———, replied, "The conſtitution of E——d, and the conſtitution of your humble ſervant, are alike, in a damn'd rotten condition, tho' I muſt own I have the advantage, for I have the aſſiſtance of an able ſurgeon; but, our poor country is committed to a parcel of Quacks!"

We are aſſured that his Daniſh Majeſty was met by the K. of Pruſſia at the Hague, where they continued ſeveral days, having frequent conferences with the ſtates.

We hear that the King of Denmark, during his ſtay in England, intends to viſit all the ſea ports in this kingdom.

We are told that his Daniſh majeſty will continue in England till the 10th of Sept. and no longer.

Yeſterday the King of Denmark went in a private manner and viewed St. Paul's church, but proceeded no ferther into the city.

We hear that Sir Jeffery Amherſt has reſigned the command of his regiment.

The Rt. Hon. Lord Botetourt is the only Peer of this realm that is now, or perhaps ever has been, a governor in North America.

That M'Clouglan is ſent out of the way, and is to be allowed an annuity for life.

The King of Denmark was invited at Dover to ſee the Caſtle; and at Chatham to ſee the dockyards, &c. but at both places politely excuſed himſelf, ſaying, he would ſee nothing in England till he had ſeen his Majeſty.

It was this morning reported, that the laſt diſpatches to Admiral Paliſer contained inſtructions to ſpare as many ſhips of his ſquadron on the Newfoundland ſtation as he poſſibly could, to join the naval commander at Boſton; and if neceſſary to repair thither himſelf, leaving the command to the next officer.

We hear from Paris, that an Italian chemiſt had lately been arreſted and ſent to priſon, accuſed of having invented and ſold a certain dangerous powder, which being incloſed in a blank letter, would as effectually poiſon the party who opened it, as if they had ſwallowed arſenick.

We hear that orders are given for all the military officers, whoſe regiments are ſtationed in N. America, to embark forthwith to join their reſpective corps.

The King of Denmark ſpeaks Engliſh fluently, and is fond of converſing in the language.

The 13th Regiment of Foot, commanded by Gen. Murray, embarked at Dover for Ireland, to relieve the 64th and 65th Regiments of Foot there, ordered for Boſton, and to embark directly on board the ſame Ships for that Place.

We hear orders are ſent to Portſmouth, to take on borad the Men of War there, and upon ſailing, ſeveral hundred Seamen beyond their Compliment, for the Uſe of the Navy in North America.

Aug. 23. The lateſt accounts which came from Boſton are of the 12th of July, and ſay that all was quiet there.

It is reported a R---- P---- has declared, that L--d B--- is much on the decline.

It is ſaid orders will ſoon be given to prevent the exportation of either naval or military ſtores gunpowder, &c. to any part of North America.

The following we are told is the Toaſt now drank at Boſton, and in all Engliſh ſettlements in America: "May Counſellors who have the Courage to ſpeak in public the Sentiments they profeſs in private, be ever reſpected by the Multitude of their Brethren.

BOSTON, October 24.

LAST Wedneſday forenoon it was ſaid the high Sheriff of the county of Suffolk had orders to clear the Province Manufactory-Houſe in the town of Boſton, for a number of years ſuperintended by Mr. John Brown in behalf of a certain company, and lately on his own account. Mr. Brown being informed the order was to be put in execution that day, detained ſome perſons to ſerve as evidences of the tranſactions. About two o'clock the Sheriff came, attended by the Lieut. Governor, and approaching the Hall window, out of which the people leaned to receive them, the Sheriff ſaid he was ſent by the authority of the province to demand poſſeſſion of that houſe and to require Mr. Brown to clear it forthwith, for the reception of his Majeſty's troops; and obſerved that he had brought his Honor along with him that his advice might have the more weight, in moving Mr. Brown to reſign the houſe quietly.—Mr. Brown queſtioned the Sheriff with reſpect to his warrant, which he ſaid was an order from the Governor, founded on a reſolve of Council, whereby the Governor was impowred to clear the houſe. Mr. Brown ſaid he never had any lawful warning to leave the houſe, and did not look upon the power of the Governor and council ſufficient to diſpoſſeſs him, and finally told him that he would not ſurrender his poſſeſſion to any till required by the G. Court, under whom he held it, or was obliged thereto by the law of the Province, or compelled by force. His Honor replied that Mr. Brown was a tenant at will of the province, that the Governor and Council were the remaining authority of the province, which he looked upon ſufficient to warrant the proceedings; obſerved that Mr. Brown muſt be very ill adviſed to think of withſtanding that authority, and wiſhed him to conſider better than to involve himſelf in conſequences ſo diſagreeable as muſt attend his refuſal. Mr. Brown to this returned, that his council were of the ableſt in the province, and he ſhou'd adhere to their advice be the conſequences what they would. The Sheriff then left the windows and walked up the eaſtermoſt ſtairs, rap'd moderate at the door, & nobody anſwering, ſoon returned, acquainting Mr. Brown he had done enough for the whole in the ſteps taken with him. The Sheriff in his return took out and read a paper to Mr. Brown, containing as he ſaid, a tranſcript of a minute of Council and inſtruction from the Governor to clear the Factory forthwith. Mr. Brown firſt requeſted and afterwards demanded a copy of his order, which he refuſed, refering to the Secretary's office, where after divers applications he was there firſt put off and then finally denied.

Mr. Brown ſtill retaining apprehenſion of violent meaſures, kept his doors & windows ſhut, and ſuffered none to enter without caution; this cauſed the men working in the cellor to keep one of the lower ſaſhes moveable to paſs from the cellar to the yard. Thurſday in the forenoon the Sheriff with another Gentleman were ſeen reconnoitering, & between 12 and 1 o'clock the Sheriff came to the eaſt end of the Factory, where was the window aforementioned, at which one of the weavers had juſt gone out; the young man ſeeing the Sheriff approach the window turned haſtily to prevent his entering, but notwithſtanding his efforts to that purpoſe the Sheriff entered the window, ſword in hand. Mr. Brown, then at ſome diſtance in the cellar, hearing the ſcuffle, haſtened to the window, but a loom intervening, the Sheriff had fully forced entry before Mr. Brown could oppoſe him; a ſmall ſcuffle happened between them, in which neither party received much hurt, two of the Sheriff's deputies & a ſervant following: one of whom was ſoon after ſent to the Officer of the Piquet with a written order to come with his guard to the Factory immediately. On his arrival the Sheriff ordered him to place centinels at each door, two or more at the gate, and ten in the cellar; then read him a paper, giving him full poſſeſſion of the yard, charging him to let any one come out of the houſe but none to go in. Finding the people gather faſt about the gate, orders were iſſued for another company, the poſting of which gave the compleat idea of a formal blockade. Friday morning bread and water were denied, and no perſon allowed to ſpeak to them for ſeveral hours; the ſick were denied the viſits of their phyſicians, and Dr. Church's apprentice pretty roughly uſed in attempting to convey them medicines.

Some Gentlemen deploring the imminent ruin of their country, and fearing ſome ill conſequences from the reſentment of the people, who had been inſulted by the guards, &c. kept with them to moderate their temper; while others laid before the members of his Majeſty's Council the diſtreſs and danger they conceived the people ſubjected to by theſe unprecedented actions. The Council aſſembled, and after ſome deliberation waited on his Excellency, and ſignified that their advice to clear the Factory intended no more than to clear it by law. His Excellency ſaid it appeared to him to impower him to clear it as he moſt conveniently could; however, it ſeems the conſequence of this meeting was a recall of the troops about 7 o'clock that evening, leaving only a ſmall guard in the cellar and one or two at the window.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.

His Excellency the Governor, with advice of his Majeſty's council, has appointed the firſt Thurſday in December next as a day of public Thankſgiving.

Advice of Council, Oct. 17, 1768.

His Excellency Gen. GAGE having informed this Board, that he is in daily expectation of the arrival of two Regiments from Ireland to Boſton; and this Board being deſirous to do all in their power to accommodate the King's Troops, agreeable to act of Parliament, in that caſe made and provided; do adviſe the Governor to give immediate orders to have the Manufactory-Houſe in Boſton (which is the property of the Province) cleared of thoſe perſons who are in the preſent Poſſeſſion of it; that ſo it may be ready to receive thoſe of ſaid Regiments, as cannot be conveniently accommodated in the Barracks at Caſtle William, and otherwiſe, agreeable to ſaid Act.

Sunday night laſt as Mr. Turner, the Coxſwain of the Pinnace belonging to his Majeſty's ſhip the Romney, was coming from the ſhip to the long wharf, with three other men in a ſmall ſkiff, they accidentally overſet, when the Coxſwain and two of the men were drowned; the other man was taken up by a boat that went off to their relief.

We hear the Sultana ſchooner was at Deal the 26th of Auguſt having diſpatches for governor Bernard.

Saturday arrived here the Magdalene arm'd ſchooner from Halifax, and remains in our harbour with his Majeſty's ſhips as per our laſt; excepting the Romney, of 50 guns, which ſailed laſt Monday for Halifax. We hear Commodore Hood is to come up in the Romney, & to tarry here the enſuing winter.

Tueſday laſt being the Anniverſary Acceſſion of his preſent Majeſty to the Throne: The ſame was obſerved by the Diſcharge of the Cannon at Caſtle William, and the Batteries in Town at twelve o'Clock: At the ſame time his Majeſty's Regiments were drawn up on the Common, and reviewed by his Excellency General GAGE, accompanied by his Excellency the Governor; after which the Royal train of Artillery and the Regiments went thro' their rejoycing Firings, and at one o'clock, all his Majeſty's ſhips of war in the Harbour fired on the occaſion.

NEW-YORK, October 27.

We hear from Albany, that Sir William Johnſon is ſtill at Fort-Stanwix, waiting the Arrival of ſome of the diſtant Nations, who have been detained longer than was expected, on Account of the Death of a Great Seneca Chief; that there are about 1000 Indians already met, and that when all are come in, they will be twice that Number. The Indians now at Fort Stanwix, are very quiet, and keep themſelves ſober; and it is hoped that the Whole will do, when aſſembled, which will greatly facilitate the Buſineſs to be tranſacted at this important Cangreſs. The Rev. Mr. Peters, Miniſter of the Church of England at Philadelphia, who attends Gov. Penn, at Fort Stanwix, preaches to the Indians every Sunday, has baptized 15 perſons, Children and Adults, and married three Couple, who behaved with much Decency on the Occaſion.

NEW-HAVEN, October 28.

This Day, our General Aſſembly, adjourned to Thurſday the 5th of January next, then to meet in New-Haven.

The Gentlemen nominated by the Votes of the Freemen, to ſtand for Election, in May next, are as follows, viz. The Hon. William Pitkin, Hon. Jonathan Trumble, Hezekiah Huntington, Matthew Griſwold, Shubael Conant, Eliſha Sheldon, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, William Pitkin, jun. Roger Sherman, Robert Walker, Abraham Davenport, William Samuel Johnſon, Joſeph Spencer, Hon. Thomas Fitch, Ebenezer Silliman, John Cheſter, Jabez Hamlin, Eſquires, Capt. Zebulon Weſt, Capt. Oliver Wolcott.

The Rev. SAMUEL WHITTELSEY, Paſtor of the firſt Church of Chriſt in Milford, departed this Life, laſt Saturday in the 56th Year of his Age, and 31ſt of his Miniſtry, greatly lamented.

HARTFORD, Oct. 31.

Thurſday, the 17th of next Month, is ordered by Authority to be obſerved as a Day of public Thankſgiving throughout this Colony.

In Capt. Jenkins, lately arrived at Boſton, came a Diploma from the Univerſity of Edinburg, for a Doctorate in Divinity for the Reverend JAMES DANA, Paſtor of a Church in Wallingford.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in New-York, dated July 8, 1768.

"I have to inform you that I have from very good Authority that it was lately declared to a Company, not long ſince, who waited upon the Miniſtry for that Purpoſe, that there was no Deſign (at leaſt at preſent) of ſending a Biſhop to America; and that Leave was given to ſend the News over the Atlantic people in like circumſtances in every other part of the kingdom : ſo that Birmingham, and every other town in England, that ſends no members to parliament, is to all intents & purpoſes virtually repreſented ; becauſe the repreſentatives of the towns that elect make the ſame laws for thoſe who do not elect, as for thoſe who do.

Were it otherwiſe, and thoſe who are actually repreſented, were to be eaſed in any tax, by exempting them from the payment of it, and laying the burden upon thoſe who are only virtually repreſented, would not the virtually repreſented part of the people take the alarm and proteſt againſt the acts of ſuch a partial repreſentation ? Were a heavy tax, for inſtance, to be laid upon iron manufactured in the town of Birmingham, becauſe virtually repreſented only ; and a premium granted upon the ſame iron manufactured in Stafford, becauſe actually repreſented, would the people in Birmingham ſubmit quietly to ſuch an unjuſt diſtinction ?

This, in my opinion, is exactly the caſe of the colonies. The repreſentatives of the people of England lay a tax upon the Americans, to which neither they themſelves, nor their conſtituents, pay any part ; and they may, by the ſame authority, whenever the colonies are in a capacity of bearing it, lay the weight of all the taxes for the ſupport of government, and for the payment of the intereſt and principal of the national debt, upon the Americans, in caſe of themſelves, and the people whom they repreſent ; and they may at the ſame time exclude the Americans from whatever advantages, in point of commerce and manufactures, they may apprehend will claſh with the intereſt of themſelves and their conſtituents ; hence I think it is ſelf evident, that the virtual repreſentation which it is contended the American is in poſſeſſion of, is very different from the virtual repreſentation which the Birmingham man poſſeſſes ; becauſe the virtual repreſentative of the American, can put his hand in the American's pocket, and take out what ſum he pleaſes, & he may at the ſame time clog him with whatever incapacity he pleaſes, without affecting himſelf in either caſe ; but the virtual repreſentative of the Birmingham man muſt contribute ſhilling for ſhilling with the Birmingham man, and muſt likewiſe be himſelf ſubject in like circumſtances to all the incapacities which he may think fit to impoſe upon him.

Were not this the caſe, would the numerous body of virtually repreſented inhabitants of this opulent kingdom, ſubmit to be governed by the contemptible number of the actually repreſented inhabitants of it ? It is unreaſonable to think they would. But as the caſe ſtands it were, perhaps, better that the numbers of the actually repreſented, were ſtill fewer than they are, than that they ſhould be increaſed by electors like the preſent, whom experience has ſhewn to be ſuſceptible of every ſpecies of venality.

I am, Sir &c. D. Y.

THE officious informer, who gave a partial account of the operation for the Stone on Capt, Snell of Bridgwater (with a fulſome introduction of the ſucceſſive arrival of Dr. Jepſon and Dr. Roberts) might alſo have added that Dr. Perkins of Bridgwater was principally conſulted and concerned with Dr. Jepſon in the operation and care of the Captain afterwards ; and has been ſteadily accompanied in the dreſſings with Dr. Jepſon till his return home, and Dr. Roberts unexpectedly (except a few erratick excurſions) the whole time ſince.

Mr. Printer,

ON reading your Paper of the 10th Inſt. I found an account given of the dangerous operation I have lately paſs'd thro', and of the names of the Gentlemen I employed on that occaſion ; but upon ſeeing yours of 17th, I was greatly ſurprized to find another account of a quite different kind ; therefore in juſtice to the character of Dr. JEPSON and Dr ROBERTS, I am obliged to declare the former account to be true & the latter entirely falſe.

I am Sir your very humble Servant,

JOSIAH SNELL.

Bridgwater, Octo. 21, 1768.

NEWPORT, Octo. 3. 1768.

By a Letter from a gentleman in New London, dated Septr. 24th, to a Gentleman in this Town, we have the following melancholly Account. On the 11th of Auguſt laſt, the Snow Prince William, Capt. John Nichol, belonging to this Place, having on board Mr. John Coddington, Merchant of this Town, and a number of Paſſengers, ſailed from Montego Bay in Jamaica, in company with Capt. Crane in a Sloop belonging to New London.——The next day, about 11 o'Clock in the Forenoon, ſaid Veſſels being in Sight of each other the wind freſh and ſea large, a Clap of Thunder ſtruck the Snow, carried away her Main Topmaſt and ſet Fire to the Veſſel ;——which in a ſhort time, before Capt Crane could get near enough to afford any Aſſiſtance, burnt her almoſt to the Water ; ſo that not one Perſon eſcaped.

Mr Coddington has left a ſorrowful Widow and ſix Children. Capt. Nichols likewiſe has left a Widow and five or ſix Children. Among the Paſſengers was Dr. Cooper of Jamaica, who was in this Place the Summer before laſt for his Health and much reſpected by his acquaintance here ; Finding this climate to agree with him better than Jamaica, he was returning with ſeveral Servants, in ſaid Snow to ſettle in this Town. There was alſo another gentleman with his Family, coming to ſettle here. 'Tis ſuppoſed there were about 25 or 30 perſons periſhed in the Flames, on board this Veſſel.

From the Boſton Gazette.

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

IF at this time when we know the diſpoſition of our oppreſſors, and are actually incumber'd with an armed force, we will not uſe every lawful method to eaſe ourſelves from thoſe intollerable burthens, we ought to ſuffer. If any man can ſee theſe things and not utter a ſigh for this expiring country, he deſerves not the name of an Engliſhman. Be it known then that the ſingle town of Boſton does every day by the conſumption of TEA, pay toward the maintenance of theſe ſwarms of officers, four Pounds Sterling as the Duty. Therefore ye fair ones (and I ſpeak to all but thoſe who deſire ſlavery) I intreat you deny yourſelves this fooliſh cuſtom, and thereby lend a helping hand to ſave a free people. In doing this you follow the glorious example of many of the firſt Ladies in this place.

DODSLEY'S Cleone.

DETRACTION is one of the moſt odious vices that ever curs'd ſociety; a vice that the meaneſt and moſt deſpicable of the human race are uſually the moſt addicted to; a vice, by which the reputations, uſefulneſs and comfort of men of worth, are proſtituted to the infernal malice of a talkative whore, an impudent negro, or a lazy, drunken puppy—whether theſe that open their ears to the miſchief-making language of theſe low liv'd ſons of ſlander, do not participate of the guilt is an eaſy matter to determine—Solomon ſays that " as the north wind driveth away rain ſo does an angry countenance a back-biting tongue:"—If this was duly obſerv'd; the little naſty muſhrooms, that riſe up from a dunghill, would never dare to ſpatter and foul reſpectable reputations as they do—no; they would be forced to confine themſelves within the narrow ſphere of a cow t—d, from whence they ſprang—foul-mouthed ſlander is uſually belched forth from the throats of menial ſervants, who are moved from a principle of vanity to entertain their ſuperiors with the ſecrets of families; or elſe from thoſe that are naturally very talkative, or have no characters of their own to loſe: but ſuch breath, let it come thro' whoſe lips it will, betrays (not ſo much a foul ſtomach, as) a foul heart, it breathes the temper of hell, and ſmells ſtrong of the bottomleſs pit—where perſons are competitious for fame, or wealth, ſelf intereſt may produce a cenſorious defamatory courſe of language;—envy and revenge may, in their genuine operations, be indefatigable in their attempts to depreciate the reputations of others;—and there may to a ſullen, gloomy temper, be ſudden flaſhes of pleaſure from keen deep-wounding detraction, like a crinkling, forked flaſh of lightning from the ſky, deep clouded at midnight.—Theſe inſtances are frequently found among perſons in high life, as well as thoſe of inferior rank; for this reaſon, (as I cannot within the compaſs of this paper conſider detraction in all its branches) I ſhall confine myſelf to that liberty, which is taken by the dirtieſt of all ragmuffins, and the encouragement which is given by ſome of the better ſort to ſuch a liberty, of ſpattering good clothes—as for what your better folks do in ſuch things, you will hear from me again upon that ſubject, if GOD ALMIGHTY ſpare my life and give me opportunity to publiſh another paper—envy, malice, revenge, pride, vanity—ſhocking leaders, theſe!—but majiſtraets, miniſters, the fat [illegible] & the prinking damſel, prating old age and liſping infancy——all,—all follow— " O ingratitude! name it not—"

" Man hard of heart to man of horrid things
" Moſt horrid!—hear it not, ye ſtars,
" And thou pale moon, turn paler at the (ſound;
" Man is to man, the foreſt, ſureſt ill."

Let not the reader think that becauſe he is of a rank ſuperior to the dirty fellows I am ſpeaking of, he is excuſed from application to himſelf——for if he mingles in converſation with ſuch dirty fellows, liſtens to their diſcourſe and encourages them in ſtriking out new paths of damnable ſlander, he as dirty a raſcal as the dirtieſt of them all——and let him be a calumniator, or back biter of what rank, or claſs he will; he may depend upon it, unleſs the rod is wrenched from my hand, he ſhall ſoon have as ſevere a chaſtiſing as my ſtrength, and Norwich paper will allow of.———————————pray hear a ſtory—

A lady of rank and reputation equal to any in our country gave an expreſſive hint, that very nearly touched the character of another lady, whom I highly eſteemed——my ſhock was ſo great, that, that I never made proper enquiry, as to her channels of information. Several times after, upon ſeeing the accuſed, or ſuſpected lady, I felt ſuch loſs of eſteem, ſuch contempt, ſuch ſcorn, as was not only injurious to her, but exceſſively uneaſy to myſelf, and from the latter conſideration, perhaps, more than the former, I was moved to hope the inſinuation untrue, and reſolved therefore to apply to my informer for an account of evidences. I accordingly applyed——and found, (O good Heavens!) that the lady's reputation was demoliſhed becauſe that " the children ſaid they heard our POMPEY " ſay that Mrs's CEASAR and the ſaid lady's " SUE frequently talked about it."——I condemned myſelf for my credulity: yet ſuch is the nature of prejudice that I cannot feel entirely free from ſomething like ſuſpicion—and yet, I know, I have no other evidence than the ſaid negro preſumptive evidence—a conſideration of the lady's character, who firſt gave me the information made ſuch impreſſion that truth itſelf cannot wholly efface it—O friendſhip! art thou thus to be blaſted? O confidence! art thou thus to be underminded, by the lawleſs licence of the vile tongues of the vileſt ſort?——poor injured lady! I repent my haſty folly——and oh! that my informer would remember that her POMPEY is capable of wounding her as deep as thy SUE hath thee!————We find in the ſecond table of the dialogue, precepts delivered in the moſt explicit manner under the ſanction of divine authority, for the ſecurity and defence of our moſt valuable temporal intereſts——the ſixth Commandment is deſigned for the ſecurity of our lives & limbs; the ſeventh of the honour and chaſtity of ourſelves and families; the eighth, of our external property; and the ninth, of our reputations——& a due obſervance of theſe precepts are eſſential to the harmony and well being of ſociety.——and mankind are ſo ſenſible thereof, that a violation of any of theſe commandments meets with tokens of ſevere reſentment from the hands of executive juſtice, except it be the laſt mentioned——but characters may be traduced by the vileſt tongues with impunity————thoſe that can riſe to importance no other way, can do it in this way ————If any one ſhould ſay that " the law is open againſt ſuch miſcreants'—I reply, that the law never can, nor ever will make reparation in ſuch a caſe————He that ſtirs a t—— uſually makes it ſtink worſe. And I never knew a man yet, whoſe reputation had been injuriouſly treated by the ſcurf of mankind, but laboured under this dilemma——If he flies above the [illegible] and [illegible] and courts follow; " The truth cuts otherwiſe he'd deſpiſe ſuch mean tongues"————If he enters upon no proceſs for the recovery of damage, " He never would bear this, he would proſecute the matter, if he did not know he was guilty, and that it could be proved"————pretty ſituation this!——no relief no remedy——mankind, like a pack of hounds, will hunt him down, turn which way he will and muſt this be the fate of the moſt deſerving, and virtuous of mankind, merely becauſe an (otherwiſe) inſignificant ſcoundrel has ſtarted his reputation for the dogs of ſlander to run down?

Whilſt party fueds, inattentiveneſs, and ſupineſs in the miniſtry, decay of trade, diſſatisfaction in our Colonies, and diſorders reign amongſt us; our antient inveterate enemies are purſuing every poſſible ſalutary meaſure. 'Tis worthy obſervation ever ſince the concluſion of the late war to the preſent time the French Miniſtry have adopted, and carried into execution the moſt beneficial plans for the internal, as well as external police, in ſo much, that a few years more will render that nation once more the terror, if not the ſcourge of Europe, where its influence is daily gaining ground, augmenting their marine, eſtabliſhing their fiſhery, and poſſeſſing of Corſica, are maſter pieces of their refined policy, and evidently merit the higheſt encomiums by every true born French-man, and lover of his country, The talk of appointments of Biſhops in our colonies is again revived and it is expected an attempt will be made next ſeſſion of Parliament for leave to bring in a bill for aſcertaining the ſame, and providing a proper fund for their maintenance; until ſundry lands, which will be granted in the nature of glebe, are ſo far cultivated, as to enable them to live as becomes their ſacred character, without the impoſition of tythes, or plauging the people with eccleſiaſtical courts; which it is thought, will meet with no oppoſition from the Colonies.

There is the greateſt proſpect at preſent of a moſt plentiful harveſt; the wheat never looked finer or better, and all the kinds of lent corn promiſe a plentiful crop; the hops are likewiſe in excellent condition.

The farmers (whom no power in Heaven above or earth beneath can pleaſe) already begin there old game of complaint, alledging the few days of rain will have a great effect on the enſuing harveſt; and that if it continues a little time longer, the oats and barley will be nearly all ſtraw, &c.

Laſt week the Bark that goes between this Place and Zurich was loſt in a Storm which aroſe upon the Lake, by which twenty five Perſons, moſt of them belonging to this Place, had the misfortune to looſe their lives. The Mother is as well this Day as her ſituation will admit of, and her apprehenſions are removed by the ſight of her husband, whoſe buſineſs detained him at Zurich, ſo that he did not come home till three days after the accident abovementioned. BOSTON, November 3.

Yeſterday Morning arrived here Capt. Howard from Ireland; who brought Prints to the 5th of Sept. but they contain no later articles from London than the 27th of Aug.

Capt. Howard informs, that he left Cork the 7th of September, and that the ſame day ſailed the man of War and tranſports, having on board as he heard, 2000 Troops, for Boſton. That he parted from them the next Day after he came out, and met with contrary Winds, and he ſuppoſes the ſame winds will make the paſſage of the Fleet a Fortnight longer.

The 29th Regiment, who ſince their arrival here were encamped on the common were laſt ſaturday Quartered in ſome empty ſtores which have been fitted for their reception.

Extract of a letter from London, Aug. 30.

'The 13th Regiment of foot commanded by Maj. Gen. James Murray, embarked at Dover for Cork on the 9th inſt. They were firſt deſigned to replace the troops deſigned for New-England, but we are now aſſured that they will accompany theſe troops to Boſton. Gen. Murray has juſt reſigned his government of Quebec, but it is reported he will ſoon follow his regiment to America, where he will have a principal command, but whether civil or military hath not yet tranſpired

Extract of a letter from London Auguſt 30.

"We talk here of nothing but America, every perſon intereſts himſelf either for or againſt it, but to tell the truth, the laſt are by far the moſt numerous, tho perhaps not the beſt informed; your reſolutions againſt importing goods, inſtead of operating in your favour, have had a quite contrary effect. the ignorant people here at firſt believed you were in a ſtate of actual rebellion; it is ſaid, ſome of the merchants declined to anſwer orders for goods, and it is certain, ſeveral tradeſmen refuſed to credit merchants who traded to New-England. The Earl of Hillſborough, the moſt active and intelligent of all the Miniſters who compoſe the preſent adminiſtration, hath perſonally examined all the maſters of veſſels and paſſengers that have arrived in the river from New-England, ſince the news of the riot on the 10th of June, from whom it is reported he received very contradictory accounts. We alſo have it from good authority, that if the preſent or former miniſtry, have committed any miſtakes with regard to America, that they will be immediately rectified, and every thing eſtabliſhed on an equitable footing both for you and the mother country; this ſo much wiſhed for ſettlement will be accompliſhed ſooner if your next petitions are moderate; for it is not even expected that the Parliament will give up their right of taxation: among the people here who allow that there is ſome merit on your ſide of the Atlantic, your writings are greatly admired; it would give me pleaſure to know the names of your principal authors; pleaſe to mention them in your next.

Another letter from London, adviſes the ſending home a loyal and dutiful petition, repreſenting the hardſhips under which this country labours. and in particular, cautions us to be altogether ſilent concerning any claim of rights, and that ſuch petition could not fail of producing a favourable effect.

Extract of a Letter from Cork, dated Aug. 16.

"We are here in great Pain about poor Boſton, and more ſo as our preſent -- came at the Records in the Regiſtry Office, Dublin, he took them from thence, and had a Yatch ready to carry them to England, but was detected, and modeſtly confined in the Caſtle there, until they were all returned; this is a Specimen of Engliſh dragooning, for Ireland as well as America. We have now an octennial Parliament, and the Members are all elected.

Yeſterday Afternoon we had uncommon hard Thunder for the Seaſon; at Charleſtown, we hear that the Bake Houſe of Mr , was conſiderably damaged by the Lightning, which tore one Side of the Roof to pieces, ſtruck a Lad down that was at the Bolting-Mill, and burnt the bolting Cloth. The Lad ſoon recovered without receiving any hurt.

Thurſday the 24th of November is appointed to be religiouſly obſerved and kept as a Day of public Thankſgiving throughout the Province of New-Hampſhire.

HARTFORD, Nov 7.

Laſt Thurſday Night died at Middletown, after a lingering and painful illneſs, Mrs. ——— Hamlin. conſort of the Hon. Jabez Hamlin of that place.

Laſt Wedneſday John Jacobs, an Indian native, was executed at Litchfield, purſuant to his ſentence, for the murder of James Checkrer, another Indian, as has been mentioned.

☞ The CNMPLAINANT of this week having been brought to the preſs inadvertently, and paſſed through too great impreſſion for alteration before it paſſed through the correction and reviſal deſigned, the author begs that the candid reader would pardon ſome indelicacies that are juſtly exceptionable.—— it was wrote indeed in a fit of high reſentment, and that on account of the very ſtory told in the paper; but the bald, indecent words that were inſerted in the rough draught which went to the preſs, were originally intended only as hints for the thoughts rather than the language. But it is too late now for the Complainant to do any thing more than to aſk pardon of the public, which he heartily does, being moſt ſincerely aſhamed.

Col. 1, lines 11 & 12. from the bottom, for competitious, read competitors. Col. 2. line 31 from the bottom, dele that. Col. 3, line 2, for dialoguge, read decalogue.

The candid reader is deſired to correct the above, and pardon the want of news in this paper, all which are owing to the abſence of the publiſhers.

Taken up by the ſubſcriber, on the 2d inſtant, a ſorrel mare about 13 and half hands high, natural trotter, bald face, her head and feet lately trimmed, ſhod before, about 4 years old, no brand. The owner may have her again, by applying to the ſubſcriber and paying charges.

The owners of the Upper Mills in Hartford, give this public notice, that they have ſet up a hand bolt, and conveniencies to cool flour before tis bolted: the bolt is exactly as fine as what makes the city flour in New York; and as it may be put up much cheaper here than at that city, it may ſoon be made a good branch of buſineſs, and ſave in the colony the ſums of mony which other governments make by manufacturing our wheat, all to the advantage both of the trader and farmer. And as frequent complaints have been made to the owners of ſaid mills, that the inhabitants were obliged to go out of town for grinding what they ſay they can have much more and better flower——to prevent every thing of ſuch nature, the mills will now be taken into the hands of the owners, who will ſee to it that as much and as good flower be made there, as in any other town, and the cuſtomers may be aſſured the grinding and treatment will be good; and for the benefit of thoſe who do not raiſe grain, it is intended that flour, wheat, meſlin, rye, and indian corn, ſhall be there to be ſold ſteadily, and one of the family attend to deliver, as people ſhall want.

Writing Paper of different Kinds, to be ſold cheap at the Printing-Office.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

BOSTON, October 31.

Laſt Friday the following ADDRESS was preſented to General GAGE by ſeveral Gentlemen of the Council in behalf of themſelves and the other Members who ſubſcribed it, being all that were preſent.

To his Excellency General GAGE,
Commander in Chief of His Majeſty's Forces in America.

The ADDRESS of the ſubſcribers, Members of His Majeſty's Council of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay:

SIR,

A General Council being held Yeſterday gives the Members of it, together with the Members in the Town and Neighbourhood the pleaſure of addreſſing you.——We take this firſt opportunity of doing it; & at the ſame time to pay our compliments to your Excellency.

In this time of public diſtreſs, when the General Court of the Province is in a ſtate of diſſolution; when the Metropolis is poſſeſſed by troops, and ſurrounded by ſhips of War; and when more Troops are daily expected, it affords a general ſatisfaction that your Excellency has viſited the Province, and has now an opportunity of knowing the ſtate of it by your own obſervation and enquiry.

Your own obſervation will give you the fulleſt evidence that the Town & Province, are in a peaceful ſtate——Your own enquiry will ſatisfy you, that though there have been diſorders in the Town of Boſton, ſome of them did not merit notice; and that ſuch as did, have been magnified beyond the truth.

Thoſe of the 18th of March and 10th of June are ſaid to have occaſioned the abovementioned armament to be ordered hither——The firſt was trivial, and could not have been noticed to the diſadvantage of the Town, but by perſons inimical to it; eſpecially as it happened in the evening of a day of recreation. The other was criminal, and the actors of it guilty of a riot: but we are obliged to ſay it had its riſe from thoſe perſons who were loudeſt in their complaints about it, who by their over-charged repreſentations of it have been the occaſion of ſo great an armament being ordered hither. We cannot perſuade ourſelves to believe they have ſufficient evidence to ſupport ſuch repreſentations, which have moſt unjuſtly brought into queſtion the loyalty of as loyal a people as any in his Majeſty's dominions.

This misfortune has ariſen from the accuſation of intereſted men, whoſe avarice having ſmothered in their breaſts every ſentiment of humanity towards this Province, has impelled them to oppreſs it to the utmoſt of their power: and by the conſequences of that oppreſſion eſſentially to injure Great Britain.

From the candor of your Excellency's ſentiments we aſſure ourſelves you will not entertain any apprehenſions that we mean to juſtify the diſorders and riotous proceedings that have taken place in the Town of Boſton, We deteſt them and have repeatedly and publickly expreſſed that deteſtation; and in Council have adviſed Governor Bernard to order the Attorney-General to proſecute the perpetrators of them: but at the ſame time we are obliged to declare in juſtice to the Town, that the diſorders of the 10th of June laſt, occaſioned by a ſeizure made by the Officers of the Cuſtoms, appear to have originated with thoſe who ordered the ſeizure to be made. The hour of making the ſeizure (at or near ſunſet) the threats and armed force uſed in it, the forcibly carrying the veſſel away and all in a manner unprecedented, and calculated to irritate, juſtify the apprehenſion that the ſeizure was accompanied with theſe extraordinary circumſtances in order to excite a riot, and furniſh a plauſible pretence for requeſting Troops.—— A day or two after the riot, and as if in proſecution of the laſt mentioned purpoſe, notwithſtanding there was not the leaſt inſult offered to the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms, either in their perſons or property, they thought fit to retire, on the pretence of ſecurity to themſelves, on board the Romney man of war, and afterwards to Caſtle William; and when there, to keep up the idea of their being ſtill in great hazard procured the Romney and ſeveral other veſſels of war to be ſo ſtationed as to prevent an attack upon the Caſtle which they affected to be afraid of.

Theſe proceedings [illegible] taken place, to induce a belief among the officers of the navy and army, as they occaſionally came hither, that the Commiſſioners were in danger of being attacked, and to procure from thoſe officers repreſentations co-incident with their own, that they really were ſo. But their frequently landing on the Main, & making excurſions into the country, where it would have been eaſy to have ſeized, if any injury had been intended them, demonſtrates the inſincerity of their declaration that they immured themſelves at the Caſtle for ſafety. This is rather to be accounted for, as being an eſſential part of the concerted plan for procuring Troops to be quartered here: in which they and their coadjutors have ſucceeded to their wiſh, but unhappily, to the mutual detriment and uneaſineſs of both countries.

We thought it abſolutely neceſſary, & our duty to the Town and Province required us to give your Excellency this detail, that you might know the ſentiments of this people, and that they think themſelves injured, & injured by men to whom they have done no injury. From the juſtice of your Excellency, we aſſure ourſelves your mind will not admit of impreſſions to their diſadvantage from perſons who have done the injury.

Your Excellency in your Letter to Governor Bernard, of the 12th of Sept. gave notice that one of the regiments from Halifax was ordered for the preſent to Caſtle William, and the other to the Town: but you was pleaſed afterwards to order both of them into the Town.

If your Excellency when you know the true ſtate of the Town, which we can aſſure you is quite peaceable, ſhall think his Majeſty's ſervice does not require theſe regiments to continue in the Town, it will be a great eaſe and ſatiſfaction to the inhabitants, if you will pleaſe to order them to Caſtle William, where commodious barracks are provided for their reception; or to point Shirly, in the neighbourhood of it, in either of which or in both they can be well accommodated.

As to the two regiments expected here from Ireland; it appears by Lord Hillſborough's letter on the 30th of July they were intended for a different part of North America.

If your Excellency ſhall think it not inconſiſtant with his Majeſty's ſervice that they ſhould be ſent to the place of their firſt deſtination, it will contribute to the eaſe & happineſs of the town and province, if they might be ordered thither.

As we are true and faithful ſubjects of his Majeſty, have an affectionate regard for the Mother country & a tender feeling for our own our duty to each of them makes us wiſh, & we earneſtly beg your Excellency to make a full enquiry into the diſorders above mentioned; into the cauſes of them and the repreſentations that have been made about them; in doing which your Excellency will eaſily diſcover who are the perſons that from lucrative views have combined againſt the peace of this town and province; Some of whom it is probable have diſcovered themſelves already by their own letters to your Excellency.

In ſuch an enquiry, tho' many imprudences and ſome criminal proceedings may be found to have taken place, we are perſuaded from the candor, generoſity and juſtice that diſtinguiſh your character; your Excellency will not charge the doings of a few individuals and thoſe of an inferior ſort upon the town and province. And with regard to theſe individuals if any circumſtances ſhall appear juſtly to extenuate the criminality of their proceedings your Excellency will let them have their effect.——On the ſame candor, generoſity and juſtice we can rely, that your Excellency's repreſentations of this affair to his Majeſty's miniſters will be ſuch as even the criminals themſelves ſhall allow to be juſt.

To the foregoing Addreſs the General gave the following Anſwer.

To the Hon. Meſſirs Danforth, Hill, Royal, Erving, Bowdoin, Bradford, Hubbard, Sparhawk, Gray, Ruſſell, Bradbury, Tyler, White, Pitts and Dexter, Members of his Majeſty's Council of the Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay.

GENTLEMEN,

I Return you thanks for the honor you do me in this Addreſs, and am greatly obliged to you for the good opinion you are pleaſed to conceive of me.

Whatever may have been the particular cauſes of the diſturbances, and riots, which have happened in the Town of Boſton, thoſe Riots and the Reſolves which were publiſhed, have induced his Majeſty to order four Regiments to this Town, to protect his loyal ſubjects, in their perſons, and properties, and to aſſiſt the civil magiſtrates in the execution of the laws.

The diſcipline and order which will be preſerved amongſt the Troops, I truſt, will render their ſtay, no ways diſtreſsful to his Majeſty's dutiful ſubjects in this town; and that the future behaviour of the people will juſtify the beſt conſtruction of their paſt actions which I flatter myſelf will be ſuch, as to afford me at a ſufficient foundation, to repreſent to his Majeſty, the propriety of withdrawing the moſt part of the Troops.

THOMAS GAGE.

Boſton, October 28*th*. 1768.

From the BOSTON GAZETTE.

Meſſieurs Edes & Gill,

HIS Excellency has received inſtructions from Lord Hillſborough, dated the 30th July.————————His Lordſhip acquaints the Governor that the military power is enjoined to aid the civil magiſtrate in ſupport of the conſtitutional authority of the parliament, when they ſhall be legally called thereto. And that the civil magiſtrate alone is accountable——He ſtrongly recommends a reform of the magiſtrates of the town, ſince they have ſome of them been heretofore deficient in the execution of their truſt, and hopes that ſuch gentlemen will be found to fill up thoſe important places, who will be zealous to ſupport the law, and the conſtitutional authority of the parliament; and that they will be encouraged by the good example of his Honor the Lieutenant Governor——He enjoins that a due enquiry be made into the authors of the riot which happened in the town of Boſton on the 10th of June laſt; and if thoſe who have been the inſtruments of ſtirring up the people to an oppoſition to the conſtitutional authority of the parliament, have committed ſuch overt acts as will juſtify their being ſent to England to be tryed upon a ſtatute which his Lordſhip mentions, of Henry VIII. the Governor is to make full report thereof——He tells the Governor that he forbears to take notice of the unwarrantable principles and dangerous doctrines ſet up in the petition of the town of Boſton to their Governor, and their inſtructions relating to impreſſes, as the Governor has not tranſmitted a particular account of that affair. Whether impreſſes are regular or not, his Lordſhip declines ſaying, as it belongs to another department——but he mentions the opinion of thoſe who his Lordſhip ſays are of the greateſt authority, and which it is wiſh'd and expected the Governor will communicate for the direction of the public, to ſhow that the ſtatute cited by the town, was intended to be in force only during the war, at the concluſion of which it expired——The latter part of his Lordſhips letter recommends to the Governor the uſe of lenient methods to reſtore peace and good order among the people, and reduce them to a ſubmiſſion to the law and the conſtitution, which his M——y is determined to ſupport——(in which we dare affirm his Majeſty's loyal ſubjects of this town and province have never fail'd to exert their utmoſt Aid, notwithſtand the malicious and FALSE repreſentations to the contrary)

The foregoing is the ſubſtance of his Lordſhip's letter, as far as memory will ſerve; no one being allowed to take a copy of it, tho' it muſt be allowed to be very intereſting to the Public——We thought it our duty to publiſh it in this manner; and if the truth be called in queſtion, we muſt appeal to the Copy in the Secretary's files, preſuming it ſtill lies there, as it has for ſome days paſt, for the inſpection of any perſon who has the curioſity to peruſe it. Your humble Servants,

A. B. C.

LONDON, Auguſt 18

WE hear Sir Jeffery Amherſt has been offered a Peerage.

A letter from Quebec ſays, " upon farther enquiry into the crimes for which a gentleman has been arreſted, it is thought his accuſers will not find it very eaſy to make out their charge againſt him.

Friday night at a public houſe, a drunken Scotſman drank d———n to Wilkes and Liberty, for which he was deſervedly kicked out of the houſe.

A ſhip very richly laden, homeward bound, was in great danger of being wrecked on the Coaſt of France by an attraction of the Mariner's Compaſs on board her, providentially diſcovered by a young Gentleman, paſſenger in her, juſt time enough to ſave her, by the following accident. The Captain of her was much afflicted with the gout, and had no fire place in his cabin, which obliged him to contrive one, by means of the crows, marlin ſpikes, and other looſe iron he had at hand, as near as poſſible to his bed place, off the Starboard ſide, which being near or perpendicularly under the place of the Compaſs, and no iron of the Larboard ſide, ſo attracted the Magnet as to occaſion a variation of ſeveral points, and which, by the courſe they then ſteered, muſt have run her on ſhore near Cape Uſhant; but by taking away the iron from the Starboard ſide, and placing it a-midſhips, the compaſs ſuddenly ſtarted to its proper center, and ſhewed the fatal approaching calamity, which the young Gentleman firſt ſuſpected by ſeeing that the north point of the Compaſs did not face to the North ſtar, of a dark night, as he amuſed himſelf in obſerving the ſame, and therefore requeſted the Captain and Mate, and officers of the watch to remove that iron, or fire place, which they laughed at, when firſt mentioned; but on the young Gentleman's reaſoning them into it, they at laſt reluctantly granted it, and thereby ſaved near 100 lives, and as many thouſand pounds, beſides a fine ſhip.

Goſport, Auguſt 24 Yeſterday morning part of the 15th regiment, late General Amherſt's was landed from the tranſports that brought them from Quebec, on our beach; & marched through the town for Glouceſterſhire, and this morning the remainder of them was diſembarked here, and took the ſame rout. They have been abroad eleven years. The officers and men look hearty and well.

On Sunday laſt Mrs Rachael Wilſon, an eminent preacher among the Quakers, embarked for Philadelphia; but the ſhip waiting off Graveſend for a wind, ſhe went on ſhore and preached, by permiſſion, in the town hall: during the diſcourſe an old woman, who was very abuſive, fell off a ſtool and broke her leg; when, notwithſtanding her inſolence, the friends immediately collected ſeven guineas for her relief.

Aug 22. The Lords of the Admiralty at their laſt meeting on Thurſday the 28th ult. agreed, that Michael Woods, of Liverpool, F. R. S. and Mr. Larpiniere, of Bethnel Green, ſhould go to ſea, in ſome of his Majeſty's ſhips to try experiments on their new invented univerſal quadrant &c. and that a full account of their ſucceſs ſhould be publiſhed at their return.

Aug 25 His Majeſty has been pleaſed to conſtitute & appoint Guy Carleton Eſq Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over his Majeſty's province of Quebec in America, to be Vice-Admiral of the ſame, in the room of the Hon. James Murray, Eſq; who has reſigned.

His Majeſty has been pleaſed to appoint Iſaac Bevan, of Miſtly in the County of Eſſex, Eſq; Paymaſter of his Majeſty's forces deſigned for North America.

A manufactory of long lawns, eſtabliſhed in Scotland in 1765, has already produced pieces of work greatly ſuperior to the lawns made in Germany.

It is ſaid an additional duty will be laid on coals that ſhall be exported to foreign parts from any of the ports of Great-Britain or Ireland.

It is whiſpered, that a certain unpopular nobleman will ſpeedily be recalled from his travels.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Chatham is again much indiſpoſed at his houſe at Hayes.

A certain Juſtice of Peace, who lately attended a noted trial, wanting " The acts relating to a Juſtice of Peace," wrote to a tradeſman to borrow them, in the following manner exactly. " Send me the Ax ReLattin to A guſtus of Peaſe."

The CAMPAIGN.

FIAT Juſtitia, Ruat Cœlum.
We'll maul the rogues if we can feel'em.
Juſtitia Fiat Cœlum, Ruat,
Be ſure the gun you level true at,
Cœlum, Juſtitia, Ruat, Fiat,
And ſhoot the man I cock my eye at,
Juſtitia Fiat, Ruat Cœlum,
Obey the words of Juſtice——,
And if the raſcals hollow—kill 'em.

Extract of a letter from Boſton, July 3 1768.

" The people talk of doing great things, to ſpend the laſt drop of their blood for their liberty; but when things come to the puſh, which they muſt do ſoon, it will be found that all their boaſting is Vox et preterea nihil."

[Scotch Gazette]

The aſſertion in ſome of the papers, that Lord Bottetourt is the firſt inſtance of a Nobleman being appointed a Governor in America, is not true; the grand father of the preſent Duke of Portland having been appointed Captain General and Governor of Jamaica on September 29, 1721, where he died July 4. 1726; and if we miſtake not, the ſon of General Monk (Earl of Albermarle) was Governor of that Iſland in the reign of Charles II: Lord Hawley is at this time Lieut. Governor of Antigua. The family of the Berkleys are well remembered in the province of Virginia; Sir William Berkeley having held that place in the name of King Charles II, in defiance of Oliver Cromwell, to whom all the Royaliſts in that country flocked for protection.

It is reported that two dignified Clergymen will ſpeedily embark for America, to enquire into the general ſtate of Religion in the Colonies.

Aug. 27. It is given out, that a certain great ſea officer has declined taking on him the command of an expedition beyond the Atlantick.

It is tho't that the Parliament will aſſemble earlier than uſual this Winter, on account of the critical ſituation of affairs in America.

We are credibly informed, that one of our India ſhips lately arrived, fell in with a pirate ſhip in the Chineſe ſea, the commander of which was a Frenchman, the ſhip was manned with blacks, and was croizing againſt the Dutch.

We hear that M'Cloughlan the Scotchman who killed Mr. Allen, in St. George's field, was lately ſeen at Edinburgh, in his way to Lochober in the Highlands, of which he is a native.

We are told that ſeveral large pieces of ordnance, and other warlike ſtores, are getting ready, and are to be ſhipped off for Corſica with all convenient ſpeed.

Aug. 30. We hear that orders are ſent to Ireland for two regiments to be got in readineſs to embark for North America.

Col. Charles Hotham is appointed to the command of the 15th regiment of foot, late Gen. Amherſt's.

It is rumored that a recruiting order will ſoon be ſent through all parts of England.

Yeſterday a foreign gentleman was taken into cuſtody in Southwark, & committed to priſon, for enticing 3 journeymen to go abroad to teach the art of tanning leather, contrary to law.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.

We are informed that the aſſembly of the three lower counties of this province, have appointed Dennys de Berdt, Eſq; their agent in England, and have harmonized with their ſiſter colonies, in petitioning the King, Lords and Commons for redreſs of the grievous burdens laid on America

NEW-YORK, Nov. 10.

We hear from Philadelphia, that on Wedneſday Morning the 26th Oct. the houſe of Mr. Samuel Levis, ten miles from thence, was ſtruck with lightning, which ſhattered the chimney, and part of the houſe, melted part of a gun barrel, and other metal, ſtruck a young woman, daughter to Mr. Levis, and left her to appearance dead. The lightning paſſed from her head, ſcorched her much, rent her cloaths and garters, into many pieces, tore the upper leather of her ſhoes to fragments, and melted part of one of her ſilver buckles. She was immediately let blood, bled freely, ſoon came to herſelf, and is likely to recover. She remembered nothing that had happened.

Capt Blewer from Penſacola on the 5th ult. lat. 26. 5. ſaw a ſhip or ſnow, which between 7 or 8 in the evening fired a gun, on which capt. Blewer lay to and hung out lights; at 9 ſhe ſeemed to be at about half a mile diſtance, and ſuddenly diſappeared, ſuppoſed to overſet or ſunk, capt. Blewer lay to till morning, but ſaw nothing more of her.

Friday laſt nine pigs were ſeized in the fly market as perfect carrion, which, on the mayor's view, were ſentenced to be burnt publicly on the common, and the owner of them fined forty ſhillings: The ſentence was immediately put in execution, and part of the fine taken to purchaſe wood to burn them with.

BOSTON, November 10.

Thurſday laſt the 29th regiment, and on Friday the 14th regiment were reviewed on the common by his excellency Gen. Gage. Both regiments made a fine appearance, and went through the manual exerciſe, the firings and evolutions with the greateſt exactneſs.

This morning arrived here ſeveral tranſports from Cork, having on board part of the 64th and 65th regiments deſtined for this place; The remainder with the Huſſar frigate, are not yet got in.

Monday laſt arrived here the Magdalene arm'd ſchooner, Capt. Dundas, from Halifax.

We hear a veſſel from Briſtol, belonging to New-London, was ſeized at Halifax, by order of the officers of the cuſtoms.

Saturday laſt being the anniverſary of the happy deliverance of the Britiſh Nation from the Popiſh Plot: The ſame was obſerved by the diſcharge of the guns at Caſtle William and at the Batteries in Town at 12 o'clock, and at one by his Majeſty's Ships of War in this harbour:—The Pageantry carried thro' the principal ſtreets of the Town, in the Day, was conducted by the Perſons concern'd with good orderr

Friday laſt capt. Vincent arrived here from Jamaica, by whom we have advice, That on the 22d of September His Honor Roger Hope Elleſon, Eſq; Lieutenant Governor of that Iſland, diſſolved the aſſembly there, for their not complying with his Majeſty's expreſs command, for repayment of the monies iſſued by the Treaſury of Great Britain, for the Iſland ſubſiſtance of the Troops ſtationed there during the diſcontinuance of their aſſembly; the reaſons which the aſſembly gave for not complying with the requiſition having been deem'd inſufficient by his Majeſty. And that on the 30th his Excellency Sir William Trelawney, Governor of that Iſland, arrived at Port Royal, from on board the Jaſon,——Antrobus, Eſq; Commander

We hear the honorable the Commiſſioners of his Majeſtys Cuſtoms leave Caſtle William this Week: Preparations are making to hold their Board in Town as heretofore.

The owners of the Upper Mills in Hartford, give this public notice, that they have ſet up a hand bolt, and conveniencies to cool flour before 'tis bolted: the bolt is exactly as fine as what makes the city flour in New-York; and as it may be put up much cheaper here than at that city, it may ſoon be made a good branch of buſineſs, and ſave to the colony the ſums of mony which other governments make by manufacturing our wheat, all to the advantage both of the trader and farmer. And as frequent complaints have been made to the owners of ſaid mills, that the inhabitants were obliged to go out of town for grinding where they ſay they can have much more and better flower——to prevent every thing of ſuch nature, the mills will now be taken into the hands of the owners, who will ſee to it that as much and as good flower be made there as in any other town, and the cuſtomers may be aſſured the grinding and treatment will be good; and for the benefit of thoſe who do not raiſe grain, it is intended that flour wheat, meſlin, rye, and indian corn, ſhall be there to be ſold ſteadily, and one of the family attend to deliver, as people ſhall want.

Hartford, Nov. 5. 1768.

Whereas RUTH, the Wife of me the Subſcriber, hath for ſome Time paſt Miſbehaved herſelf towards me, by imprudently running me in Debt, with a View as I apprehend wholly to ruin me and my Family, and threatens further to invole me.

These are therefore to forewarn all Perſons not to deal with, nor Truſt her on my Account, for I hereby declare, I will Pay no Debt of her Contracting after this Time.

And forbid any Perſons indebted to me, to Settle with, or Pay any thing to ſaid Ruth, after this Time, as I ſhall not allow thereof.

AZARIAH SMITH.

The owners of the Upper Mills in Hartford, give this public notice, that they have ſet up a hand bolt, and conveniencies to cool flour before 'tis bolted: the bolt is exactly as fine as what makes the city flour in New-York; and as it may be put up much cheaper here than at that city, it may ſoon be made a good branch of buſineſs, and ſave in the colony the ſums of mony which other governments make by manufacturing our wheat, all to the advantage both of the trader and farmer. And as frequent complaints have been made to the owners of ſaid mills, that the inhabitants were obliged to go out of town for grinding where they ſay they can have much more and better flower——to prevent every thing of ſuch nature, the mills will now be taken into the hands of the owners, who will ſee to it that as much and as good flower be made there as in any other town, and the cuſtomers may be aſſured the grinding and treatment will be good; and for the benefit of thoſe who do not raiſe grain, it is intended that flour wheat, meſlin, rye, and indian corn, ſhall be there to be ſold ſteadily, and one of the family attend to deliver, as people ſhall want.

To be ſold by the ſubſcriber in Middletown,

A Dwelling-Houſe with Barn garden &c. next the river oppoſite Capt. Samuel Willis's, and between thirty and forty acres of paſture and meadow land, with ſome Negro's, on reaſonable terms. By

ALMANACK,
For the Year 1769.

LONDON, Sept. 2.

SUNDAY evening a lady of quality, weſtward, loſt upwards of a thouſand guineas at Loo

They write from Quebec, that ſeven New-England whale ſloops have been loſt this ſeaſon among the ice in Davis's Streights.

The Lords of the Admiralty have been pleaſed to appoint Alexander Symſon, Eſq; to be Judge of the Vice Admiralty Courts of his Majeſty's Iſlands of Greneda, the Grenadines, St. Vincent, Dominica, and Tobago in America; in the room of William Pringle Eſq; deceaſed.

The loſs of a certain Government, we are told, will be made up to a celebrated Officer by an Iriſh Peerage, and a valuable ſinecure in this kingdom.

Lord Bute is expected to arrive from the Continent before the expiration of the preſent month.

Sir George Macartney, we hear, is ſpeedily to be advanced to a Britiſh Peerage.

Thurſday Col. Pattiſon took leave of his Majeſty at St. James's on his departure for Venice, being appointed to the rank of General, to aſſiſt in new diſciplining the troops of that State It is ſaid the reaſon of this Officer being ſent to the Republic, is, that they have reſolved to aſſiſt the Corſicans.

The beſt Foxhunter now in Ireland, is a Right Rev. Father of the Church in that kingdom.

Thurſday evening there fell one of the moſt ſevereſt ſtorms of rain, accompanied with wind, thunder, and lightning, that hath been remembered, which hath done conſiderable damage in ſeveral places. It continued with little intermiſſion from 5 o'clock till paſt 11, at which time it poured down Highgate hill in ſuch manner that the road could not be croſſed with ſafety; and yeſterday morning all the flat part of the road at Hollaway and fields adjacent were overflown. And about 2 o'clock yeſterday morning the water came down in ſuch torrents from Hampſtead, &c. that the road and flat fields about Bagnigge Wells were overflown; the water roſe upwards of eight feet perpendicular above the uſual height of the drain, and was near four feet above the bridge at that houſe, the pleaſure gardens, cellars, and outhouſes belonging thereto were overflown, and ſeveral of the pales broken down by the violence of the ſtream. Three young men were ſurprized by the flood ſleeping in an outhouſe, ſaid to belong to a Tile kiln, two of whom were drowned; their bodies were found, and taken to the Blue Lyon Alehouſe in Gray's Inn Road.

Thurſday night the Serpentine river in Hyde Park overflowed its banks (occaſioned by the great quantity of rain that fell that day, and in the evening) [illegible] the inundation was ſo violent, that it [illegible] the lower par s of the houſes near the [illegible] at Knightſbridge to the height of ſix or ſev[illegible] feet with water; waſhed down one houſe, [illegible] the poor woman that lived in it is [illegible] and damaged ſeveral others. The wat[illegible] continued ſo high yeſterday as to prevent [illegible] paſſing; and a number of carts were employed for the conveniency of carrying [illegible] thro' the water. Great damage is [illegible] done at Chelſea by the ſaid inundation.

Sept 5 Very ſpeedy [illegible] in the Adminiſtration are much talked of; viz. that the Lord Chancellor, Lord [illegible], and Lord Shelburne will ſoon [illegible] account of a late affair: and that Lord [illegible] is to be appointed Secretary of [illegible]. It is added, that a certain late Governor and great Military Commander will have an Iriſh Peerage and a valuable ſinecure in England.——These are mentioned, only as reports, for the truth of which we cannot anſwer.

Some approaching changes in the Navy and War officers, are [illegible] talked of at the Weſt end of the Town.

The river Thames [illegible] yeſterday's morning tide, to ſuch an [illegible] height, occaſioned by the late heavy [illegible] as has ſcarce ever been known in [illegible].

It is ſaid that plain regimentals will be adopted by all our land forces, in order to ſave the vaſt expence of lace to ſubaltern officers.

Sunday the Pope's niece and her attendants were at the Quakers meeting in Gracechurch ſtreet; they ſtaid there above an hour, and much pleaſed at the Friends preachment.

Wedneſday two merchant ſhips were taken up in the river on Government contract to carry over artillery and ſtores, for the ſettlement of St. John's Iſland near Newfoundland.

The duties of goods imported, and enter'd at the Cuſtom Houſe during the courſe of laſt week, amounted to upwards of 220 000l.

It is ſaid that his Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury propoſes to make great alterations in his palace at Croydon.

It is ſaid an Act of Grace will be paſſed ſoon after the meeting of an auguſt Aſſembly.

It is now ſtrongly reported that a tax will be laid very ſpeedily on all public diverſions.

A few days ago a ſchoolmaſter of this city, a great enemy to idleneſs, thinking the old copy, "Lazineſs will cloath a man with rags," not ſufficient correct, altered it, and gave it to one of his ſcholars thus: "Lazineſs will cloath a man with nakedneſs,"

The damage done by the late inundations in the neighbourhood of the Metropolis amounts to 40,000l.

They write from Leghorn, that Gen. Paoli had very narrowly eſcaped being taken priſoner by a reconoitring party of the French, led on by a Corſican deſerter, whom the commanding officer had bribed with a large ſum of money.

Letters from Leghorn of the 19th ſay that the Corſicans are increaſing the number of their privateers conſiderably; but theſe letters further add, that beſides the Geneoſe, thoſe brave Iſlanders will now have the French, Spaniards, and Neapolitans, for their enemies.

Private advices from Genoa inform, that it was daily expected the French would ſet a price upon General Paoli's head.

A letter from Rome, dated Auguſt 17, ſays, the weather was then ſo exceſſive hot there, that the like had not been known for twenty years; and that moſt of the barometers had burſt by the preſſure of the liquor.

Yeſterday at a numerous extraordinary meeting of the Royal Society, his Daniſh Majeſty was by Ballot unanimouſly elected a member of the ſame.

In the laſt Edinburgh Advertiſer is the following, Extract of a Letter from London.——"Yeſterday it was reported, that the people of Boſton had taken Governor Bernard priſoner. The report of to-day is, that by a veſſel from Boſton juſt arrived, all was quiet on the 24th of July; but, as nothing elſe has tranſpired, it gains no credit. People in general ſeems much diſſatiſfied with the behaviour of the Boſtonians. How theſe things will end, time only will determine ? many people think it will not terminate without bloodſhed: but I hope they will be miſtaken."

On Friday laſt an illuſtrious Prince was walking in the Park, a Fille de Joye clung about his neck, crying out, "My pretty dear K—&c."—her ladyſhip was ſent to Tothill-fields Bridewel.

Sept. 1. The King of Denmark has at preſent a ſtanding army of 80 000 of as fine troops as any in Europe; which, at his departure from Copenhagen, were put on half pay, about five farthings Engliſh each day per man.

Sept. 6. Within theſe few days a young lady entitled when at age to a fortune of 20,000l. has abſconded with a muſician at a concert; and they are ſuppoſed to be gone off together for Scotland.

A facetious Correſpondent informs us, that the reaſon given for our Engliſh Poſt Chaiſes ſo often breaking down with the K—g of D—k, is, that when they were built it was not ſuppoſed they would be employed in carrying Perſons of ſo great weight.

A certain great Perſonage having aſked another great Perſonage for his Permiſſion to give a Maſquerade, was anſwered, "I have no Objection, but how will you ſatisfy our Biſhops ?" To which he replied, "Sir, I will ſend them all Tickets."

A perſon arrived in Town from Great Marlow, in Buckinghamſhire ſays, that the Thames, by the heavy rains, had ſo much overflowed the Banks, that the navigation of the river was ſtopped ; that great quantities of barley, mowed down in ſeveral low fields, were obliged to be carried to the upper grounds ; and that yeſterday a number of men were employed in mowing down fields of barley up to their knees in water, for the preſervation of ſo valuable a crop, which muſt however, be greatly damaged.

WILLIAMSBURG, October 27.

On Tueſday laſt arrived at Hampton, in his Majeſty's ſhip the Rippon, of 60 guns commanded by ——— Thompſon, Eſq; his Excellency the Right Hon. NORBORNE, Baron de BOTETOURT, his Majeſty's Lieut. and Governor General of the colony and dominion of Virginia, and Vice Admiral of the ſame. Yeſterday evening his Excellency arrived in this city, and was received at the capital gate by his Majeſty's council, the ſpeaker of the houſe of Burgeſſes, the Attorney General, the Treaſurer, the gentlemen of the bar, &c. and was immediately conducted to the council chamber, where his commiſſions were read & he qualified for his adminiſtration by taking the uſual oaths. His Excellency, with the Honourable council, and many other gentlemen, ſpent the Evening at the Raleigh. The city was handſomely illuminated, and every demonſtration of joy ſhewn by all ranks, that ſuch ſhort notice would admit of.

The humble Addreſs of the Council.

My Lord.

WE his Majeſty's dutiful and faithful ſubjects the Council of Virginia, beg leave to congratulate your Excellency upon your appointment to this government, and to expreſs our joy at the pleaſing event of your ſafe arrival in the colony.

Permit us at the ſame time to acknowledge the wiſdom and goodneſs of our moſt gracious ſovereign ; which have determined him to make choice of a nobleman of your Excellency's many eminent virtues and diſtinguiſhed abilities to rule over, & to reſide among us ; and as an earneſt of the ſincerity of theſe profeſſions, we deſire to aſſure your Excellency that, as it is our duty, it ſhall alſo be our ſtudy, within our department, to render your adminiſtration acceptable to the beſt of King's ; honourable, agreeable and eaſy to yourſelf, and productive of the happineſs and proſperity of his Majeſty's loyal people of this dominion : of this diſpoſition we ſhall be ſolicitous to give proofs on all occaſions, in full confidence, that while we keep in view theſe important objects, and ſteadily purſue them, we may humbly hope for ſome ſmall ſhare of the royal favour and good opinion ; the higheſt mark of honour to which our endeavours ſhall be invariably directed.

To which his Excellency was pleaſed to return the following Anſwer.

Gentlemen of the Council,

YOUR expreſſions of loyalty and duty to our gracious ſovereign give me the greateſt ſatiſfaction, and I can with truth aver, that every thing I have ſeen and heard ſince I landed in Virginia, has been pleaſing in the higheſt degree. Your ſtyle of acceptance of me for your governor is moſt flattering from myſelf I have nothing to offer but good intentions, but on this you may depend, that if I have the good fortune to anſwer the purpoſes of my Royal maſter, you will be happy indeed,

His Excellency has publiſhed two proclamations, one for the continuance of all officers of government, till further orders, the other for diſſolving the aſſembly, mentioning that he ſhall [illegible] for a new one, as ſoon as the council ſhall adviſe.

NEW-YORK, November 18.

On Thurſday night the 3d inſtant the ſhop window of Mr. Gerardus Beekman, merchant at Albany was broke open and about 100l. in Money taken out. Two of the villains had taken paſſage on board of an Albany ſloop for New York, and were apprehended on Tueſday night laſt, about 14 miles down the river, and carried back to Albany goal, where they are confined. They are two Iriſhmen, who have had their reſidence in Albany for ſome years as ſervants to gentlemen of that city.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.

We hear that a young man belonging to a Connecticut Veſſel inward bound, who was preſſed ſome time ago by one of the arm'd ſchooners bound to Halifax, was laſt week diſcharged upon the firſt application made to Commodore Hood.

We hear the ſenior claſs at Harvard college, have unanimouſly agreed to take their degrees next commencement dreſſed in black cloth of the manufacture of this country.

HARTFORD, November 28.

Yeſterday afternoon his Excellency Gen. GAGE came to town from Boſton, attended by his aids de camp, and ſeveral other Officers ; and this morning he proceeded on his way for New-York.

We have received authentic intelligence from Springfield, that the rumour of a robbery having been lately perpetrated there, attended with many circumſtances of cruelty and inhumanity, is entirely groundleſs and falſe—That the ſuppoſed ſufferer was, on Thurſday laſt, before the Hon. John Worthington, Eſq; on a full examination and hearing, when he was convicted of making and ſpreading falſe reports, in this particular, with intent to abuſe and deceive his Majeſty's good ſubjects ; and ſentenced to pay ſuch fine as the ſtatute of the province in that caſe provides.

Springfield, Nov. 21. On Tueſday the 8th inſt Mr. Thomas Stebbins, Moſes Cooley, & James Parker, of this place, were taking up an old well ; they had dug about 14 feet, when they obſerved the dirt on one ſide ſeemed to be coming in, Mr. Stebbins being on a ſcaffold near the top of the well jump'd out, the other two were immediately buried in the dirt, about a foot over their heads, the ſcaffold (which was of thick boards) at the ſame time falling in, in a great meaſure prevented the earth from preſſing againſt the men, and Mr. Stebbins knowing the particular place in which they ſtood, was able in a few minutes to uncover them, otherwiſe they muſt unavoidably have periſhed. The reaſon of the dirt's falling in was their not digging ſo far round as the well was formerly dug ; which may ſerve as a hint to people who have occaſion to take up their wells to be careful that the ſecond digging extend as far as the firſt.

All perſons having demands on the eſtate of Hezekiah Collyer late of Hartford, deceaſed, are hereby notified that attendance will be given by the ſubſcribers at the houſe of the widow Jennet Collyer, in Hartford, on the firſt ſecond and third Thurſdays of December next to receive and adjuſt accounts. And all perſons indebted to ſaid eſtate, are deſired to make immediate payment.

Your printing the Old Farmer's addreſs, &c. (See Courant, No. 194. 200.) gives me reaſon to think you will be impartial, and print this in your inſtructive Paper, or Papers, and you will oblige one of your conſtant Cuſtomers.

To the OLD FARMER.

YOU have been very early in warning your party, who build their meeting-houſes, and ſupport their orthodoxy with money they rob other churches of——for juſt before the time come on for chooſing aſſembly men, the old Farmer crawls out from his burrow, in a place of great obſcurity, to inform the public of 80 years experience, of the good that he has enjoyed by living upon other people's money, and with a ſpirit of liberty cry's aloud, O ! miſeri cives——Who is on my ſide ? who——there is in aliquis latet error——equo ne credite——O ye ſons of liberty——in ſhort, the churches of orthodoxy are in danger, the prieſts thereof are like to looſe their bread, and wear garments of ſcandal by right down poverty, if the law of Connecticut which now forces New-Lights to ſupport what is called orthodox miniſtry, ſhould be repealed ; therefore I timeo danaos, ſtand upon your watch and [illegible] ſent us at this critical time, an affair pregnant with importance is upon the carpet ! ne audite quereta ! alas ! the New Lights have put in memorials to the General Aſſembly, to be releaſed from that wholeſome, oppreſſive law which now obliges them to ſupport us, the orthodox miniſters ; and they plead conſcience, the law of nature, and the wicked lenity, which our aſſembly have allowed churchmen, quakers and baptiſts, &c.—— Upon this the Old Farmer groans—— I fear the event ! religion and holy ſabbath day are nigh death's door ! hence you ſee the great neceſſity that we the orthodox party are under, of chooſing men of the beſt characters among us, the orthodox party——for ſuch men will not lift up their hands to repeal that wholeſome oppreſſive tythe law ; for their intereſt and affinity with us, and conſanguinity with us, and the orthodox counſellors, will prevent doing equal juſtice to poor New-Lights. As to Quakers, Churchmen and Baptiſts.——Therefore make ſtrong your battlements, for we are in danger of loſing our reſpective ſalaries, and then religion and holy ſabbath day muſt go out of doors with the white cap on, and wander weſtward, into a ſecond howling wilderneſs, in ſheepſkins, and goatſkins, until a Ganzabite ſhall induct them anew into ſome holy land.—— This is the ſubſtance of the Old Farmer's addreſs——and this is orthodox Machiaveliſm. Look at Rome, and look at England's tythes, and Connecticut's orthodoxy——alas ! the Old Farmer of 80 years experience, with freedom groans again——being a member of this free corporation ; free to keep juſtice out of doors——free to take New Lights money and pay Old Light miniſters——free to exclaim againſt perſecution, when themſelves are perſecuted——free to uſe other mens property——free to vilify and oppreſs their fellow chriſtians——and free to enjoy an £.100 annuity, or to [illegible] religion and holy ſabbath-day, take the pilgrims progreſs among the Hottentots.——

So much for his freedom——and as much might be ſaid upon his learned orthodoxy, whoſe learning has made him mad ; for the poor old creature is alarmed, and ſo are many better men. And what is it for ? O ! our ſalaries are like to pine away, and expreſſed by a borrowed [illegible], religion and ſabbath, are to be turned out of doors. (if our ſalaries ſtop from the New Light party, might be added, as well underſtood) The plebity were ſuppoſed by the Old Farmer by his outcry, alſo to be alarmed, and cry out Liberty and Property, religion and holy ſabbath ! we will ſupport a learned miniſtry, at all venture ! and if it deſtroys the eſſential liberties of New Lights no matter for that, for they are but a ſmall [illegible], and without friends on earth ! we will ſupport a learned orthodox miniſtry, by an iniquity, for in ſo doing, we have religion and ſabbath too !

The Old Farmer had [illegible] in view, when he wrote his two epiſtles his fancy is truly creative, and his head is more prolific than [illegible] twins two fold, viz. religion, holy ſabbath——learned orthodox——ſalary, miniſtry——when Jupiter's head, with all the help of Vulcan, delivered but one luſty boy. Now you ſilly mortals, ſaith the Farmer, which of theſe two evils ſhall depart this religious colony ? one muſt go, religion and ſabbath day, or the rights and properties of the New Lights——no doubt but that you will appoint the latter to be the pilgrim——for you know that England tax America, and eat and drink the benefit of ſuch taxation ; and by the ſame rule that they impoſe taxes upon us unjuſtly, and without law, or humanity ; we will, and in fact do tax New Lights. But our fear is how we can continue this evil, or this law of grievance ? O ! I will tell you of my party——chooſe ſuch men your repreſentatives, of ſuch eminent characters as hate juſtice, and equity, and New Lights ; and ſuch will not allow this pious oppreſſive law to be repealed, ſo we ſhall be able to continue this legal robbery, and ſet under our old vines and eat the ſpoil of men ; and ſo collect our rates of New Lights, (no leſs than £.7000 a year) who have no religion, and regard not the ſabbath day, and whoſe conſciences is not to be heeded by us, unleſs we part with religion and ſabbath, and join our backs to our mother poverty. New Lights ſhall pay tythes to us, reaſon or not, come or ſtay ; their teachers have no authority to preach ; they may hear us, for ſciſm is a bad thing ; it is condemned by Paul, pray hear the Tory party, teach the orthodox miniſtry of Connecticut ? You be ſciſmaticks ; ſciſm is bad, &c. Come to church, conſcience or not ; you ſhall pay tythes, whether you hear us or not. 'Twas this intollerent, ſpiritual cruelty which grieved the conſciences of our forefathers, and cauſed them to ſeperate from the church of England ; And can you, Old Farmer, think New Lights, their true born ſons have departed from this early American principle, and that they have not, as good conſciences as their forefathers in this ſavage wilderneſs ? truly their practice and doctrine, are not the reverſe of the Plymouth ſettlers, To conclude, I ſee no great difference between orthodox Connecticut tything of New-Lights money and the venerable epiſcopal tything of all Lights money in England ; except in what I deſign to finiſh with at this time. In the mean while, I hope at this time of high liberty claiming, that intollerable conſcience breaking, eſpiſcopizing, tythgathering of other mens money, will not be continued any longer in Connecticut, which is the ſeed plot of pure liberty. You, Old Farmer, may rejoice and flatter again, we are not ſeared yet, ſo as to withdraw our petitions from the h[illegible] Aſſembly, which we truſt is compoſed of [illegible] above your ſly adulation, being as capable of judging righteouſly as if none of your party were there. Their duty is to ſet the oppreſſed free. Your joy is founded upon the thoughts of your party ſtrength, but I grieve that any oppreſſive tempers compoſe or help in ſuch an houſe of equity. I hope your joy will ſoon fade away and my joy continue and increaſe by an actual repeal of that law, which the very light of nature forbids an exiſtence. I am truly thankful and rejoice that your principle is ſo ſcarce in America, and that American Tories are ſo juſtly diſregarded by their moſt & right reverend ſhepherds in England ; and that you, the Baptiſts, Quakers, and even lay Tories, are exempted from paying tythes of pigs, and geeſe and women, to them enormous feeders, and I would to God and my conſcience, that the New Lights were exempted in like manner from thoſe inſatiable tygers, whoſe mouths are innumerable, whoſe ſtomachs and appetites are ten fold more voracious, than [illegible] ancient or modern wolves. [illegible] es, &c.

LONDON, Sept. 1.

Extract of a letter from Leghorn, Aug. 18.

"WE are told here, that [illegible] are ſoon likely to [illegible] their appearance in Corſica that the Ma[illegible] de Chauvelin, on his arrival, will publiſh letters patent, in the King's name, inviting the inhabitants to acknowledge the dominion of his Majeſty, and to ſubmit thereto, in conſequence of the right of ſovereignty which has been ceded to him by the republic of Genoa ; and that if this invitation ſhould have no effect the war will become very hot in the iſland. It muſt be allowed in general that the French have a great advantage over the Corſicans, as all their warlike implements, and particularly their artillery, much ſurpaſs that of the others : and beſides, by a ſuperiority of marine, they are in poſſeſſion of the beſt ports of the iſland ; ſo that it will be very eaſy for them to get from Provence every thing they ſtand in need of From all theſe circumſtances it may be concluded, that if the Corſicans are not aſſiſted by ſome foreign power, they will be obliged to ſubmit ; and, if they have no hopes of receiving ſuch aſſiſtance, the ſooner (perhaps) they do it, the better."

Vienna, Sept. 3. It is certain that the Emperor will return hither the 8th of this month, where his preſence is judged neceſſary, there being ſome important affairs on the Tapis.

The miniſter of the King of Pruſſia hath demanded an audience of the Empreſs Queen, which will be given him to morrow.

Cologne, Sept. 9. According to a Letter from Italy, the differences ariſen between the court of Rome and them and the Duke of Modena are in a way of accommodation.

Legh. Aug. 26 An affair has happened here, which may be probably attended with very ſerious conſequences.——A Daniſh merchant ſhip, called the Eſperance, failed from this port a few days ago, with a deſign, according to the Captain's account to proceed to Marſeilles ; an Engliſh General, and two gentlemen of the ſame nation were on board. Scarce was the veſſel got out of the port, when a French Chebeck purſued it in great haſte, and came up with it the next day.—The French Commander then compelled the Engliſh gentlemen, with all the crew to go on board, and after interrogating them he ſent ſome of his own people on board the Daniſh veſſel with orders to make ſtrict ſearch there, which they did by opening all the cheſts, trunks, boxes, packets, and letters, in order to diſcover the true deſtination of the ſhip. We know not yet whether they met with any thing to ſatisfy their curioſity, tho' theſe proceedings laſted four hours.——The Captain of the Chebeck then ſet the Daniſh veſſel and all their crew at liberty, telling the maſter he might proceed to any port he pleaſed ; excepting Corſica, adding that in conformity to the King's orders he ſhould treat every ſhip in the ſame manner that dare approach that iſle

L O N D O N, Sept. 1, 1768.

From the King of Pruſſia's forming ſo many magazines, and increaſing his forces, it is conjectured that he is apprehenſive of the houſe of Auſtria's renewing it's old pretenſions to Sileſia ; and that it was on this account his Majeſty was induced to make ſatisfaction to his ſubjects in that province for the loſſes ſuſtained by them during the late war, which was a moſt maſterly ſtroke of policy to ſecure their future allegiance in caſe of a new war, as [illegible] ude will bind them to exert their utmoſt [illegible] of his Majeſty's government.

[illegible] write from Berlin, that his Pruſſian [illegible] has given orders for recruiting parties [illegible] to Hamburgh, Bremen, and different [illegible] of Germany, to enliſt men, and buy [illegible] for their ſervice.

[illegible] afternoon, about 3 o'clock a [illegible] eight feet in length made in India, [illegible] to England in pieces at different [illegible] as a preſent to his Majeſty, was launched [illegible] (where it has been put to [illegible] by Mr. Bodman) and rowed to Rich[illegible] by their men with paddles. Its form [illegible] that of a peacock, moſt beautifully painted. The boat itſelf coſt three hundred pounds, & its furniture three thouſand. A number of wherries, and other ſmall boats, were rowed on each ſide, in order to prevent the paint from being rubbed off by any other veſſel coming too cloſe to it.

We can aſſure our readers that a match has been propoſed between a foreign nobleman (the favourite of a great perſonage now on a viſit to this kingdom) and the eldeſt daughter to an Engliſh Earl, remarkable for the elegance of her perſon ; but we hear it has been declined on the part of the young lady.

They adviſe from Baſſora, that the Engliſh have formed a deſign of poſſeſſing themſelves of the Iſle of Karee. The ſhipping they had upon the Tigris are ſeized on this expedition It is aſſured, that Kerim Kan, Regent of Perſia, has engaged to furniſh them with a body of 9000 men.

It is thought that there are of all countries, a million foreigners in this kingdom ; if therefore the inhabitants are but about ſeven millions, muſt not proviſions be advanced full one eighth by this great acceſſion of foreigners ?

There is now an extraordinary pair of twin brothers at Lowmarket, a village in Wiltſhire, who will not be ten years old till the 1ſt of November, yet one is 5 feet 9 inches, and the other within an half inch of ſix feet.

Prince Henry of Pruſſia, brother to his Pruſſian Majeſty, who arrived in London laſt Friday ſe'nnight, is eſteemed by the military in general, to be one of the greateſt Commanders of the age ; Some have not ſcrupled to rank him beyond the King his brother, as being poſſeſſed of all the intrepidity, penetration preſence of mind, and other warlike accompliſhments, which characterize the monarch, but happily tempered with that equally requiſite coolneſs and prudence, which the fiery ſpirit of the King, in the heat of action, ſometimes impels him to burſt thro' to the moſt imminent hazard of himſelf and army.—We do not doubt but this hero like Prince Henry, in a nation of heroes like our own, will be received and entertained with that cordiality admiration, and reſpect, which may be naturally expected from affections ſo truly homogenial.——If ſuch a man was to head the Malcontents of an injured inſulted nation, what conſequences might follow !

Yeſterday ſome ſubaltern officers, of the marching regiment of Scotch Highlanders, arrived in town and attended at the war office. Their uniform is very neat, and Compact, conſiſting of ſhort coats or Jackets of good ſcarlet cloth and a neat narrow edging of ſilver lace with bonnets and black feathers ; and we are informed they are not as yet fully embodied, but are thought to be deſigned for America.

Sept 6 Friday morning the piece of water, made by his late royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland at Windſor lodge, known by the name of the Virginia water, broke down its banks, and deſtroyed great part of the wheat ſheaf, a public houſe at that place, and carried away another houſe called the hut totally deſtroyed the furniture &c. in both of them, it likewiſe waſhed down ſeveral trees, and ſwept away all the corn that was cut down. The whole town of Tharp was under water, as well as the barns, which were ſtored with the laſt crop The town of Chertſey, and ſeveral villages through which the water flowed, have received incredible damage.

Wedneſday General Murray, brother to Lord Elibank, ſet out for Ireland in order to join his regiment there, & to proceed with the forces from thence to North-America.

It is reported that a gentleman, who has been very ill treated by a particular miniſter, ſent the latter, on Wedneſday laſt, a challenge ; but that inſtead of anſwering it like a man of courage, the trembling miniſter found means to anſwer it like a man in power.

Both the tenor and purport of all the late diſpatches from America, is, That the coloniſts will never give up their liberties.

CHARLES-TOWN, (So. Carolina)

November 1.

About 3 o'Clock on Saturday Afternoon, his Excellency the Right Honourable Lord Charles Greville Montagu, our Governor, with his Lady, &c. returned here by Land from the Northward. His Lordſhip was ſaluted on his Landing, by the Fort in Town and at Fort-Johnſon.

We learn that John Stuart Eſq; Superintendant of Indian Affairs, has finiſhed the congreſs with the Cherokee Indians: having concluded the Treaty ratifying the boundary line between their lands and the Provinces of South-Carolina, North-Carolina, and Virginia ; but they have put off making the Line behind Virginia till next ſpring ; and that the Superintendant was ſoon to ſet out for Mr. Galpin's at Silver-Bluff, in order to meet ſundry of the principal Chiefs of the Creek indians.

We learn from Dominica, that all the French Ports are ſhut up, & that no Engliſh Veſſels are admitted to go into any of them.

New-York, December 1.

Extract of a Letter from Montreal, dated October 29.

" Major Roger's Trial cloſed this Day : It held ten Days, and I dare ſay, he will be very honorably acquitted. In the Courſe of the Trial, it appeared the Proſecution was formed from the utmoſt Prejudice and Malice, and entirely ill-grounded ; and tho' it is allowed that from his Indifference and Careleſsneſs, upon ſome Occaſions, his Conduct was ſuch, as gave Room for ſome trifling Suſpicion ; yet the Puniſhment, and moſt unheard of baſe Treatment he met with in his Confinement, was enough for one of the greateſt Malefactors to have met with ; we cannot however know the full reſult of the Court Martial till it comes from New-York.

Friday laſt 25,000 Dollars was ſhipped on board Capt. Langworthy's Sloop in this Harbour ; they are to be landed at Providence, and from thence to be forwarded by Land for Boſton, for the Uſe of his Majeſty's Troops now quartered in that City.

All perſons having demands on the eſtate of Hezekiah Collyer late of Hartford, deceaſed, are hereby notified that attendance will be given by the ſubſcribers at the houſe of the widow Jennet Collyer, in Hartford, on the firſt, ſecond and third Thurſdays of December next to receive and adjuſt accounts. And all perſons indebted to ſaid eſtate, are deſired to make immediate payment.

By ſeveral Veſſels arrived at BOSTON, ſince our laſt, there is the following Advices, Viz.

LONDON, Sept. 22, 1768.

YESTERDAY there was a levee at St James's, and afterward there was a Privy Council, ſaid to be on account of ſome diſpatches received from the Governors in N. America.

Sept. 20. The ſecret diſpatches lately received from America, are not of ſuch a nature as was imagined, to require the immediate meeting of the Council.

It is thought that the preſent ſituation of American affairs will produce ſome revolutions, as important to government, as ever took place.

Sept. 22. The politicians at the weſt end of the town now talk of a war with France as inevitable, and that will ſpread over Europe more general than the laſt, and that but few ſtates can avoid being involved in it.

Some letters from Paris, mention it as a report, that propoſals had been ſent to court by Gen. Paoli for ceding the whole iſland of Corſica to the French King, on certain conditions,

It is ſtrongly reported, from very good authority, that a certain great man in the miniſtry, who not only ſtands high in the high opinion of the people of Great-Britain, but likewiſe of the Americans in General (to whom he has already ſhewn ſome friendſhip) has a plan to lay before an auguſt aſſembly that meets in November next for the diſpatch of buſineſs, that will in all probability be the means of reſtoring that perfect friendſhip and harmony between Great-Britain & her Colonies, which muſt naturally be the ſincere wiſh of every loyal ſubject to our beſt of Kings.

Sept. 23. We hear that an interview between the Duke of G-----d and General Amherſt, the latter demanded, as a reward of his prowеſs and atchievements in the conqueſt of America, 1. A Britiſh Peerage, and a reverſion for his brother. 2. An American Peerage, if ſuch be created, and that he be the firſt.—

3. The Coal mines of Cape-Breton, which are preferable to any eſtate in England 4, A grant of land in America.

B O S T O N, December 1.

The Command of the Troops in this Town, now devolves on Brigadier General Pomroy, Colonel of the 64th Regiment.

Wedneſday morning Lieut. Colonel Dalrymple, of the 14th Regiment, ſet out for New-York ; as alſo Capt. Montreſour, Deputy Barrack-Maſter, &c.

Thurſday laſt arrived here one of the tranſports with troops from Cork.—Another with Colonel Mackay, and the other field officers of the 65th regiment, is ſtill miſſing.

We hear the Rippon man of war, of 60 guns is expected here from Virginia.

Laſt week a court martial was held on board his Majeſty's ſhip Mermaid, for the trial of ſome ſailors for deſertion ; two were ſentenced to be flogged from ſhip to ſhip, and another is condemned to be hanged.

Thurſday laſt a man was tried here before the Superior Court, for ſeducing a ſoldier to deſert, and was acquitted.

It is ſaid that a number of paſſengers intended coming over with Capt. Dunn, but were prevented by the reports of the commotions in New-England.

It is reported that Auguſtus Johnſon, Eſq; late Attorney-General of Rhode-Iſland, is to ſucceed the Hon. Edgerton Leigh, Eſq ; as Judge of the Admiralty for South-Carolina, with a Salary of £. 500 Sterling per Annum.

It is alſo reported, that Jared Ingerſoll, Eſq ; of New-Haven, is appointed another of theſe Judges for ſome part of America.—And that there will be four in all, the two other places will be filled by gentlemen belonging to this province.

From a late paper bro't by Captain Dunn,

As we have been favoured, by a gentleman of character, with the following very material piece of intelligence, we take this earlieſt opportunity of laying it before the public.

BOS. CHRON.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Bergen in Norway, to his correſpondent in Leith, dated Auguſt 22, 1768.

" A few days ago arrived here, 7 ſail of French Iceland fiſhermen, part of a fleet of 70 ſail, who, on their ſtation off Iceland, were boarded by a French ſhip of war, with orders for them immediately to make the beſt of their way to France, for that war with England was juſt on the point of being declared. There are ſeveral more of the Fleet arrived in the river, and ſeveral others put in to the northern ports of this kingdom."

HARTFORD, December 5.

Yeſterday Connecticut-River was ſo hard Froſe, that ſeveral Perſons croſs'd it on the Ice—and we hear that a large Number of Veſſels, now in the River, bound to different Parts of the Weſt-Indies, having moſt of their Cargoes on Board, have been detained by the Ice ſeveral Days and that ſeveral have been drove aſhore by the Ice at Rocky-Hill, & received conſiderable damage.

Laſt Night came up a very ſevere Storm of Rain, attended with a terrible Gale of Wind at S. E. which has entirely cleared the River of Ice.—We have not yet heard of any Damage being done to any Veſſels now lying in the River by the above Gale of Wind.

We hear from Clavareck, in Dutcheſs County, that laſt Week, two Men in that Place having a Diſpute, one of them having procured a Gun in the Evening, way-laid his Companion, and ſhot a Charge of Buck-ſhot through his Body and he died inſtantly.—The Murderer was immediately apprehended, and committed to Albany Goal.

On the 14th ult. the Effigies of Governor B——d, and Mr. Sheriff G——ſe, of Boſton, were burnt in ſo public a manner, in the City of New York, that Gov. MOORE, has iſſued a proclamation, offering a reward of 50l. for the diſcovery of any one concerned in the management of ſaid affair, ſo they are convicted.

Windham, November 28, 1768.

Whereas the lands formerly purchaſed by the New-England people and others, commonly called the Suſquehannah company, of the Six Nations of Indians, lying on Suſquehannah river, are within the grant made to the Governor and company of the colony of Connecticut in the moſt plain and legal conſtruction thereof. And his Majeſty's prohibition, as to the ſettling thoſe lands, pointing out the diſſatisfaction and diſturbance that ſuch ſettlement might occaſion to theſe Indians, as the only reaſon of ſuch prohibition. And as in conſequence of his Majeſty's order, at the late Congreſs at Fort Stanwix, ſuch precautions have been taken as to obviate any freſh troubles with the Indians—and the Indians being now quieted and ſatisfied, it appears that nothing reaſonable lies in the way againſt the Suſquehannah purchaſer's proceeding to ſettle thoſe lands, purchaſed by them, lying within the line ſettled with the Indians at ſaid Congreſs, as ſoon as conveniently may be.——

THESE are therefore to give notice to ſaid Suſquehannah company, to meet at Hartford, in the colony of Connecticut, on the 28th day of December next, then and there to conſult and act what they ſee fit and convenient, as to carrying on ſuch ſettlement, and any other buſineſs that may be thought proper to be done at ſaid meeting.

The owners of the Upper Mills in Hartford, give this public notice, that they have ſet up a hand bolt, and conveniencies to cool flour before 'tis bolted: the bolt is exactly as fine as what makes the city flour in New York; and as it may be put up much cheaper here than at that city, it may ſoon be made a good branch of buſineſs, and ſave in the colony the ſums of money which other governments make by manufacturing our wheat, all to the advantage both of the trader and farmer. And as frequent complaints have been made to the owners of ſaid mills, that the inhabitants were obliged to go out of town for grinding where they ſay they can have much more and better flower——to prevent every thing of ſuch nature, the mills will now be taken into the hands of the owners, who will ſee to it that as much and as good flower be made there as in any other town, and the cuſtomers may be aſſured the grinding and treatment will be good; and for the benefit of thoſe who do not raiſe grain, it is intended that flour, wheat, meſlin, rye, and indian corn, ſhall be there to be ſold ſteadily, and one of the family attend to deliver, as people ſhall want.

To the PRINTER.

THE expiring advocates for American Independance have now relinquiſhed all argument, and applied themſelves to the apprehenſions of the people of England deſpairing of being able any longer to hoodwink their underſtandings, or impoſe upon their credulity. They are now ſaid to be no longer Britiſh ſubject, but ſubjects on the ſame footing with the people of Hanover; that is, ſubjects to the ſame King with the people of Great-Britain: Their pretences to rights as fellow ſubjects and Britons is therefore at an end, and the diſguiſe of poverty and oppreſſion is no longer to be worn, but the gauntlet of defiance is thrown down, and we are told of their ſtrength and [illegible].

I have known theſe [illegible] long enough to feel no other ſentiments than pity & contempt, now that they have forced me to lay aſide my tenderneſs for them as fellow ſubjects. What ſays your quondam champion; not coerce your colonies? Shall the fleets and armies of Great-Britain, that cruſhed the united power of the houſe of Bourbon, be found unequal to cope with the timid, diſtracted and repoſed Americans? The ſuppoſition is too ridiculous to be dwelt upon: But, ſay their advocates, you deſtroy yourſelves by deſtroying them: That we can deſtroy them, however, is certain; and if they oblige us to do it, we muſt conſider, in the beſt manner we can, how the reſulting miſchief is to be warded off. They owe Great Britain three millions. Our ſtate is not ſo diſtreſſed but the public can take that ſum upon itſelf, and diſcharge the merchants demands. But our trade will be diminiſhed, ſay they, and our manufacturers ſtarved. This does not ſeem to follow. Should the act prohibiting the planting tobacco in England be repealed, a great number of hands would find employment in that culture. More than a third of the ſhips, called Britiſh, now in our ports, are American. When they were no longer permitted to be employed, our trade of ſhip building would revive; the fiſheries would again people the weſtern coaſt of Britain, when the Americans were excluded from the branches of Newfoundland. Many other branches of our trade, which the colonies have run away with, would return to us. Before we engaged in the ſmuggling trade with the Spaniſh territories in the Weſt Indies, we had twenty-two conſiderable Britiſh houſes in Cadiz; now we have only two. The ſum is, Great-Britain maintained her rank in Europe before ſhe had colonies, and could do it ſtill if ſhe had none. This I know is languge fit for Engliſhmen to hold; and it is by holding it that our colonies will be brought to ſee their error, and implore Great-Britain not to caſt them off for ever.

Mr. Cuſhing's letter to Mr. De Berdt has convinced me of the propriety of this language. It is plain that letter, though called a private letter, was writ with a purpoſe of publication. The Aſſembly had been diſolved, and thereby prevented from tranſmitting their forty-one humble petitions; ſo the Speaker was to endeavour to alarm the Britiſh manufacturers with his fears. But it wont do, my old acquaintance. We ſerved you too long to be impoſed upon by your vaunts. We have not got a G——l C——y now for our American Miniſter. The noble Earl who now conducts that department, is not to be frightned with ſquibs. Lower your tone and he will hear you, and treat you with that tenderneſs and condeſcending humanity peculiar to him; but not upon compulſion; not a ſyllable upon compulſion. Submit to the laws, and then ſtate your grievances. No treaty with ſubjects in arms againſt the laws.

(Thus writes) MENTOR.

Peterſburgh, Auguſt 3.

The day before Yeſterday Lord [illegible], the Britiſh Ambaſſador, had a [illegible] audience of her imperial Majeſty, when he delivered to her his credential Letters.

It appears by divers circumſtances, that ſome delicate and intricate affairs are on the tapis between this Court and the Ottoman Porte relative to the troubles of Poland. It is certain that the miniſtry hath diſpatched lately a courier to the Empreſs's Reſident at Conſtantinople.

Vienna Sept 7. A report is ſpread here, that the Porte had demanded a paſſage for a body of its troops through Tranſylvania, in order to march to Poland; and that the Pope diſguſted at the conſequences of the affair of the Jeſuits and his broil with Parma, intends retiring into a convent. Some even ſay that he has already done it.

Berlin, Sept. 10. Sir Andrew Mitchell, his Britannick Majeſty's Plenipotentiary, has been at Potſdam ſome days, waiting the King of Pruſſia's return from Seliſia. This, and ſome other circumſtances, occaſion many perſons here to believe that there are ſome very important affairs on the tapis between the two Courts.

Leghorn, Aug. 31. The French continue to make great progreſs in Corſica, and are preparing to attack Furiani. The reduction of Nonza is very fatal to the Corſicans, not only on account of thirty of their chiefs being made priſoners there, but becauſe it renders the French maſters of Cape-Corſe, which is the richeſt and moſt commercial part of the whole iſland.

Many of the principal Chiefs of the Corſicans, who have been made priſoners, are tranſported into Provence.

The Marquis de Chauvelin requires all the ſhips of Corſica to bear the arms of France on their colours, and all ſuch as do not conform thereto are, after a certain time, to be conſidered and treated as pirates.

Extract of a letter from Dublin, dated September 1.

" Our Lieutenant-Governor, the Lord Viſcount Townſend and his Lady are the Life of Ireland. His Excellency's tour to different parts of this kingdom took up 25 days, and ſpread univerſal joy whitherſoever he came. Among other places he viſited the late of Killarny, one of the nobleſt beauties of nature in the world. His Excellency has ſpent part of the ſummer at the caſtle of Leixlip, a ſplendid and moſt delightful Retreat, where the Nobility and Gentry for miles round formed brilliant aſſemblies. Here among other entertainments were fine concerts; one of the Entertainments was enlivened by the declamation and action of Lord Townſhend's two Sons, who did great honor to Eaton School, where they received their education. Your London news-papers (to ſpeak in general) give very erroneous accounts of our Iriſh affairs. There will not be above ten or twelve petitions to our Parliament, on conteſted elections. The election for the county of Troyne coſt above 400,000l. and others were no leſs expenſive. However, to the honor of the county of Down, which returns 14 Members, there was not one candidate; all the old Repreſentatives being returned without a farthing expence, there being no oppoſition.

Corke, Sept. 12. On the 8th Inſtant in the evening a melancholy accident happned at the Salt-houſe of Maurice Henneſly, on the Mall; a caſk of powder which had been placed on the counter, thro' ſome means got fire, and mr. Henneſley's ſon and the maid that happened to be near it, were ſo miſerably wounded, that the ſon expired in an hour after, in a ſhocking condition: the ſervant maid died on Saturday. Mr. Henneſley's loſs by this melancholy incident are very extraordinary; the front walls, gates, offices, and ſtable totally razed to the ground and deſtroyed not one ſlate left on any of the linnies and out-works; ſome of them and of the timbers, carried acroſs the river into the fields; all the other back works and walls greatly ſhattered and damaged. He had a conſiderable ſum of money in drawers over a cup-board bed, and in the counter, of which about 23 guineas in gold, and two in ſilver, were found in the rubbiſh.

The intended change of the miniſtry is poſtponed. The price of thoſe who were to ſucceed the preſent was ſo enormous, conſidering what was to be paid to thoſe who were to go out, that it was tho't moſt prudent to wait for better offers.

It is confidently reported, that a great man has actually propoſed the fitting out a large naval force & military, to diſpoſſeſs the French invaders of Corſica.

It is rumoured that Sir Edward Hawke will ſoon ſet out for Portſmouth, to take on him the command of a ſquadron for the Mediterranean.

Letters by the Saturday's mails inform us, that it is not probable the Porte will proceed to extremeties againſt Ruſſia; and that they only mean to demand ſatisfaction of the Ruſſians for having attacked and ſeized the town of Balta in Little Tartary, where ſome Poliſh confederates had taken refuge, ſo that if the court of Ruſſia refuſe not ſatisfaction on this account, all further troubles will be prevented.

We hear that a Society of Jew Merchants are engaged in a contract with general Paoli for the immediate payment of 300 000l. for the future privilege of an excluſive right of the exportation from Corſica of a certain valuable commodity, little known at preſent to be the produce of that Iſland.

Letters from Leghorn obſerve that the French have very great advantages over the Corſicans in the goodneſs and quantity of their artillery, as well as in their ſuperiority at ſea, which laſt circumſtance enables them to furniſh themſelves with all ſorts of neceſſaries from Provence. But notwithſtanding theſe boaſted advantages, we hope, for the encouragement of Liberty and Bravery, and the diſcouragement of Tyranny and oppreſſion in all parts of the world, that the latter will meet with ſuch chaſtiſement from the valour of the inhabitants as their inexcuſeable meddling on the preſent occaſion Merits.

formerly purchaſed by the New-England people and others, commonly called the Suſquehannah company, of the Six Nations of Indians, lying on Suſquehannah river, are within the grant made to the Governor and company of the colony of Connecticut in the moſt plain and legal conſtruction thereof. And his Majeſty's prohibition, as to the ſelling thoſe lands, pointing out the diſſatiſfaction and diſturbance that ſuch ſettlement might occaſion to thoſe Indians, as the only reaſon of ſuch prohibition. And as in conſequence of his Majeſty's order, at the late Congreſs at Fort Stanwix, ſuch precautions have been taken as to obviate any freſh troubles with the Indians—and the Indians being now quieted and ſatiſfied, it appears that nothing reaſonable lies in the way againſt the Suſquehannah purchaſer's proceeding to ſettle thoſe lands, purchaſed by them, lying within the line ſettled with the Indians at ſaid Congreſs, as ſoon as conveniently may be.——

From the New-London Gazette of Nov. 4.

To the Printer.

Sir,

Pleaſe to give the following a place in your Paper, and you will oblige every honeſt friend to truth.

OBSERVING in your paper Sept. 9th, 1768, No. 252, a doleful lamentation, wherein the author ſacrilegiouſly m[illegible]icks the divine ſpirit of inſpiration, ſpoken by the mouth of Jeremiah the prophet, in his lamentations over backſliding Iſrael, and his ſolemn warnings and admonitions to rulers; and in that ſacred and ſolemn rhetorick, interſperced with many paſſages of ſacred writ, undertakes not only to impeach, but to ſatyrize and brand with infamy, the conduct of a number of the members of the general aſſembly in May laſt; in chuſing a chief judge of the ſuperior court of this colony: and alſo another piece in the ſame paper, entitled, copy of a letter from the Weſt, to a friend in the Eaſt, in anſwer to part of a letter from the Eaſt, ſigned a Freeman, wherein the author charges all that gave their votes for Gov. Fitch, with treachery, deceit and lies to their conſtituents, and a ſet deſign to give up all our moſt valuable liberties and privileges, both civil and ſacred, and at once to enſlave their country; they themſelves being raiſed to high poſts of honor and profit on the ruins thereof. I truſt it will not be diſagreeable to all honeſt and judicious minds, to have a true ſtate of the caſe, ſince in both of theſe pieces, matters are very falſly and injuriouſly repreſented; eſpecially in the laſt, wherein the author to give the greater weight to his account of the matter, and the direful conſequences he draws therefrom, writes himſelf a member of that honorable houſe, if we may underſtand him; for ſays he, "I was on the ſpot, and an eye and ear witneſs to all that happened;" and therefore engages to do it with great exactneſs. Now I likewiſe was on the ſpot, and an eye, and ear witneſs to the whole tranſaction as well as he, and ſhall endeavour to relate the whole matter truly, and not appeal as he does, to my own veracity and ſtation, but to the whole houſe for confirmation of the truth of what I ſhall relate. Now, when the bill came down from the honorable upper board, appointing the preſent judges as they now ſtand; a proxy vote was called for in the houſe, for concurrence, and Gov. Fitch, was choſen chief judge by a ſmall majority, and the aſſiſtant judges as they now ſtand; then a bill was made out by the clerk by order of the ſpeaker, and ſent up to the honorable board, in anſwer to theirs, of this purport, concur'd with this alteration; Gov. Fitch in the room of Gov. Trumbull, which ſoon came down with Gov. Fitch negatived; when a committee was mov'd for, to diſpute upon the differing votes of the houſes, and objected againſt; and mov'd that it might be tried, whether the houſe would not reconſider, and concur with the honorable board? which could not be determined but by a vote; then a vote was called for, whether the houſe would chooſe a committee, to diſpute on the different votes of the houſes? which could not be determined but by a pole, which was immediately called for; and as I had juſt before given my proxy for Gov. Fitch, I appeared openly before the whole houſe, and was counted in the vote for a committee, which was carried in the affirmative, without thought of concealment, and I conclude the reſt of my brethren the accuſed did the ſame; for if but a ſmall number had then changed, it would have carried the vote the other way; which as effectually diſcovered our minds to be in favour of Gov. Fitch, as the laſt pole which he mentions; wherein he ſays, we all fell off to Gov. Trumbull, not daring to appear; for no man I preſume, would vote for Gov. Trumbull, and at the ſame time vote for a committee, to inſiſt in the diſpute, that Gov. Fitch be appointed, rather than Gov. Trumbull. The committee being appointed after having the matter ſome days under conſideration, reported the arguments to the houſe, and upon mature deliberation of the whole matter, (tho' the argument for a ſuperior court out of the council was weighty, Gov. Fitch's extraordinary abilities, reaſons to think notwithſtanding former ſuſpicions, that he is now well fixed in the principles of liberty, and that he would perform the truſt to the ſatisfaction of all, and the like) yet we all were convinced, as far as I know, from the affair of general warrants lying in the ſituation they are in, and danger of difficulties from many quarters, jealouſies and uneaſineſſes of the people, and the like; that it was beſt to drop the matter, and to appoint Gov. Trumbull, which was done with a conſiderable majority, to the ſatisfaction of almoſt a'l, as far as I know. So that from a true ſtate of the caſe, it muſt appear, that the author in his repreſentation, has left out one eſſential part of the truth, in order to give it the falſe and ſcandalous light, in which it now appears. Now I ſubmit it to the opinion of all the judicious, whether this gentleman is either of the characters in which he appears, has not acted directly contrary thereto, and been guilty of the ſame things with which he ſo ſeverely, tho' falſly charges others. And firſt as a freeman or ſon of liberty, as he calls himſelf. Now principles of liberty I take to be theſe: the right of taxing ourſelves—trials by juries—non ſubmiſſion to general warrants, and the like—now, whatever ſubject is willing to give up either of theſe, may be truly called a ſon of ſlavery in my opinion; and whatever rulers endeavours to deprive the ſubject of any of theſe rights, may act the part of a tyrant, and endeavour to enſlave his country. Now I will ſubmit it to the candor of all, whether this gentleman has not, in his proceedure, denied thoſe whom he has accuſed, condemned and executed, not only a trial by jury, but by any other bar? and not ſo much as to hear their accuſation, before their ſentence is executed; which was done by publiſhing the ſame in the public prints, before they had the leaſt notice thereof; which as effectually ſpreads the infamy, as ſtanding in the pillory, or ſetting on the gallows, with a halter about the neck; each of which is not attended with much pain, but chiefly conſiſts in the infamy and ſhame it caſts upon the ſubject in the eyes of the world. And ſecondly as a member of the general aſſembly, I ever tho't that when I had the honor to be one of that houſe, if I were guilty of any miſconduct, I might expect ſome kind and fatherly reproof or admonition, in ſuch a way as is becoming the honor of that houſe; but inſtead thereof, after a ſeſſion is ended, (for no other cauſe than that ſome members, while there, tranſacting the affairs of the government, under ſolemn oath, about which they had an equal right to act) differed in judgment from him at the firſt calling for a vote; and upon mature deliberation, and further light in the caſe, came over to him and voted as he did, and the buſineſs all compleated to his mind; I ſay for them thus to vilify, ſcandalize and brand with infamy, their brethren, and to heap upon them the moſt odious crimes, treachery, deceit, and lies, and a betraying and enſlaving their country, with a view to agrandize themſelves; and done with the aſſiſtance of ſacred writ, and in the language of divine inſpiration, as if he was as true and ſolemn in his meſſage, as the holy prophets of old, and at the ſame time as palpable & falſe a repreſentation as the Alcoran; and all done with a deſign to blacken and render infamous, the characters of thoſe whom he points out. I ſay, I ſubmit it to the honorable general aſſembly in their approaching ſeſſions, if ſuch a proceedure may paſs with impunity unnoticed; whether any or every honeſt man, that ſuſtains that character, if he ſhould be choſen and returned a member of that houſe, would not (rather than riſque his character by attending) chooſe to adopt the words of old Jacob, and ſay, my ſoul come not thou into their ſecret chamber, unto their aſſembly, mine honor, be thou not united.

So I remain a hearty friend to truth.

From the PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE.

Mr. GODDARD,

The following is the product of a leiſure hour, and as it is the genuine ſentiment of a heart that earneſtly ſympathizes with the unhappy Africans, who are unjuſtly kept ſlaves among us, I make no doubt of your giving it a place in your paper. I am your's, A—S—.

AT a time when Liberty has erected her ſtandard, and her trumpet is ſounded by every true born ſon, I need no apology for offering myſelf a volunteer, under ſo great ſo glorious a leader; and if, my zeal in the ſervice of my noble miſtreſs ſhould urge me to an unexpected attack, I ſhall truſt to the juſtice of the cauſe, to vindicate the raſhneſs of the attempt.—All hail my brother ſoldiers!—All hail ye champions of Liberty!—how glows my heart on this grand this important ſubject——O! Liberty, thou dear thou ſacred name, thou ſweeteſt choiceſt good we know on earth—ſupport thy warriors in the mighty conflict 'twixt ſlavery and freedom, and fill each boſom with a manly virtuous heart that ſpurns at chains.—How ſtand you brethren—dare you bare thoſe boſoms to the ſtricteſt ſcrutiny of your ſpotleſs miſtreſs; or lurk within ſome baſe-born hearts, that caſt a blemiſh on our glorious cauſe.—Stand forth ye ſouthern men, where firſt the noble generous ſpark broke forth——ye bold Virginians——and is it Liberty ye love; was't Liberty that rous'd you from the general ſleep;——a noble call indeed—Ye gave the alarm, ye ſpread that great that general cry, of haſtening danger and impending ruin.——The flame has ſpread far north and ſouth, and every breaſt now pants for Liberty.——The continent proclaims as with the voice of one man; that by nature we are free; and that no man is bound by laws to which he never gave aſſent——We value our liberties as our lives; and he who attempts to infringe the one, will ever find us ready to riſque the other in its defence——No man ſhall dare to ſeize our property, by levying a tax on our eſtates before he has our conſent by our repreſentative!——We claim it as Britons—we go further, we claim it as men——We abhor and deſpiſe the wildneſs of licentiouſneſs; but pure unſullied liberty FOR LIBERTY'S SAKE ALONE WE REVERE AND ADORE.——But oh! behold a grim looking ſpectre ſtalking o'er the land, with rattling chains, and ſounding woe: he cries aloud—'tis falſe, ye hypocrites, 'tis falſe; ye're all my creatures, and my name is Slavery; ye boaſt your freedom, & your virtuous love for [illegible] miſtreſs, and yet are bound in chains.——What means this charge my brethren [illegible] ſouthern men what plead ye?——[illegible], I fear.——You who firſt fann'd the ſacred fire of liberty, have that within your borders which will, which muſt in time, [illegible] it I doubt ſever.—I muſt be plain—your ſlaves I mean—How ſuits it with the glorious cauſe of Liberty, to keep men in bondage, men equally the work of your great Creator, men formed for freedom as yourſelves.——O! baſe degeneracy from Britiſh [illegible]! you who ſpurn at the thoughts of paying the poor pittance of a glaſs, a paper, and paint tax, and cry aloud on freedom and virtue, how can you lift up your heads in the noble conteſt for Liberty, and be at home the greateſt tyrants on earth!——If you can reconcile the conduct of enſlaving thouſands from generation to generation, with the great and virtuous ſtruggle this continent is engaged in with the Britiſh nation, [illegible] be term'd virtue, and [illegible]——[illegible] hide your heads, every [illegible] a ſlave, and [illegible] no longer that you are votaries to freedom.——What think you will be the ſentiments of your royal Sovereign, on receiving your humble petitions, ſetting forth your grievances? When he muſt know that your neceſſities, your conveniences, your luxuries, are wholly and ſolely adminiſtered to, by ſlavery——that you are witholding from thouſands, the natural rights of men, at the very time you are petitioning for the reſtoration of Liberty yourſelves.——What will the Britiſh parliament remark on the occaſion;——will not every diſintereſted Briton exclaim, Ex ore tuo condemnatus es!

Rouze then my countrymen, from the pit into which you are fallen;——ſhew yourſelves ſons of freedom, ſons of Britons; ceaſe to be tyrants, yourſelves, then hope to be happy.——

Let every government on the continent, and in the iſlands, abſolutely prohibit the importation of ſlaves; let a joint petition go home to his Majeſty, to grant ſome of the ceded lands to the ſouthward, for a Negro colony; and let every black that ſhall henceforth be born among us, be deemed free, and ſent thither at a ſuitable age, at the expence of government.——One ſtep further would be to emancipate the whole race, reſtoring that liberty we have ſo long unjuſtly detained from them; and tranſport them to a land, where, under proper regulations, they might become a uſeful and valuable colony to Great-Britain, conſuming infinitely more of her manufactures than at preſent, and making room for an acquiſition of ſubjects from Germany, &c.——Till ſome ſtep of this kind is taken, in vain ſhall we publiſh our grievances, in vain ſhall we declaim againſt the arbitrary meaſures of Britiſh Miniſters; we ſhall juſtly be the ſcoff of nations, and the deriſion of the whole world.——Thoſe who from virtuous principles have taken up the ſacred cauſe of Liberty, in behalf of their countrymen, and are clear of the ignoble practice of ſlave keeping,——to ſuch I give my hand, I greet them brothers——but thoſe who contend for American freedom, and yet keep their fellow creatures in bondage, ſhould they ſpeak with tongues, or write with the pens of angels, I will venture to pronounce them pretenders.

Or freedom give where thouſands in bondage (groan,
Or ceaſe to claim fair freedom as your (own.

ANTI-SLAVETRADER.

LONDON, September 20.

Letter on the diſmiſſion of Sir Jeff. Amherſt.

SIR,

"While our poor country is ſo exceſſively oppreſſed by heavy debts, accumulated by a ſucceſſion of harpies whoſe ſole intention in filling public offices, has been, not for the patriotic pleaſure of ſerving their country, but——to amaſs wealth, and enſlave their fellow citizens; it is aſtoniſhing to ſee theſe men ſo abandoned as to dare to appeal to [illegible] ing the public plunder? I have read ſeveral letters repreſenting the hard caſe of Sir J A. who having for ſome years, without any ſcruples or qualms, conſented to receive a ſinecure penſion for a nominal duty confeſſedly never intended to be performed, has ſuch a regard for his country, that his ſtout ſtomach riſes at the propoſal of changing that emolument into a profeſſed penſion, on his refuſal to go to his government. I have alſo read Sir Lucius's queries; which it ſeems muſt and ſhall be anſwered. They may for any thing I care, be very pertinent ones; but it is of no importance to the public how they are anſwered, or whether they are anſwered at all. I have in return a few queries at the ſervice of Sir J. A. which muſt and ſhall be propoſed, whatever contempt he may think they deſerve to be treated with; they are as follow.

I. Pray Sir J. A. were you not paid for your ſervices in the late war?

II. Having thus received your quid pro quo, what further reward can in conſcience be your due, beyond that grateful ſenſe your countrymen always retain of the ſervices of thoſe who do the duty they receive their wages for, honeſtly?

III. If penſionary rewards are to be beſtowed on military officers, they are certainly as truly carried progreſſively downward to the poor common men, who do their duty, the hardieſt and moſt material duty of all, for leſs than ſix pence a day. Pray Sir J A. what reward do they receive at the cloſe of a war——the reduced regiments eſpecially?

IV. What is the real difference between an actual ſalary for a nominal government and a penſion profeſſed ?

V. Can the man who was not aſhamed to accept the former, conſiſtently object to the latter ?

Bluſh bluſh, Sir J. apply yourſelf cloſely to your military employments which you ſay take up all your time, for the more you ſtir in the affair, the worſe it will appear ; and conſider the appointments you enjoy in peace, as a ſuitable reward for your attendance when your country calls for it in war. If you are already ſo amply rewarded as not to think this worth your while, quit a ſervice which men not ſo well paid will gladly ſupply, until the wages render them as unreaſonably above their duty as you are now. As to Lord B if he ſtood in need of a government, and was diſpoſed to fill the duties of it ; and one was found in your hands which ſtood in need of a governor ; they well ſuited and you ought to hold your peace until you have anſwered my queries. How points of humour ſtand between you and either late or preſent miniſters, may affect you perſonally ; but concern the public no more than the ſquabbles between the managers of Covent Garden Play-houſe ; yet we muſt be plagued with all of your complaints. I am your's &c.

QUIDAM.

An evening paper ſays, that the real name of a ſpirited writer againſt the diſmiſſion of a Great Gentleman, begins with a B and ends with an E. is a Senator of this kingdom, and a native of a neighbouring iſle remarkable for its fervent zeal in the glorious cauſe of Liberty, for which he is a moſt able and ſincere advocate : his oratory in a certain auguſt houſe flaſhes lightning againſt the ſons and miniſters of corruption.

We are aſſured that the perſon ſuppoſed to be alluded to in a paper of the 23d inſt. as author of the letters ſigned, Lucius, by ſaying that his name begins with a B and ends with an E, has not the leaſt title to the honor of that performance.

The Public repreſent to the miniſtry, that it is a matter of indifference to it, in regard to Lord Botetourt and Sir J. Amherſt, whether it maintains the Lame Duck, or gives the bloodleſs conqueror of Crown-Point a ſinecure ; but if the one or the other muſt be done, it is however hoped, that the public will be ſaddled with both.

Extract of a Letter from Warſaw, Sept. 4.

"A fatal affair has happened at Zwaniec, a town ſituated on the Neiſter, oppoſite to Choczim. Several Turks who came to the fair there quarrelled with the people, and a tumult enſued ; which was ſtill encreaſed by the arrival of a greater number of Turks, who came to the aſſiſtance of their countrymen, when they fell upon the inhabitants, killed ſeveral of them, plundered the town, and afterwards ſet it on fire. Complaint has been made to the Pacha of Choczim, but he pretends to have no authority, and refers it to his ſucceſſor, who is ſoon expected to make ſatisfaction. In the mean time, ſome of the culpable have been put in irons, and the effects ſtolen from the traders of Zwaniec are lodged in the caſtle of Choczim."

Extract of a Letter from Breſlau, Sept. 2.

"The King of Pruſſia arrived here this day, accompanied by the prince of Pruſſia, and the two Princes of Brunſwick. His Majeſty has been no farther then Neiſs, where he had ſome long conferences with General Fiack ; ſince which time certain preparations are carrying on that occaſion various ſpeculations."

Letters from Rome import, that the Jeſuits are making the greateſt efforts to prevent the Pope's acquieſcence with the demand of moſt of the powers of Europe touching the annihilation of their ſociety : For this purpoſe they have preſented two memorials, to prove, 1. That the ſociety has done very great ſervices, and ſtopt the progreſs of hereſy ; and 2dly, That it has at all times been the firmeſt ſupport of the papal crown, and according to the expreſſion of a great man, it's pretorian guard."

A clergyman's daughter in Hampſhire, who poſſeſſes 14 000 l. (a legacy from an uncle) went off on Sunday, Sept. 11th. while her father was at church, with a half pay Lieutenant of marines, and it is thought they are now in Scotland.

L O N D O N, September 24.

Letters from Gibralter mentions, that his royal highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, after a ſhort ſtay there, intended to ſail for Port-Mahon, &c and propoſed being in England by the beginning of November.

We are told that a certain lady of faſhion has at this time near 3000l per annum ariſing from the half of the ſalaries of places which her intereſt has procured for different perſons.

Sept 29. It is ſaid Commodore Spry has ſunk a French [illegible] the Mediterranean, for not paying the [illegible] due to the Britiſh Flag.

A private letter from Paris mentions, that two Corſican chiefs, Signiors Audree Palladio and Giacomo Petriccio, had juſt arrived there from Marſeilles, where they were landed, by a French tartan, & met with a very favourable reception by the miniſtry.

According to advices from Bologna, of the 30th ult. all the troops which are in the legation of Urbain to the number of 6000 men, are already under arms ; and the garriſon of fort Urbain, on the confines of Modena, is reinforcing with an additional body of militia.

A great man is ſaid to have declared, that the court of Verſeilles, by their late invaſion of Corſica and ſeizing foreign ſhips belonging to our allies in the Mediterranean, have as fully declared war againſt Great-Britain & her allies as if they had done it by the mouth of [illegible].

It was rumoured this morning, that letters are received from Gibralter, which mention Commodore Spry's having demanded ſatisfaction of the French commander in Corſica, for ſome inſults committed on an Engliſh ſhip lately in the Mediterranean.

It is ſaid that Edinburgh caſtle is ordered to be prepared for the reception of his Daniſh Majeſty, who ſoon propoſes to ſet out for that capital, and will lodge in his Grace the Duke of Hamilton's appartments in the palace of Holyrood houſe.

It is ſaid that at this time the French have ſeventy men of war in commiſſion, more than two thirds of which are ſhips of the line.

People have been much puzzled to account for Lord Sandwich's late voyage to Holland, the circumſtances of his fitting out a veſſel for the expedition, entirely navigated by his own ſervants, the ſecrecy with which it was conducted, and the foreigners who met him at Roterdam, have not a little contributed to give an air of myſtery to a trip, which perhaps at bottom, was no more, than one of his Lordſhip's frollics of gallantry.

Friday her Grace the Dutcheſs of Hamilton was ſafely delivered of a ſon at Arguile-houſe, in Argyle buildings, to the great joy of that noble family.

They write from Senegal, that the price of ſlaves, had roſe twenty per cent. occaſioned by a great ſickneſs and mortality in the negroe countries, bordering on the Guinea coaſt.

It is rumoured that Sir Edward Hawke will ſoon ſet out for Portſmouth, to take on him the command of a ſquadron for the Mediterranean.

By a gentleman juſt arrived from Cadiſh we are informed, that the Spaniards are greatly augmenting their marine, both in Europe & America.

A morning paper ſays, the intended change of the miniſtry is poſtponed. The price of thoſe who were to ſucceed the preſent was ſo enormous, conſidering what was to be paid to thoſe who were to go out, that it was thought moſt prudent to wait for better offers.

It is confidently reported, that a great man has actually propoſed the fitting out a large naval, and military force to diſpoſſeſs the French invaders of Corſica.

Yeſterday Lord Egmont was at court ; but every department of adminiſtration is in the ſame hands as uſual.

Yeſterday an expreſs arrived at Lord Weymouth's office, in Cleveland Row, St. James's with advice that the Lord Chancellor was taken ill that morning at four o'clock, at Camden-palace and could not attend the Council ſummoned to meet that day at St. James's.

Yeſterday at noon his Daniſh Majeſty came from his appartments at St. James's, attended by his nobles, through St. James's Park to Weſtminſter Bridge, where he embarked on the upper ſide, with his retinue, being met by Sir Robert Ladbroke Knt. Locum Tenens, with the city officers Regalia, &c. at whoſe meeting his Majeſty expreſſed the greateſt ſatisfaction, the King, his Nobles, the Locum Tenens, and all the company being ſeated in the city Barge, the muſic playing, drums beating, cannon firing, and amidſt the glad acclamation of thouſands of Britiſh ſubjects the Barge was put off, and taking a ſtretch as high as Parliament ſtairs, took a ſweep into the middle of the ſtream, went through the center arch of Weſtminſter Bridge, ſaluted by the firing of cannon at Lambeth, Stangate, &c. being followed by all the companies barges. His Majeſty embarked at one, landed at the Temple about half an hour after two, from which he walked on the temporary platform which was covered over, to the middle temple Hall, where an elegant cold collation was provided ; and after viewing the Hall ſome time, his Majeſty went into the Lord Mayor's ſtate coach, (which waited in Temple-lane) attended by Sir Robert Ladbroke ; and from thence proceeded to the Manſion houſe, the Pioneers, the Cripplegate Grenadiers, the artillery company, and the Liverymen of the Goldſmith's company marching before the State coach, and ſeveral of the aldermen, with the Sheriffs, in their reſpective carriages following it ; the whole forming a very pleaſing ſight to an exceedingly numerous concourſe of ſpectators. His Majeſty reached the Manſion houſe a quarter before four in the afternoon, and when he got under the Portico, he ſtopt for ſeveral minutes looking over the baniſters and bowing to the people, in return to their loud acclamations. His Majeſty, after partaking of a very elegant entertainment prepared for him, left the Manſion houſe about a quarter before eight in the evening, and returned to St. James's. The diſpoſition of the lights (at leaſt near 2000) the arrangements of the tables, the erection of the temporary Orcheſtra, and the whole of the ornamenting of the Ægyptian Hall, were executed with the utmoſt propriety and elegance, under the direction of Mr. George Dance, Clerk to the city works.

Witney, Oxfordſhire, Sept. 14.

The following polite anſwer was lately received from Mr. Wilkes by a Gentleman of this place, to the ſpirited card ſent him by the Freeholders here.

To Mr. ———.

S I R,

"I beg you to accept my ſincereſt thanks, and likewiſe to preſent them to the worthy independent Freeholders of Witney, for their very obliging Letter, and the fine veniſon which accompanied it. I am happy even here when I reflect that my countrymen approve my conduct, and that I experience the continuance of their regard. I ſhall always, Sir, endeavour to convince you, & my other friends, in your parts of the warm ſenſe I entertain of their favours, and to merit your good opinion, by zeal in the cauſe of liberty, and ſecurity of the noble privileges of our country.

"Whenever buſineſs or pleaſure, Sir may bring you to London, I ſhall be happy to ſee you. I am, with much Reſpect,

SIR,

King's-Bench Your obliged,
Priſon, Humble Servant,
Sept. 10, 1768. JOHN WILKES,

Great betts are depending at the weſt end of the town, that there will be a general war all over Europe within twelve months.

The ſeveral expreſſes arrived at the court end of the town ſince Sunday, have occaſioned no little buſtle amongſt the politicians near St. James's, who ſeem extremely embarraſſed to account for the motives of the uncommon hurry and buſineſs obſerved at preſent going on at certain offices in the adminiſtration.

The following changes are talked of as to take place next week, viz. the Duke of Bedford, firſt Lord of the Treaſury in the room of the Duke of Grafton to be Privy ſeal vice Lord Chatham who retires ; Lord Egmont to be Secretary of State for the ſouthern department in the room of Lord Shelburne, and Lord Sandwich to be firſt Lord of the Admiralty, in the room of Sir Edward Hawke.

The eſtabliſhment of a ſilver mint at New-York, for the regulation of the American currency, will ſhortly be taken into conſideration.

The favourite toaſt among the friends of the colonies is, "May ſteady perſeverance never be conſtrued into obſtinate reſiſtance."

It is reported at the weſt end of the town, that the court of Liſbon has made extraordinary demands on England.

Yeſterday it was rumoured that our ambaſſador at the court of Portugal had received an anſwer to ſome late remonſtrances, couched in ſuch haughty terms, as would occaſion his retiring from Liſbon without taking leave.

Laſt night about eleven o'clock, his royal highneſs the Duke of Cumberland arrived at his houſe in Pall-mall from his travels abroad in perfect health.

On Friday at the ball at Carlton the Prince of Wales went down with two country dances.

We hear his Majeſty's ſhip the Dorſetſhire, of 74 guns, is going to be fitted out to carry a regiment to Minorca."

It was this morning reported, an order has been ſent to Dublin, to poſtpone the embarkation of the Iriſh regiments deſtined for North-America, till further orders.

We are told that there at this time ten capital houſes in London, to whom more than a million of money is due from America.

Wakefield, Sept. 10 A handſome widow lady, near Dewsbury, of 73 years of age was married on Tueſday laſt to a ſtout young butcher in that neighbourhood, and in the marriage articles, ſhe has ſettled 100l. a year upon him forever ; but with this injunction, that he ſhall be her bedfellow every night, elſe the obligation to be void and of no effect.

P H I L A D E L P H I A, Decem 5.

Extract of a Letter from an Officer in the Navy, to his Friend in Philadelphia, dated Sept 20 1768.

"The People of Boſton have behaved in ſo haughty a Manner, by flying in the face of the Mother Country, that Troops are already embarked, to bring them to Subjection—Lord Chatham, that Inſtigator of the immediate Repeal of the Stamp Act, his opinion of the Matter was, to purſue vigorous Meaſures with Moderation,—How it will end I know not,—People on this Side the Water expect Blood ſhed ! I hope that will be avoided, and Things amicably ſettled—The French ever watchful to attack us, when otherwiſe embarraſſed, are ſome what impertinent—It is the opinion of the knowing ones we ſhall be obliged to check their inſolence ; they were in hopes that Corſica would have been a Bone of Contention, but we have given it up in Favour of the Duke of Parma, one of the Bourbon Compact, the brave Corſicans are defending themſelves againſt a powerful Army of the French, even the women in defence of Liberty have taken up Arms—Mr Wilkes your admired Hero, is ſtill in Priſon, and likely to continue there, as his Party viſibly declines—Lord Bute is taking a Tour thro' Italy, various are the conjectures of his Errand."

B O S T O N, December 15.

We have a melancholy Report, That Capt. Patterſon, who has been in a Sloop in the Coaſting Buſineſs for ſeveral Years, from this Place to Kennebeck, and who failed from hence the firſt Inſtant, was caſt away on the Eaſtern ſhore in the South-Eaſt Storm on the Sunday Night following ; The Veſſel and Cargo entirely loſt : There were a Number of Paſſengers on board belonging to Pownalborough, who had been here to purchaſe Proviſions for their Families for the Winter Seaſon, and who muſt ſuffer greatly for want thereof ; ſeveral Cheſts were drove aſhore but ſtove to Pieces excepting the Captain's which was ſhod with Iron : Nothing of any great value ſaved ; Every Perſon periſhed : of Perſons belonging to the Veſſel, Captain Patterſon, Mr Rogers, and Mr. Kinney, and a Negro Man belonging to the Captain. Paſſengers : Capt. Whereas the lands formerly purchaſed by the New-England people and others, commonly called the Suſquehannah company, of the Six Nations of Indians, lying on Suſquehannah river, are within the grant made to the Governor and company of the colony of Connecticut, in the moſt plain and legal conſtruction thereof. And his Majeſty's prohibition, as to the ſelling thoſe lands, pointing out the diſſatisfaction and diſturbance that ſuch ſettlement might occaſion to thoſe Indians, as the only reaſon of ſuch prohibition. And as in conſequence of his Majeſty's order, at the late Congreſs at Fort Stanwix, ſuch precautions have been taken as to obviate any freſh troubles with the Indians—and the Indians being now quieted and ſatisfied, it appears that nothing reaſonable lies in the way againſt the Suſquehannah purchaſer's proceeding to ſettle thoſe lands, purchaſed by them, lying within the line ſettled with the Indians at ſaid Congreſs, as ſoon as conveniently may be.——

THESE are therefore to give notice to ſaid Suſquehannah company, to meet at Hartford, in the colony of Connecticut, on the 28th day of December next, then and there to conſult and act what they ſee fit and convenient, as to carrying on ſuch ſettlement, and any other buſineſs that may be thought proper to be done at ſaid meeting.

NEW HAVEN, November 1768.

The following Petition from the Seamen and Tradeſmen of this Colony came to the Aſſembly ſitting in this Place laſt October.

Colony of CONNECTICUT, October 2, 1768.

Honorable SIR,

A Great Part of the Seamen and Tradeſmen of this happy Colony, beg Leave to implore your Aſſiſtance in moving forward their Petition for Redreſs of their Grievances, and beg your Intereſt in the Upper Houſe and in the whole Aſſembly, which they know is great. And what is more, they know you are influenced by Principles of Juſtice and Virtue, and have heretofore appeared for them; and they have the ſtrongeſt Aſſurance that your Aſſiſtance will Succeed in their reaſonable Requeſt.

I am, in their Behalf, your Honor's ſincere Friend, and your obedient, and Humble ſervant,

[illegible]

To the Honorable [illegible]

P. S. Pleaſe to communicate the Petition to [illegible] He ſaid [illegible] a Year ago he would ſecond the motion:

To the Honorable the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, now ſitting at New-Haven.

The Petition of the Seamen and Tradeſmen of ſaid Colony humbly ſheweth,

THAT while your Petitioners have the higheſt ſenſe of the wiſdom and juſtice of your Honors the legiſlative Body of ſaid Colony, and the happy Conſtitution we live under, we are ſorry that we have Reaſon to complain to your Honors of any hardſhips we labour under; yet we do it the more cheerfully, firmly relying on your paternal Goodneſs, with the fulleſt Aſſurance of Redreſs when we juſtly complain.

We the Seamen of this Colony, are by our Calling often obliged to be abſent from our native Shore and Families for a whole Year together; in which time, altho' our Wages are ſmall, Six Pence Sterling in each Month is ſtopped out of our Wages to the Support of his Majeſty's Hoſpital at Greenwich. And when we are ſo abſent, we are often warn'd by the ſurveyors to work at High ways, and Fines diſtrain'd from us, which we look upon as a hardſhip for ſeveral Reaſons. Firſt, becauſe we do duty in paying ſaid Money, which no other in this Colony do. Secondly, becauſe we are abſent, and don't wear the Roads. Thirdly, becauſe we are generally poor, and our proportion is equal to the richeſt man in the Colony.——We therefore humbly beg to be releaſed from working, ſo that we do only our proportion as in other Matters.

And we tradeſmen, many of us have large families of young children and two or three apprentices, who are generally unprofitable two or three of their firſt years, and we find it hard maintaining our Families; yet we are obliged by law to work equal to the richeſt man in the Colony, and often call'd out to work late in the fall of the year when the work is of the leaſt ſervice to the Public and moſt damage to us, as we are generally moſt hurried. We therefore beg the mending highways might be bro't into a public rate, as in other Governments; then we ſhall do a proportion in full with the Public, with which we will be content.

We are ſenſible it will be objected, that there are many poor people who cannot pay their Rates, yet can work; [illegible] which we anſwer, thoſe very poor may then work out their Rates, for they [illegible] as well be hired as other Men [illegible]. This and all other objections [illegible] be as well got over here as in other Governments; where we are informed, the mending the roads don't coſt half ſo much as we generally pay in this Way.

And we the Seamen and Tradeſmen beg leave to [illegible] complain farther: That is, that we look upon [illegible] often unreaſonably taxed for [illegible] our ſmall incomes, which we [illegible] is for Want of Knowledge of our Gains and Returns in our Liſters, who are generally Farmers, and can't be ſuppoſed to be ſo good Judges.

Now what we would humbly propoſe is, That the Body of Liſters in each Town might (by Law) be made up of an equal Number of wiſe judicious Farmers and Tradeſmen or Traders, ſuch we hope can be found; and when an equal Number ſits together, they can better inform each others Judgments of the Gains and Returns; and this we look upon to be agreeable to our happy Conſtitution, to be tried by our Peers or Equals.

And now your Petitioners beg your Honors Pardon for giving this Trouble, and as in Duty bound ſhall ever pray.

Signed { The Seamen & Tradeſmen of the Colony of Connecticut.

Dated October 1, 1768.

From ſome Dublin & Cork Papers to October 11, we have the following Articles.

LIMERICK, October 3.

YESTERDAY two Men renounced the Errors of Popery, and embraced the Proteſtant Religion, in the Cathedral Church of this City.

Since the paſſing of the Octennial Bill, there have been more Proſelytes from Popery to our Eſtabliſhed Church, than ever was known in ſo ſhort a Time; and we can aſſure the Publick, that they expreſs themſelves truly pleaſed with our Liturgy and Manner of Preaching.

A Merchant here was tried for being concerned in kidnapping and ſending off a young Lad from his Parents, and fined 100 marks, and a Year's impriſonment. Which it is hoped will put a Stop to the Practice of kidnapping and ſending off Children and apprentices, and ſelling them for Servants in America.

The Charming Rebecca, Butler, from Antigua to Briſtol, took Fire at Sea and burned to the Water's Edge; the crew took to their boat and were taken up by ſome Veſſels they fortunately met: Capt. Roche of the Friendſhip from St. Kitts, who arrived at Corke on the 9th inſt. brought in two of the People.

LONDON, Octo. 3, 4, and 5.

There has not been ſo large a Quantity of Sugar at any one time imported ſince the Peace as this Seaſon, by which the Public will of courſe be greatly benefited; it appeared by Friday's Bill of Entry in the Port of London only were imported, viz.

From Jamaica, 14,940 Hund. Wt.
From Antigua, 3000 ditto.

In all, 18,000 nearly 1000 Hogſh. from thoſe two Iſlands; which ſhews what Importance the Weſt India Trade is to Gt. Britain? and that from ſuch great conſumption the major Part is paid for in the Manufactories of Great Britain. On the other hand, 1800 Gallons of Brandy were likewiſe imported, the ſame day, from Dunkirk.

Dublin, October 1. On Sunday the 17th inſtant, Mrs. Kinchela of Callen, renounced the Errors of Popery, and embraced the Proteſtant Religion, in the Pariſh of St. Mary, Kilkenny.

On an Information that there were ſeveral Perſons forcibly detained on board a Veſſel bound to Philadelphia, Mr. Sheriff Bevan, attended by the High Conſtable, went on board ſaid Veſſel, where they found three Deſerters, whom they brought aſhore, and lodged them in the main guard.

Within theſe three Weeks three Perſons have read their recantation from the Errors of the Church of Rome, and embraced the Proteſtant Religion, in St. Peter's Church Drogheda.

The French Trade to the Levant increaſed ſince the late Peace, particularly at Marſeilles more than double known at any period theſe forty years paſt; and it is further expected by the Merchants concerned in that Commerce, that by the Acceſſion of Corſica the whole Turkey and Levant Trade will be ſoon in their Poſſeſſion, ariſing chiefly from the moderate Price of Labour, cheapneſs of Materials, Plenty of Proviſions, and Encouragement given to the Mechanick Arts. On this Principle, the beſt ſuperfine French grey ſeven quarter Cloths are ſold at twelve, Scarlets and Crimſons at fourteen Shillings per Yard; which is 25 per cent. cheaper than ſold in England of the ſame Fabrick.

Sept. 30. Some letters from Genoa ſay, that ſhould Corſica be forced to ſubmit to the yoke of France, great numbers of the Iſlanders propoſe to embark with their Families for North America.

An Evening paper of laſt night, has the following Article:—"Some perſons ſay pretty peremtorily, that a powerful and very enterprizing Monarch has this Summer viſited London, in the habit of a Quaker."

Oct. 4. Yeſterday ſome diſpatches of Importance were received at the Secretary of State's Office from his Excellency Francis Bernard, Eſq; Governor of New-England.

It is affirmed, that an American Governor will be continued in his Poſt, notwithſtanding the loud complaints of a Provincial party to have him ſuperſeded.

This morning divers Agents for the American Colonies attended the Board of Trade and Plantations, on the buſineſs of their conſtituents.

When Sir P— aſſerted that England had no right to tax America almoſt every body believed him; but now thouſands are of a different opinion.——Thus the Engliſh will give a popular Commoner Credit for any thing—but they will but take the Word of an Earl.

Extract of a Letter from Neufchatel.

"The five following articles, by way of puniſhment, to the ſatisfaction of his Pruſſian Majeſty, for the aſſaſſination of Mr. Gaudot, his advocate general, have been impoſed upon the city of Newbourg.

"1. That the citizens who were on the 22d of May laſt diſarmed by the garriſon, ſhall remain ſo for a twelve-month longer.

"2. That the grenadier company, with their non commiſſion officers, ſhall be diſmiſſed and aboliſhed for ever.

"3 That the four Miniſters and Magiſtrates of the city of Newbourg, ſhall come to the caſtle together, and there in the preſence of the delegated Miniſter and plenipotentiary, Baron de Derſchau, the Vice-Governor, and with the reſt of his Pruſſian Majeſty's Counſellors of ſtate, aſſembled on purpoſe on this occaſion, beg pardon.

4. "That the city ſhall not pay all the expences, as well what is required to maintain the auxiliary troops, but alſo make good to the widow of the late aſſaſſinated Mr. Gaudot, the damage ſhe ſuſtained by the populace, as well in the houſe as furniture.

"5. The four laudable cantons of Bern, Lucern, Fryburg, and Solleure, guaranty and promiſe that the ſatisfaction ſhall be executed.

"In this manner the affair of Neufchatel has been ſettled and finiſhed; alſo agreed to make it known to the public in order that it may ſerve for an anſwer to the various ſcandalous papers and libels, publiſhed by the news writers of Hamburgh from time to time, with a view of impoſing on the public, and artfully endeavouring to conceal the truth."

Tranſlation of a Letter from Rome, Aug. 4.

"We are informed that a noble Perſonage, a near relation of his Holineſs, will ſoon ſet out for England, upon matters of very intereſting political buſineſs to this ſtate.

"That a permiſſion may be obtained from the Court of London to raiſe in Ireland four battalions of Catholics, and in Scotland two battalions of Highlanders, each conſiſting of five hundred men, and be officered by natives from thoſe countries. That three battalions are to garriſon the town of Civita Vecchia, the others the town of Ancona. Theſe battalions nominally to be paid by us, but in fact by Great Britain. The Treaſury of Loretto is to be ſecurity for the repayment of that ſum. And that the two ports of Ancona and Civita Vecchia are to be declared free ports only to the Engliſh, with certain priviledges of trade, and likewiſe at Rome, that will prove of mutual benefit to the commerce of Great Britain.

"This political arrangement can only account for the languor of your Miniſtry, in tamely permitting the French ſo early to become maſters of Corſica,—of more importance to your trade in the Mediterranean, as well as to the Levant, than you are now ſenſible of, but you will hereafter.

"How happy a proſpect for Rome, ſhou'd we be under your protection! We may ſee Engliſh Colonies fixed in the Campagnia—ſurely as good a country as Florida, where they will never prove ſo ungrateful as the Americans."

Oct. 12 On Saturday laſt at eleven o'clock came on at Guildhall the final examination of Edward Roberts, a bankrupt which, laſted upwards of [illegible] hours; in the courſe of which it appeared that the caſh ſent to his bankers in Lombard ſtreet for the laſt 18 months amounted to upwards of 50,000l. and after making proper allowance for every natural, and large deductions for ſome unnatural payments, there remains a deficiency of about 7000l.

Since lowering the duty on rock and refuſe ſalt, immenſe quantities have been laid on courſe grounds in Cheſhire, Lancaſhire and Shropſhire, the good effects of which are already apparent, the lands ſo manured having turned out to great advantage to the farmers and land holders in thoſe parts. It is hoped further indulgencies will be granted by the legiſlative power at the next meeting of Parliament, by taking the duty entirely off that mineral, for the purpoſes of enriching and manuring the lands in general.

On Monday laſt a citizen going into a Regiſter office, had ſo much falſe delicacy as to pick up a jealous wife, who in the ſpirit of contradiction, had made an elopement from her tender huſband, within three hours after marriage.

We hear that the directors of the Eaſt India Company, cauſed notice to be ſent, a few days ago, to the managers of the ſhips employed in their ſervice, that the court has reſcinded its reſolution of arrogating to itſelf the appointment of the commanders of the ſhips, and inſtead thereof will impoſe an oath on every commander, in the nature of that taken by Eccleſiaſtics againſt Simony.

On Monday a gentleman of fortune, near 70 years of age, was taken into cuſtody in Southwark; being charged with forging a Captain's will in the year 1734; but forgery not being deemed a capital offence at that time, he was not committed, but gave 2000l. bail for his appearance at the next Kingſton aſſizes.

We are informed by letters from Paris, that an alteration is going to be made in the adminiſtration of the French finances from whence very ſalutary effects are expected.

A letter from Paris ſays, "Since the King's edict, announcing his having acquired from the Republic of Genoa, the rights of ſovereignty over Corſica, has not made the impreſſion, there was room to expect, upon the male contents of that iſland, it is ſaid, that ſome regiments will be immediately tranſported thither."

Letters from Copenhagen inform us, that another Ruſſian veſſel of war lately touched at that port from Arch-angel, which makes five ſhips the Empreſs has now at ſea, from that port only, beſides what ſhe may have at Cronſtadt and other places. How changed ſince the beginning of the reign of Peter the Third, when ſcarce as many merchant ſhips were to be found belonging to all the ports of that Empire!

An elegant fruit ſervice of plate made for his Daniſh Majeſty by an eminent goldſmith in Cheap-ſide, was yeſterday carried to St. James's to be forwarded to Copenhagen.

Glaſgow, Oct. 13. Wedneſday laſt as two tide waiters at Greenock, having got information that ſome rum &c. were concealed in a veſſel lying in the harbour, went at night in order to make a ſeizure of what they could find; but in going on board they unluckily fell into the water and before aſſiſtance could be got one of them was drowned, and the other taken out without ſigns of life, but by proper management has ſince recovered.

Laſt week an uncommon accident happened, a baker in town had an excellent cat, which he kept in his cellar, where he had his butter, flour, &c. and who had long been a [illegible] to the rats, by killing numbers of them every night: But at length finding themſelves thus devoured, and diſappointed of their prey, they entered into a conſpiracy to deſtroy the common enemy.——And accordingly all the rats in the neighbourhood aſſembled in the evening, and were obſerved marching below the door in [illegible], and in a body attacked the poor cat, which fought vigorouſly and killed ſeveral of them; but at laſt being overpowered with numbers, was killed herſelf, and in the morning found lying dead, and her eyes picked out, and a large dead rat in her boſom to the great grief of the owner.

Portſmouth, Dec. 16.

Laſt Monday night about ten o'Clock, Capt. Richard Keating, in a Schooner from Guardaloupe, lading with Moloſſes, was caſt away on White-Iſland, within a mile to the eaſtward of the entrance of this harbour, the wind being freſh; and very dark—Veſſel and Cargo intirely loſt; reckon'd to be worth Six Thouſand Dollars—The men's lives are all ſaved—the Veſſel and Cargo was owned here.

It is to be hoped within fifty years more we ſhall have a Light-Houſe at the Entrance of this Harbour, which its more than probable would have ſaved this Veſſel, and a number of others heretofore.

NEW-LONDON, Dec. 16.

On Tueſday night the 6th inſt. the Sloop Britannia, Capt. Corning, belonging to Norwich, run aſhore on No-Man's Land, near Martha's Vineyard, and was entirely loſt, excepting the ſails and ſome of the rigging; ſeveral of the people had their fingers and toes froſe, but no lives were loſt.

"I Had yeſterday an hours converſation with Lord HILLSBOROUGH & he has aſſured me tho' the Troops are ſent, and by this Time he thinks muſt be arrived yet they have ſtrict orders to preſerve the peace, and act under the civil Majiſtrate & that no unconſtitutional Method ſhall be taken and every Thing tranſacted with as much Lenity, as the nature of the thing will admit."

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman in London, dated Auguſt 31, 1768, receiv'd by Capt. Daſhwood.

"YOU have among you a number of [illegible] who fill the ears, and poiſon the hearts of the people in power with jealouſies and prejudices of a moſt malignant nature, or otherways, by the [illegible] favourable repreſentations of the real friends of the colonies ſome healing meaſures might be adopted as would lead us all in a ſtate of ſecurity, freedom and happineſs; but this is not a time to take revenge or indulge paſſion, for the people here are wrought up into a ſtate of prejudice little ſhort of madneſs, and therefore there is a greater neceſſity of your being cool, diſpaſſionate and prudent; from all appearance at preſent, there are ſo few of leading men here who will dare eſpouſe your cauſe, even a Spirit of oppoſition will not induce them to aſſert your rights; therefore to ſave the kingdom from falling into anarchy and civil war, you muſt not oppoſe the laws in queſtion, nor would I have you ſubmit to them; ſuppreſs your paſſions, avoid luxury, as far as poſſible the execution of ſaid laws for a time, and depend upon it they will be repealed, as inexpedient uncommercial and deſtructive, and if I may venture to give the ſentiments of the miniſtry, you may believe they are ſenſible that it is impoſſible to execute the right in queſtion, but [illegible] I believe any miniſtry will in future attempt it. When great offence is the firſt [illegible] right to the [illegible] Parliament, to tax America, the [illegible] act of parliament declares that right, and our warm friend, lord Camden, ſays he could conſtitutionally declare that right to be in the aſſemblies, till the act was paſſed, but dare not now, deny the right of parliament; ſo that you ſee the way left to get clear of the preſent difficulties, is to keep that fatal queſtion out of ſight, for the people of England will ſupport the power of England, in ſupporting it, whether upon equitable principles, or not. I know of no way ſo effectual as that of ſtopping your importation from England, which is both lawful and commendable, and I wiſh the Quakers in Philadelphia, had been wiſe and virtuous enough to have joined you laſt year, in this ſalutary meaſure."

B O S T O N, December 22.

Laſt Thurſday Capt. Sweeney of the Schooner Betſey and John, arrived from Halifax with the Remains of the 14th, 29th, and part of the 59th Regiments, including a number of Women, &c. belonging to the Army now quartered here. By him we learn that Capt. Duncan Campbell, in the Schooner Providence with military Stores, was caſt away the 19th ult. on Bettey's-Iſland in Proſpect Harbour, and one Man drowned.

By a Gentleman from the eaſtern parts of the province, we are informed, that a veſſel, ſuppoſed about 100 tons, was lately caſt away at a place called Fox's Iſland; ſundry pieces of the veſſel, ſome wearing apparel, a feather bed, an Holland ſhirt, marked T. P. and ſeveral other things have been drove on ſhore and picked up; it is ſaid there were ſome other veſſels caſt away about the ſame time, but the gentleman did not hear the particulars.

On the 7th inſt. at Newport, Mr. Dudley, Collector, and Mr. Nicol, Comptroller of the Cuſtoms there, having ſeized a ſloop for breach of acts of trade, immediately after the ſeizure, a number of armed men obliged the officers who had charge of the veſſel, to quit her and then carried her off.——The Governor of that colony, has publiſhed a proclamation, requiring all officers of juſtice, to uſe their utmoſt endeavours to diſcover and apprehend the perſons guilty of the ſaid offence; and the Collector and Comptroller offer one hundred dollars reward, to be paid on conviction, to any perſon who will inform againſt one or more of the offenders, and a further reward of 100 dollars, to any perſon who will diſcover where the veſſel is carried, ſo as that ſhe may be recovered.

We hear from the eaſtern Parts of this province that there have lately been diſputes relating to the Right of lands between ſome claimers and Poſſeſſors, which is very common in thoſe parts:—That a Month ago at Woolwich a perſon there having built a Houſe, about 20 or 30 men diſguiſed in an Indian dreſs, came upon him, & drove the People out, and then pull'd the Houſe down; and afterwards threatned to ſerve ſome others in the ſame Manner.

Saturday Evening a Soldier was detected in ſtealing ſome leather out of a Shop at the ſouth Part of the Town, when ſeveral People collected together, a Comrade of his ſtruck a Perſon that ſtood by with a Bayonet and ſlightly wounded him in the mean time the Thief went off, and the other was committed to Goal.

NEWHAVEN, Dec. 23.

We hear that Wedneſday the 4th of January next, is appointed for the Ordination of Mr. Edwards, to the paſtoral Office over the Church and Society of White-Haven.

About three Weeks ſince, one Peter Mallery, of Mount-Carmel Pariſh, in this Town, (who was diſordered in his Mind with a religious, melancholy Concern) privately left his Family, and has not been heard of ſince, (though the greateſt Search has been made for him) till a few days ago, when an Account was received, that he had reached Brimfield, and that he was ſo miſerably froſt-bitten, that he died in a few Days after his arrival there.

Meſſ'rs GREEN & WATSON,

As your paper is deſigned for general inſtruction and utility, I beg leave to propoſe a Queſtion by it to the publick——The queſtion may appear ridiculous to ſome, inaſmuch as it implies ignorance of ſome ancient and well known rules of court—be that as it will, I confeſs my ignorance, and propoſe my queſtion.

TWO of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State in the BRITISH Court; are Peers of the Kingdom of Great-Britain, and have a Seat in the Houſe of Lords: now my Queſtion is, Why theſe Britiſh Lords, acting as Miniſters in the Britiſh Court, always ſubſcribe themſelves by their Iriſh Titles? Wills Hill, is Lord Harwich, of the Kingdom of Great-Britain, as well as Earl of Hillſborough, in Ireland——and William Petty is Lord Wycomb, of the Kingdom of Great-Britain, as well as Earl of Shelburne in the Kingdom of Ireland.——Whether an Earldom in Ireland, be more eſteemed than a Barony in England, I know not; but, as both theſe Noblemen are acting as Secretaries of State, in a character entirely Britiſh, I ſee not the Reaſon of their being known only by their Iriſh Titles.

☞ Whereas ſeveral ſubſcription papers are gone out to encourage the printing a ſermon preached at the ordination of the Rev. Sterling Graves, at Hartland, on the 29th of June, 1768, by the Rev'd Mr. Joſeph Strong, A. M. and the ſaid Sermon being now in the preſs—Theſe are therefore to deſire all perſons that have ſaid ſubſcriptions, to return them to Meſſ'rs Green and Watſon, Printers in Hartford, or to the author in Simſbury, or to John Owen, Eſq; in Simſbury, by the tenth day of January next.

DANIEL GOODWIN.

From the St. James's Chronicle, Auguſt 4.

THE great and excellent Biſhop Burnet has ſomewhere, in the hiſtory of his own times, laid it down as a maxim, which influenced his own conduct through life, viz. "That mere errors in government, were not ſufficient calls for the governed to reſiſt; but when government ſtruck at the foundation of the people's rights and liberties, reſiſtance was not only lawful but neceſſary." I think this was the purport of this ſentiment, and the revolution fully juſtified the obſervation.

And this maxim I think fully ſhews that there is a line drawn between government and the governed, which is very dangerous for either to paſs, eſpecially if attended with an arbitrary force. In all caſes of ſociety, conſtitutional rights ought to be well conſidered; and thoſe who really tranſgreſs againſt the conſtitution, ought to ſubmit to the determination of truth and reaſon.

The late unhappy Stamp Act made here to operate in America, was certainly as unconſtitutional as King James the II. diſpenſing power. The Americans demonſtrated this beyond a doubt. The legiſlature was convinced of the abſurdity, and judiciouſly gave it up—with great reputation to themſelves, though to the great diſguſt of its projectors, who would have cut the throats of millions, and ſet whole provinces in flames, rather than have given up their arbitrary ſentiments.

I ſhould be glad to know when the Americans ever oppoſed with violence any act of our legiſlature which was ſtrictly conſtitutional? If there never were ſuch ſentiments in America, it is plain they never were rebels, why ſhould they ever be treated as ſuch? They now ſay, and that juſtly, "By the "Britiſh conſtitution no man can be govern"ed by laws, nor taxed but by himſelf or "repreſentatives; and yet (they add) we "have the mortification to obſerve one act "of Parliament, after another, for the ex"preſs purpoſe of raiſing a revenue from "us."—The grand queſtion is, can this be conſtitutional? Can we with juſtice make them pay a land tax, window lights &c. &c. when it ſo evidently appeared that the Stamp act was unconſtitutional?

It makes one's whole frame tremble to think, that becauſe the Americans cannot ſubmit to what is abſolutely unconſtitutional, they muſt be bombarded, butchered, and ſee their fine towns reduced to aſhes! Some think a little chaſtiſement will bring them to order: but if you chaſtiſe them becauſe they cannot, as Britons, ſubmit to an unconſtitutional meaſure, you make them Slaves, but can never by ſuch methods convince their underſtandings.

Why ſhould not the mother country put the trial of their ſubmiſſion, upon a conſtitutional act, rather than upon an arbitrary decree? No: All lawful acts being always ſubmitted to, there was no way of trying their obedience but by an act which it would be abſurd to obey!

O! Aſtoniſhing event! How is it poſſible for Engliſhmen to hear of a war againſt America without ſome fellow feeling? But, alas! ſo it is: Our brethren muſt ſubmit, or have their throats cut! There is no medium now, unleſs we ſhould have VIRTUE & WISDOM enough to do as in the caſe of the ſtamp-act, viz. Let them enjoy their conſtitutional rights unmoleſted.

I cannot help lamenting with great amazement, that we hear nothing of Lord C—m's noble interpoſition at this awful criſis. Is it poſſible that, ſo great a man can be of the council, and not with his uſual zeal counſel moderate meaſures? Can he enjoy repoſe & tranquility, whilſt his countrymen in America are liable to all the horrors of war, only for ſtanding up for that conſtitution which he has ſo often nobly defended? Rouze, rouze, my Lord, and think a little before it is to late! If the ſword is unſheathed upon our valuable countrymen, it will certainly have a very terrible effect upon our vitals, and be ſuch a wound to the conſtitution that ages may never heal. And if any one could prevent it, and did not, he certainly will be attended with all the guilty horrors of an enemy of his country!

Had I the trumpet of an angel I would ſound, O Britons go not to war with one another!

Submiſſion by force can be of no more ſervice than the forcing ſubmiſſion. Our mutual advantages depend upon our harmony with each other; and not by ſubmitting without conviction, or inflicting puniſhments where there is no real tranſgreſſion. We are a great people here; They are a great people in America. What can we get by making them ſubmit? What ſhall we not loſe by being victorious over our own children? Deteſtable policy! Surely we are infatuated! We are given up to the moſt terrible deluſions; our iniquities have brought this heavy curſe upon us: For if we go to war with America, we become abſolutely the inſtruments of our own deſtruction.

O Lord God Almighty! pity this poor country, and call us not off to become a prey to our enemies! Amen.

So prays a native Engliſhman and a friend to his countrymen every where.

F—f—d County ſſ.

The APOLOGIST, No. 7.

HAD our opponents made themſelves tolerably eaſy; had they diſcovered no unchriſtian temper, no ſiniſter views, nor oblique practices; the public would not (probably) have been troubled with this apology. The true ſons of liberty in this county, while, for the common intereſt of the people, they are ſoliciting the removal of our courts to N—w—k are ſorry to behold the rancour which ſeems thereby to be occaſioned in the minds of ſome few individuals. We are ſorry to find them ſo diſguſted, while we are [illegible] common good of the whole. We wiſh them no ill: we ſuffer not our minds to be diſcompoſed at their hardeſt ſpeeches; but,

"Calm and unruffled as a ſummer's ſea,
"When not a breath of air, flies o'er it's ſurface," could behold them even in the midſt of their moſt cruel reſentments, tho' they were laden with firebrands, arrows, & death. Nay we can with patience hear them in ſilent diction, tho' in a language more expreſſive than that of words, uttering ſwift revenge.

But when we find them, at this juncture, without any manner of foundation, induſtriouſly attempting to propagate a rumour, that the memorialiſts, and ſuch as have been in favour of the alteration prayed for, have at length yielded the point, and given up all proſpect of ſucceſs: we muſt beg leave to undeceive the public by acquainting them that this is only a piece of mere chicanery. 'Tis ſo far from being true, that the longer the matter hangs in ſuſpence, and the more we think upon it, the more ſenſible are we that ſuch alteration muſt of neceſſity be greatly beneficial to the public and but very little prejudicial to any individual. They need not flatter themſelves with hopes of ſucceſs in this way, nor vainly imagine that we are ſo eaſily diſcouraged, in ſo good a cauſe. On the contrary the expectations of the people are greatly increaſed: a ſpirit of liberty ſeems to have fired the breaſt of the main body of the inhabitants of this county: we are not eaſily to be perſuaded to renounce our title to this privilege; the privilege of having our courts held where it may be moſt convenient for the whole. The alteration prayed for, to us appears ſo reaſonable, and righteous, that we cannot help imagining that it muſt neceſſarily, upon due enquiry, appear ſo to the hon. g—r—l a—m—ly, wherefore our opponents may depend upon it that unleſs they are able to convince us that we labour under a miſtake in regard to the reaſonableneſs of our requeſt; we ſhall never yield the point; no never unleſs we are obliged ſo to do. Will it not be quite enough tamely to ſubmit to be taxed by the authority of the county (in whom if at all, we are but virtually repreſented) for the purpoſe of erecting a court houſe & goal; when the ſame are ordered to be erected where they will beſt accommodate the whole? this is no new thing, 'tis not the project of ſome one miſchief making fellow; but long, long have the inhabitants of this county been uneaſy with it's ſituation in regard to the place of holding our courts. Look back even to the Time of erecting the ſame, and it will be found that it was even then diſputed in the g——r——l a—m—ly which of the two, whether N——k or F——d ſhould be the county town and by a ſmall majority carried in favour of the latter, notwithſtanding the great town of W—db—y then belonged to this county. A worthy member (if we are not miſinformed) even from the town of St——tf——d, then appearing in favour of N——k, was pleaſed to obſerve that when the weſtern part of the county ſhould become ſettled N——k muſt of Neceſſity [illegible] purpoſe.

But what ſhall we ſay to the more ſenſible, the more judicious, more moderate ſort of our opponents, who ſeeing that good gentleman's obſervation verifyed, are now for halving it with us? why truly agreeable to the antient proverb "Half a loaf is better than no bread;" and undoubtedly ſome part of the county would be well enough ſuited in that manner: but can it be [illegible] reaſonable to burthen the county with the expence of building & maintaining two court houſes & two goals, when the whole might be as well accommodated with only one court houſe and goal if erected at N—k? it cannot be expected that for the ſake of pleaſing all, or that for fear of diſpleaſing a few, ſuch a meaſure will be adopted: eſpecially when we conſider the probability of a new county being (within a few years) erected to the northward of us to be compoſed partly of the northern towns of this county, inaſmuch as it is already found that the county's in general in this colony are [illegible] of buſineſs. And why any ſhould boaſt of the edifice which has lately been erected with [illegible] a manifeſt view to ſerve a turn, is difficult to determine, unleſs it were impoſſible to appropriate the arguments heretofore uſed by the Apologiſt in his former papers would be needleſs; 'tis taken for granted that the truth of all the facts therein contained is acknowleged even by our moſt ſanguine opponents, as being altogether inconteſtible; and if ſo, there can be no room to doubt but that the prayer of our memorial will be granted; which would undeniably afford general ſatiſfaction of the people of this county. And that peace and harmony may be thereby again reſtored to us, is the ardent wiſh of the truly patriotic.

BELANDER.

Anecdote of Philip II of Spain.

PHILIP the ſecond, walking one day alone in the cloiſters of the convent of the Eſcurial, an honeſt tradeſman ſeeing the door open, went in. Tranſported with admiration at the very fine paintings with which that houſe was adorned, he addreſſed himſelf to the King, whom he took for one of the ſervants of the convent, and deſired him to ſhew him the paintings, and explain the ſubjects of them. Philip, with the humility and condeſcention of a lay brother, conducted him through the appartments, and gave him all the ſatisfaction he could deſire——at parting, the ſtranger took him by the hand, and ſqueezing it affectionately ſaid, "I am much obliged to you, friend: I live at St. Martin's, and my name is Michael Bambis, if you ſhould chance to come my way, and call upon me, you will find a glaſs of good wine at your ſervice." "And my name," ſaid the pretended ſervant, "is Philip the Second, and if you will call upon me at Madrid, I will give you a glaſs of as good."

LONDON, October 1.

The Marquis de Chauvelin having carried with [illegible] ence, on the 5th of September, [illegible] with the natives, in which M. de Marbeuf had his horſe ſhot under him, and a Captain killed by his ſide) had taken the poſts of Oletta, Olmetta, Biguglia, and Furiani; on which the Sieur Paoli (brother to the General) had abandoned the towns of Fornali and Murato, and retired; and the province of Nebbio and Pieve of Caſinca ſubmitted to the French. They had before poſſeſſion of Pattimonio, Bargaggio, Nonza, Canari, Baretali, Luri, Meria, Pino, Siſco, Pietra, Corvara, Luciana, & Borgo. The Marquis de Chauvelin ordered all the places he had conquer'd to bring in their fire arms, under pain of military execution; and had taken a Dutch ſhip with 5000 ſtands of muſkets intended for the Corſicans.

Oct. 8. Private letters by the French and Flanders mail ſay, there has been a general engagement between the French & Corſicans, and that the latter have obtained a complete victory, and taken the French General's eldeſt ſon priſoner, and many general officers.

15. Four additional battalions of French Infantry were lately landed in Corſica. On the 9th, 10, 11 and 12 of Sept. ſeveral actions paſſed between the Corſicans & French, all of them to the diſadvantage of the latter, but by the French account all in their Favour. A letter from Verſailles ſays, the Corſicans had made ſeveral attacks upon the poſts of the French troops, but were always repulſed with loſs, and in the laſt action had a great number of their men killed: Yet it is certain the French were worſted, nor can they any longer deny it, but affect to make light of it, ſaying, with a ſhrug, it was no more than a Coup d' Eſſai, and that they ſhall ſoon revenge the loſs. A letter from Corſica, dated Sept. 25, gives a very modeſt account of the affair, acknowledging that the advantages gain'd by the Corſicans had been exaſperated. He ſays that on the 17th the Corſicans attack'd and took by aſſault Penta, (then in the hands of the French) one of the ſtrongeſt places in the iſland, and made priſoners 3 officers and 80 ſoldiers. The French in thoſe quarters, about 2000 men, retired from poſt to poſt, and in Veſcovato, were ſurpriſed on the night of the 12th by Capt Salacetti, who had taken ſeveral houſes, when a wound from a muſket ball oblig'd him to retire. The Sieur Clement Paoli alſo the ſame night penetrated into Loretto, but his troops not liſtening to the capitulation propoſed by the French, were beginning to fire into the houſes, when the inhabitants took the part of the French, and immediately defended them; and Paoli beginning to want ammunition, was obliged to relinquiſh his poſſeſſion. On the 18th it being reſolved to drive the French from the province of Caſinca, the Corſicans began their march, which the French foreſeeing, abandoned ſeveral places and retired, but the Sieur Paoli with 200 men, having ſeized the Bridge del Lago Banedetto, greatly incommoded them in their retreat, and ſome were loſt on each ſide. The French having at laſt paſſed the river, reunited at Borgo, where they left a garriſon of 600 men. The Corſicans did not immediately purſue them, but have ſince block'd them up. It is ſaid the French have propoſed a ſuſpenſion, but have been refuſed. They have poſted corps at St. Marie del Orto, about half way between Biguglia & Furiana, to preſerve thoſe two places. Thus things were ſituate on the ſide of Caſinca. An account of the operations on the ſide of Nebboi, where general Paoli has acted in perſon is impatiently expected.

A letter from Iſola Roſſa, Sept. 14 mentions that the French having taken and ſack'd the town of Oletta, and all the country round it, they march'd to Olmetta, Rutali, & other parts of the province of Nebboi towards the Gulph, which they took poſſeſſion of, and remained there quietly two days, but were then ſurrounded and attack'd ſo furiouſly on all ſides, that they attempted to fly, but were moſt of them killed or taken, the Corſicans being greatly coraged at the ſacking of Oletta. By this defeat the Corſicans had recover'd all that the French had conquered in Nebboi, as well as Bargaggio, Patrimonio, Farinola, &c. But on the other hand it was ſaid the fortreſs of Caprain had ſurrenderd to the French. (This laſt article is ſince contradicted.)

A letter from Leghorn, Sept. 16. mentions that the French have loſt above 1000 men in the attacks of Biguglia and Furiana, beſides a great number of wounded ſent to Baſtia; and that in an action near Olmetta, about 800 French were obliged to ſurrender at diſcretion. A letter from Corſica, Sept. 14 mentions, that the French having taken Biguglia, where they loſt a conſidereble number of men, met with little reſiſtance at Furiani, which was ſoon abandon'd by the Corſicans. The Marquis de Chauvelin, not being able by gentleneſs and perſuaſion to prevail on the inhabitants to ſubmit, took poſſeſſion of the villages of Borgo and Lucitna; paſſing the Gualo, and puſhed on to la Penta. The Corſicans there attack'd him with ſuch fury, that his troops could not ſtand the ſhock, but abandon'd their camp and fled with the utmoſt precipitation; but they were purſued ſo cloſely that they could make no ſtand in any of the places they had taken, the Corſicans enter'd with them pell mell, and put all to the ſword who were not able to eſcape their fury. The purſuit was continued to the walls of Baſtia. The loſs of the French was great. Among the priſoners, (ſaid to be about 200) are 15 general officers, and the marquis de Chauvelin's nephew.—— The Corſicans did not exactly know their loſs.

According to letters from Leghorn, Gen. Paoli has deſtroyed ſeveral magazines of the French in Coraca, whereby their army is greatly diſtreſſed for proviſions. Letters from Paris mention, that the court has determined to take ſeveral regiments of Swiſs troops into pay, to ſerve during the war with Corſica. [Surely the Swiſs will not engage in ſuch an infamous ſervice]

A letter from Leghorn, Sept. 26, mentions, that the loſs of the French in the late actions, amounts to 3000 killed, 700 wounded, and 400 priſoners; that the French at Oletta had made themſelves maſters of a convent which bears the name of St. Francis, and converted it into a magazine, where they depoſited their baggage, their artillery, all their ammunition, and their military cheſt; and that this convent has ſince been retaken by the Corſicans, with all its contents. The ſame advices add, that the Marquis deChauvelin's nephew, who was taken priſoner, is dead of his wounds, that Count de Marbeuf, is mortally wounded, and that Calvi and San Fiorenzo are blockaded by the Corſicans. General Paoli has ſent a reinforcement of men and a ſupply of ammunition and proviſions to Capraia; and has diſpoſed his army in ſo advantageous a manner, that it is tho't they would be able to reſiſt four times their number. [Such are our laſt accounts of the illuſtrious Corſicans. Q. D. C.]

Advice is ſaid to be received that the court of Turin, has declared war againſt France.

It is reported, that a certain Admiral [Keppel] lately ſailed for the Mediterranean, to accompany his amiable ſiſter [The] is charged with an important affair, the particulars of which will ſcarce be known till executed.

Oct. 13. We are informed from Boſton, that the inhabitants will not ſuffer any officer of the navy to come on ſhore there with his ſword or cockade on. [There is no good comes of lying]

15. It is ſaid the repreſentation of the people of Boſton for a removal of their governor will be acquieſed in, and that a great military officer, remarkable for his firmneſs and intrepidity, will be appointed in his ſtead A cabinet council was held this morning at the Earl of Hillſborough's office, on the ſubject of ſome very important diſpatches received from America.

A gentleman well acquainted with North-America, being lately aſked by a man in high ſtation, if he thought 6 regiments, or half a dozen men of war, would be ſufficient to quell the Boſtonians, anſwered two men of war were enough to ſtarve the town, [a great miſtake.] but 6 regiments, and 6 men of war, would certainly be the making of it, by the money they would ſpend there, which he thought was the only good they could perform whenever they arrived.

Oct. 15. Her Majeſty is now in the 8th month of her pregnancy, and in perfect health. The Hon. The Duke of Gordon to have a green Ribband. The three laſt places being vacant by the death of the Earl of Morton. Other accounts ſay Lord Charles Cavendiſh will be elected Preſident of the Royal Society.

A Gentleman juſt from Berlin, informs, that it is currently reported there that his Pruſſian Majeſty had demanded of the King and Republick of Poland the whole of the territory known by the name of Pruſſia; alledging that tho' for the ſake of peace, his royal predeceſſor, Frederick the great, accepted of a part, inſtead of the whole of his dominions, yet that he, his ſucceſſor was reſolved to aſſert his right to the whole of Pruſſia. The ſame gentleman adds, that his Pruſſian Majeſty has an army of 30000 men on the frontiers of Poland, ready to maintain his prentenſions, if refuſed by the diet, which he inſiſts on being convoked for determining the merits of his demands.

Oct. 13, The arrangement of buſineſs for the enſuing ſeaſon is ſaid to be thus. 1ſt, Conteſted elections, 2d. Colony affairs, 3d. The reception or rejection of a certain great patriot. Many wagers are depending that he will be demanded by the Houſe and take his ſeat before the end of January next.— Yeſterday diſpatches ſaid to be of importonce, from their Excellencies General Gage, Sir Henry Moore & Francis Bernard Eſqrs. were received by the Halifax packet boat from New-York.

Extract of a Letter from Granada, Nov. 9.

"Four days ſince arrived here a ſloop from the Main, which had been ſurpriſed by a number of Spaniards, who took all the people from on board, except the Captain, and two men, and left 14 Spaniards. The Captain aſked the two men if they would endeavour to retake the ſloop, they immediately joined in the heroic attempt, and actually drove twelve Spaniards into a Launce that was along ſide, and kept two to aſſiſt in navigating the ſloop into this place. HAVING received a Letter from a Friend living in the Government of Virginia, in which he deſires the Publication of the following (if it ſhould be tho't worthy and come to hand ſeaſonably) in the Boſton Gazette and Country Journal, as his Mite of Praiſe juſtly due to thoſe Surporters of American Freedom. According to deſire, it is tranſmitted to you by one of your conſtant Readers.

To the very worthy and ever-memorable Maſſachuſetts Ninety-two Anti-Reſcinders.

GENTLEMEN,

UNintimidated by the threats of a ſpeedy political diſſolution, and uninfluenced by the expectation of lucrative or honorary rewards, you, at a time when a queſtion of equal importance never came before an American Aſſembly, did act like freemen, like the repreſentatives of a free people, in ſupport of their unalienable rights. To you, your conſtituents, the whole continent, and even Great-Britain, under God, is juſtly indebted, Your conduct muſt convince the world that you intend to be free without being licentious: that you hold it as your undoubted right to petition the King for the redreſs of grievances, and to aſk your neighbours groaning under the ſame heavy burdens to join with you. A diſſolution was the conſequence of your vote not to reſcind the reſolution of a former houſe of repreſentatives, required by a miniſter of ſtate. This vote will perpetuate your names, and poſterity will riſe up and call you bleſſed.—Perſevere in well doing. You will ſee your labours crowned with ſucceſs, and your endeavours to promote happineſs and intereſt of the colonies, & of Great-Britain (which are cloſely connected) not defeated. Your firm attachmens to the rights of men, and of Engliſhmen, gains you the applauſe of millions and particularly of

A true ſon of Liberty.

DUBLIN, Sept. 16.

THE brethren of the Corporation of Cutlers, Stationers &c. had laid before them complaints from many in the printing buſineſs, particularly of the abuſe of a perſon in employ in that way, who was moſt inhumanly attacked by aſſaſſins, headed by ſome journeymen of that buſineſs; they had the inhumanity to force open the room door of an aged couple, whoſe years together make not leſs than 128, whom with hangers they cut (while in bed) in a cruel manner; an higher inſtance of conjugal affection never appeared than at that inſtant, as the wife raiſed herſelf, and covered her aged companion, offering her life for the preſervation of his, when ſhe received two wounds in her hands, that laid three of her fingers back; but moſt providentially eſcaped being killed, as no other was their intention, from the violence of the blows, the bed covering being cut through many folds in different places; ſuch their cruelty ſuch their reſentment to honeſt induſtry, of which this couple was a moſt commendable example. This is an inſtance that highly pictures the complexion of thoſe people, and how little deſerving they are of the public attention, whom they frequently call upon in anonymous publications, not more induſtriouſly diſtributed than filled with falſhood. The perſons abuſed, are Mr. William Oſborne and his wife, for the diſcovering the perſons concerned, a reward of fifty pounds is offered by the corporation, who moſt generouſly refuſed the motion of having the reward made good by the bookſellers and printers, but by the body at large; ſo much in abhorrence have they ſuch proceedings, & deſire of making an example of ſuch enemies to peace, good order, and the proſperity of trade.

MONDAY, Jan. 9, 1769. [Numb. [illegible]]

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

An extraordinary inſtance of public ſpirit in a Cobler of Messina.

THERE is a ſort of enthuſiaſm in public ſpirit which renders it politically [illegible] to diſcourage it, and yet [illegible] ſo great and ſo dignified in [illegible] enthuſiaſm, that ſtateſmen of a better turn, though they dare not encourage, yet cannot but admire it. We have a ſhining and ſurpriſing example of this in the cobler of Meſſina, which happened in the laſt century, and is at once a proof that public ſpirit is the growth of every degree, & which is a point that our great men ought to conſider with attention, that wherever corruption becomes flagrant and univerſal, this heroic efficacy of public ſpirit is moſt likely to appear.

This cobler was an honeſt man and I was going to ſay poor; but when I conſider that he maintained his family and was above dependance, I cannot prevail upon myſelf to make uſe of the expreſſion. He was alſo a man of reflection; he ſaw the corruption, luxury, and oppreſſion, the private frauds, the public robberies, the enormous violation of juſtice, under which his country laboured.—He ſaw rapes unpuniſhed, adulterers unreproved, [illegible] murders either ſcreened by ——, or atoned for by money; in a word, he ſaw an univerſal degeneracy of manners, partly from the want of power, in the government to chaſtiſe offenders. In this ſituation, he reſolved to undertake the arduous taſk of reforming theſe diſorders, & tho't it both lawful and expedient to aſſume the authority of avenger of the innocent & the terror of the guilty.

Full of this romantick reſolution, he provided himſelf with a ſhort gun, which he carried under his cloak; and equipped with a powder pouch on one thigh, and a bag of balls on the other, he ſallied out in the evenings, and at proper opportunities offered he diſpatched ſuch as he knew to be incorrigible offenders, to that tribunal where he was ſenſible they could not elude juſtice, and then returned home full of that ſatisfaction which is the ſole reward of public ſpirit. As there was in Meſſina a great number of theſe overgrown criminals, the cobler, in the ſpace of [illegible] weeks, did very great execution.—The ſun never roſe without diſcovering freſh marks of his juſtice: Here lay an uſurer, who had ruined hundreds; there an unjuſt magiſtrate, who had been the curſe of thouſands; in one corner a Nobleman, who had debauched his friend's wife; in another a man of the ſame rank, who through avarice and ambition had proſtituted his own; but as the bodies were always untouched, with all their ornaments about them, and very often with conſiderable ſums in their pockets, it was viſible they were not diſpatched for the ſake of money, and their numbers made it as evident that they did not fall victims to private revenge.

It is not in the power of words to deſcribe the aſtoniſhment of the whole city. Things came at laſt to ſuch a paſs that not a rogue of any rank whatever durſt walk the ſtreets; complaint upon complaint was carried to the Viceroy; and magiſtrates, guards, ſpies, and every other engine of power, were employed to no manner of purpoſe. At laſt when no leſs than fifty of theſe examples had been made, the Viceroy took a ſerious reſolution of putting a ſtop to theſe miſchiefs, by the only method that ſeemed capable of reaching the evil: He cauſed public proclamation to be made that he would give the ſum of 2000 crowns to any perſon who ſhould diſcover the author or authors of theſe murders, promiſing at the ſame time the like reward, with an abſolute indemnity, to the perſon who had done them, if he would diſcover himſelf; and, as a pledge of his ſincerity, he went to the cathedral and took the ſacrament that he would punctually perform every title of his proclamation.

The cobler, having either ſatisfied his zeal of juſtice, or being now in a temper to ſecure his own ſafety, after having, in his own opinion, done ſo much ſervice to the ſtate, went directly to the palace, and demanded an audience of the Viceroy, to whom upon his declaring that he had ſomething of great importance to communicate, he was admitted alone. He began with putting his Excellency in mind of his oath, who aſſured him he meant to keep it religiouſly. The cobler then proceeded to the following harangue; "I, "Sir, have been alone that inſtrument of "juſtice who diſpatched in ſo ſhort a time "ſo many criminals. In doing this, Sir, "I have done no more than what was your "duty to do. You, Sir, who in reality are "guilty of all the offences which theſe "wretches committed, deſerved the ſame "chaſtiſement, and had met with it too, had "I not reſpected the repreſentative of my "Prince." He then entered into an exact detail of all the murders he had done, and the motives upon which he had proceeded.—The Viceroy, who was thoroughly convinced that he told him no more than the truth, repeated his aſſurances of ſafety, and thanked him very affectionately for the tenderneſs he had ſhown him; adding, after all, he was ready to pay him the 2000 crowns.

Our cobler returned the Viceroy his compliments, in his rough way; but told him, after what had paſſed, he believed it would be but prudent in him to make choice of ſome other city for his habitation, and that too in ſome corner of Italy not under the juriſdiction of his Catholic Majeſty. The Viceroy thought his reaſons had weight, and therefore, after thanking him in the moſt gracious terms for ſupplying that power, which the government wanted, he ordered a tartane to tranſport him, his family, his effects, and 2000 crowns, to one of the ports in the territory of Genoa, where this extraordinary perſon paſſed the remainder of his days in eaſe and quiet; and the city of Meſſina felt, for a long time after, the good effects of his enthuſiaſtick zeal for the public good, and for the ſtrict execution of juſtice without reſpect to perſons.

This ſtory, however ſtrange, is exactly true; and as Philip of Macedon kept a page who, to moderate his ambition, and to put him in mind of his duty as a prince, was wont to awake him in the morning with this ſalutation, "Remember Philip, that thou art a man," ſo I think it would be happy for the Miniſters, who are either entruſted by their maſters, or acquire to themſelves a boundleſs authority, ſupported by boundleſs influence, if they would write in a table book, and from thence refreſh their memories, frequently with this ſentence, "What if the cobler of Meſſina ſhould revive?"

LONDON.

Octo. 1. It is now currently reported at St. Jame's end of the town, that an order is, or ſpeedily will be, iſſued, to recal the military forces lately ſent to Boſton, where, by the moſt recent accounts, there is very little occaſion for their aſſiſtance, and not the leaſt likelihood of their contributing towards a thorough reconciliation between our colonies and the mother country.

They write from Hamburgh, that an agent of France had juſt bought up all the naval and ordnance ſtores which the merchants had got ready to ſhip for Corſica, on account of General Paoli.

Octo. 5. There is a difference ariſen between the court of Vienna, and the republic of Venice, on account of ſome tolls, which have been eſtabliſhed on the ſide of the Tyroleze.

Yeſterday it was rumoured, that our Ambaſſador at the Court of P——l had received an anſwer to ſome late remonſtrances, couched in ſuch haughty terms, as would cauſe his retiring from Liſbon without taking leave.

Oct. 8. Some letters from Genoa ſay, that ſhould Corſica be forced to ſubmit to the yoke of France, a great number of the iſlanders propoſe to embark with their fanilies for N. America.

Oct. 9. 'Tis whiſpered that a certain unpopular nobleman (now abroad) intends diſpoſing of great part of his landed eſtates in England; at leaſt, it is confidently reported, that overtures of the like nature have actually been made to another unpopular nobleman at home, who is well known to have had a conſiderable ſhare in his lordſhips impolitic ſyſtem.

LONDON,

Extract of a Letter from Tain in North-Britain, dated Sept. 16.

" There is at Amat, near this place a young woman, twenty four years of age, who has ſo great an averſion for all manner of food, that for two years paſt it has not been poſſible to make her take any thing. She has been already obliged to keep her bed for many months. She continues the uſe of her hearing, and has a ruddineſs in her face, but her cheeks and limbs are fallen away. This extraordinary affair which is known to all the people of the country, has attracted the curioſity of many ſtrangers, who were eye witneſſes, and can atteſt the truth of it.

Extract of a Letter from Paris Sept. 30.

" They write from Laval, on the lower Main, that on the 12th at three quarters after four in the morning, they had one of the moſt violent ſtorms. It was preceded by continual lightnings and a frightful noiſe, accompanied with a whiſtling, which ſtruck terror & conſternation in all the town, and was immediately followed by a ſhower of hail, or rather pieces of ice of different forms, each weighing from eight ounces to two pounds.

Octo. 13. On Sunday laſt, juſt as a famous patriotic preacher had finiſhed his ſermon, one of the audience cried out aloud; " Amen to every word on't,——Wilkes and liberty for ever !"

On Monday a Gardner at Fulham cut an enormous pumkin, the circumference of which was ſix feet, the weight ſeventy pounds, and when the pulp was taken out it held twelve gallons.

A letter from Quebec ſays, the French have at preſent ſeveral armed ſloops and battoes on the river Miſſiſippi, with which they carry on a trade with the neighbouring Indians, greatly prejudicial to the Engliſh.

Extract of a Letter from Leghorn, Sept. 10.

" Two French men of war, of 60 guns, advanced into the gulph of San Fiorenzo, in order to attack the forts of Mortella & Farnali ; but they were both ſoon obliged to deſiſt from their interprize, and one of them met with ſuch a warm reception from the fort of Furnali, that ſhe muſt have ſunk, had ſhe not been aſſiſted by an xebeque : part of her crew who got aſhore were purſued by the Peaſants under the cannon of San-Fiorenzo."

" A few days ago a Corſican half-galley, from Capraja, arriving at Leghorn, the French conſul and the captains of two xebeques of the ſame nation wanted to oblige the Corſican captain to ſtrike his flag, but he proteſted that he would ſooner die than do it, and ſtill remains under Corſican colours.

Extract of a letter from Paris, Oct. 7.

" According to our laſt advices from Corſica, the Marquis de Chauvelin, judging it unneceſſary to continue to occupy Caſinca, ſent orders to the Sieur d'Arcambal to retire from thence. This retreat being made in broad day, occaſioned an action between the French and the Malecontents, which terminated to the advantage of the former. Theſe advices add that the French preſerve all the poſts which they ſeized on the 5th of September, and that in the different actions which paſſed between the 13th and 19th of the ſame month their loſs was 150 men, and that of the malecontents about 700, killed and wounded."

Octo. 14. They write from Conſtantinople, that the Ruſſian Ambaſſador, who ſtill continues there, is very aſſiduous in aſſuring the Grand Seignor of the pacifick intentions of his miſtreſs, and endeavouring to penetrate into thoſe of the Porte ; but that all the anſwer he can obtain in reſpect of the great levies & other military preparations now making, is that they are intended for the Frontiers of Poland, in order to protect ſuch as may fly into the Ottoman territories in thoſe parts, from inſult.

By letters from Gibralter we learn, that the emperor of Morecco, and the States of Algiers and Tunis, are not a little alarmed at the invaſion of Corſica by the French, from a dread of the increaſing naval power of that nation in the Mediterranean.

Letters from Conſtantinople intimate, that the late grand Vizer was depoſed becauſe he always gave his opinion in the Divan for the continuation of the peace with all the chriſtian powers and could not be prevailed on to change his ſentiments.

And other accounts from the ſame quarter aſſert, that from all the preparations going forward in the Turkiſh empire, there was no doubt of war being ſoon declared. It is certain that the Janiſſaries and the populace of Conſtantinople loudly cry out for war, and have already occaſioned ſome tumults in that city, where they have alſo had two fires, which have done conſiderable damage.

Moſt of the nobility and gentry are expected in town the beginning of next month owing to the tickliſh ſituation of domeſtick and foreign affairs.

Edinburgh, Sept. 30. Yeſterday ſe'nnight, in the morning, a veſſel was obſerved to have been drove aſhore near the bar of Findhorn ; but the ſea run ſo high about the bar, that no boats could get out to her ; about eleven o'clock in the forenoon ſhe was daſhed to pieces. All the crew and paſſengers (if any) were loſt. The quadrant has come aſhore, on which, beſides the maker's name, was Geo. Yale, from which it was conjectured that ſhe was the Concord of Leith ; no part of her cargo was found but one barrel of tar.

Dublin, Octo. 11. Since the paſſing of the octennial bill here have been more proſelytes from popery to our eſtabliſhed church, than ever was known in ſo ſhort a time ; and we can aſſure the public, that they expreſs themſelves truly pleaſed with our liturgy & manner of preaching.

LONDON,

Oct 10. Expreſſes both by ſea and land, were diſpatched to the Duke of Cumberland, deſiring his return to England ; and on thurſday night 11 o'clock the 6th inſtant, he arrived at his houſe in Pall Mall, having viſited Gibralter and Minorca. It is reported that Lord Chatham intends to move for the abolition of the new eſtabliſhed Board for American affairs as being unconſtitutional ; alſo for the repeal of the late act obliging the Americans to pay a Duty on Britiſh goods. 13th. The difference between a certain Miniſter and a great General, it is ſaid is amicably adjuſted. The French, we hear, have now about 70 men of war in commiſſion, more than two thirds of which are of the line. It is reported, that the court of Liſbon has made ſome extraordinary demands on England. A privy council was held on the 12th in referrence to ſome advices from Liſbon. The Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury was on the 7th ſworn of his Majeſty's privy council.

It is reported that an order has been ſent to Dublin to poſtpone till farther orders, the embarkation of the remainder of the Iriſh regiment for North-America.

The ſentiments of the Earl of Chatham are ſtrongly for our not tamely ſuffering the French to hold poſſeſſion of Corſica.

All negotiation with the Earl of Egmont is entirely at an end.

The oppoſition, it is tho't, will be very vigorous this winter, as the weight of abilities is certainly with them.

On Wedneſday night the 12th of October, died at his houſe at Chiſwick, James Douglas, Earl of Morton, one of the 16 peers of Scotland. He is ſucceeded in his honours and eſtates by Sholto Charles, Lord Aberdour.

Reported that the India company's forces were upon the march to attack a rich Nabob, which would greatly enrich the officers & the company.

We are aſſured that a certain unpopular Nobleman lately gone abroad, has ſold of his immenſe ſtock out of the public funds, & placed it in thoſe abroad —That the reaſon of his going abroad was, that an illuſtrious foreigner had declared he would not ſee him.

A morning paper ſays, that it is in Agitation by ſome minority patriots of the preſent day, to found an impeachment, next ſeſſions, on a variety of accuſations of the miniſterial conduct of an abſent man of diſtinction, and particularly amongſt others, that of his adviſing a proclamation wherein the Corſicans are treated as rebels ; thereby depriving thoſe brave Iſlanders of all ſuccour on our ſide, without a breach of public faith, as well as putting it into the reach of our natural enemies to add, with impunity, to their ſtrength and influence, an important part of the world (the Mediterranean ſea) where they were by much too powerful before.

A certain great Man declared at Court on the 9th that the colonies ſhould ſooner or later, abſolutely ſubmit to the mode of taxation adopted for them by parliament. The trade of Minorca has ſuffer'd much by the French taking poſſeſſion of Corſica. We are aſſured that the Turks are every where vigorouſly preparing for war ; but it is not yet certain how they intend to uſe their arms.

Oct. 15. It is reported his Majeſty, (with the Dukes of Glouceſter & Cumberland) will early next ſummer viſit his German dominions, and the court of Denmark. On Thurſday the 13th, his Daniſh Majeſty, having been juſt nine weeks in England, after taking an affectionate leave of all the royal Family ſet out for Dover on his way to France. At Chatham he viewed the dock-yard and ſhipping, and at Dover the caſtle. On Friday the 14th, he embarked on board the Mary yacht, and landed at Calais the ſame afternoon. His affable and princely behaviour in England, gained him the univerſal eſteem and good will of the people of all ranks.—A little before his departure, October the 10th, he gave at the hay-market, a maſquerade, which for the number and dignity of the company, the richneſs variety, and taſte of the dreſſes, the grandeur and beauty of the ſcene, and the elegance and order with which the whole was prepared and conducted, was the moſt ſplended and magnificent, that ever was ſeen in England, or perhaps any where elſe. The number of tickets delivered out was not leſs than 3000, and from 25 to 30 guineas a ticket was offered and refuſed ; ſome of the dreſſes coſt £. 2000 beſides jewels, and the quantity and value of the jewels was incredible. One jeweller let out for the night to the amount of £. 200,000, and it was thought, that there was to the value of two millions ſterl. in the company. The quantity of gold and ſilver tiſſue made into Indian, Perſian, and Chineſe habits, with the quatity of diamonds, with which they were decorated is paſt deſcription, nothing but the actual view could convey an idea of them. As to the ladies, a more beautiful group never appeared : In the choice of their dreſſes, the whole capacity of female taſte and elegance was exerted. At 12 the company unmaſked to go to ſupper, the deſcription of the Mehometan paradiſe immediately ruſhed upon the memory, The ſight in ſhort was almoſt two dazzling to bear. The ſtage was lined with crimſon velvet, beautifully illuminated round. A profuſion of plate appeared in the ſix rooms ſet apart for ſupper, and the tables were covered with all imaginable elegance, upwards of 400 waiters were employed, and hardly ſufficient. Moſt of the company ſtayed the whole night. No gaming was allowed.

It is rumoured that certain perſons beyond the Atlantic, are ſoon expected to arrive here in ſalva cuſtodia.

The French Court is going to ſend a further re-inforcement of twenty battalions to Corſica.

We hear for certain, that if the brave Corſicans can hold out till next Spring, more than one powerful nation will effectually interfere in their favour : ſeveral overtures of too delicate a nature for the public eye at preſent, are now actually on the carpet for that purpoſe.

It is looked upon as certain, that the reſignation of the right hon. the Earl of Shelburne will be followed by that of the right hon. Iſaac Barre, as one of the Joint Vice Treaſurers of Ireland.

Yeſterday the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor was at Court, and returned back with the Seals.

It was yeſterday reported that the Duke of Choiſeul had reſigned and that the Duke de Nivernois ſucceeded him as prime Miniſter, in conſequence of which orders were given for withdrawing the French troops from Corſica.

It is ſaid to be the reſolution of a certain great Board, that the proceedings of the Incendiary leaders of the diſcontented party in New England amount to a treaſonable offence ; and that means will be taken to deal with them accordingly.

The Earl of Harcourt is certainly appointed Ambaſſador to the Court of France.

It is expected that Writs will very ſoon be iſſued for the Election of Members for a New Aſſembly, and it is not doubted but the ſame Members who have in a Capital Inſtance, acted ſo highly to the Satisfaction of their Conſtituents, and made ſuch an honourable Exit, will again be unanimouſly elected.

At a Meeting of a great number of the Free-holders and Freemen of this City, Yeſterday Evening at the 'Change, in order to conſult on the propriety of re electing the late Members for this City, for their ſpirited Conduct in aſſerting and ſupporting the Rights of their Conſtituents ; Mr. Philip Livingſton, having publickly declined ſerving again, Mr. John Cruger, (the late Mayor) was nominated, and has accordingly joined the other three Members, and it is not doubted, but thoſe Gentlemen will be unanimouſly elected :——At this Meeting it was motioned that thanks ſhould be returned the late Members for their ſpirited Conduct in the late Aſſembly, which Motion was agreed to, and the public Approbation ſignified by three Huzza's.

We hear from Portſmouth, That laſt Friday the unfortunate Ruth Blay, was executed there purſuant to her ſentence. She was in great diſtreſs before ſhe was turned off, begging for a few Moments longer to live.

An EVENING HYMN.

INDULGENT God whoſe bounteous care
O'er all thy works are ſhown,
O! grateful let my praiſe and prayer,
Aſcend before thy throne,
What mercies has this day beſtow'd,
How largely haſt thou bleſt
My lap with plenty overflow'd,
And with content my breaſt ——
Safe 'midſt a thouſand latent ſnares,
Thy careful hand has led
And now exempt from anxious cares
I preſs the downy bed,
This night I fall into thy arms,
Which I have proved ſo kind,
O! keep my body from all harms,
And from all ſin my mind.
Let balmy ſlumbers cloſe my eyes,
From pain and ſickneſs free,
And let my walking fancy riſe
To meditate on thee.
So bleſs each future day and night,
Till time's fond ſcene is o'er,
And then to realms of endleſs light,
O! Aid my ſoul to ſoar.

LONDON, November 8.

His MAJESTY's Speech to both Houſes.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

THE Opportunity which the late General Election gives Me of knowing, from their Repreſentatives in Parliament, the more immediate Senſe of My People, has made me deſirous of meeting you as early as could be, conſiſtent with your own Convenience. The Shortneſs of the late Seſſion of the laſt Parliament prevented their proſecuting the Conſideration of theſe great Commercial Intereſts, which had been enteredupon in the preceding Seſſion. You will, I am perſuaded agree with Me in opinion that your Deliberations on thoſe very important Objects ought to be reſumed without loſs of Time; and I truſt that they will terminate in ſuch Meaſures, as may be productive of the moſt conſiderable and eſſential Benefits to this Nation.

It would have given me great Satisfaction to have been able to acquaint you that all the other Powers of Europe had been as careful as I have ever been, to avoid the taking any Step that might endanger the general Tranquility. I have conſtantly received, and ſtill receive from them, the ſtrongeſt Aſſurances of their pacifick Diſpoſitions towards this Country. No Aſſurances, however, ſhall divert My conſtant reſolution, ſteadfaſtly to attend to the general Intereſts of Europe; nor ſhall any conſideration prevail upon Me to ſuffer any attempt that may be made, derogatory to the Honor and dignity of my Crown or injurious to the rights of my People.

At the cloſe of the laſt Parliament, I expreſſed My Satisfaction at the Appearances which then induced Me to believe, that ſuch of My Subjects, as had been miſled in ſome Part of My Dominions, were returning to a juſt Senſe of their duty. But it is with equal Concern that I have ſince ſeen that Spirit of Faction, which I had hoped was well nigh extinguiſhed, breaking out a freſh in ſome of My Colonies in North America; and, in One of them, proceeding even to Acts of Violence, and of reſiſtance to the Execution of the Law; the Capital Town of which Colony appears by late Advices, to be in a State of Diſobedience to all law and Government; and has proceeded to Meaſures ſubverſive of the conſtitution, and attended with Circumſtances that might manifeſt a Diſpoſition to throw off their Dependence on Great Britain. On my Part, I have purſued every Meaſure that appeared to be neceſſary for ſupporting the Conſtitution, and inducing a due obedience to the Authority of the Legiſlature. You may rely upon My ſteady Perſeverance in theſe purpoſes; and I doubt not but that with your Concurrence and ſupport, I ſhall be able to defeat the miſchievous Deſigns of thoſe turbulent and ſeditious Perſons, who under falſe pretences, have but too ſucceſsfully deluded Numbers of my Subjects in America; and whoſe Practices if ſuffered to prevail, cannot fail to produce the moſt fatal conſequences to my Colonies immediately, and in the End, to all the Dominions of my Crown.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons.

The proper Eſtimates for the Service of the enſuing Year I have ordered to be laid before you; fully relying on your Readineſs to grant me the neceſſary Supplies. Indeed I cannot have a Doubt of finding in this Houſe of Commons, the ſame affectionate Attachment to my Perſon and Government as I have always hitherto experienced from my faithful Commons.

My Lords and Gentlemen.

It is with great Satisfaction that I now find Myſelf enabled to rejoice with you upon the relief, which the poorer Sort of My People are now enjoying, from the Diſtreſs which they had ſo long laboured under from the high price of Corn. At the ſame time that We are bound devoutly to acknowledge in this Inſtance, the gracious interpoſition of Providence, it will become Us to apply the beſt Precautions that human Wiſdom can Suggeſt, for guarding againſt the return of the late Calamity. In the Choice, however of proper means for that purpoſe, you cannot proceed with too great Circumſpection.

I have nothing further to recommend to you, than that in all your Deliberations you keep up a Spirit of Harmony among yourſelves. Whatever Differences of Opinion may prevail in other Points, let it appear that whereever the Intereſt of your Country is immediately concerned, you are all ready to unite. Such an Example from you cannot fail of having the beſt Effects, upon the Temper of My People in every part of My Dominions, and can alone produce that general Union among Ourſelves, which will render us properly reſpected Abroad and happy at home.

WHITEHALL, Oct. 22. The King, on the reſignation of the Right Hon. the Earl of Shelburne, has been pleaſed to deliver the ſeals of the Southern Department to the Right Hon. Lord Viſcount Weymouth, and to appoint the Right Hon. the Earl of Rochford, principal Secretary of State for the Northern.

LONDON, November 8.

By the Holland mail, which arrived Yeſterday we have the following article, dated Leghorn Oct. 15 A veſſel juſt arrived from Corſica brings advice, that the Malecontents who were encamped over againſt Mariana, having received a reinforcement from General Paoli, attacked on the 9th the reinforcement ſent by the Marquis de Chauvelin to the garriſon of the fortreſs, routed it, gave the ſaid day a general aſſault to the place, and carried it after an obſtinate fight, and made the garriſon priſoners of war. The advices add, that the loſs of the French was computed at 500 men killed and wounded beſides two pieces of cannon, and all their baggage. 'Tis alſo ſaid, that to this day, they have loſt upwards of 5000 men, killed, and wounded, and taken Priſoners, among whom are four General Officers, and thirty of inferior rank; that M. de Grand Maiſon was dangerouſly wounded, and that the French would ſuſpend their operations; as the Marquis de Chauvelin was on the point of returning to Paris, with ſeveral other officers.

We can aſſure the public from very intelligent hands, who are perfectly acquainted with the preſent temper of the French, the generality of the French nation highly diſapprove of their Miniſter's conduct in regard to Corſica.

The turnkey of a certain priſon, has, it is ſaid been diſmiſſed from his place, for having behaved with too much civility to a celebrated Gentleman now confined therein.

Laſt week died at Petworth in Suſſex, one Mary Preſcott, aged 105, who had bore 37 children, moſt of whom are now living in good credit: her death was occaſioned at laſt, by a cancer in her breaſt.

Letters from Leghorn of the 12th of Octo. ſay, that the laſt advices from Aſia, make mention of a bloody war which has broke out in that part of the world; for, according to the accounts brought by ſeveral veſſels, the King of Pergu and Bracinia has almoſt ſubdued the Chineſe Empire, which, he ſays, he is reſolved to free from the tyranny of the Tartars, to whom he gives no quarter.

They write from Paris, that the Marquis de Chauvelin has declared himſelf unable to act againſt the Corſicans, till he receives a reinforcement of at leaſt ten or twelve battallions, which are accordingly ordered him by the court, a proof how much the French have ſuffered in their late engagements in that iſle, eſpecially when it is recollected, that beſides 14000 men before there, under the Count de Marbeuf, the Marquis de Chauvelin carried over with him no leſs than 7000 additional Forces.

Extract of a Letter from Balagna, in Corſica, Sept. 24.

" The following is the detail of what has paſſed in the province of Nebbio; which I told you in my laſt we were waiting for with impatience.

" Monſ. de Grand Maiſon, at the head of 2000 men, having taken ſeveral poſts in the Nebbio, fixed his head quarters at Murato, which he fortified with ſome pieces of cannon and placed in the convent near that town his hoſpital, part of his baggage and the military cheſt.

"The detachment which we had at Lenito, re inforced by 500 men from Nio o, put in march the 15th of this month, and attacked the French with ſuch impetuoſity, that they ſoon diſlodged them from ſeveral poſts: and had it not been for a heavy rain which retarded their operations, would probably have made themſelves maſters of the enemy's camp This affair coſt many men on each ſide. The rain, which had obliged our men to retire, prevented not, however, a large body of troops, marching from the Balagna to thier ſuccour. The French, advertiſed of this, quitted their camp during the night and our people found there, on the 16th in the morning, a quantity of tents and three pieces of cannon. Part of our troops perſued the enemy, whilſt the reſt fell upon the convent of Murato, where the French had left only 50 men to guard the hoſpital, who were ſoon obliged to ſurrender, with the ſix officers who commanded them, the ſick, the baggage of their General, and about 60,000 livres, which made a part of the military cheſt.

"By this ſucceſs, we are again in poſſeſſion of all the Nebbio, except O etta, where M. de Grand Maiſon is now fortifying himſelf — We ſhall give the French but little reſt; and particular care is taken to prevent their making incurſion into the country."

Extract of a Letter from Warſaw, Oct 19.

"The Ruſſian Ambaſſador has juſt received an expreſs, adviſing that the Confederates of Oſzmania, in Lithuania, to the Number of 3000 men, had advanced to Nieſwiſz, the reſidence of Prince Radzivil, in order to oblige him either to ſign the act of their confederacy, or to deliver up to them his troops and artillery; but that at the moment they were preparing to attack the Caſtle of that place, a Corps of Ruſſian troops, commanded by Gen. Iſmaelow, came up, and ſurrounded the Confederates in ſuch a Manner, that they could [illegible]; upon which, they demanded liberty to retire, with promiſe to deſiſt in future from all confederacy, and go to their reſpective homes. The Ruſſian Commandant rejecting their propoſition, and given them to underſtand that they muſt ſurrender at diſcretion, they begged Radzivil to intercede for them; and, upon his doing this, the Ruſſian General ſent the Courier (the bearer of the news) to Prince Repnin, to know how he muſt act in this circumſtance."

NEW-YORK, Jan. 2, 1769.

[By Capt. Schemerhorn from S. Carolina, we have an Account of the proceedings of the General Aſſembly there, in relation to the famous Letter from the Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts Bay of the 11th of February laſt, which occaſioned a Diſſolution of that Aſſembly:—— An Abstract of that part of the Proceedings, which relate to that Matter is as follows]

On the 17th of November, his Excellency Lord Montague, made a Speech to the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly, wherein he acquaints them of his Majeſty's leaving the Indian Affairs to the Care of the ſeveral Governments,— and with ſome other Matters has theſe Words, as part of his ſpeech, viz.

I truſt, Gentlemen, you will exert yourſelves, and particularly to Diſcountenance, & treat with the contempt it deſerves, any Letter or paper that may appear to have the leaſt Tendency to Sedition, or by promoting an unwarrantable Combination, to inflame the Minds of the People, to oppoſe the Authority of Parliament, or the Government of our gracious Sovereign.

The Commons Houſe of Aſſembly then reſolved on an humble Addreſs, to be preſented to his Excellency, in Anſwer to his Speech, which they preſented on the 19th. In that Addreſs after congratulating his Excellency on his Return to the Province, and thanking him for his Speech, with ſome other Matters, they have theſe Words, viz.

We aſſure your Excellency that no paper or Letter, appearing to have the ſmalleſt Tendency to Sedition, to promote an unwarrantable Combination, or to inflame the minds of the People, to oppoſe the juſt Authority of Parliament, or the Government of our gracious Sovereign, has ever been laid before us; and ſhould any ſuch appear we ſhall immediately treat it with the Contempt it deſerves.

The ſame day the Houſe came to the following reſolutions.

The Committee to whom the Letter from the Hon Thomas Cuſhing Eſquire, Speaker of the late Houſe of Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, and the Letter from the Hon. Peyton Randolph, Eſquire, Speaker of the Houſe of Burgeſſes of Virginia, addreſſed to the Speaker of the late Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province, laid by him before the Houſe Yeſterday, were referred.

Report,

That they have conſidered the ſaid Letters, and have unanimouſly come to the following reſolutions thereupon, which they recommended to the Houſe.

Reſolved,

That the ſaid Letters are replete with Duty, and Loyalty to his Majeſty, Reſpect for the Parliament of Great Britain, ſincere Affection for our Mother Country, tender Care for the Preſervation of the Rights of all his Majeſty's Subjects, and founded upon undeniable Conſtitutional principles.

Reſolved,

That an humble, dutiful and loyal Addreſs from this Houſe to his moſt Sacred Majeſty, be forthwith prepared and ſent to the Agent, to be preſented to the King, humbly imploring his Royal Protection, and interpoſition with the Parliament, to relieve his American Subjects from the Grievances, mentioned in the ſaid Letters, and to Thank them for communicating to their Fellow Subjects and Sufferers in this and the other Provinces, the Proceedings of thoſe Houſes, upon theſe important Points.

Reſolved,

That the ſaid Report be taken into Conſideration immediately; and the ſaid Report being read Paragraph by Paragraph, was unanimouſly agreed to by the Houſe.

Ordered,

That the Committee of Correſpondence do write to the Agent in Great Britain, and Inſtruct him to join with the Agents of the other Provinces in America, in obtaining a Repeal of the ſeveral acts of Parliament which have lately been paſſed, laying Duties in America; and that he do endeavour to prevent the Clauſe for Billetting Soldiers in America, from being inſerted in the next Mutiny act that is paſſed; and that they do further inſtruct the Agent to join the Agents of the other Provinces in all Matters where the general Intereſt of North America is concerned.

That a Committee be appointed to prepare an humble, dutiful and loyal addreſs from this Houſe to his moſt ſacred Majeſty, to be ſent to the Agent to be preſented to his Majeſty, humbly imploring his Royal Protection, and interpoſition with the Parliament, to relieve his American Subjects from the grievances they labour under, in Conſequence of the late acts paſſed for raiſing a Revenue in America.

[And upon theſe Proceedings, at 8 o'Clock the ſame Evening the General Aſſembly was diſſolved by a Proclamation, from the Governor]

BOTSTON, Jan. 9.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London to his Friend in Boſton, of the 4th of October, by the Packet,

YOUR Troops you may depend upon it, will all be called away in the Spring, & the Ships too, Doctor F—— has given it as his Opinion that the Colonies will obtain all that they can deſire or wiſh for, if they believe with Firmneſs. —Your Commiſſioners ſtand here exactly in the Character that they have eſtabliſhed for themſelves in America; and it is the opinion of every one; that the board will be recalled, and a new Governor appointed for your Province. Lord H—— himſelf ſays, he entirely diſlikes their Conduct.——

Extract of another Letter (by the Packet) from a Gentleman in London to his Friend in this Town.

—"I think the only Method you can take is to perſevere in your Scheme of Oeconomy with ſteadineſs until the enemies of America feel their Error and alter their Conduct.—It appears to me the Scheme is to provoke the common People to ſome Acts of Violence, which may be turned to your diſadvantage in which I hope they will be diſappointed.

"The whole of your Affairs will be laid before the next Seſſions of our Parliamen:——The Petition from Virginia is already arrived, & will be delivered in proper time,— it is exceedingly loyal and ſpirited; —and Petitions from ſeveral of the other Colonies will be ready at the ſame Time. The Friends of America increaſe upon the meaſures that have been purſued."——

Extract of a Letter from London, October 8.

—"Mr. Cuſhing's Letter to your Agent, Mr. De Berdt, though called a private one, it is plain was writ with a purpoſe of publication. Your Aſſembly had been diſſolved, and thereby prevented from tranſmitting their forty one humble Petitions: ſo the Speaker was to endeavour to alarm the Britiſh manufacturers with his fears. But it won't do, my old acquaintance. We ſerved with you too long to be impoſed upon by your Vaunts. We have not got a G——l C——y now for our American Miniſter. The noble Earl who now conducts that department is not to be frightned with Squibs. Lower your Tone & he will hear you, and treat you with that tenderneſs and condeſcending Humanity peculiar to him; but not upon compulſion; not a Syllable upon Compulſion. Submi to the laws, and then ſtate your grievances; for there will be no treaty with Subjects in Arms againſt the Laws."

Jan. 12. We hear that no Great and General Court or Aſſembly for this province will be called before the laſt Wedneſday in May next.

We hear there are ſeveral veſſels ſeized on this coaſt, by the King's armed veſſels and cutters, for ſuppoſed breaches of the acts of trade; one of them, Capt. M'Cobb, bound from this place to the eaſtern ſettlements, Capt. M'Cobb has been ſince diſcharged.

A Letter from London mentions, "The firſt Civilian in this Kingdom, has undertaken for Capt. Folgier, in his appeal from your Court of Admiralty; and it is expected that he will not only ſucceed in his appeal, but alſo have an handſome appointment.

We have it from the beſt authority, that in the town of Roxbury one family only, has carded, ſpun and wove 645 yards and 3-4 of Cloth, from the firſt of January 1768, to the 29th of December following; and at that time had yarn enough at the weavers for 100 yards more.

Copy of a letter from the Speaker of the late houſe of Aſſembly in South-Carolina, to the Honorable Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq;

SIR,

HAVING had the honor of being choſen Speaker of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly, which met at Charleſtown on the 15th Inſtant, I took the earlieſt opportunity of laying before the Houſe your Letter to me of the 11th of Feb. laſt.

It is with a ſatisfaction equal to the Importance of the ſubject, that I obey the order of the Houſe in informing you of their unanimous Reſolutions upon the ſubject matter of your letter: in acquainting you of their entire Approbation of the Meaſures taken by the late Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, to obtain a Redreſs of our Grievances; and in thanking the Members of that Houſe in their Name, for communicating to their fellow-ſubjects and ſufferers in this and the other Provinces, their Proceedings upon that trying occaſion.

I incloſe you the Journals of the Proceedings of our Houſe of Aſſembly, during the ſhort, but intereſting Period of their Exiſtance, as printed by their Order; which muſt convince the impartial World, that they have acted with Duty and Affection to his Majeſty, at the ſame time that they have ſupported with Firmneſs, the Rights they hold under the Conſtitution.

The Houſe was diſſolved by Proclamation, on the evening of the day that they entered into their reſolutions.—This method of proceeding may for a time involve the province in ſome difficulties, but I truſt, that nothing which the miniſtry can invent, will ever prevail upon a Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of South-Carolina, tamely to ſurrender the liberties and privileges of the people, to any power upon earth. I am, Sir,

With great reſpect, your obliged and obedient ſervant,

P. MANIGAULT.

A very remarkable inſtance among the Indians, of generoſity in an adverſary.

The fact was related as a certain truth by a clergyman, who was chaplain of a regiment in America during the laſt war.

ONE Indian happened to kill another. The brother of the deceaſed called upon the murderer, and ſeeing a woman and children in his hut, aſked whoſe they were; The murderer declared them to be his wife and children. The brother then ſaid, that tho' his brother's blood called for revenge, yet as the children were young, and not able to provide for their mother and themſelves, he would remain deaf to theſe calls for a while, and ſo left them. Belonging both to the ſame tribe, they continued to live ſociably together, till the eldeſt ſon of the murderer killed a deer in hunting. So ſoon as the brother of the deceaſed was informed of this, he again called on the murderer, and told him, that his brother's blood now called ſo loud, that it muſt be obeyed, eſpecially as his ſon, having killed a deer could ſupport the family. The murderer ſaid he was ready to die, and thanked the other for ſo long a delay: on which the wife and children broke into tears. The murderer reproved them for their weakneſs and particularly his ſon, ſaying to him did you ſhed tears when you killed the deer; and if you ſaw him die with dry eyes, why do you weep for me who am willing to ſuffer what the cuſtom of our nation renders neceſſary? with an undaunted countenance he then called on the brother of the deceaſed to ſtrike; and died without a groan.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Laſt Monday arrived at Boſton, the Ship Boſton Packet, Capt. Scott, from London, and has brought Prints to the 3d of Dec. The following are Extracts of ſeveral Letters which came by Capt. Scott. [For Want of Room we muſt refer our Readers to our next, for News, &c. brought by Capt. Scott.]

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his friend in this Town, dated November 16 1768.

THE applications for the redreſs of Grievances are near univerſal, what reception they will meet with is yet in ſuſpence; but certainly a calm prudent moderate temper in ſupporting them will greatly conduce to their efficacy, tho' the Miniſtry do not appear to be pleaſed with the univerſality of the Petitions.

"Though the friends of America ſeem to increaſe, yet there is a powerful oppoſition, which will occaſion warm debates in the Senate."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Diſtinction in London, to his Friend in this Town, dated Nov. 18, 1768.

THE King has ſeen your Petition, which will with the reſt of the Colonies Petitions be bro't before Parliament.

"I hope as the Troops are quietly landed, and as there will be no occaſion for them, they will ſoon be removed, which will give me great ſatisfaction.—I think you will ſoon have your aſſembly reſtored, which will be a healing meaſure.—Yeſterday I met a number of the Friends of America and I have the ſatisfaction to aſſure you that they inform me the Houſe were coming about in favor of America, very faſt, though the Houſe was at firſt greatly alarmed by his Majeſty's ſpeech.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Diſtinction to his Friend in this Town dated London, Nov. 19, 1768.

ALL the Circumſtances of the Colonies will be laid before the Parliament, and I am not without hopes of your obtaining relief——as to the Convention, it was certainly a prudent meaſure and had a ſalutary effect, and you judged exceeding right to diſclaim all authoritative and governmental acts."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, dated Nov. 12.

"WE have received a particular account Journal wiſe, of the Parade of the Ships and Troops to our much injured Town, on which ſome very juſt obſervations have been made; ſince which and the account of the diſſolution of your convention, the Intention of which is now better known;——that ſpirit of Bitterneſs which lately prevailed is now greatly ſubſided.—Lord B*, made a motion in the houſe of C. to expel Wilkes, but without Effect.—You have it in your Power to relieve yourſelves from all unconſtitutional acts made here, by a ſteady and determined Reſolution to omit the importation or conſumption of our Manufactures which I heartily wiſh, tho' I muſt greatly ſuffer by ſuch reſolutions.——The times will ſoon change—Mr. T and B are indefatigable in your Intereſt. The Papers will ſhew you we are not without benevolent and able Friends and ſupporters. Great Proſpects of a Change in the Miniſtry to our advantage. November 18.

D. F—— ſays, all will be right by and by.——

Extract of another Letter dated London, November 20

A Journal of proceedings in Boſton has been printed in the St. James's Chronicle, Mr.  is enamoured with the Boſtonian conduct. Some Members of Parliament have been warm in your favour——all your Friends here would have you be reſolute reſpecting non importation. D. F—— has declared the Penſilvanians will come into it if the Parliament do not redreſs our grievances, and that when they do they will keep their agreement. Your friends will not forſake you at any critical period, unleſs you forfeit their Opinion of you by paſſive ſervitude, the Idea of which they cannot bear: I rejoice frugality is actually practiſed with you——It affords me redoubled diſtreſs to find that we owe our preſent diſtreſs to thoſe who are nurſed among you had I heard of ſome Perſons what I now know for fact I had diſ believed it, we are told with a ſnear we ſhall ſoon have the company of Mr. O—s, &c.——I do not believe it, impoſſible the Boſtonians ſhould ſuffer it.——It has been reported that you have delivered up your arms, I have ventured to aſſert that you neither have or will, your friends would forſake you for ſuch an action.

P. S. I have juſt received great Pleaſure, by what has come to my knowledge——The Tide is turning, and I think you may have Things on the old Footing.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in Boſton, dated November 18 1768.

WE ſee with true Concern what you ſay with reſpect to your preſent Situation; we confeſs it extremely diſagreeable: But as our Parliament (being now met) will ſoon go upon American affairs, we have the moſt ſanguine hopes, that Matters will be happily ſettled to all our Wiſhes:——By what can yet be diſcovered great part of your diſtreſſes may be attributed to ſome on your ſide the Water.——Every thing relative to the late and preſent diſturbances and uneaſineſſes in your town, is ordered to be laid before the houſe; and we doubt not when Matters come to be cooly conſidered every real cauſe of complaint will be removed.

Several other Letters from Merchants in London are of the ſame Import with the above:. One Gentleman, it is ſaid, writes, that to keep from Mobs, Riots, &c. and adhere to the Encouragement for Non-importation of Goods, would be a great Means of having Redreſs.

Extract of a Letter from London dated October 8. 1768.

"I ſee, and ſee with much concern, the diſcontents in America increaſing daily on account of the late paper and glaſs-act. I cannot eaſily conceive how this affair will terminate. It is ſomewhat unlucky that another bone of contention ſhould ſo ſoon ſucceed the late ſtamp act, which muſt neceſſarily, for ſome time at leaſt be of conſiderable prejudice to the trade and intereſt of us both. But I have often ſeen much good ariſe from very unpromiſing beginnings: and in the preſent caſe, matters are now come ſo far, that a final ſettlement will probably take place between us, whether or not America ſhall, in future, be ſubject to the payment of taxes impoſed in Britain; and when this is agitating, you may perhaps obtain relief from other obſtructions under which your trade labours, which if greatly, and may be needleſly prejudicial to you, muſt in fact, be hurtful to the Mother country; for I muſt and will conſider our intereſts are the ſame, tho' ſome people would fain try to ſeparate them."

BOSTON, January 19.

The reports of the removal of ſome of the governors in North-America, has ſubſided; and we hear his Excellency the governor of this province has received the fulleſt aſſurances of the royal approbation of his conduct.

We hear the Commiſſions for the late appointed Judges of the Court of Admiralty in North-America, came in Capt. Rowland.

Some Letters from London intimate, that the Proceedings of the Town Meeting and the Convention here, are highly reſented at Home: Other Letters ſay, that it was a prudent Meaſure: But as thoſe Matters are ſaid to be referred to the principal Lawyers in England nothing would be determined upon until their Opinion be given.

Laſt Friday Evening there was a grand Concert of Vocal and Inſtrumental Muſic at Concert Hall, at which were preſent a very polite company.

NEW-YORK, January 19

Laſt evening arrived the ——, packet, Capt. Jefferies, in 7 weeks and 5 days from Falmouth, by whom we underſtand there are London papers to the 29th of November, but as we have not been able to obtain a ſight of any ſo late as we have already had, and having neither time nor room, we muſt refer our readers to our next for the news. London papers of the 10th Nov. inform us, that on the 8th of Nov. the Queen was delivered of a princeſs—That a Lord Lieutenant will be appointed for America, as for Ireland.—That the Duke of Grafton is appointed Prime Miniſter, pro tempore.—That war is expected between France and Ruſſia.——We hear likewiſe of the death of the Duke of Newcaſtle, and that the Corſicans have gained another victory over the French.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS, of the Colony of CONNECTICUT.

I Herewith ſend you on the one hand column ſome extracts from the charter of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, and on the other hand column, ſome extracts from the charter of the colony of Connecticut, with regard to the General Election of the principal Magiſtrates; by which the ſimilarity of each charter will at firſt view appear. Under each paragraph I have noted down the practice of each government upon both charters, to which I have added ſome ſhort remarks and obſervations, and at the cloſe have annexed ſome queries for the conſideration of the Freemen, to which queries I hope to receive candid anſwers, which may clear up ſome difficulties which hang upon my mind.—It muſt be carefully noted, that it is a prerogative of the Crown to appoint, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary and aſſiſtant Counſellors; but in the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, the King has reſerved in his own hand the nomination and appointment of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary, and then by charter gave up this prerogative of nomination of the aſſiſtant Counſellors to the body corporate: But in the Colony of Connecticut, the King has given up to the body corporate, his royal prerogative of the appointment of the Governor, Deputy-Governor, Secretary, as well as the aſſiſtant Counſellors.

Extracts from the charter of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

EXTRACT I.

"We for us our heirs and ſucceſſors will eſtabliſh and ordain that from henceforth forever, there ſhall be one Governor, one Lieutenant or Deputy-Governor, and one Secretary in our ſaid province or territory, to be from time to time appointed and commiſſioned by us our heirs, ſucceſſors, and eight and twenty Aſſiſtants or Counſellors, which ſaid Counſellors or Aſſiſtants are to be conſtituted elected and choſen in ſuch form and manner as hereafter in theſe preſents is expreſſed."

Remark 1.

In this paragraph his Majeſty reſerves to himſelf the right of appointing the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary, and then cedes to the corporation, this royal prerogative of chooſing the Aſſiſtant Counſellors, but limits them in the exerciſe of this power to the form and manner preſcrib'd by charter.

EXTRACT 2.

"And that the ſaid Governor with the ſaid Aſſiſtants or Counſellors, or ſeven of them at the leaſt, ſhall and may hold and keep a council, &c.——And further, we will and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do ordain and grant, that there ſhall, and may be convened, held and kept by the Governor for the time being, upon every laſt Wedneſday in the month of May, every year forever and at all ſuch other times as the Governor of our ſaid province ſhall think fit and appoint a great or general court or aſſembly, which ſaid great and general court or aſſembly, ſhall conſiſt of the Governor and Council or Aſſiſtants for the time being; and of ſuch freeholders of our ſaid province or territory as ſhall be from time to time elected or deputed, by the major part of the freeholders and other inhabitants of the reſpective towns or places, who ſhall be preſent at ſuch elections, each of the ſaid towns and places, being hereby impowered to elect and depute two perſons and no more to ſerve for, and repreſent them reſpectively in the ſaid great and general court or aſſembly——and our will and pleaſure is, and we do hereby for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, grant, eſtabliſh and ordain, that yearly, once in every year for ever hereafter the aboveſaid number of eight and twenty counſellors or Aſſiſtants, ſhall be by the general aſſembly newly choſen."

Remark 2.

It is clear by the above paragraph, that the great and general court or aſſembly conſiſts of the Governor and Aſſiſtant, or Counſellors, ſeven of whom muſt be preſent in council; the freeholders or two perſons elected and deputed to repreſent the freeholders of each town, who are by charter directed on the laſt Wedneſday of May, annually to make choice of twenty eight Aſſiſtants or counſellors in the General Aſſembly.

The practice upon the charter in conducting the general election in the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, is this, the Aſſiſtants or Counſellors, being met in general aſſembly together, with the repreſentatives of the freemen, the votes of the counſellors, and the votes of the repreſentatives are counted promiſcuouſly, and the choice made in the general aſſembly, the counſellors and repreſentatives being the only legal voters by charter.—The Governor having by charter a right to negative.

EXTRACT 3.

"And that the ſaid Counſellors or Aſſiſtants, or any of them ſhall, or may at any time hereafter, be removed or diſplaced from their reſpective places or truſt of counſellors or Aſſiſtants, by any great or general court or aſſembly; and that if any of the ſaid Counſellors or Aſſiſtants, ſhall happen to die, or be removed as aforeſaid, before the general day of election, that then, and in every ſuch caſe, the great and general court, or aſſembly, at their firſt ſitting may proceed to a new election of any one or more Counſellors or Aſſiſtants, in the room or place of ſuch Counſellors or Aſſiſtants, ſo dying or removed."

Remark 3.

As the former paragraphs, fix'd the day of general election of counſellors, to the laſt Wedneſday of May, annually; this paragraph enables the great or general court or aſſembly at any other of their ſeſſions, to fill up any vacancies, made either by death or removal.

Extract from the charter of the colony of Connecticut.

EXTRACT I.

"We——do ordain, conſtitute and declare, that the ſaid John Winthrop, John Maſon, Samuel Wyllys, &c. ſhall be one body corporate and politic, in fact and name, by the name of the Governor and Company of the Engliſh Colony of Connecticut; and that for the better ordering and managing of the affairs and buſineſs of the ſaid company and their ſucceſſors, there ſhall be one Governor, one Deputy Governor and twelve Aſſiſtants, to be from time to time conſtituted, elected and choſen out of the freemen of the ſaid company, for the time being, in ſuch manner and form as hereafter in theſe preſents is expreſt."

Remark 1.

In this paragraph his Majeſty forms the corporation, or makes them a corporate body, names them, and directs by what officers the body corporate ſhall be governed, cedes or gives up to the body corporate his royal prerogative of appointing, and directs by charter the form and manner in which they ſhall be elected.

EXTRACT 2.

"—Do ordain and grant, that the Governor—or in his abſence, the Deputy Governor—ſhall and may from time to time, upon all occaſions, give order for aſſembling of the ſaid company—and forever hereafter twice in every year, that is to ſay, on every 2d Thurſday of October, and on every 2d Thurſday of May, or oftener, in caſe it ſhall be requiſite, the ASSISTANTS and FREEMEN, of the ſaid company, or ſuch of them (not exceeding two perſons from each town or city) who ſhall be from time to time, there elected, deputed, by the major part of the freemen of the reſpective towns cities and places for which they ſhall be ſo elected or deputed, ſhall have a general meeting or aſſembly—and that the ſaid Governor, or in his abſence, the Deputy Governor—and ſuch of the aſſiſtants and freemen of the ſaid Company, as ſhall be ſo elected, or deputed, and be preſent at the meeting or aſſembly, or the greateſt number of them whereof the Governor or Deputy Governor, and ſix Aſſiſtants at leaſt to be ſeven, ſhall be called the general aſſembly, and ſhall have full power to alter and change their days and times of meeting or general aſſemblies for electing the Governor, Deputy Governor, Aſſiſtants, &c.——And we do hereby for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, eſtabliſh and ordain that once in the year forever hereafter, namely, the ſecond Thurſday in May, the Governor, and Deputy Governor and Aſſiſtants of the ſaid Company, and other officers of the company, or ſuch of them as the general aſſembly ſhall think fit, ſhall be in the ſaid general court and aſſembly, to be held from that day, or time, newly choſen for the year enſuing, by ſuch greater part of the company, for the time being, then and there preſent."

Remark 2.

Theſe paragraphs of our charter perfixes two ſeſſions of the general aſſembly, and enables the governor upon ſpecial occaſions at any other time: and that if it is neceſſary for a legal aſſembly, that ſix of the aſſiſtants at leaſt be preſent, and that the freemen may themſelves meet, or they may depute two perſons from each town to repreſent them—and that on the ſecond Thurſday of May annually there ſhall be a general aſſembly, when Governor, Deputy Governor and Aſſiſtants, &c. ſhall be choſen in the aſſembly and by perſons preſent.

Our practice by a certain law of this colony, (fol. 45) is, In the month of September, at the freemen's meeting in the ſeveral towns in the colony, each freeman puts in votes for 20 perſons, who are to ſtand for election in May next, ſucceeding, whom they upon their oaths think moſt fit; which votes are counted in the aſſembly in October, and the freemen are obliged by law, to vote only for twelve, who are contained in thoſe twenty, who happen to have the moſt votes in October. The Governor and Deputy they may chooſe at large; and the conſtable is by law obliged to call firſt for votes for him, who is placed firſt in the nomination, and ſo on ſucceſſively in their order, which votes are ſealed up and ſent to Hartford, from the ſeveral towns, there to be counted and ſorted.

EXTRACT 3.

"And if the Governor, Deputy Governor and Aſſiſtants, by theſe preſents appointed, or ſuch as hereafter be newly choſen in their rooms, or any of them, or any other the officers to be appointed for the ſaid company, ſhall die or be removed from his or their ſeveral offices or places before the ſaid general day of election, whom we do hereby declare, for any miſdemeanour or default, to be removeable, by the Governor, Aſſiſtants and Company, or ſuch greater part of them in any of the ſaid public courts to be aſſembled, as is aforeſaid, that then in every ſuch caſe ſhall and may be lawful to and for the Governor and aſſiſtants and Company aforeſaid, in any of their aſſemblies, to proceed to a new election.

Remark 3.

As the former paragraph fixes the day of general election to the ſecond Tueſday of May annually—The laſt recited paragraph enables the Governor, Aſſiſtants, the freemen, or their repreſentatives, if they chooſe repreſentatives when convened in general aſſembly any other time, to fill up any vacancies made by death or removal.

I think there is a very near analogy in the phraſeology and diction of both charters, and beg leave to propoſe the following queries, which I hope will be calmly and candidly anſwered by ſome one who well underſtands the law and terms made uſe of in ſuch grants or charters.

Queſt. 1. Doth not the extracts, (No. 1) made from both charters, limit the method of election of the ſeveral officers to be choſen by the rules given in each charter?

Q. 2. Can the method practiſed in the choice of Counſellors, in the province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, be agreeable to the true intereſt and meaning of the words of their charter, and at the ſame time the practice of electing the Governor, D. Governor, Aſſiſtants, &c. as practiſed in this colony be agreeable to the words of our charter contained in extract, No. 2?

Q. 3. As it is conceded the freemen may themſelves by virtue of the charter meet in general aſſembly, and make choice of Governor, &c. What words or paragraph of our charter, enables the freemen to chooſe deputies to repreſent them in the aſſembly, and at the ſame time to reſerve a right of chooſing the Governor, &c. in their own hands, in the ſeveral towns in which they reſide at, out of aſſembly too?

Q. 4. Whether as ſeven eights of the freemen can have no other knowledge of the capacity of thoſe they make choice of, to be our civil rulers, than what they attain from their repreſentatives, it would not be as ſafe for the government to have the choice of our civil rulers made by the Governor, aſſiſtants and the Deputies of the freemen of the reſpective towns, as in the method we now uſe.

Q. 5. Whether if a choice made in the general aſſembly, and by perſons preſent, will not better guard againſt faction, and the intreagues of deſigning men?

Q. 6. What ſentence of the charter enables the aſſembly to reſtrict the votes of the freemen to the twenty perſons in the nomination, as they act under a ſolemn oath?

Q. 7. Doth not the obliging the conſtables in the ſeveral towns to call for votes for thoſe who ſtand firſt in the nomination (which are always thoſe who are members of the council) and ſo in order as they ſtand contribute more to their re-election, than the qualifications they are poſſeſs'd of for government?

Q. 8. If on enquiry into our method of election, it be found to be inconſiſtent with the rules preſcrib'd by charter, will not a continuance in our preſent method endanger our charter privileges? I am your's,

IGNORAMUS.

From the Political Regiſter.

Oct. 15. THIS day the Earl of Chatham reſigned his poſt of Lord Privy Seal. Having found in a variety of late inſtances, that his advice was diſregarded, and his influence in the ſtate at an end, he choſe to reſign——the principle now adopted and purſuing with reſpect to America, is ſaid to have been one cauſe of his reſignation. Amongſt many others the following are added: The plan now forming by the united houſes of Bourbon and Auſtria, to deſtroy the peace and liberty of Europe, being looked upon with indifference, and treated as an idle chimera by thoſe who call themſelves miniſters at Paris upon the invaſion of Corſica by the French, and the ſtrong contradiction by authority given to it here. The memorial of a ſouthern potentate, once the natural and firm ally of Great-Britain, (but now neceſſitated to bow with humiliation to France and Auſtria for ſecurity: and ſubmitting to take an annual ſtipend from France, as an equivalent for a territory, ſecured to him by treaty, the great object of his wiſhes, and the recompence for his ſervices and ſufferings in the common cauſe) repreſenting the danger to Great Britain, as well as to himſelf in the ſuffering France to acquire the Empire of the Mediterranean: theſe are his words. The family compact beginning to operate in its utmoſt and dangerous extent, and not one effort made by Great Britain to check its progreſs. Mr Lynch appointed Miniſter to the Court of Turin, contrary to the reſigner's recommendation, which was in favour of the Earl of Tankerville. A general officer of unſpotted character and unſullied honor driven from the ſervice of his country, and baniſhed into obſcurity, leſt his abilities or his bravery ſhould contribute to prevent the approaching diſtreſs. Public buſineſs has for ſome time been at a ſtand; or what is worſe, it has been executed by clerks. Men of profligate characters, whoſe fortunes have been diſſipated in ſcenes of lewdneſs and debauchery, placed in great offices of honor, truſt and emolument, with no other view but to aggrandize themſelves at the expence of the public; and who knowing that their own date in office cannot be longer than while the ſhadow of peace is preſerved, are daily diſgracing and debilitating the ſtate by the moſt infamous practices. Corruption at the height the moſt alarming and enormous, and practiſed in the moſt open and daring manner, to the danger both of the public liberty, and of the property of every individual in the kingdom. And to crown all, beyond their incomes, they are known to have accepted of an annual 500l. out of the miniſter's private pocket book, under the denomination of ſecret ſervice as the reward for betraying their country, or rather as it were, to plunge the fatal dagger into the vitals of her exiſtence; the arch fiend of corruption is now performing the part of locum tenens to the abſent favourite; a wretch who upon his legs in a certain aſſembly had the hardineſs to defend the principle and the practice of corruption, and to add that the public buſineſs could not be carried on without it. Is it not alarming to ſee ſuch a man again truſted, and conſulted; and is it not the higheſt impeachment of the public juſtice that his former conduct is ſuffered to ſleep without enquiry? At the death of the late King, he was ſaid to be worth at leaſt a million ſterl. and how much more hath he amaſſed by the peace and other jobs?

An ANECDOTE.

A noted doctor having very poſitively affirmed a ſingular tenet in his ſermon, ſtretched out a long arm over his congregation, and cry'd out, Who dare deny this? One of the hearers, near the front door, ſhrunk back, and timidly reply'd, No body, good Doctor, while within reach of your Fiſt.

Extract of a Letter from a Port in New England.

" IT will be a work of time to eſtabliſh manufacturers here, though I know numbers of families that cloath themſelves with cloth ſpun in their own houſe, equal, in many reſpects, to what is imported, & much ſtronger ſhalloons alſo: but the ſpirit of pride predominates over ſelf-denial with the better ſort of people; but the country people are not only aiming at, but will wear their own manufactures; I believe the ſcarcity of caſh, if nothing elſe, will put them upon it. Had they been let alone, there would have been more got by your duties; for as the duties drain away the little caſh they have it has made them think of things they would never have thought of, but on that account; but now they have ſuch a dread of ſlavery, that you may make country people believe that they will all be ſold for ſlaves in a few years. Tell them there are troops coming, and they ſwear, they may as well die by the ſword as famine; and they think themſelves almoſt invincible at buſh fighting; and I really believe, were they to be puſhed, there would be bloody work, for they have true Engliſh blood in their veins, though born in America. It is not the ſum, but they think it unconſtitutional, and that by the ſame right they do this they may give away all they have and ſell them for ſlaves inſtead of negroes. Haughtineſs, in delegated power, contributes not a little to foment ill blood; great people are generally hard of acceſs, and humility is not to be expected where power is veſted. There was an entertainment laſt week at Boſton, where there was ninety two carriages went to a neighbouring village, and at dinner they had ſeventeen negroes to wait at table, who anſwered to the names of the ſeventeen members who were for reſcinding; ſo much do they abhor the thot's of giving up their rights and privileges."

A French gentleman (who was in England about five years ago and has lately returned) being aſked, a few days ſince, how he liked the improvements that had been made in his abſence, replied, 'Not at all.—for you have deprived the needy and induſtrious labourers of their homely dwellings, to make way for the ſuperb buildings of the great.——You are certainly (added he) guided by a falſe taſte; for I am ſure it is much more to the credit of a nation to ſee the poor in the quiet poſſeſſion of the neceſſaries of life, than to behold the rich luxuriouſly rioting in their ſuperfluities."

Sunday were married in the pariſh church of Hendon, in the county of Middleſex, by the Rev. Mr. Aldrich, ten young couple belonging to the ſaid pariſh to each of the brides was given a wedding ring of ten ſhillings value; to each couple ten ſhillings more for their wedding dinner; for the purchaſe of ſome uſeful neceſſaries towards houſe keeping, forty ſhillings; and the expences of the marriage fees defrayed for them; and in order to promote and encourage population, to each couple, at the expiration of two years, upon producing a healthy child, twelve months old, will be given the further ſum of two guineas; and at the end of 3 years, upon producing a ſecond healthy child, they will receive a gratuity of 3 guineas more. To each couple was given, being a donation from other hands a tract, called the whole duty of man; and every other couple that ſhall be married by Banns in the ſaid church, will be intitled to the ſaid donations, ſecured by will forever.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman on his travels, to his friend in Ireland, dated from Burges, Sept. 23.

" I propoſe ſtaying a month or five weeks at Paris if the French court does not diſmiſs me ſooner, for every thing here, and indeed all over the continent, favours of [illegible] *probably be the caſe. A general rupture is as much the expectation here, as with you in Ireland; and the principal powers on this ſide the water have now as many troops in pay as they had in the midſt of the laſt war. We hear that the ſtage from Town to Hounſlow was the firſt ever ſet up in this Kingdom, and that about 30 Years ago.——The Chaiſes were at firſt open with two Wheels only; the next Alterations were making them cloſe; but theſe being hazardous four wheeled Chaiſes were contrived, which in a Year's Time ſpread all over the Kingdom,——At preſent a further Improvement is diſcovered, which is raiſing the Front wheels to four feet ſix Inches high, which enables the Horſes to run thirty Miles in the ſame Time as they can twenty in the Chaiſes upon the old Conſtruction—This excellent Invention is attended with this further Excellence, that it turns an Angle ſharper than any three Feet wheel with a Perch.——There are now ſeveral buildings, as we are informed, for a Person at Hounſlow who generally takes the Lead in the advantageous Improvements.

The Humble Addreſs of the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament aſſembled.

Die Martis, 8° Novembris, 1768.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE, Your Majeſty's mouſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliment aſſembled, beg Leave to return Your Majeſty our humble Thanks for Your moſt gracious Speech from the Throne.

We deſire, with Hearts full of Gratitude, to acknowledge that Royal Goodneſs, ſo evidently maniſeſt to all your people by your Majeſty's conſtant Attention to the great Commercial Intereſts of this Country. We ſhould be wanting on our Part, if we did not apply to the Conſideration of them with that Alacrity, which Objects ſo very important, and capable of Producing the mouſt eſſential Benefits to the Nation, demand of us.

The Reſolution, which Your Majeſty is pleaſed to expreſs, that you will not ſuffer any Attempt to be made derogatory to the Honnour and Dignity of your Crown, or injurious to the Rights of Your people, does and ever will call from us the Aſſurances of our moſt chearful Support; nor do we conceive that any conduct can contribute more than this will, to render all the other Powers of Europe as careful, as Your Majeſty has ever been to avoid taking any Step that may endanger the General Tranquillity.

We feel the moſt ſincere Concern, that any of our Fellow Subjects in North America ſhould be miſled, by factious and deſigning Men, into Acts of Violence and of Reſiſtance to the Execution of the law, attended with Circumſtances that maniſeſt a Diſpoſition to throw off their Dependance upon Great-Britain. At the ſame Time, that we ſhall be always ready to contribute to the Relief of any real Grievance of Your Majeſty's American Subjects, we moſt unfeignedly give your Majeſty the ſtrongeſt Aſſurances, that we ſhall ever zealouſly concur in ſupport of ſuch juſt and neceſſary Meaſures, as may beſt enable Your Majeſty to repreſs that daring Spirit of Diſobedience, and to enforce a due Submiſſion to the Laws; Always conſidering that it is One of our moſt eſſential Duties to maintain inviolate the Supreme Authority of the Legiſlature of Great Britain over every Part of the Dominions of Your Majeſty's Crown.

We thankfully adore the merciful Interpoſition of Providence in the Relief, which the poorer ſort of Your Majeſty's Subjects have received, from the Diſtreſs they had ſo long laboured under from the high Price of corn, We ſhall apply our utmoſt Attention to prevent, as far as in human Prudence lies, the Return of ſuch a Calamity; and ſhall give ſo important a Subject that full Conſideration, which the Nature of it neceſſarily requires.

Engaged in the Deliberation of ſo many important Matters, we beg Leave to aſſure Your Majeſty, that we ſhall ſtudiouſly endeavour that our Proceedings may teſtify our readineſs to unite where ever the Intereſt of our Country, and our Attachment to your Majeſty, is concerned. Happy, if by ſuch an example, the deluded Part of Your Majeſty's Subjects may be induced to return to their Duty, and gratefully feel the Bleſſings of the mildeſt Goverament, and moſt perfect conſtitution.

His MAJESTY's Moſt Gracious ANSWER.

My LORDS,

I Receive with great Satisfaction the Aſſurances you give of your reſolution to purſue the Commerical Intereſts of this Country; and your Readineſs to ſupport the Honor of My Crown, and the rights of My People.

Your zealous Concurrence in every Meaſure that can bring relief to My People is well known to Me; nor do I doubt of the Attention that you will always give to any real Grievances of My American Subjects. The ſtrong Aſſurances I receive from you at the ſame time, of your Determination to vindicate the juſt legiſlative Authority of Parliament over all the dominions of my Crown, deſerve My warmeſt approbation.

The Humble ADDRESS of the HOUSE of COMMONS to the KING.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE Your Majeſty's moſt dutiful & loyal Subjects, the Commons of Great-Britain in Parliament aſſembled, return Your Majeſty our humble thanks for Your moſt Gracious Speech from the Throne.

And beg leave to congratulate Your Majeſty upon the ſafe Delivery of the Queen, & the Birth of another Princeſs; an Event which muſt afford the greateſt comfort to all Your Majeſty's Subjects, as it is an increaſe of Your own domeſtick Felicity, and an additional Security that the bleſſings we enjoy under Your Majeſty's auſpicious Government will be continued to our lateſt Poſterity.

We aſſure Your Majeſty, that duly ſenſible of the Importance of thoſe great Commerical Intereſts pointed out to us by your Majeſty, we will with all convenient Diſpatch enter upon the Conſideration of them, & will uſe our utmoſt Endeavours to adjuſt and regulate them in ſuch Manner as may be productive of ſolid and laſting Advantages to the Public.

We moſt gratefully acknowledge Your Majeſty's paternal Regard for the Eaſe and Welfare of your People, which has made You ever deſirous of continuing to them the Bleſſings of Peace: at the ſame time, we entirely rely on your Majeſty's conſtant and watchful Attention to the general intereſts of Europe; and feel the higheſt Satisfaction from Your Gracious Declaration, that no Conſideration ſhall prevail on Your Majeſty to ſuffer any Attempt which may be made, derogatory to the Honour of Your Crown, or injurious to the Rights of Your People.

We ſincerely lament that the Arts of wicked and deſigning men, ſhould have been able to re kindle that Flame of Sedition in ſome of Your Majeſty's Colonies in North-America, which, at the cloſe of the late Parliament, Your Majeſty ſaw reaſon to hope, was well nigh extinguiſhed.

We ſhall be ever ready to hear and redreſs any real Grievance of Your Majeſty's American Subjects; but we ſhould betray the Truſt repoſed in us, if we did not withſtand every Attempt to infringe or weaken our juſt Rights; and we ſhall always conſider it as one of our moſt important Duties, to maintain entire and inviolate the ſupreme Authority of the Legiſlature of Great Britain, over every Part of the Britiſh Empire.

We beg leave to preſent our moſt dutiful thanks to Your Majeſty, for having taken ſuch Steps as You judged neceſſary for ſupporting the Conſtitution, and for repreſſing that ſpirit of faction and diſobedience, which, in the chief Town of one of your Majeſty's Colonies, appears to have proceeded even to acts of violence, in direct defiance of all legal Authority; and we will, by every meaſure in our Power, chearfully and zealouſly ſupport your Majeſty in all ſuch future Meaſures as ſhall be found requiſite to enforce a due obedience to the laws, to reſtore order & good government where they have been diſturbed, and to eſtabliſh the conſtitutional Dependance of the Colonies on Great Britain, ſo eſſential to the Intereſt and Proſperity of both.

With Hearts full of Gratitude to the Divine Goodneſs, we partake of the Joy which fills your Majeſty's Royal Breaſt on ſeeing the poorer ſort of your People relieved from the Diſtreſs which they have lately ſuffered by the high price of Corn; and we will, by every prudent Meaſure, endeavour to guard as much as in us lies againſt the Return of that Calamity.

Your faithful Commons will with the utmoſt Zeal and Alacrity grant to your Majeſty every neceſſary Supply; and ſtudy to manifeſt in all their proceedings that uniform Attachment to the Public good, which your Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to recommend to them, and of which your Majeſty's own Conduct furniſhes an illuſtrious example.

"The Preſervation of the Religion, Laws, and liberties of my people, in every part of my dominions, is eſſential to their true happineſs, and is therefore, the great object of my attention,——Theſe are the principles which ever have been, and ever ſhall be, the ſole rule of my Government.

LONDON,

Nov 19. Yeſterday morning died his Grace the Duke of Newcaſtle. His Grace was born Aug. 1 1693. and ſucceeded his father as Baron Pelham of Laughton. His Grace the late Duke of Newcaſtle, whoſe death is mentioned in yeſterday's paper, was perhaps one of the moſt diſintereſted Patriots that either this or any other nation ever produced. His eſtate, when he firſt came into poſſeſſion of it, is ſaid to have been worth 50,000l. per annum, which he greatly reduced in the ſervice of his King & Country; notwithſtanding which he nobly refuſed to accept a large penſion, when he retired from public buſineſs. In private life his character was the moſt amiable, affable, and religious, having divine ſervice conſtantly performed twice a day in his family, both in town and country, and at proper ſtated times the ſacrament was adminiſtered, at which he conſtantly communicated, with the greateſt devotion. He received the ſame, the day before he died, from the hands of the Biſhop of Saliſbury; and his behaviour in his dying moments, was attended with the moſt perfect calmneſs, piety and reſignation.

Oct. 31. A ſchooner, called the Halifax, lately arrived at Plymouth, with diſpatches from North America, has been ſurveyed by the proper Officers, and is purchaſed for the uſe of Government, and the command of her is given to Lieutenant Linzee.

It is ſaid that a Gentelman, eminent in the law, has drawn up the heads for a Bill, with intention to bring it into the Houſe, to enquire into the innovations and encouragements made in the bill of rights; which, if done, many things will poſſibly be aboliſhed, that are now very oppreſſive to the free ſubject.

His Grace the Duke of Beaufort is appointed Maſter of the Horſe to her Majeſty.

Notwithſtanding the rumours that have been ſpread abroad of the naval preparations in Spain, we are informed, that there is in fact no ſuch appearance, except we can conſider the inevitable repairs of their trading veſſels in that light.

He was thirty ſix years of age, has left a wife (who was brought to bed of a Son the day he died) and two children.

——"Reſpecting the non importation of Goods by the Gentlemen of your Province, &c. for a conſiderable time, we think muſt work for the good of the whole; and we cannot help thinking it as the moſt judicious ſtep that has yet been taken by the Colonies;—We hope in the courſe of the coming winter our American friends will be ſet at eaſe as it is the general opinion that every circumſtance that (reaſonably) gives them uneaſineſs, will be fairly attended to;—We ſincerely wiſh a happy termination of the preſent diſquietudes, and are very reſpectfully yours, &c.

Extract of a Letter dated November 10th, from one of the firſt Houſes in London

"We think the Determination of the Coloniſts not to import Goods the moſt judicious ſtep they have yet taken, and muſt work for general good.——We ſee with true concern the Diſtreſſes of your Town particularly; but as the Parliament is now ſitting, and the American affairs to come ſpeedily on the carpet, we are not without hopes that Matter's will be ſettled to the wiſhes of both ſides; we ſhould be extremely happy in being any way inſtrumental thereto.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London

"I was this Day at the Coffee houſe & ſaw the late accounts from Boſton, eſpecially the Town meeting and the Steps then taken, and think they are right; if you are all unanimous, I believe you will gain your Point, and the acts will be repealed; but if you dont ſtand firm as one man I ſhall be afraid you will miſcarry. GOD grant that you may never give up the point of Taxation by your own aſſembly; if you do, you are no longer free, you have many Friends on this ſide, I hope a majority; however, a ſhort Time will determine it as our Parliament is now met".

WHEREAS his Excellency John Wentworth, Eſq; Governor of his Majeſty's province of New Hampſhire, hath repreſented to me, that in his Majeſty's commiſſion, appointing him Surveyor-General of Woods, &c in all North America, he is commanded to apply for aid, aſſiſtance, and encouragement in this ſervice to all Governors, Lieut. Governors, and all other officers and Magiſtrates in his Majeſty's Provinces & Colonies; and in obedience thereunto hath requeſted me, to forbid waſte, &c. alſo to require aid to him and his deputies, in the execution of his duty, for his Majeſty's ſervice, within this colony.

Given under my hand, at the Council Chamber in New Haven, this 13th day of January, in the ninth Year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lord, GEORGE the third, by the Grace of GOD of Great Britain, France and Ireland KING, defender of the Faith, &c. Annoque Domini. 1769.

WILLIAM PITKIN.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

This is therefore to notify ſaid proprietors to meet together at the houſe of Mr. Elias Read, innholder in Saliſbury, on the 2d Tueſday of March next, at two of the clock in the afternoon, to conſider and agree about laying out another diviſion of land in ſaid townſhip, and do any other buſineſs that may be tho't proper and neceſſary to be done. This is to notify, that I,

HAS ſerved a long and a rigorous apprentiſhip with a noted and a much improved workman, to gain the art which belongs to every one that attempts the ſhape of man. I likewiſe mean to give notice that I am ready to ſerve any gentleman that ſets any thing by the hue of mankind, in the freſheſt, gayeſt or graveſt faſhions there is among us. My uſual place of reſort for buſineſs is at Mr James Mookler's, the noted and well accompliſhed Barber's ſhop in the town of Hartford, within a ſtone's caſt of the north meeting-houſe, in Hartford.

Come my reverend fathers now,
Ye gentle followers of the plow,
I mean to aſk you a civil thing,
Which cauſes many to flounce and fling.

O! did ye e'er count up the coſt,
And ſee how many pounds you've loſt,
By hiring women to cut your cloaths,
Which looks like a man with a ſ——noſe.

We judge a man that has got wit,
He loves to have his coat cut fit,
And he that can ſee the length of his noſe,
Sets by good work upon his cloaths.

But you that like the women's work,
You are welcome to the ſport;
I have no time here to prolong,
So here I end——ſo go along.

From the BOSTON CHRONICLE.

I ſend you the following debates on his M—ty's Speech. They were publiſhed here this day under feigned names, which I have eraſed, and in their place have ſubſtituted others.——Captain Scott I am told will ſail immediately.

HIS M——y being withdrawn, and the members returned to their ſtation, a motion was made for an addreſs, which was ſeconded by M. S—o—y, who after ſhewing in a ſhort ſpeech the propriety of the addreſs, he began with remarks upon the preſent ſtate of the nation, expatiating largely on the obſtinacy of the N——th A—m—n colonies. "What ſhall we ſay," cried he, "to the raſh order of the aſſembly of M——ch——ts Bay, to ſend circular letters to the other colonies, and their inſolent refuſal to eraſe that order from their journal which occaſioned their diſſolution? What ſhall we ſay to the effect that diſſolution had upon them? Inſtead of cooling and bringing them to reaſon from raſhneſs they burſt out into turbulence, from turbulence to treaſon; for what, but treaſon, are the reſolutions in what they call their convention; when enliſting under a factious leader, they ſounded the trumpet of rebellion; declared open oppoſition to the intereſts of their mother country; and, by taking arms to defend themſelves at once renounced her protection? At length, indeed their violence is ſtayed? But how? By the arrival of the King's troops at Boſton. The mildneſs of the civil power being contemned, there was no recourſe to be had but to the military; and I am very glad that this trial of N—th A—r—a and G———t B———n has been made; for thoſe diſturbers of public peace and ſubverters of government, are now acquainted both with us and themſelves."—There was, he obſerved, two defects in the conſtitution of the colony of M———'s Bay: Firſt, that the privy council of the Governor is always choſen by the Aſſembly and that of the Grand juries are elected by the townſhips, not by the ſheriffs: then paſſing over to Eu—pe, he ſaid, "he wiſhed he could turn his eyes from the boiſterous A——a to a ſcene of greater calm, nearer home; but the attack of the iſland of Corſica by the French, in violation of the treaty of A——x la Ch—p—le looked too like the threatening of a ſtorm, and muſt create many fears and jealouſies; however, he hoped, and believed theſe fears were groundleſs; for he could not conſider an attempt to ſubject that little ſpot and people as one of thoſe glorious efforts which makes ambition virtue, but an unmeaning and uſeleſs exertion of that reſtleſs ſpirit which has long made France the dread of E———pe."

A committee was ordered to prepare an addreſs of thanks; but on its being read, much controverſy enſued; thoſe of the court ſide were for its going as it was penned, in the uſual ſtrain; thoſe of the oppoſite party moved for an amendment, by ſtriking out the words, We return your Majeſty our humble thanks for having taken ſuch ſteps as your Majeſty judged neceſſary, and to inſert in their place, We will take into our immediate conſideration the ſteps which have been taken, and with regard to your Majeſty's colonies, in full confidence, however, that we ſhall entirely approve of them. But to this, Lord N—th anſwered, "that an addreſs was a proper and reſpectful compliment, and that the preſent contained nothing which can preclude the freedom of debate upon, or cenſure upon any meaſures taken by adminiſtration."

Lord Cl—re, "urged the danger of the colonies hearing there was any doubt in that aſſembly of their guilt, or any appearance of diſunion, wiſhed his noble friend to conſider whether the alterations would not be ſuch as Mr. O—s himſelf would have propoſed and whether what was agreeable to Mr. O—'s would be properly approved of by that houſe?" Much more was ſaid by others, when Mr. B—ke delivered himſelf as follows:

"It may appear an effect of the higheſt preſumption in me to offer my poor ſentiments on this moſt important criſis in the affairs of this kingdom; but I feel myſelf ſo ſtrongly affected, that I am unable to keep ſilence; A———a is, indeed, very near my heart; and if this houſe will indulge me with their patience, while I ſubmit my opinion to them, I ſhall little regard whether that opinion will be approved by Mr. O—s or not; nor am I ſo narrow minded as not to be equally indifferent as to the ſentiments of Mr. O—s, and thoſe of the noble Lord.

"The preſent State of the colonies is, the moſt momentous ſubject ever under the conſideration of this, the moſt illuſtrious aſſembly upon earth. Highly unworthy would it be of the wiſdom, and inconſiſtent with the dignity of ſuch an aſſembly, to offer complaints inſtead of council, at ſuch a criſis; to approve the purſuit of meaſures, whoſe propriety they are ignorant of, and to condemn whole realms unheard. I have heard that the A—r—n petitions have not been received by the adminiſtration. If this houſe ſhould, by this addreſs, virtually condemn their conduct, it would make them altogether deſperate; the ſpeech, which I conſider merely as that of the miniſter's, is too enigmatical for me to underſtand; it hints at ſomething, but communicates nothing;————it is like the purling of a whiſper; one hears a ſmall ſound, but receives no ideas.

"To the addreſs, in general, I have no great objection; it is, like moſt other addreſſes, a kind of echo of the ſpeech; a faithful copy, ſomething fainter than the original. But I muſt move in the ſupport of the amendment; which, I cannot but think we ſhall preclude ourſelves from a fair enquiry into the conduct of the adminiſtration. With what decency can we condemn if we ſhould diſapprove thoſe meaſures, whoſe propriety we acknowledge, by thanking his Majeſty for purſuing them, for judging them neceſſary?"

For my own part, I confeſs, with regard to A———ca, I ſee no neceſſity for ſuch violent meaſures as have been taken; or, if there was neceſſity, it was of the Miniſtry's own creation. When I ſee at the head of the law, a perſon whoſe opinions are appealed to as authority in every ſeditious pamphlet, with which N——th A———a ſwarms; when I ſee the principles of the man, who, by his ſtation in the oracle of the law in England, become the Magna Charta of N——th A———n licentiouſneſs, I cannot but apologize for the N—th A———ns, who are ſupported in their intemperence by ſuch high authority. But when I ſee the ſame man joining in ſupport of the uniform plan of oppreſſion towards the N——th A———ns, begun by the adminiſtration at his firſt coming into power, & ſtill perſevered in; my aſtoniſhment at the folly of his opinions, is loſt in indignation at the baſeneſs of his conduct.

When the late parliament thought proper to paſs the ſtamp act, N———th A———a was ſoon in flames; but, when the parliament refining upon its own wiſdom repealed that act, upon conſtituonal principles, not wild chimeras, the colonies returned to their ſtate of coolneſs and tranquility.————The diſorder was now brought to an intermiſſion, and a wiſe phyſician, by the application of proper medicines, would have prevented a return of the paroxyſm. There was at that time in the miniſtry, but, unfortunately for this country, is now no more, a man, who, amongſt innumerable great and amiable abilities, had one defect, as dangerous, perhaps, as can fall to the ſhare of a ſtateſman; a deſire, I mean, to pleaſe every body. In oppoſition to his own judgment, he was induced by that failure in his diſpoſition, to aſſiſt the miniſtry in the exertion of their darling prerogative: a bawble they were as fond of ſhewing on every occaſion, as a child is of his favourite plaything. They levied a tax; ſent an army of cuſtom houſe officers to collect it: all A——a took the alarm; a motion was made in the aſſembly at B——n to ſend letters circular to all the colonies, in order that the whole N——th A——n continent might at once petition a redreſs of this grievance. The motion did not at firſt ſucceed; but the alarm growing ſtronger, it paſſed, and an order in conſequence of it was entered in the journal of the houſe.——The Governor received orders to command the aſſembly to eraſe the order from their journals, under the pain of the aſſembly being diſſolved: and upon their refuſal to ſubmit to this arbitrary command, the aſſembly was diſſolved. By what law of nature, or by what principal in the conſtitution of this country, the miniſters think themſelves authoriſed to offer the alternative of blind ſubmiſſion to their caprice, or inſtant diſſolution to the parliament of N——w-E——d they have not thought proper to communicate to us. I think it is an authority which neither is, nor ought to be, lodged in leſs awful hands than the whole legiſlative body of this country; and, I have no doubt but this houſe, will conſider this uſurpation of their authority as an high miſdemeanor in whoever adviſed it. The miniſtry, however, having thus by a lordly nod laid proſtrate the aſſembly, the convention crept forth like vermin from its dead carcaſe; and the people, in the impotence of rage, undoubtedly were guilty of many acts of violence. The ſubtle politicians were at laſt at a nonplus, and could invent no other means of ſupporting their uſurped authority, but the interpoſition of the military, that laſt reſource of ignorant deſpotiſm. But they ought to know, that countries are not to be kept in obedience by cuſtom houſe officers, official letters, nor even by an armed band, when the minds of men are totally alienated from their governors. Their folly muſt be ſoothed, their prejudices indulged; and unleſs this is done, the alterations juſt glanced at by the gentlemen who ſeconded the addreſs, as propoſed to be made in the appointment of their juries and council will be entirely uſeleſs. To whomſoever the preſent adminiſtration ſhall transfer that appointment, the juries and council muſt be compoſed of men filled with that abhorrence of our miniſters, univerſal in that country.——Where they are over awed by our armed battalions, the diſcontent will vent itſelf in reproaches and ſeditious diſcourſes; but the moment our army is removed from B——n to ſuppreſs an inſurrection in any other part of the provinces, the ſmothered indignation will break out into acts of violence and rebellion. Thus ill has this boaſted trial of the N——th A——ns ſucceeded. The miniſtry has for its amuſement ſown a crop of thorns, which I hope this houſe will eradicate, and prevent, if poſſible, the raiſing any other ſuch crop, for the future. Such has been the conduct of adminiſtration in A——a. If we croſs the Atlantic, we ſhall find them ſuſtaining ſtill the ſame character. If I underſtand, in the leaſt the K——g's Sp——ch, there are two propoſitions totally inconſiſtent; bring them face to face, and no two propoſitions can be more intirely ſtrangers to one another: in one we are told, that moſt vigorous meaſures ſhall be purſued with regard to our colonies; and by the other we are informed that his M——y has received aſſurances of a pacific diſpoſition in the powers of Europe; which aſſurances he gives no credit to, & yet has taken no meaſures in vindication of the honour and rights of his crown and people. But, perhaps, it is an effect of the incomprehenſible wiſdom of our miniſtry, to draw the French into Corſica, to ſee their armies ſlaughtered, and their revenues waſted in unprofitable attempts upon rocky coaſts, uncultivated woods and barren mountains. They conſider Corſica, as a mere uſeleſs acquiſition, and if not a ſcourge, at leaſt a burthen to the conquerors. But others may differ in their opinion; though Corſica by itſelf, or dependant on its old maſter, is a ſort of nothing, when plucked from the heart of Europe to be incorporated into France, it becomes a ſerious object; what in the hands of the Genoeſe was a feather, in the hands of the French will be a ſword.

Obſerve the extent of the Bourbon family the branches of which are ſpreading themſelves over the richeſt domains of Europe; France extending forth its hands to Spain: Spain ſtretching out its long arms to France: Morocco, the old enemy of Spain, now in alliance with it: and Naples reaching out towards Morocco; a prince of the ſame houſe at Parma, and Tuſcany now an acceſſion to the family compact. All theſe powers united by Corſica, form a line of circumvallation round the Mediterranean, impenetrable to human force.

Corſica is a citadel to overawe the whole of Italy, and brings the Bourbon family home to the door of our Italian ally the King of Sardinia.——What have we to do in this ſtate of affairs with aſſurances? The French do not attack Corſica with words but we have not even defended them with words; we hear of no memorials preſented by our miniſtry; if they have been preſented we find no effects from them. The houſe of Auſtria has been exclaimed againſt on this occaſion; but if the houſe of Auſtria, by a weak and unjuſtifiable neutrality, neglects its ſafety, its intereſt and its glory, ſhall we, by a neutrality equally baſe and fopiſh, deſert the liberties of Europe which we have always prided ourſelves in being the maintainers of?

We are not to enquire whether the invaſion of Corſica is an action againſt former treaties: but whether it is an encroachment upon, and contrary to the balance of power which this nation has always ſupported in Europe: this right we muſt aſſert, by which we have obtained ſuch incredible authority in every negotiation; but hitherto, as far as I can hear, no attempts have been made to awaken other nations in Europe to a ſenſe of their danger from the family compact, nor any meaſures taken or ever concerted, to vindicate them and ourſelves againſt the attacks of France, begun in the iſland of Corſica.

Thus have the miniſters ſlumbered during the violent attempts of a power whoſe very motion ought to be watched by a miniſter of this country, who every time that he turns his eyes from that power, deſerts his duty. Theſe very miniſters, upon the ſlighteſt oppoſition given their powers in America, were trembling all o'er; and now they modeſtly attempt to ſteal your approbation of their conduct; but I truſt, they will find this not a complimenting, but an inquiſitive, penetrating and avenging parliament.

This was anſwered by Mr. G——le, but to tell you the truth, he was very long-winded, not but he's clever too in his buſineſs. I remember he appeared ſteadfaſtly attached in his ſpeech to the ſcheme of increaſing our finances, by taxing the colonies; and he laboured to prove that right in the mother country, and the neceſſary and natural ſubjection of the colonies to her ſuperiority. One of his arguments was ſmart enough: for whereas ſome of the gentlemen of the other ſide mentioned, that the A——ns had laid down their arms as ſoon as his Majeſty's troops came to B---n: "and would they not have done the ſame, two years ago? Had we proceeded with ſpirit then, we ſhould have heard no more of them. But what has this houſe not done? Encouraged their faction and ſedition, by repealing an act which they had before paſſed as juſt and neceſſary, and they have ſince found neceſſary to renew. We have taught them to diſobey, not only by ſhewing them they might do ſo with impunity, but that they may have us for the juſtifiers and abettors of their rebellion and diſobedience."

Nov. 12. On Thurſday a Ship, lately arrived from Quebec, was ſet on Fire by one of the Cabbin Boys, and burnt down to the Water Edge; but ſhe was towed out and ſcuttled, which ſaved ſome others from the ſame Fate.

Reinſtating a certain General officer to his former honors is a ſtep that gives the higheſt ſatisfaction to the people in general: From this ſtep towards reconciling the nation, the moſt favourable ſentiments are expected in regard to our colonies.

Nov. 11. It is confidently ſaid, that one reaſon of a certain popular officer having ſatisfaction made to him for his being diſplaced and diſgraced was a certain new made S——ſ's making a point of inſiſting on it, as one of the terms of accepting his preſent office.

Nov. 15. The return of the expreſs lately ſent on board a government cutter for North-America, from Plymouth, cannot be expected till the latter end of March. As the winter ſeaſon will have gone on in theſe parts long before ſhe can arrive on the coaſt, ſhe may probably be obliged to bear up for Virginia or South-Carolina, or the Iſland of Bermudas, ſhould the ſeaſon turn out rigorous, as often happens to ſhipping bound to Boſton, &c.

We hear that Yeſterday morning an expreſs was ſent off to Flamouth, containing ſome diſpatches of Improtance for his Excellency Gen. Gage, commander in chief of the Forces in North-Americd, to be forwarded on board one of the Government Cutters.

Nov. 18. A correſpondent tells us, that "As America was hertofore "conquered in Germany, it is propoſed, "in caſe of another War, to conquer "France in Corſica."

Orders are ſent away over land to Commodore Spry in the Mediterranean, with poſitive inſtructions not to ſuffer any ſhips in the Britiſh nation to be ſtopped or ſearched on any pretence whatever, either by the Genoeaſe, French, or any other power in the Italian Seas.

'Tis a melancholy truth that the priſoners for debt in the Britiſh colonies rather exceed in number in proportion to the inhabitants the debtors in Great-Britain.

We hear from Briſtol, that ſeveral young men ſkilled in the braſs and wire drawing branch of that manufactory, are engaged, on great encoragement, for North-America, where an attempt is going to be made to introduce that valuable branch of trade, which, if it meets ſucceſs, will be productive of the moſt pernicious conſequences to the mother country.

The grievances complained of by the different colonies in America, which have been tranſmitted to the Secretaries of State [illegible] are we hear, to be laid before the Parliament.

There is now living, at his ſeat in Eſſex, Fleetwood Sheppard, Eſq; (a friend of the late celebrated Mr. Prior) who is in perfect health, though at the age of 120 years.

Nov. 26. They write from Boſton in New England, that from the firſt arrival of the troops and men of war all trade had been at a ſtand, no buſineſs being tranſacted at the Cuſtom-houſe, or any of the public offices.

NEW-YORK, February 2.

Monday laſt the election for the city and county of New-York, came on at the City Hall, in this city &on cloſing the poll the Friday following, JOHN CRUGER, JAMES DE LANCEY, JACOB WALTON, and JAMES JAUNCEY, Eſq'rs. were returned duly elected by a great majority.

After cloſing the poll the four Gentlemen elected, generouſly gave 200l. for the benefit of the poor of this city, which was accordingly diſtributed.

Yeſterday his Excellency the Governor, ſet out for Albany, in his way to Sir William Johnſon's—having we hear, ſome buſineſs to ſettle with the Indians, before his return.

Before his departure, we hear, in conſequence of a petition from many reſpectable inhabitants of the city, he granted a pardon to —— ——, who lay in goal, under ſentence death; ſome favourable circumſtances appearing in his caſe.

B O S T O N, February 2.

Monday Night laſt about ten o'clock, the large new County Goal in this Town was diſcovered on Fire: The firſt Attention was to preſerve the Priſoners from periſhing; but by the Hurry and Conſternation of the People nigh at hand the Keys of the ſeveral Doors were miſplaced, whereby they were obliged to have recourſe to Axes, &c. to brake through, which with great Difficulty was done, and the Priſoners pulled through very ſmall Paſſages, their Fleſh conſiderably tore by the Iron Spikes in the Doors; however they were all taken out alive, one or two ſcorched by the Fire, one elderly Man who was in the Room where the Fire firſt began, was much burnt.——The Fire began in an Appartment on the middle Story at the Northweſt Corner of the Building, and proceeded with great Violence from one Apartment to another until the whole of the Inſide of the Houſe was in Flames; The Thickneſs of the Partitions and Floors made the Heat very intenſe, and the Walls and Iron Bars prevented the Water from the Engines doing much towards extinguiſhing the Flames; When the Fire brake from its Confinement through the Roof, great Danger was apprehended from the Flakes, but there being little Wind, by a good Providence, it was prevented from ſpreading; The night was very cold, the Firewards exerted themſelves the whole Time, alſo the Enginemen and the other Inhabitants were very vigilant; the Officers of his Majeſty's Regiments now here, attended with a Number of the Soldiers, who were likewiſe very active & ſerviceable in aſſiſting and relieving the Inhabitants: About 5 o'clock the Fire was got under. Two of the Priſoners eſcaped in the Night, the others were ſecured in Bridewell, and in the Goaler's Dwelling Houſe until Morning: At Ten o'clock Examination was made before ſeveral Magiſtrates: It appeared that Mr. Young, the Keeper, [illegible] to the Goal, as was his Practice to ſee all was ſafe, about Nine in the Evening, and ſaw no appearance of Fire; Upon examining the priſoners who were in the Room where the Fire was firſt diſcovered, it was evident that they were determined to get out by burning the Door of their Apartment; accordingly in the Evening they put ſome Chips under the Door, & ſet Fire to them; they put the Shutters to their Windows to prevent the Light being diſcovered; the door kept burning two or three Hours, till at length the Smoak and Heat increaſed ſo much, they were obliged to repair to the Window at the Windward for Air, when they gave the Alarm.——Theſe Matters appearing full againſt two of them, one a Soldier, the other a young Lad, who were confined for ſtealing, they were both hand cuff'd, and by Habeas Corpus committed to the Goal in Chareſtown. The Loſs to the County & Town muſt be great.

It is reported that his Majeſty's ſhip Ripon, of 60 guns, and 240 men, Capt. Thomſon, now in Virginia, is victualed and fitted for ſea, and is ſoon expected in this port.

Letters from London mention, that ſome gentlemen, who were here on the 10th of June laſt, but now in London, will be examined before the houſe of commons.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, to his friend in this city, dated London, Nov. 3.

"American affairs wear a very gloomy aſpect. We cannot pretend to ſay what meaſures the parliament will adopt, but we are very ſure the miniſtry are againſt you. The merchants here (whoſe influence in the houſe of commons with reſpect to America is very great) are much alarmed at the reſolves of the people of Boſton and New-York, to import no more Britiſh manufactures. If this reſolution ſhould become general it would do more than all your petitions and remonſtrances. The popular voice at preſent is againſt you. They inſiſt upon their right to tax America, and offer no other argument to ſupport this right than that "You are the colonies, and they the mother country." Some of the wiſeſt politicians imagine vigorous meaſures will be purſued with you. Doct. Franklin is indefatigable in his endeavours to ſerve his country. I heard him ſay a few days ago, in a large company,——"Britain has has no right to tax the "colonies, and never had any ſuch "right, and I truſt never will have "it."——Be not alarmed if you ſhould hear of military preparations to enforce the late dutes that have been impoſed on you."

BOSTON, January 23.

FROM Letters, Public Prints, &c. brought by Capt. Scott, we learn, that Aſia was ſwimming in blood——That the affairs of Europe were in a critical ſituation, the Turks, Ruſſians, Poles, &c. actually engaged in hoſtilities, which with the conduct of France reſpecting Corſica, made many apprehend that the War would ſoon become general:——That the affairs of America ſo engroſſed the attention of the m——y and nation, that it was thought they would endeavour to keep out of the War until they were happily ſettled;——That the colonies, and this province and Town in particular, had been moſt groſſly miſrepreſented from hence; but that Pens had not been wanting at home to ſet G. B. and the C-m-rs characters and conduct in their true light the M——y had been lead to apprehend that this town had been actually in arms, and the province ready for ſetting up an independency: that the tranſactions of our Town Meeting was to encourage the ſame; and the Convention in Boſton an actual aſſumption of the powers of government:——That ſince they had received authentick accounts of their proceedings, and ſeen the Boſton journal of Occurrences, the prejudices raiſed by thoſe falſe & wicked repreſentations had greatly ſubſided & our friends and advocates daily encreaſing: that the convention was look'd upon and conſidered by the judicious as a moſt ſalutary meaſure, calculated to prevent raſh proceedings, and a legal procedure for the redreſs of grievances:——That ſome perſons among us had repreſented to Adm-ſt-n that the peaceable landing of the troops ſhould be imputed to our weakneſs and fears, rather than our loyalty and concern to prevent the evils of a civil war, which by the raſhneſs of ſome might have been precipitated, & that they had nothing now to do but to follow the blow, & we ſhould be ſoon ready to ſubmit to every thing they might think proper to impoſe, eſpecially if they at the ſame time would ſupport and enlarge the American fund, whereby new penſions might be granted, new officers appointed, and preſent ſalaries increaſed.——That anonymous papers had gone from hence to L——d H—ll—gh, ſcandalizing and abuſing the moſt reſpectable among us, which his L——d had ſent back to G. B. to enquire into:——That G. B's. repreſentations had involved the M——y eſpecially the American S——y, in great embarraſſments, which had led him to order a particular account of all the pretended tranſactions to be ſent him, from the beginning of December before laſt, ſupported with proper vouchers; which plainly ſhews that G. B. is now put upon the defenſive, but from his known knack at taking private depoſitions, it requires the ſerious attention not only of this Town, but as we have no Aſſembly, of his Majeſty's Council, and the whole province. That the friends of the nation are heartily deſirous of having all diſputes with us amicably ſettled; ſome of whom have adviſed us that it is in our power to get all things put upon their old footing, if this will now ſatisfy us; that nothing will more promote this happy effect than a continuance of our orderly and legal behaviour, and ſtrictly adhering to our agreement reſpecting the conſumption or non importation of Britiſh manufactures, at the ſame time exhibiting to the world, by a conſtitutional conduct, that we never can be perſuaded by any M——r to ſell or be inveigled out of our juſt rights and privileges, and that with the help of providence, we will not ſuffer them to be wreſted from us illegally by any power upon earth.

WILLIAMSBURG Dec. 15.

On the 4th of this inſtant, about 10 o'clock at night, the jail of Amherſt county, by ſome accident caught fire, and one Richard Fletcher Gregory, confined in it for debt, periſhed in the flames. There was ſomething very deplorable in this man's fate, for although, by his cries, he awakened the jailer, who immediately ſnatched up the keys, as he thought, of the priſon, and ran derectly to open the door, yet, upon trial, he found they were the wrong ones, and by his repeated efforts to unlock the door, ſpoiled the lock, ſo that when he came with the right key, it had no effect. Then he rouſed up a Negroe fellow, who, with an ax, laboured hard to cut the door through, and when he had completed it, found that what he had done was in vain, as there were iron bars in the inſide. The poor man, who was all this time at the window, and ſeeing nothing more could be done for his relief, as the fire burſted out at the priſon door, and hindred the Negroe from proceeding, reſigned himſelf to his fate: He took of his clothes, and threw them out at the window, telling the jailer to give them to his poor wife and children, as the only legacy he had to leave them. He then retired to a corner of the priſon, and lay down, waiting his fate. Next morning his remains were found, which were nothing but his ſcull and thigh bones.

MEMORIALIST.

"Levity of behaviour is the bane of all that is good and virtuous." SENECA.

——"She told me ſhe admired him for his virtue. She knew he had reſiſted the greateſt temptations that ever man was tried with.——The Chevalier, ſhe ſaid, was ſuperior to all attempts that were not grounded in honour and conſcience.

Women of ſlight fame had no way to come at him; and women of virtue were ſecure from his attempts."

Vid. Grandiſon.

The MEMORIALIST to the Public, humbly Sheweth,

THAT by one ſtatute law of this colony intitled, "An act for the puniſhment of fornication" it is enacted, "That if any man ſhall commit fornication with any ſingle woman, upon due conviction thereof, each of them ſhall pay a fine of," &c.——or be corporally puniſhed by whipping, &c.

The Memorialiſt begs liberty humbly to obſerve, that whatever might be the deſign of the legiſlature in making this act;——Surely they looked upon the ſin of fornication a mortal evil, a crime to be puniſhed by the Judges. And if ſo, what reaſon can be aſſigned why ſo vile & wicked ſin ſo often goes unpuniſhed? that no notice is taken of it, by thoſe whoſe buſineſs it is to take notice of all open breaches of law. Surely the frequency of this ſin can't atone for, or leſſen the guilt of it. Neither can it be eſteemed leſs heinous becauſe our relations and friends fall into it. Neither ſhould it go unpuniſhed becauſe it is perpetrated in great families, nor ſhould the poor be puniſhed by reaſon of their poverty.

The Memorialiſt therefore prays that he may be indulged the liberty to expoſe this vile and deteſtable ſin by tranſcribing a few paſſages from a late author upon this ſubject.

The evils of Lewdneſs enumerated.

"At the inſtigation of this ſingle luſt, what time, what pains, what influence, are daily proſtituted to the ſhameful buſineſs of inticing and debauching young women! men of the higheſt ſtile and education for the poor periſhing gratification of an hour, will be guilty of what is ſhocking to every mind that retains the leaſt fear of God, or compaſſion for his fellow creatures, guilty of bringing a young virgin to indelible ſhame; her parents to grief as torturing as it is undeſerved and hopeleſs; guilty of doing the corrupted object of their luſt ſuch an injury, as if offered to a ſiſter, a daughter, or any other relation of their own, they would reſent as the moſt villainous abuſe."

"At the inſtigation of this luſt, they will be acceſſary, as far as lies in their power, to opening the way to adulterous commerce & all its train of miſchiefs, by debauching unmarried women, who ſeldom prove chaſte after wedlock, when before it they have fallen a prey to lewdneſs. Acceſſary as far as lies in their power, in filling the world with whores, at once its plague & ſcourge, creatures abandoned to every deteſtable practice, corrupters of youth, putting them headlong into deplorab'e, and deſperate courſes, to pay for their infectious embraces."

——"And bad as theſe conſequences are, they make up only the ſmalleſt part of the evil produced by fornication. No pen is able fully to unfold what the SOUL ſuffers from this ſin.——Would ye for your own ſakes, O ye young men before ye are led captive by this bewitching luſt, place before your eyes, all the bad effects of yielding to its unlawful cravings; the ruin of women, the diſhonour of families, the diſtreſs of injured aged parents, the difficulties in which you are involving yourſelves, by entertaining ſo vile a paſſion in your hearts, and the long catalogue of crimes for which you muſt anſwer in the laſt day: I ſay if theſe things were preſented to your view, before your captivity to fornication, you muſt ſhake at the horror of the ſcene."

"Sum up now what has been offered in proof of the great ſinfulneſs of fornication, conſider the great evils ſo evidently connected with it, that no infidel can deny them, conſider the repeated declarations of God's diſpleaſure againſt this ſin, from his firſt making it capital under the old law, to his dooming it to everlaſting puniſhment again and again in the laſt revelation of his will. Conſider this his unchangeable purpoſe is ſo openly ſo ſtrongly proclaimed, that either we have nothing to fear from any ſin we can poſſibly commit, or fornication muſt be confeſſed a damnable one. Weigh theſe things & you muſt acknowledge how much it is the duty of every chriſtian as he loves God, as he reverences his word, and as he regards his own ſalvation, to deny himſelf in every propenſity he feels to commit fornication, and to flee from it as he would from the face of a ſerpent."

"Know therefore, that you muſt come to this determination either to turn apoſtate from the chriſtian faith, renouncing every hope of ever finding mercy from God, or to mortify your members which are upon the earth, fornication, uncleanneſs, &c. & to maintain at all times that this ſin alone, would drown the ſoul in perdition. For this fullneſs of perſuaſion of the evil and ſinfulneſs of fornication is of great uſe to ſecure you in the early and moſt important ſeaſon of life, from what is generally the firſt inſtance of premeditated rebellion againſt God; the firſt means of riveting on the ſinner that chain which drags down its thouſands and ten thouſands to the priſon of Hell."

"All theſe conſiderations are abſolutely neceſſary to be frequently pondered by young people eſpecially in a ſingle ſtate; becauſe lewdneſs has not only a party in its favour in every conſtitution, but noiſe, and impudence, and numbers, every where combine to diſcountenance chaſtity."

The Memorialiſt therefore prays, that the public, that parents, that children, and people of all ages and connections of men and women, would ſeriouſly conſider of theſe things; and uſe their joint and utmoſt intereſt to ſuppreſs this growing vice of fornication; a vice abhorred by the heathen. That a reformation may be attained ever prays,

The MEMORIALIST.

From the PUBLIC ADVERTISER.

To Mr. GEORGE GRENVILLE.

TAKEN it, Sir, for granted, that the State of the Nation, a Pamphlet lately publiſhed, is either wrote by you, or under your directions, I ſhall addreſs my remarks on that laboured treatiſe to you & you only.

Had you contented yourſelf with giving the Public a comparative View of the reſpective Finances of Great Britain, France, Spain, and Portugal; or had you proceeded one ſtep farther, and compiled from the Votes and Journals of the Houſe of Commons, a flattering, though perhaps, a random Balance of our Trade with Ruſſia, Sweden, Germany, Holland, Spain, and Portugal, your Pamphlet would rather have been entitled to our Approbation and Praiſe, than to our Cenſure and Indignation. We might have ſmiled at your beggarly Split-Farthing Eſtimates, and we might have hoarſe laugh'd at the pretty Picture you draw of your own probity, Virtue, Diligence, Abilities, and abhorrence of Sinecures; but when we call to mind the Grants of thoſe lumping Sinecures in Reverſion, which you have obtained for your own ſweet ſelves, when we ſee you attempt to revive, to juſtify, and to enforce a Meaſure which has been condemned by ſeveral moderate men, execrated by every friend of Liberty, and formally hooted out of both houſes of legiſlation, certainly you deſerve no favour, no mercy, no quarter, either from the Crown, or from the Subjects.

Not from the Crown, becauſe a Chancellor of the Britiſh Exchequer, who adviſes a Meaſure in the Senate, directly injurious to the rights of the crown, and which Rights it is his peculiar Province to take all poſſible Care that they be kept diſtinct and ſeperate from thoſe of the Subject (agreeable to the great Line of ſeperation marked out with ſo much accuracy, and aſcertained with ſo much Preciſion in John's Magna Charta;) a Chancellor, I ſay, who commits ſo capital a Blunder (not to call his delinquency by a harſher name) irretrievably and juſtly forfeits, ipſo facto, all Pretenſions to his Sovereign's confidence and Protection.

Not from the Subject, becauſe a Britiſh Senator, who both within and without doors, one while with his Tongue, and another with his pen, is inflexibly perſevering to enforce a Meaſure utterly ſubverſive of the ſenatorial Rights of the ſeveral American States, neceſſarily draws upon his head the curſes and Anathemas of every American, and the moſt cordial deprecations of every Great-Briton, who has a juſt idea of the importance of, and fellow-feeling for, the rights of his Brother Subjects.

Yet, Sir, ſuch was the tendency, nay, ſuch was the effect, of your ſtamp act, while it remained unrepealed, and which, though now repealed, you are mutato nomine tantum, once more endeavouring to introduce into the colonies, under the ſpecious Pretence of the fitneſs and rectitude of the meaſure itſelf. But you muſt permit me, Sir, to foretel you, that the Americans, who were not to be dragooned out of their ſenatorial Rights, by naval armaments, and Menaces, of military Execution, will not be cajoled out of thoſe Rights, though Mr George Grenville ſhould publiſh every month thro'out the year, a Quarto Pamphlet of 48 pages, and every page were to be wrote as much in his own Praiſe, and exhibit as fulſome a Panegyric upon his own Adminiſtration, as to the Pamphlet at preſent under conſideration. Do not, Sir, ſo groſly, ſo egregiouſly, miſtake your Character: for the truth is, you have neither the Talent for ſpeaking in public, nor yet for writing to the Public. Your Fort, when you come to deliver ſentiments either to the Senate, or from the preſs, lies only in the Plauſible, and you never yet was known to riſe to the Perſuaſive, nor the Convincive; and therefore to refute the ſtrongeſt of your Arguments, which is the Taſk I now impoſe upon myſelf, little more will be required than juſt to detect and expoſe the Sophiſtry, Fallacy, Puerility of your Reaſoning.

In Page 37, you are pleaſed to tell, "That the ſovereign authority which rules the whole Empire ought not to admit of any Plea for exempting the Subjects in the Colonies from ſharing in the common budrens, and contributing 200 000l. annually, to the neceſſities of the ſtate, a ſum ſo much below their proportion of the ſums levied from their Fellow Subjects in Great Britain, & perhaps it would be the moſt expedient method for Parliament to aſſeſs each colony a ſpecific Sum, and for Parliament to have the diſpoſal of the Money." Was there ever ſo vague, ſo ambiguous, ſo incluſive a Poſition offered to public View? You talk to your Readers of a Sovereign Authority which rules the whole Empire, and you leave them in Doubt where the Sovereign Authority lies, and in whom it is veſted. Had you acted the Part of a ſound Reaſoner, you ought to have given us a Definition of that ſame Sovereign Authority, and then we ſhould have known, with ſome Degree of Preciſion, whether by that Phraſe you meant the King, or whether you intended it only to mean the Senate of Great Britain. So important, ſo neceſſary a Definition, artfully omitted on your Side, furniſhes Opponents with the juſteſt Grounds for attributing the Omiſſion itſelf, either to the Badneſs of your Heart, or the Badneſs of the Cauſe; for on this Diſtinction ſolely depends the Point in Queſtion, namely, Whether the Senate of Great Britain have a Right to tax the Colonies or not? As I am clearly of Opinion, that the Britiſh Senate has no ſuch Right, it will be incumbent on me to give other Reaſons than a bare Ipſo dixi. I ſhall therefore throw new Lights on this momentous Queſtion; and, to prevent the weaker Part of his Majeſty's Subjects from being dazzled with your ſpecious and erroneous Arguments, I ſhall, in anſwering your Arguments, explain myſelf in Terms intelligible to the meaneſt Capacity.

We ſhall form but an imperfect or partial Idea of the Rights of our Coloniſts, if we do not trace the Doctrine of Colonization up to it's original Inſtitution. To which End it is neceſſary I inform my Readers, that the Kings of England have from Time immemorial been always aided with two Councils: One of theſe is called the Privy Council, the other is ſtiled in our Magna Charta, and by all our conſtitutional Writers the Magnum Conſilium, or Great Council. Each of theſe Councils had it's ſeparate Walk, and diſtinct Sphere of Action. The one interferes not with the Department, nor with the proper Concernments of the other. Their reſpective Boundaries are, I have obſerved before, well marked, and aſcertained to ſuch a Degree of Preciſion, that, as Horace ſays,

———Sunt certi denique fines
Quos ultra citraque nequit conſiſtere RECTUM.

The boundaries being thus aſcertained, it neceſſarily follows that if the great council infringes upon the Rectum or Rights of the Privy Council, or vice verſa the reſult is inſtantaneous Tyranny.

Charters for Colonization have always invariably been granted by the Privy Council jure coronæ; and if thoſe charters have been confirmed by the great council, the coloniſts acquired no new right by ſuch confirmation; and the chief, if not the ſole Advantage they could propoſe to themſelves from ſuch confirmation, was a greater Facility of addreſſing the crown in their Senatorial capacity, in caſe of any Senatorial grievance, through the powerful intermediation of their Siſter, and coequal, the great council or Senate of Gr. Britain. Charters for Colonization then, are the Creation of the crown, and the coloniſts of courſe are the creatures of the crown, that is to ſay, they are intitled to no other Form or mode of government than that which it pleaſed the King to grant them in their original Charter. Now all Kings, who by original compact, have no conſtitutional check upon their actions, have a right to tax their ſubjects without their concurence, will and conſent. But the crown of England having originally granted to each of the American Colonies a great council of it's own, ſimilar, in point of authority, to that of Great Britain; the crown, I ſay, ipſo facto, transfers all Right of taxing the reſpective coloniſts to their own reſpective great councils. And the great Council of Maryland, or that of any other colony, hath juſt as good a right to impoſe, in it's reſpective Senate, a tax upon the Inhabitants of Great Britain, as the great council of Great Britain has to impoſe a tax in her Senate upon the Inhabitants of Maryland, or thoſe of any other colony. In ſhort, Sir, G. Britain, each of the chartered Colonies, and Ireland, are ſo many diſtinct States, each ſtate having its own great council, over each of which great council one and the ſame Sovereign Power preſides; that Sovereign Power is the King of Great Britain, only.

Thus having ſettled the important and difficult point of ſovereign authority, I reſerve ſome farther Animadverſions on your Pamphlet for a ſecond letter, from, Sir, Your humble Servant,

A CARD

THE London and Britiſh Merchants preſent their Compliments to the American Merchants in Boſton, New York, &c and humbly requeſt they will firſt pay the Arrears due from them to Great Britain, before they pretend to enter into Combinations what goods they will and what they will not receive from their Mother Country. Such Raſhneſs can only be paralelled by a private Debtor challenging without Reaſon his Creditor, with an intention to murder him, that he may not pay his Debt; but before a Challenge can be accepted, the Debtor ſhould diſcharge his Arrears, otherwiſe he is not on a Par with his Creditor and merits baſtinading without Mercy: So likewiſe until the American Debts in Arrear are paid, the Merchants there ſhould not pretend to be inſolent; all their Wealth, Property and Credit, they are indebted to the Britiſh Merchants for, and to pretend to exclude them the Benefit of any Trade is Folly (not to ſay more) beyond Imagination; and it is hoped the Britiſh Nation, whoſe Laws they ſeem to ſet at nought, will, as well as ourſelves, know how to reſent it.

Octo. 27. A Correſpondent ſays, that a ſcheme is on foot by ſome people of conſequence, and intended to be offered to the conſideration of Parliament next ſeſſion, for raiſing half a million ſterling in the colonies, to be levied in kind, out of the ſtaple commodities each province produces, in lieu of caſh. A ſcheme of this nature, it is ſaid, bids the faireſt for giving ſatisfaction to all parties, by the mutual advantages it is apparently calculated to promote.

Nov. 15. On Sunday laſt a clergyman came to preach at the village of Eſſington in Berkſhire, but having forgot his ſermon, bid the Clerk give out the cxix. Pſalm, which being done, the mounted his horſe, galloped four miles and back again, and was in the pulpit before the Pſalm was ended.

A ſketch of the Memorial and Conſultations concerning Antony and John Perra, & Jane Darlin, the wife of one Favobert, accuſed of a rape and aſſaſſination.

ON the 25th of June, in the laſt year, the daughter of a manufacturer of ſilk, at Lyons, named Claudine Rogue, who was remarkable for the beauty of her perſon, and ſobriety of diſpoſition, when the family roſe from table about nine in the evening, miſſing a cat that had been given to her a few days before, went out to ſeek it. About an hour after, her parents beginning to grow uneaſy by her abſence, made enquiry for her in the different apartments of the houſe, but could learn no news of her. The family being alarmed, aſſembled & conſulted together, and determined to inquire for her in all thoſe neighbouring houſes, to which they knew ſhe ſometimes reſorted. "Perhaps," ſays one, "the cat may have returned to the houſe from whence ſhe came;" and it was immediately agreed to ſeek the girl there. The miſtreſs of the houſe, naturally of a lively and jovial diſpoſition, anſwered their inquiries with ſome pleaſantries that were not agreeable to their preſent anxiety, and which gave riſe to ſome remarks, that have had very unlucky, and may have fatal conſequences.——Their imaginations being diſordered by anxiety and diſtreſs, they drew the moſt unfavourable inferences, and, excited by their neighbours, they determined to return to the ſame houſe, and make more ſtrict inquiry. They knocked at the door, which not being opened ſo ſoon as their impatience required, augmented their ſuſpicions; and the parents already regarded the woman of the houſe, and two ſtrangers whom they found with her, as thoſe that had carried off their daughter: they now ſearch the houſe ſtrictly; queſtion the parties very cloſely; and think they diſcover great confuſion in their countenances, and ambiguity in their anſwers. All this, however, ſerved rather to encreaſe than aleviate their anxiety; the unhappy parents return home, loaded with confuſion and diſtreſs,

Six days had paſſed in the moſt dreadful inquietude, when they learnt that the dead body of a young woman was found in the Rhone near Condrieu, about 27 miles from Lyons.—The uncle, accompanied by another relation, ſet off for that place. When they came there, they found that the body was buried in the ſand, they had it dug up, and knew it by the figure and the cloaths; they then cauſed it to be intered in the cimetiry or church yard of the pariſh of St. Michael of Condrieu.

The clamour that the diſappearance of the girl had already occaſioned, in a quarter of the town, inhabited by the loweſt rank of people, and extremely populous, was ſtill augmented by the declaration of a child of 5 years old, the daughter of the woman who had given the cat, and which appeared to merit attention. Truth ſeemed to manifeſt itſelf from the mouth of innocence. This unlucky child declared that Claudine Rogue had been ſtrangled in her mother's houſe, by perſons that ſhe named; ſhe put herſelf moreover into ſuch attitudes and made ſuch deſcriptions, as gave reaſon to ſuſpect that ſhe was raviſhed as well as murdered. Tranſported with horror at the thoughts of the complicated atrocious crimes of ſeduction, rape and aſſaſſination, the accuſed are immediately ſuppoſed and condemned as guilty by the public voice. The clamour daily encreaſing, the affair is brought before the magiſtrates, who take every poſſible precaution to trace the ſeveral circumſtances of the ſuppoſed crime, and to diſcover the authors.

The ſurgeons, already prejudiced by theſe reports, are appointed to go to the cimetiry of St. Michael of Condrieu; they cauſed the dead body to be taken up, and, on examination, declare, that ſhe ſuffered a violent death, and was afterwards thrown into the river.

On this declaration, a proceſs being founded, two women and three men are thrown into priſon, and another who had abſconded is declared guilty; at laſt, after a moſt complicated and [illegible] inquiry, which took up almoſt five months, the ſuppoſed criminals are ſent back, and are declared innocent of all their accuſations.

A few days before this ſolemn determination, three celebrated advocates publiſhed accounts in defence of the accuſed. In theſe accounts the report of the ſurgeons is treated as ignorant and preſumtuous, or at beſt as ſuperficial and inconſiderate. Theſe gentlemen thinking themſelves obliged to juſtify their report to the public, to whom they were accuſed of ignorance, publiſhed a letter, addreſſed to Mr. Louis, ſurgeon in Paris, and that well known academecian, approving the determination which the others had made, in conſequence of their inquiry, ſent them an anſwer, in which he fully juſtified the opinion they had given.

CHARLESTOWN, S. Carolina, December 15.

On the 13th of Sept. laſt, the General Aſſembly of Jamaica, met according to Prorogation, Lieut. Governor Ellotſon in his ſpeech, renews the royal requiſition "for repayment of the monies advanced by the treaſury of G. Britain, for the iſland ſubſiſtance of his Majeſty's troops ſtationed there," which had been declined the laſt year. The council in their addreſs of the 15th, take not the leaſt notice of it. The aſſembly in theirs, promiſes to reconſider the matter. The 29th, his Honor gave his aſſent to one act, after which the aſſembly preſented to him another addreſs and repreſentation, whereby they again decline the repayment aforeſaid, ſetting forth, that they could not do otherwiſe, without endangering the moſt eſſential rights and privileges of their conſtituents. The ſame day Mr. Ellotſon was pleaſed to diſſolve the general Aſſembly, and writs were iſſued for electing a new one.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, to his friend in Boſton.

"I Thank you for the particulars concerning your public affairs; and wiſh what has happened ſince, do not more embroil them. However, I am in hopes that in the end, it will turn out to the advantage of the coloniſts. Your traders before were too forward to run deep in debt with our merchants, and thereby involved themſelves in great difficulties. They were too fond of the faſhions and follies of England, and too negligent of the great natural advantages of their own country: Trading ſo much upon credit, and aping the extravagances and luxuries of the rich and opulent, have already done the colonies irreparable damage, ſunk their character, and ſap'd their virtue. They will now be obliged (if the preſent diſpoſition hold) to trade more upon their own ſtock, to be more attentive to the rules of commerce, more punctual in their payments, and more ready to retrench many ſuperfluous expences, which only tend to enervate their minds, waſte their ſubſtance, and enfeeble their bodies.———

"Now, I hope the great principles of religion will meet with leſs oppoſition, and the virtues of their anceſtors revive with greater vigor, light, and dignity. As I hold your part of the world to be in poſſeſſion of the moſt valuable and diſtinguiſhed bleſſings of any nation under heaven; a land of religious and civil liberty; a healthy climate, a country teeming with plenty; ſea, land, and air, pouring in their inexhauſtible treaſures for the uſe, delight and happineſs of the inhabitants; and to crown all, primitive chriſtianity, unſhackled by hierarchial domination, ſhedding its benign influence to light their path to glory: So (thus bleſſed with divine favour) nothing can hurt your people, but ingratitude and diſobedience, and revolting from his counſels who is the great Sovereign of the univerſe."

HARTFORD, Feb. 13.

We are credibly informed, That on the Settlement of an Account between this Colony and JARED INGERSOL, Eſq; of New Haven, a Ballance of £. 118 Sterling was found due to the latter, which he generouſly made a Preſent of to the Colony; for which the Aſſembly, in their laſt Seſſion, voted him their Thanks which was communicated to him by a Committee.

Extract of a letter on the virtues of Caſtor's Oil, to a ſociety of phyſicians in London, by Dr. Thomas Fraſer of Antigua, March 16th, 1759.

TO prepare the oil, take the ſeeds when ripe, cleanſe from their huſk, beat to a paſte in a mortar, and boil with a ſufficient quantity of water, the oil ſwims on the ſurface, and is to be ſcum'd off. Others prepare it by expreſſion, which is preferable, as oils of all kinds have their acrimony heightened by the action of fire: agreable to which we obſerve, that when the ſeeds are parched, which is the practice of ſome, they yield an oil which is much more acrid and purgative than what is otherways obtained. In theſe iſlands it hath long been preſcribed as a mild and efficacious purgative; for it lubricates & blunts acrimony, ſoftens the fœces, and ſtimulates the inteſtines, to perform their office. With this view, I have always preſcribed it in obſtinate conſtitutions, and in that which we call in theſe iſlands, the dry belly ach, without being diſappointed in the event——The common method of giving it, is a table ſpoon full every hour; and the third or fourth ſpoon full moſt generally produces a ſtool. Others make it into an oleo ſaccharum, with ſugar and lime-juice, which renders the taſte leſs diſagreable. It is a good ingredient in emolient clyſters. Drink plentifully of warm diluting liquors, as with other mild purgatives. In affections of the kidneys, where we are commonly under the neceſſity of emptying the bowels, nothing anſwers better than this oil, either in clyſters, or by the mouth; for while it removes the preſſure of harden'd excrements, it relaxes, and proves emolient to a great degree. Theſe qualities will alſo aſcertain its virtues in different caſes, in which I have ſometimes given it as a purgative in the beginning with ſucceſs. Yet, though very efficatious in the moſt obſtinate complaints, it acts ſo mildly, that new born infants often take it, a tea ſpoon full for a doſe: nor does any thing anſwer better for them, as it carries off that matter which frequently is the cauſe of gripes and convulſions. Theſe are the virtues which experience hath taught me to belong to caſtor oil.——"

N. B. I have ſeen the caſtor plant growing in Connecticut; it produces ſeeds in plenty; is called by ſome olive, by others coffee. It is worth cultivating. I have uſed it in my practice, as have ſeveral practitioners of my acquaintance, who ſeem well pleaſed with it, and think it bids fair as a valuable ſubſtitute for that injudicious collic powder of the famous (I had like to have ſaid i——) H——'s.

From the NORTH BRITON, No. LXXI.

A ſpeech of Sir Charles Sedley, in the reign of King William the Third.

Mr. Speaker,

WE have provided for the army; we have provided for the navy; and now at laſt a new reckoning is brought upon us. We muſt likewiſe provide for the LISTS; truly Mr. Speaker, it is a ſad reflection, that ſome men ſhould wallow in wealth & places; whilſt others pay away in taxes the fourth part of their revenue, for the ſupport of the ſame Government.

We are not upon equal terms for his Majeſty's ſervice. The Courtiers and great officers charge, as it were, in armour, and feel not the taxes, by reaſon of their places: whilſt the country Gentlemen are ſhot through and through by them. The King is pleaſed to lay his wants before us; and I am confident expects our advice upon it: We ought therefore to tell him what penſions are too great, and what places may be extinguiſhed during the war and the public calamity.

His Majeſty ſees nothing but coaches and ſix, and great tables; & therefore cannot imagine the want and miſery of the reſt of his ſubjects. He is a brave and generous prince; but he is a young King, encompaſſed and hemmed in by a company of crafty old Courtiers. To ſay no more, ſome have places of 3000l. ſome of 6000l. others of 8000l. per annum; and I am told the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury have 1600l. per annum each. Certainly public penſions whatever they have been formerly, are too much for the preſent want and calamity that reign every where elſe; & it is a ſcandal, that a Government ſo ſick at heart as ours is, ſhould look ſo well in the face. We muſt ſave the King money, wherever we can; for I am afraid the war is too great for our purſes, if things be not managed with all imaginable thrift. When the people of England ſee all theſe things are ſaved that can be ſaved; that there are no exorbitant penſions, nor unneceſſary ſalaries, and all is applied to uſe for the which it is given, we ſhall give, and they ſhall pay, whatever his Majeſty can want to ſecure the Porteſtant Religion, and to keep out the King of France and King James too—I conclude Mr. Speaker; let us ſave the King what we can, and then let us proceed to give what we are able.

ALL perſons indebted to the eſtate of Robert Nevins, late of Hartford, deceaſed, are once more deſired to ſettle their accounts to prevent trouble. And all thoſe that have any demands againſt ſaid eſtate, are deſired to bring them in for ſettlement.

Meſſ. GREENS,

Pleaſe to give the following a Place in your Paper, and you will oblige your's, &c.

I Have wiſhed a long time that ſome one of the Family of the Halls, would be ſo generous as to publiſh the method they uſe in the cure of the bilious cholic, but I ſee no proſpect of it. Therefore, from a principle of benevolence to mankind, I publiſh the following method to be genuine. I expect that ſome gentlemen in the practice, branches of that worthy Family, will take it unkind in me, which I ſhould be ſorry for. For my part, I think it is far from a gentleman practitioner, and the Chriſtian, to keep any medicine within his own breaſt leſt ſome body ſhould do good with it beſides himſelf. The queſtion may be aſk'd, who knows whether this is the right method? The anſwer is, It came from the late Doct. Hall, of Wallingford's mouth, when he was on his death-bed. And from my own experience, I find the effects the ſame. I am not going to ſay, that their method is the beſt, but we are all ſenſible what effect prejudice has on the minds of mankind! Nothing could cure the cholick, but Hall's Powder, and ſome would take no medicine, but ſend 60, 70, or 80 miles for Doct. Hall, and by the time the Doctor comes the patient is dead.

PREPARATORY POWDER.

Take Boar's Teſticles dried, Roots of Maſter Wort, Juniper Berries, of each, equal Parts, reduce them into fine Powder, give the Quantity of a large Tea Spoon full, half an hour before the Bitter Powder.

DOCT. HULL'S BITTER-POWDER.

Take Succatrine Aloes, 6 Ounces, Cloves, Cinnamon, Mace, Myrrh, Turmerick, and Britiſh Saffron, each one Ounce, Scammony and Amber, each two Drams, reduce them ſeparately, to impalpable Powder, then mix them together. The Doſe from one Scruple to a Dram, every two or three Hours. After the Operation is over, give the following Powder, take Gentian, Turmerick, Myrrh, Glauber's-Salt, China-Wort, each equal Parts, make them into a fine Powder. Take about one Dram, twice per Day.

N.B. If the bitter Powder purges not well, they give the Pill Ruffi, made up with the Balſam Peru. The Black Dog, as they call it, is the Pill ex Duobus. If the Patient cannot take Powder, they Pill it with Philonium. You take Bateman's Drops, or ſome other Opiate, until the Pain abates. Take Clyſters between every Doſe of Bitter Powder; made in General of Urine, common Salt and Molaſſes. L. H.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the PUBLIC LEDGER.

To the PRINTER.

Such is the price of greatneſs, that thoſe that act in public capacity are obliged to give an account of their actions to the public. It is the buſineſs of a public writer to record truth, and act the part of a friendly Monitor; not to flatter the great, whoſe buſineſs it ſhould be to oblige mankind to ſpeak well of them by doing good unto them.

James Fitz Thomas.

ALTHOUGH I confeſs I am not able to trace the genuine ſtream of Family-blood any farther back than my grand father, nor can I tell what coat of arms he was entitled to wear, yet I perſuade myſelf that I am of the offſpring of ſome of the Roman Legions, that came over to ſubdue this iſland, in ſhort, lineally deſcended from the great Atticus; which pleaſing thought, however, I ſhall be willing to give up, as ſoon as any one can convince me of my miſtake, or prove a nearer relationſhip or better claim to the title I have aſſumed; in the interim, it is more to my preſent purpoſe to aſſure my reader, that I am no American, nor have I ſo much as a ſingle relation in all that extenſive country, nor any attachments whatever towards its inhabitants, but what humanity on the one hand, and the noble ſpirit ſhown by the Britiſh colonies on the other, have inſpired me with.

When I read over their remonſtrances, reſolves, addreſſes, and inſtructions, I cannot but conſider myſelf as reviewing the tranſactions of a Roman Senate, and the maſterly drawings of a Tacitus, or a Macaulay and of the pleadings of an Atticus, Cicero, Cato, Brutus, and a Caſſius, together with the reſt of the illuſtrious aſſertors of Roman liberty in their time of public danger; alike nervous ſimplicity and maſterly argument, the product of a refined and exquiſitely ſenſible mind, animating both; in ſhort, I cannot figure to myſelf a more juſt picture, than that of the ſouls of thoſe Romans having with time tranſmigrated into the bodies of theſe Americans, to leave a ſecond immortal memorial on this planet of the ineſtimable worth of that liberty, which is the ſource of true religion, virtue, ſcience, commerce, and every ſocial and amiable enjoyment, that tends to the perfection of our natures. May their endeavours be crowned with ſucceſs and glory inſtead of that tragical cataſtrophe, that occaſioned their former exit from this world, and with their loſs, that of the liberties and reputation of their country.

I am equally an enemy to licentiouſneſs, as I am a lover of liberty; and cannot but be ſorry to ſee that there is no exertion of the civil power to prevent the collecting of, and diſorder ariſing from, Mobs, to which this Metropolis hath lately been expoſed. Curioſity hath ſeveral times led me out to take a view of the rabble, that hath ſo frequently of late put the two cities under the contribution of lights, at the cry of Wilkes, &c. ſo far were they from making any thing of a formidable appearance, that I am perſuaded the exertion of a ſmall part of the civil force, that is at the command of the Magiſtracy, would have been ſufficient to have prevented their offering any inſult, if not to have entirely and effectually diſperſed them; why that power was not made uſe of is perhaps beſt known to thoſe, whoſe buſineſs it was to have called it forth.—But to return to the Americans; there is as wide a difference as poſſible between the cries of liberty in a licentious mob, conſiſting of the ſcum of a large city, and the juſt, reaſonable, & conſtitutional pleadings for it in the petitions and remonſtrances of a people, reſpectable for abilities, property, and probity; in ſhort, inferior to none for diſcernment, and a juſt reſpect for laws and diſcipline, that cement ſociety, and promote its happineſs. Whether they have at all exceeded the bounds of conſtitutional liberty, in the late reſolves to put themſelves into a poſture of defence, is what I will not take upon me to determine; but I think every man that has the ſenſibility of even a Stoic, cannot read without a ſenſible emotion of concern, the letter that L—— H——h ſent over to the governors to diſcourage a brave people from petitioning, in a conſtitutional manner for a redreſs of grievances, when they apprehend their liberties attacked, and in immediate danger. What reputation a miniſter could expect to gain by ſuch a meaſure, is inconceivable to me: but it was incompatible with common ſenſe to think it could meet with any other kind of reception, than what it did, or produce any better effects.

The ſending over Gen. M—— with a military force, I am afraid will neither convince their underſtandings nor reconcile their conſciences in the leaſt degree to the meaſures our diſcerning miniſters have adopted for them. Indeed, every human breaſt muſt ſhudder at the thought of any thing ſo unnatural as the butchering of our fellow ſubjects in America (whoſe induſtry and increaſe we depend upon for a main ſupport) merely for diſpleaſing a Miniſter of ſtate, in the contending for what they apprehend to be a matter of right againſt that of power. Almoſt every perſon, ſo far as my acquaintance extends, that has taken the pains of reviewing what has been offered on both ſides, agree that the writers againſt the colonies, ought, in point of dullneſs and weakneſs of argument, to be recorded and celebrated in another dunciad; their mighty void of ſenſe being fill'd up with that ſelfiſh ſpirit of pride, arrogance, and ſtupidity, that will far out ſhine any thing Pope knew, or had an opportunity of reading: while the pleadings of the advocate for the colonies are manly, ſtrong, and ſentimental; ſuch as would do credit to the greateſt orators and writers of any age or country. Whether it is owing to the difference in the abilities of the parties, or to the merits of the cauſe, I leave to the determination of every impartial perſon. I would only adviſe the former of the two (in which number I would include the Critical Reviewer and the Editor of the Gentleman's Magazine, ſo far as relates to the criticiſms they have given upon publications that relate to American affairs) to take care, if ever they read over a ſecond time their own labours, to be as much as poſſible on their guard againſt a conſcious bluſh, or again conſidering the merits of their performances, and the underſtanding they had of the Subjects they wrote upon.

I have juſt been reading Mr. G———lle's Pamphlet on the ſtate of the nation; he always appeared to me to be an able Financier, a man of ſolid ſenſe and application to buſineſs, and of exemplary morality; and for many years he enjoyed both the confidence of his ſovereign and the people. Happy had it been for both if he had continued the poſſeſſion of the ſame, and enjoyed his poſts in government to this day, or the end of his life, provided, he had not lived his intellectual capacity for buſineſs: in which caſe, he might at leaſt have departed beloved, and have been remembered with pleaſure; but at preſent he has no proſpect of being that happy man: The ſenſible part of the nation will not ſoon forget the ſhare he had in the extenſion of the exciſe ſcheme in the cyder bill, nor the part he took in bringing about the late peace; & (above all) the neglecting to give the neceſſary orders for conniving at a trade with the Spaniards in the Weſt-Indies, ſo advantageous to the ſubjects of both nations, eſpecially this; and the taxing of our American Subjects, in a manner entirely unconſtitutional; for it is a maxim always worthy of regard in politics, that the man who will ſacrifice his own or fellow ſubjects liberties in one inſtance, would not be ſcrupulous in a ſecond; or at leaſt that good policy would direct he ſhould never be a ſecond time entruſted.

Theſe are the reaſons, I confeſs, why I can never wiſh to ſee him again in power; and with reſpect to his Pamphlets, altho' I conſider them as two of the moſt conſiderable that have appeared of late years upon political ſubjects, and in many reſpects to be very ingenious, and worthy of a great man; yet there are abſurdities in this laſt that I ſhould be aſhamed of; as for inſtance, the compliment he pays to his  in the 7th page of the firſt edition, when compared with what directly proceeds it, no perſon of reflection, I think, can reconcile it by any other means than a deep ſkill in Sophiſtry. Whether we might not, by tranſporting of the army from Portugal to the Sicilies, have poſſeſſed ourſelves of that Kingdom, and kept it as an equivalent for the former, and any damages it might have ſuſtained from the Spaniſh army, while their forces would have been diſperſed in a country they could have drawn no reſources from, I will leave to every one's reflection, acquainted with theſe countries; but, from all probable circumſtances, we might have poſſeſſed ourſelves of the Brazils and the Spaniſh Weſt Indies, and the immenſe treaſures thereof, in another campaign: while the King of Pruſſia's ſituation, becoming more favourable, afforded us a better proſpect in Germany: and what Mr. G—— ſays reſpecting the French finding any reſiſtance from monopolizing of the Spaniſh trade in Europe, at a time they muſt be incapacitated from paying for any thing, or even having any demand for goods, is only fit to be laughed at, and quite inconſiſtent with his own reaſoning. And the like may be ſaid of the ſubjects of France, ſerving for glory without pay. However, as all this is paſt, not to be recalled, I ſhall conclude with telling him, that the effects he prognoſticates with reſpect to our manufactures, have long ſince taken place; and that the only way to reſtore them and the nation, is to effect a cordial reconciliation with the Americans; and, by " employing the time of peace in alleviating the burdens of the ſubjects, promoting commerce and manufactures, repleniſhing our exhauſted coffers, and recruiting our waſted people, by the encouragement of population," avail ourſelves of the only means likely to ſecure and promote the mutual happineſs of the government & the people.

Titus Pomponius Atticus, jun.

SAVANNAH, (in Georgia) DECEMBER 28.

ON Saturday the 24th inſtant, about one o'clok, the Houſe of aſſembly ſent an addreſs to the Governor, where it, after obſerving, that they had ſet longer than uſual at this ſeaſon of the year, in order to complete ſome bills that they judged were immediately neceſſary, they requeſted, that his Excellency would be pleaſed to aſſent to ſuch as were paſſed; and as they had ſeveral other neceſſary bills under conſideration, and being very deſirous of finiſhing the whole buſineſs of the ſeſſion as ſpeedily as poſſible, they only deſired to be adjourned till the 9th of January next. Upon which the Governor aſked, when the bills would be ready; and was told by ſix o'clok in the eveing: He then directed the Gentlemen who brought this addreſs, to report to the houſe that he would be at the Council Chamber at ſix o'clock, in order to aſſent to the bills; and about five o'clock, Mr. WYLLY (who was Speaker of the former Aſſembly) produced to the houſe the Circular Letter from the Houſe of Burgeſſes in Virginia, which were received by the houſe, and ordered to be entered on the journals; and then the houſe immediately came to the following reſolutions, viz.

RESOLVED, That it is the opinion of the committee, that a dutiful and loyal addreſs be forthwith prepared from this houſe to our moſt gracious Sovereign, and tranſmitted to the agent for this province, by the Honourable the ſpeaker, ſetting forth our indubitable right, and imploring relief from the grievances and burthens, which, by the late acts of parliament for raiſing a revenue in America, this province, in common with the other colonies, is now ſubject to, and labours under.

The ſaid reſolution being again read, was agreed to by the houſe.

RESOLVED, That from the inherent right of the ſubject to petition the throne, for redreſs of grievances, a right allowed & confirmed by the act of William and Mary, the ſaid letters do not appear, to this houſe, of " a dangerous and factious tendency," but, on the contrary, in the opinion of this houſe, only tend to a juſtifiable union of ſubjects aggrieved in lawful and laudable endeavours to obtain redreſs, by an application founded upon, and expreſſive of duty and loyalty to the beſt of Kings, a becoming reſpect for the parliament of Great Britain, and an equitable & natural affection for our mother country, and ariſes from the tender and commendable attention of theſe colonies to the natural rights and liberties of the Britiſh colonies in America, and to which they are undeniably entitled, upon the happy principles of our conſtitution.

RESOLVed, That copies of this reſolution be, by the Speaker of this houſe tranſmitted to the Speaker of the houſe of repreſentatives of the province of Maſſachuſetts Bay, and to the Speaker of the houſe of Burgeſſes in Virginia; and that they may be acquainted by him, that this houſe approves of the meaſures by them purſued, to obtain redreſs of our common grievances; alſo of the method by them taken of communicating theſe meaſures to the other provinces on the continent.

Theſe reſolves were ſcarce finiſhed, when the governor came to the council chamber, & the clerk of the aſſembly (in conſequence of orders given him by the governor, in caſe theſe letters ſhould, at any time, be received by the houſe) directly carried the minutes up to his Excellency, who immediately required the attendance of the houſe, and after giving his aſſent to the bills that were ready, diſſolved the Aſſembly, with the following Speech.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Aſſembly,

FROM the diſpoſition that appeared amongſt you at the opening of this ſeſſion, I was very hopeful, and flattered myſelf that it would have been brought to a happy concluſion, and it gives me great concern to find it now otherwiſe, and that you have diſregard the principal matter I had in charge from the king, and thereby miſſed ſo fair an opportunity of cheriſhing the confidence his Majeſty has in your affections. But, by your receiving and ſhewing countenance and ſupport to the Boſton letter in the manner you have done, you have laid me under the neceſſity of diſſolving you. You well know that more than ordinary pains have been taken to prevent this event, and if any diſagreeable conſequences ſhould attend it, you will have brought them upon the province by a deliberate act, and it is you, and you only, will have them to anſwer for to your conſtituents.——And however you may have ſuffered yourſelves to be influenced by the conduct of other provinces, and whatever you may now think, be aſſured, gentlemen, that your true liberty, your property, and every thing that is valuable, muſt depend upon a free & uninterupted courſe of law and government, under the protection and ſupport of the mother country, and you cannot poſſibly enjoy theſe invaluable bleſſings, without that protection and ſupport: And how can you expect this, or what right can you pretend to it, if you declare yourſelves to be an independent people? and to me appears a flat and poſitive contradiction to acknowledge " the Britiſh parliament to be the ſupreme legiſlative power over the whole Britiſh empire." (of which we are) and in the ſame breath, to deny the power of that very parliament over us;——nor can I ſee or admit the propriety of the Americans declaring, " That they cheerfully acquieſce in the authority of the Britiſh parliament to make laws for a neceſſary dependence, and regulating the trade of the colonies," and at the ſame time denying its authority to make laws, which I conceive to be a very looſe and improper jumble or ſyſtem of government and ſubordination, and without any criterion but the mere caprice of the populace; and I preſume, that the authority of the Britiſh parliament muſt be full and complete, or does not operate at all. And that the power of the Britiſh parliament extends to America, is a point I never doubted, or heard diſputed till the affair of the ſtamp-duty act; And to ſhew that it does, I ſhall only refer to the proceedings in parliament on the grand debates relative to that act, when I believe there were near four hundred members preſent, and only nine or ten divided againſt that power; alſo the votes of the Houſe of Commons of the 24th of February, 1766, and the ſtatute of the 6th of his preſent Majeſty, chapter 12th.

The diſtinction between internal and external taxes, it is well known here, from its firſt appearance amongſt us, I conceived to be a diſtinction without a difference; and I alſo declared, that if it was granted that the Americans were not ſubject to, nor could be legally or conſtitutionally taxed by the Britiſh parliament, not being repreſented there, then I apprehend the ſame reaſon would hold in every caſe, and the ſame objection lie againſt every law made by the Britiſh parliament to affect the colonies, or his Majeſty's ſubjects in them; for it ſeems [illegible] to ſay, that the colonies are not bound by Britiſh acts of parliament, impoſing what they call internal taxes, becauſe they have not conſented to ſuch laws, not being repreſented in that parliament, and at the ſame time to admit, that they are bound by, and ſubject to other laws made by the ſaid parliament. And I do not find that there is any difference or diſtinction in that conſtitutional rule or principle, that no man is bound by any law to which he has not given his aſſent, either in perſon or by repreſentation; but which rule is general, and holds in all caſes, and with reſpect to all laws, and if ſo, the colonies I conceive are either bound by, and ſubject to all the acts of the Britiſh parliament in which they are mentioned, or are ſubject to none of any kind whatever, and conſequently to be conſidered as independent of the legal or parliamentary power of Great-Britain.

I alſo declared at the ſame time, that if America could be, or was to be come independent of the mother country, from that day you might date the foundation of your ruin and miſery. Theſe were the ſentiments I declared near three years ago, and which ſtill I retain: and moſt ardently wiſh it had been in my power to prevail on you to be ſo far of my opinion as to have paid due regard to his Majeſty's expectations from you, and to have obſerved a more prudent conduct in that particular until the matters in difference between Great Britain and the colonies, and which are now at the criſis, had been clearly and effectually ſettled and determined; but as things are circumſtanced, there is only one act further remaining for me do at preſent, which is by virtue of his Majeſty's authority, and in his name, to DISSOLVE this aſſembly, and I do hereby accordingly DISSOLVE the ſame.

" Your complaints againſt Gov. The 22d inſt. about one in the morning, the houſe of Mr Thomas Williams, Shoemaker, in Secondſtreet, was broke open, ſuppoſed by two men, and robbed of a Silver Watch, the Number and Maker's name forgot;——and, on Tueſday following; about the ſame time, it was again broke open by two Men, who got in a window in the gable end, after climbing over a Soaphouſe and other back buildings, and deſcending two pair of Stairs, went into the parlour, unobſerved by any perſon except a woman, who happened fortunately to lodge there that night, that ſaw their light through the crack of her door: She immediately ſtept out of her room, and awakened Mr. Williams; he inſtantly went down ſtairs, with a candle in his hand, and, upon opening the parlour door, was attacked by one of them, with a ſword or other weapon like it, which obliged him to retreat up ſtairs, when he went into the room, opened the window, called the watch; but before aſſiſtance came the Villins eſcaped out at the ſtreet door, without getting any thing of value. Two men are ſince taken up upon ſuſpicion, and committed to goal; one named Batton, a ſhoemaker and the other Quin.

INDUSTRY, not POVERTY, deſerving of Charitable Donations.

A YOUNG King of Perſia abandoned himſelf to diſſipation, and to all the pleaſures his Courtiers had prepared for him. One day he ſung at a feſtive entertainment thoſe words: "I have enjoyed the moment which is paſt, I ſtill enjoy the moment that paſſes, and I begin to enjoy that which ſucceeds; content and tranquil, the hope of no good, the fear of no evil, give me no uneaſineſs." A poor man, ſitting under the window of the ſaloon where this feaſt was ſolemniſed, heard the King, and cried out to him: "If thou art without uneaſineſs on account of thy own condition of life, haſt thou never any uneaſineſs on acount of ours?" The King, deeply affected at theſe words, approached the window, looked for ſome time attentively at the beggar, and, without ſpeaking to him, ordered a conſiderable ſume to be given him. He afterwards paſſed out of the ſaloon, making reflections on the life paſt. It had been a ſeries of contraieties to all his duties. Aſhamed of it, he took in hands the reins of government, which till then he had abandoned to his favourites. He was obſerved to labour aſſiduouſly, and extend his care to all the departments of government; and in a ſhort time he re-eſtabliſhed order & happineſs throughout his empire. Since he had occupied his thoughts in the adminiſtration of his ſtates, complaints were often made to him of the licentiouſneſs and diſorder in which the poor man lived whom he had inriched. He once again ſaw him, at his palace gate, covered with rags, and aſking an alms. The King, ſhewing him to one of the ſages of his Court, ſaid: "Here doſt thou ſee the effects of goodneſs! Thou haſt ſeen me heap riches on that man, but what are the fruits thereof? My benefits have corrupted him, & were the ſource in him, of new vices and new wretchedneſs." "It is very true, anſwered the ſage, becauſe thou haſt given to poverty what thou ſhouldeſt have given only to induſtry."

LONDON, Novr. 15.

About one o'clock yeſterday morning Mr. William Pimlot, of Symond's Inn, Attorney at law, & a gentleman greatly reſpected by every perſon who had the happineſs of his acquaintance, was inhumanly murdered. After ſpending the evening at a gentleman's houſe in Fleet-Street, he went to his chamber about twelve o'clock, perfectly cool and ſober, and ſoon after he was got into bed, the Inn gate being open, a woman broke his bed chamber window; upon which Mr. Pimlot aroſe, put on part of his cloaths, and, no watchm[illegible] in the Inn, or at the gate, or [illegible] lighted, run into Chancery-lane, and called to the watch, whom he charged with the woman; whereupon ſhe inſtantly ſtruck him on the left breaſt; the poor deceaſed put his hand to his breaſt, and took from thence an open knife, which he delivered to the watchman; telling him the woman had murdered him, and that was the knife ſhe had ſtabbed him with; he then walked to the watch-houſe (being about 100 yards) opened his breaſt, and ſat down but could not ſpeak, and expired in about two minutes. It appears that the knife went directly to his heart. The woman was immediately conveyed to New-Priſon.

"I have the happineſs to acquaint you that we are in ſafety here, having fortunately got a freight to this port from Genoa; for had we gone to Conſtantinople, we had all been made ſlaves, & our ſhip ſeized by the Turks; there being certain advice, that the Grand Vizir had ſeized on all the foreign ſhips lying there to take in corn, and had ſent their crews into ſlavery. A Dutch ſhip of force reſiſted, and after an obſtinate engagement was overpowered. The Captain's head was immediately ſtruck off, & the crew ſent into the country for perpetual ſlavery. [The following is inſerted in this paper by particular deſire]

A Speech made to the Freemen at W—t—b—y at their September meeting A. D. 1768.

☞ The parigraph's, included in Crotchets thus [] were then omitted.

GENTLEMEN,

MY deſign is, firſt to make ſome remarks on the freeman's oath, inſerted in our colony law book, and then ſhew the ſtate of the diſpute that ſeems at preſent to ſubſiſt between the parliament of Great-Britain, and the Britiſh colonies in America, and give my opinion thereon.

And firſt to remark on ſaid oath, I would ſay, an oath is an affirmation or denial of any thing, before one or more perſons, who have authority to adminiſter the ſame, for the diſcovery or advancement of truth and right, calling GOD to witneſs, that the teſtimony is true. And where any number of perſons are entered into a legal ſociety or corporation, the oath or oaths adminiſtered for their admittance, or to qualify them to act in ſuch community, can be underſtood in no other light than to lay them under the moſt ſacred ties to do and perform thoſe things relative to ſuch community or corporation to which ſuch oath is a promiſe of their performance.

And in this oath there ſeems to be three parts, as firſt. We promiſe to be true and faithful to his preſent Majeſty K. George the third, and his lawful ſucceſſors: a ſufficient explanation of which for my purpoſe, is contained in the firſt, ſecond, and fourth oaths, appointed inſtead of the oaths of allegiance and abjuration inſerted in our colony law book, to which I would refer my reader, on which I would note that by ſaid oaths thoſe that take them come under no obligations thereby to ſubmit to any acts of the parliament of Great Britain, ſo that we are acquitted from perjury tho' refuſing to ſubmit to ſuch acts.

2d We promiſe to be true and faithful to the government of his Majeſty's colony of Connecticut as eſtabliſhed by charter, on which (note 1ſt) his Majeſty's, not the parliament's colony of Connecticut, (note 2d) as eſtabliſhed by charter, not by acts of parliament, ſo that in order to know our duty contained in this promiſory part we muſt have recourſe to our charter, and not to acts of parliament. And our general aſſembly having authority by charter from time to time, to make, ordain and eſtabliſh all manner of wholeſome, and reaſonable laws, ſtatutes, ordinances, directions and inſtitutions, not contrary to the laws of the realm of England, &c. as the general aſſembly—ſhall think fit—whereby the ſaid people inhabitants may be—religiouſly, peaceably, and civilly governed,—wherefore the good and wholeſome laws, ordinances, &c. ſo made, are the general rules for our conduct under this promiſory head, and not acts of the parliament of Great-Britain.

3d. We promiſe that whenſoever we [illegible] our vote or ſuffrage, touching any matter which concerns this colony being thereunto called, we will give it as in our conſcience we ſhall judge may conduce to the beſt good of the ſame, without reſpect of perſon, or favour of any man; in which we oblige ourſelves to ſeveral things, viz. That when we are called together publickly to give our vote for the election of governor, deputy governor, &c. or for nominating of the aſſiſtants, or choice of repreſentatives, we are obliged by ſaid oath, to attend the ſame: on which I am ſorry to ſee any juſt cauſe of complaint of neglect in a caſe, wherein the leaſt omition may be big with conſequences fatal to the colony. And here let us conſider whether if the ſaid oath, and the acts againſt bribery and corruption were laid aſide, and the moſt barefaced bribery corruption and party zeal, were practiſed with impunity (which may be the caſe in ſome corporations) we ſhould not be more influenced thereby to give our attendence than we are by the ſacred ties of an oath.

2d That when we do attend we will conſcientiouſly act thereon for the beſt good of the government as eſtabliſhed by charter, according to the beſt of our judgment for the performance of which we ought to inform ourſelves by the beſt ways and means that we can of the character of the gentlemen candidates—And give our vote for thoſe that in our beſt judgment are of the beſt abilities to ſtand at the helm, in the offices to which they may be elected and the beſt friends to our civil conſtitution as eſtabliſhed by charter, eſpecially in ſuch a day of difficulty as the preſent is. I muſt confeſs there is difficulties in ſuch a caſe with many of the freemen for want of perſonal knowledge of the gentlemen that generally ſtand the higheſt as candidates for offices of the greateſt truſt, and their true characters. But when a freeman has done the beſt he can from the information of others on whoſe fidelity he can with juſtice to himſelf and the colony rely, he is doubtleſs excuſible; but with reſpect to the repreſentatives of the reſpective towns there ſeems not to be the ſame degree of difficulty, for we all have or may have ſo much knowledge of the qualifications of gentlemen among ourſelves that if we caſt off perſonal reſpect and favour of man we can make a judgment whereupon we may give our votes juſtifiable in the ſight of GOD and our own conſciences: But thus much is ſufficient for my preſent purpoſe ſince the nature of this oath hath, and I hope hereafter may be explained to us from the deſk.

And now in purſuit of my deſign I am to ſhew the ſtate of the diſpute that ſeems at preſent to ſubſiſt between the parliament of Gr. Britain, and the Britiſh colonies in America, which is at this day the topic of converſation and concern throughout the colonies; and here I ſhall ſay that the caſe in diſpute is the ſovereignty of the parliament of Great Britain over the Britiſh colonies in America, with reſpect to taxation or laying of duties on their trade, for the ſole purpoſe of raiſing a revenue.

The firſt act paſſed imploring any ſuch ſovereignty, was of no earlier date than under Mr Grenvill's adminiſtration, in the 4th year of the reign of his preſent Majeſty. And ſoon after the ſtamp-act was paſſed, for that purpoſe, viz. for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue and tho' that act, for ſome reaſons of ſtate was ſoon repealed, yet leaſt ſaid repeal ſhould be conſtituted an implicit confeſſion that the parliament had no ſuch ſovereignty over the colonies, there was ſoon after that repeal a bill paſſed declaratory of ſuch ſovereignty: ſince which the act impoſing a duty on glaſs paper &c. has paſſed. The preamble of which act is in the words following, viz. "Whereas it is expedient that a revenue ſhould be payed in your Majeſty's dominions in America for making a more certain and adequate proviſion for defraying the charges of the adminiſtration of juſtice, and ſupport of civil government, in ſuch provinces where it ſhall be found neceſſary, and towards the defending, protecting, and ſecuring the ſaid dominions we your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the commons of Great Britain, &c. give and grant, &c."—This and ſome other acts of the ſame import, are the things complained of, and objected to by the Britiſh Americans. On which I would next with ſubmiſſion offer my opinion. And Firſt. I am of opinion that ſuch acts are unconſtitutional, inaſmuch as they derogate from, and controul the ROYAL prerogative, for there is none of the Britiſh governments but what are in ſome form incorporated by charters granted by ſome of his Majeſty's predeceſſors as Kings of England or Great Britain, & have by virtue of ſuch charter parliaments of their own ſeperate and free from the controul of Great Britain, with his Majeſty's repreſentatives at their head by whoſe aſſent their acts became laws in the reſpective provinces to all intents and purpoſes, unleſs negatived by his Majeſty in council in a certain limited time, without the parliament of G. Britain having any concern therein, and when any of the provinces have been objected againſt as acting contrary to, or forfeiting their charter privileges, the parliament of Great Britain never took cognizance thereof, but they have been ſerved with a quo warrant to anſwer in the court of King's bench (in which proceſs his Majeſty has been a party) and there received their ſentence of acquital or condemnation, and if condemned, their previleges have been ſeized into his Majeſty's hands, and not into the hands of the parliament, and the parliament never I can find, acted any thing in affairs of that nature till the unprecedented act for the ſuſpention of the legiſlative authority of the aſſembly of the province of New York, ſo that the Kings Majeſty having from the firſt ſettlement of the Britiſh colonies, had the ſole controul of them ſeperate from the parliament of Great Britain, it is my opinion ſo far incorporated into the national conſtitution that for the parliament to interpoſe and in any degree curtail, alter or take away the previleges granted by charter, to the American colonies (which thoſe acts evidently do) is to derogate from, and controul the ROYAL prerogative, which is altogether as unconſtitutional as to infringe on the rights of the ſubjects.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE, of Octo. 20 1768.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

HAVING, in your Chronicle of Oct 20, mentioned ſome loſſes which this nation may ſuſtain by enforcing the payment of taxes in America, it is but juſt we ſhould inquire into the benefits that may ariſe to us from the ſucceſs of this meaſure.

I believe no one will be ſo ſanguine as to expect that the Americans will not ſo far reſent our conduct as to leſſen their demand of our manufactures for, at leaſt, ſome years. What ſum this may amount to, I ſhall not take upon me to ſay. It is pretended, that the tax, at this time the ſubject of debate, will return to England a ſum equal to the loſs we ſhall probably ſuſtain? No! This tax is intended only to defrey the expence of internal government among themſelves. Is this an object equal to the riſk we run? I think not. It may indeed be ſaid, that by this tax, we eſtabliſh our claim of a right to tax them; and that we may, in ſome future time, lay a tax upon them, which will make a conſiderable return to England, or which is the ſame thing, will go far in defraying the expence of troops ſtationed there to keep the inhabitants in ſubjection. I dare propheſy, that in this caſe, our loſs of exports will at leaſt equal the amount of the tax. Let us ſuppoſe each to amount to half a million ſterling, and leſs would not be an object for government, I beg leave to aſk, whether it is moſt to the advantage of England to ſell 500,000l. worth of manufacturers, or to receive that ſum into the Exchequer, as the produce of a tax in America? By the ſale of the manufactures. 7780 manufactures will be employed, and will benefit the nation by their conſumption, &c. But if we loſe the exportation of theſe manufactures, the manufacturers will remain unemployed, and ſo become an additional expence; and the commiſſioners and officers who collect the tax, being moſt of them taken from more uſeful poſſeſſions, become an additional tax on the Americans; and hence it ſeems evident, that the national benefit is on the ſide of the manufactures. Sir Robert Walpole wiſely ſaw it in this light, and when often preſſed to tax the Americans, anſwered, that to his knowledge, all the mony brought into America, landed here in leſs than two years. "What more would you have," ſaid he, as a judicious politician, "would you have me offend them, when they already give us al they have?"

The mention of the Commiſſioners and Officers brings the ſecret ſpring of this tranſaction to light. The cloven foot appears, they are all appointed by the Miniſter. This will increaſe his power, and extend his influence in elections &c. However, to throw a veil over the true motive of carrying this meaſure into execution, it is alledged, that the honour of the nation is now concerned.—— Mankind have ſo far learned the wiſdom of the ſerpent, as, I believe, to prefer intereſt to a point of honour, eſpecially when, as in this caſe, the intereſt is very conſiderable. Whatever the opinions of Gentlemen may be on this head, the Truſtees of the people for ſuch every Member of Parliament is, ſhould here conſider the real intereſt of that people, and be determined by it. Can any point of honour anſwer to the nation for the loſs of the ſale of ſo great a quantity of manufactures, & the depriving ſo many hands of their uſeful labour. We certainly herein play a looſing game; and the Americans are forced into meaſures which muſt in the end turn to their advantage. Theſe taxes will put an end to their diſſipation and luxury. Trade being greatly leſſened among them, many muſt retire into the country, and lay out in improvements and population, the money formerly employed in trade, and thus make a more laſting, perhaps a greater, acquiſition of fortune; and the manufacturers of the neceſſaries of life muſt be purſued by them with unwearied diligence.

With whom is it we are to diſpute this point of honour? Is it with an enemy? Is it with a rival nation, who may preſume upon our indulgence? No it is with our brethren. It is with a people whoſe intereſt and ours are ſo cloſely connected by every tye that unites mankind in ſociety, that no error on either ſide ſhould ever diſunite us. They claim privileges which they have hitherto poſſeſſed; indeed, till now, never queſtioned. Lovers of Liberty will ſurely commend their ſteady defence of what they think their right; and oh! my countrymen, what do we get by an attempt to deprive them of that right? Whatever hardſhips they may ſuffer, will continue only till our being involved in war ſets them at liberty. Every nation in Europe will then readily enter into alliances with them; and our enemies will gladly aſſiſt them in eſtabliſhing an independant ſovereignty. That time will be the æra of our ruin, when deprived of the only commerce we carry on with profit. O Britain! thus to fall a ſacrafice to the unbounded pride, and implacable reſentment of a few.

A BRITON.

LONDON, November 3.

THE following is an addreſs of Mr. Wilke's to the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the county of Middleſex, viz.

GENTLEMEN,

"I cannot but ſuppreſs the emotions of a grateful heart. I muſt pay you the beſt tribute of thanks for the many proofs of a noble and generous friendſhip, which you have continued to me in this priſon now for above ſix months. I will not lament my paſt ſufferings, nor even a harſh, a cruel ſentence, becauſe I find that your favour and protection are extended to me, in proportion to the increaſe of the perſecutions I undergo. Every day gives a freſh mark of this kindneſs and affection; I truſt that I may add likewiſe, of my firmneſs in the cauſe, as well as ſteady attachment to my friends, the ſupporters of the freedom, and the conſtitution of our native country.

"The parliament being ſummoned to meet the next week for the diſpatch of buſineſs, I think it my duty to ſubmit to you the particulars of my future conduct. I mean to petition the houſe of commons, as the grand inqueſt of the nation, in full hope of the redreſs of all grievances, which have ariſen from various acts of arbitrary power exerted by the miniſters the illegalities reſpecting the two trials, and eſpecial the alteration of the records. I have already lodged an appeal againſt the two ſentences before the houſe of lords, as the ſupreme judicature of this kingdom, and I ſhall bring before their lordſhips the whole ſtate of the legal proceedings, which I believe are no leſs erroneous and invalid, than thoſe have already been declared to be, which reſpected the outlawry. The meeting of parliament will ſuſpend the important, public cauſe againſt lord Haliſax, which cannot be tried till the term following the next prorogation.

"I look forward, gentlemen, to the happy moment of regaining my freedom, and of giving you, in a Britiſh ſenate, the cleareſt demonſtration that the principles of liberty have taken a deep root in my heart. You ſhall find me a faithful guardian of the people of England ſtrenuous & unwearied in my endeavours to deſtroy all the remains of deſpotic power among our free born countrymen. I ſhall think it a glorious reward of my toils, if in one inſtance only, a point of the utmoſt moment, grand juries may thro' my efforts, recover the power and right given them by the firſt principles of the conſtitution, which are at preſent entirely loſt in the mode of proceeding by information, ſo long, to the great grievance of the ſubject, practiſed both by the attorney general and the judges of the court of Kings bench. In this & every other [illegible] of national liberty, I ſhall earneſtly beg your aſſiſtance.

"I hope at all times, in public buſineſs, to have the advantage of your counſels, to perfect the plan of ſecuring & guarding the liberties of the freeſt nation in the world, againſt future attacks of wicked miniſters, or even encroachments of the crown; which ſecurity can only be obtained by the moſt wholſome laws, & wiſeſt regulations, built on the firm baſis of Magna Charta the great preſerver of the lives, freedom and property of Engliſhmen. I am gentlemen, under increaſing obligations,

Your faithful and obedient humble ſervant.

JOHN WILKES."

A letter from Cadiz, ſays, "A girl of 12 years of age, the daughter of the Sieur de Capeda, Knight of the order of Calatrava, and Captain of the Militia of this town, has aſtoniſhed us by her talents and knowledge in literature; which ſhe diſplayed in a public exerciſe ſome days ſince, before a number of perſons of rank and eminence. At three hours each, ſhe anſwered with the greateſt clearneſs and preciſion all the queſtions that were put to her on ſacred and prophane Hiſtory, Grammar, and the Orthography of the Greek, Latin, French, and Spaniſh languages, as well as upon Coſmography, Geometry, and Aſtronomy, and fully demonſtrated and explained the five general charts of the world, the Terreſtrial, Celeſtial and Armillary Spheres, the Eclipſes, and the Syſtems of Ptolemy, Tycho-Brache, and Copernicus: She alſo gave the moſt ample explications in chronology, and even entered into details concerning the climates; of the different States of Europe, their productions, religion, manners and cuſtoms, the forces of the different powers, and the monies of each country, &c. concluding with a ſpecimen of ſurpriſing knowledge in Heraldry."

SIR,

THE laſt ſhips having brought great numbers of letters from North-America, adviſing, that not only Boſton, but ſeveral other Colonies have gone into Aſſociations and Subſcriptions, not to import any more goods from England unleſs the act impoſing Duties on Paper, Glaſs, &c. be repealed. This they have done, they ſay, with a view to alarm the Manufacturers of this Kingdom, and to induce them to exert themſelves to obtain a repeal; not knowing, that generally ſpeaking, the Manufacturers are the pooreſt & moſt inſignificant People in the Kingdom: But who ſhould they fly to? not to the Merchants, whom they have treated with the baſeſt ingratitude in the affair of the Stamp-Act, which repeal was abſolutely obtained by their Influence, and the circle which they ſpread, as well as at very great expence. But the Reward for this Service from Americans, was Scurrility in their papers, calling their Chairman Weſt Indian, and their letters with ſuch contempt, as not even to anſwer them, tho' ſigned by many of the firſt Merchants in London.

We ſhall now ſee whether the Manufacturers will ſo much as ſtir for them, or what their own combinations wil procure: Mean while we hope government will conſtitutionally treat them as they deſerve; and would only obſerve, that the inſtrument they have ſubſcribed ſets forth, "that the man ſhall be infamous and treated as an Enemy to his country, who imports Goods after the 13th of Nov." but there are now orders in Town, from ſeveral of thoſe worthy Subſcribers for Goods, deſiring that the invoices may be dated in September.——Such are Americans!

IF in criminal caſes it is contrary to law, to condemn a man unheard, ſurely in our political converſation and debates, it is both ungenerous and cruel, to abuſe the abſent, becauſe they differ from us in our political opinions. I am led to make this remark from the ſcurrility which is belched forth in moſt companies, againſt Mr. Otis of Boſton: a man of unblemiſhed character, and the repreſentative of a great people, whoſe liberty he thinks is invaded, and which in Juſtice to himſelf, his country, and his conſtituents he thinks he ought legally and conſtitutionally to defend: This, in the opinion of his traducers is a crime, and for which they beſtow on him the names of incendiary firebrand, tatler, &c. of which he is no more deſerving than Andrew Marvel, Pym, Shippin or Sir John Barnard, which I think are the moſt illuſtrious characters Old England has ever produced, and that of Mr. Otis, one of the greateſt of New-England.

LONDON.

Oct. 13. The following addreſs was preſented to the King of Denmark, on his coming into the Cockpit at Newmarket, which his Majeſty received with his uſual affability.

"Great Sir,

"In 1728 your Royal Grandfather honoured this Cockpit with his preſence, and ſeemed highly pleaſed with the courage of our Britiſh cocks. May your Majeſty's reign be long and happy; and when the infirmities of nature ſhall pall the reliſh of enjoyment, may you, without pain, retire to the manſions of eternal bliſs (like him) replete with age and glory!"

The late maſquerade brings to our mind an anecdote of a late Great Perſonage when maſquerades were frequently allowed in this country. Being preſent at one of thoſe entertainments, he was ſtruck with the form of a lady. After ſome converſation with her, he laid his hand upon her boſom, the ſoftneſs of which he greatly commended; "I could (replied the Lady) put your hand upon a ſofter place;" and upon his requeſting her ſo to do, ſhe immediately put his hand upon his own head, and directly mingled with the crowd.

We hear from Dublin, that the celebrated Dr. Lucas was, a few days ſince, married to Miſs Kelly, a beautiful lady of eighteen years of age.——Matrimony cannot hurt the Patriot, but on the contrary lays him under new obligations to ſociety.

"This Iſland once the dread of my Countrymen, on Account of it's Fame, for unhealthineſs, is in fact as healthy a Climate as any within Tropics on this ſide the Globe; it is likewiſe valuable on Account of its produce, which increaſes amazingly every Year: This Year upwards of 18000 Hogſheads of Sugars, Coffee and Cocoa, have been ſhip'd for Europe, excluſive of what has been ſhip'd for N. America, beſides Rum, which in Taſte and flavour is equal to Jamaica Rum. This is near 6000 Hogſheads more than was ſhip'd the laſt Year. There is now a fine proſpect of a great Crop. This iſland in a very few Years will be the beſt belonging to the Engliſh to windward of Jamaica, for there is no danger of wanting Water, having a great number of fine Rivers, and the middle being very high and Mountanious it antracts the Clouds, which afford Plenty of Rain, and almoſt all the Mills go by Water."-----

We hear that a Brigantine belonging to Mr. Robert Duncan, who ſailed from hence ſome time ſince for North-Carolina, by ſome Accident catch'd on Fire and was burnt in the Harbour where ſhe lay.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 18.

Laſt Week paſſed thro' here, in his Way to Barnſtable, the Place of his Reſidence, Richard Dunham, who in the Year 1763 was wounded and taken priſoner near Detroit, by a party of French and Indians: He belonged to the New-England Forces, and was in a Detachment under Capt. Dalzell when taken. The unparalled Sufferings of this unfortunate Perſon, were they minutely recounted, muſt exite Emotions of Pity and Compaſſion in the moſt obdurate Breaſt; During the Engagement his Jaw-bone was ſhivered by a Ball, which paſſing thro' his Mouth, tore away Part of his Tongue, and deſtroyed ſome of his Teeth. The Ball being poiſoned, his Wound was never thoroughly cured, and has now become loathſome to himſelf. He, with five other Priſoners, were ſold from one Indian Nation to another, till they arrived at the Spaniſh Main, where they endured a long and cruel Captivity, frequently ſeeing their Fellow Priſoners burnt at a ſtake, or unhumanly butchered by the Savages. Being ſent out to hunt with five others, attended by three Indians, in croſſing a lake in a Canoe, threw the Savages over, and after travelling 13 Days got to North-Carolina.

By a gentleman, lately from the Grenades, we are informed, there was great likelihood of a fine crop, and they were to begin to cut the firſt of January; that governor Melville was daily expected there from England; that orders were arrived for the Lieutenant governor to ſuſpend legiſlation at the Grenades, Dominica, and St. Vincents, till further orders from Home; that the French were adding greatly to their fortifications at Gaudaloupe; that at Martinico they were erecting a ſtrong fortification on an eminence commanding the forts taken by the Engliſh laſt war; and that upwards of 200 men were daily employed in making gun carriages,

2d I AM of opinion that thoſe acts are unconſtitutional with reſpect to the Britiſh colonies in America, for as Americans are freemen of the kingdom of Great Britain, they are not not cannot be taxed but by their own conſent, or the conſent of their repreſentatives in parliament, as appears from theſe words in Magna Charta, viz. "no talage or aid ſhall be taken, or levied by us, or our heirs, in our realm, without the good will and aſſent of arch biſhops, biſhops, Earls, Barons, Knights, Burgeſſes, and other freemen of the land." ſee firſt chapter of a ſtatute made in the 25th year of Edward the firſt, commonly called detaligo non condecendo. And the Americans having no voteeither by themſelves or repreſentatives, but in their own parliaments or aſſemblies, cannot be conſtitutionally taxed elſe where, which is the opinion of ſome of the greateſt men at home as well as in America: ſee Lord Cambden on the declaratory bill of the ſovereignty of the parliament of Great Britain over the colonies, his words are, "As the affair is of the utmoſt importance, and in its conſequences may involve the fate of kingdoms, I took the ſtricteſt review of my arguments, I examined all my authorities, fully determined if I found myſelf miſtaken, publickly to give up my opinion, but my ſearches have more and more convinced me that the Britiſh parliament have no right to tax the Americans—neither is the doctrine new, it is as old as the conſtitution, it grew up with it; indeed it is its ſupport—taxation and repreſentation are inſeperably united. GOD hath joined them, no Britiſh parliament can ſeperate them, to endeavour to do it is to ſtab our vitals. My opinion is this—I repeat it—I will maintain it to my laſt hour—taxation and repreſentation are inſeperable—this poſition is founded in the laws of nature; it is more, it is itſelf an eternal law of nature, for whatſoever is a mans own is abſolutely his own, no man hath a right to take it from him without his conſent, either expreſly by himſelf, or repreſentative, whoever attempts it, attempts an injury—whoever does it commits a robbery—he throws down the diſtinction between liberty and ſlavery. There is not a blade of graſs in the moſt obſcure corner of the kingdom, which is not, which was not ever repreſented ſince the conſtitution began, there is not a blade of graſs, which when it was taxed, was not taxed by the conſent of the proprietor. The forefathers of the Americans did not leave their native country, and ſubject themſelves to every danger and diſtreſs, to be reduced to a ſtate of ſlavery; they did not give up their right; they looked for protection and not for chains from their mother country, by her they expected to be defended in the poſſeſſion of their property, and not to be deprived of it; for ſhould the preſent power continue there is nothing which they can call their own, or to uſe the words of Mr. LOCK. "What property have they in that which another may by right take when he pleaſes to himſelf?" thus far Lord Cambden.

3d I am of opinion that thoſe acts are unconſtitutional with reſpect to CONNECTICUT in particular. For the ample charter graciouſly granted by King CHARLES the II to the colony of Connecticut, being the ground work and baſis, of our particular conſtitution, whatſoever infringes upon, curtails, alters, or takes away, any of the rights, privileges, or immunities ſo granted by ſuch charter, is unconſtitutional; now among other grants made in ſaid charter are the words following, viz. "And know ye farther, that we of our abundant grace, &c, have given, granted, and confirmed unto the ſaid Governor and company, and their ſucceſſors all that part of our dominion &c—to have and to hold the ſame—forever upon truſt—yielding & paying therefor, to us our heirs and ſucceſſors, only the fifth part of all the oar of gold, and ſilver which from time to time, and all times ſhall be there gotten had or obtained, in lieu of all ſervices duties or demands whatſoever, to be to us our heirs or ſucceſſors, thereof, or thereout rendered, made or paid."—Which words are ſo plain and explicit in themſelves, that they need no comment to ſhew that any acts of the parliament of Great Britain, impoſing taxes or duties on the colony for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue, is contrary to the true deſign of them, and therefore unconſtitutional with reſpect to Connecticut.

Farther I am of opinion that thoſe acts are not ſtrictly juſt, for the Britiſh colonies in America at firſt ſettled themſelves, & have always been maintained, ſecured, and defended, at their own expence without any coſt or charge to the crown or parliament of Great Britain, except in two or three inſtances, viz. Georgia, Halifax, &c. and have never by their own acts given up their rights, and liberties to the parliament of Great Britain, ſo that whatſoever they have acquired is their own, and therefore (on Lord Cambdens principles) are abſolutely their own, and none have a right to take it from them without their conſent.

Farther I am of opinion that thoſe acts are unequal, in as much as the impoſitions are on all the colonies in an exact proportion to their trade with the mother country, and all to go into one common fund or revenue for defraying the charge of the adminiſtration of juſtice and ſupport of civil government, in ſuch provinces where it ſhall be found neceſſary, and towards the defraying the expence of defending, protecting, and ſecuring his Majeſty's dominions in America, when it is very apparent, that ſome governments by reaſon of their particular forms of government ſituation and other circumſtances will have very different draughts on ſuch fund or revenue, in the greateſt diſproportion imaginable to that of their trade with the mother country, to which their intereſt in ſuch revenue will bare the moſt exact proportion.

Farther I am of opinion that thoſe acts are of an oppreſſive nature, inaſmuch as by them one government will be obliged to ſupport the charge of the adminiſtration of juſtice, and ſupport civil government, for its neighbour government. As to inſtance in the caſe between an elective government, and a kingly, in which the governor, deputy governor, judges of the ſuperior courts, &c. in the former, have their reſpective ſalaries granted by acts of aſſembly, out of their reſpective treaſuries, and in no other way, and ſo have no need of any ſupport out of ſuch revenue, as ſeems to be the caſe of ſome provinces in the above mentioned preamble, when the ſame officers in the latter, will receive their ſalaries out of the common revenue, at the direction of his Majeſty or more probably the miniſtry for the American department, by which means the former will ſuffer a great degree of oppreſſion, by paying large ſallaries to thoſe from whom they neither need nor receive any ſervice.

But then farther thoſe acts appears to me to be of an oppreſſive nature in the other Branch of the purpoſe for which ſuch revenue is deſigned, viz. The defraying the expence of defending, protecting, and ſecuring his Majeſty's dominions in America—now it is well known that the national attention in the whole courſe of the laſt war, was chiefly on thoſe three branches of trade, viz. the fiſhery, the ſkin, and the fur trade, and not altogether the defending, protecting, and ſecuring the then Britiſh dominions in America, who had for more than a century and an half defended, protected and ſecured themſelves, without the leaſt help but that of divine providence aſſiſting their own endeavours; till the mother country ſeeing the importance of thoſe branches of trade, the nation exerted itſelf in the laſt war, and with the aſſiſtance of the Britiſh colonies, (who on the principle of ſelf defence joined the Britiſh forces in which the colony of Connecticut tho' one of the leaſt expended more than £. 400,000 lawful money) ſecured to themſelves thoſe branches of trade together with a large tract of rich and fertile country, in its extent larger than ever Great-Britain poſſeſſed before throughout the world, without the colonies having any intereſt either in ſaid trade or land, and tho' there has ſo much bounty been beſtowed on the Britiſh troops, that were in the ſervice as to make a private equal with reſpect to extent of propriety to ſome of the beſt planters in ſome of the American colonies; yet not the leaſt grant has been made to any of the American troops at all. And now after all by theſe acts the trade of the Americans, with the mother country, (and that for thoſe articles which ſhe allows them to purchaſe no where elſe) muſt by ſuch taxes and duties raiſe a revenue for defending, protecting, and ſecuring, ſo large a tract of dominion together with ſo profitable a trade without the leaſt tax or duty for that purpoſe either on ſuch lands or branches of trade that I have ever heard of, which makes them appear to me to be oppreſſive.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

I Am told many of our countrymen are greatly grieved at the news from America; whereas I look upon the BoſtonGazettes as entertaining a farce as the padlock—Remark only how it ſets out!

The meeting of the freeholders was opened with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Cooper.—This is right.—But why Dr. Cooper? I thought eccleſiaſtical degrees were an abomination in the eyes of the ſaints:——I ſuppoſe we ſhall ſhortly hear this Reverend Doctor is appointed Dean of the Cathedral (to be built and endowed at Boſton) as a proviſion for acting as chaplain to the meeting.——Then follows the Hon. James Otis, Eſq; Moderator, and the Hon. Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; committee-man. I do not very well underſtand how theſe levellers come to admit of theſe diſtinguiſhing titles of Hon. and Eſq; ſure they do not mean to have a protector or ſuperior among them; that would ſpoil all. Indeed I expected it would have been Maſter James Otis, and Maſter Thomas Cuſhing, but I ſupppoſe I am wrong; for it was the Hon. Mr. Day and his young honour Maſter Day. Theſe worthy gentlemen are to be conſidered; ſo that, it ſeems, ſalaries are annexed to their offices; to be ſure: why ſhould not State officers have ſalaries in America, as well as our's have here? It will not make them coveted the more for that.——Next follows the mock aſſembly, preceeded by a faſt. Stand clear beef and pudding in the evening, for the bellies of the ſaints muſt be filed with ſomething more ſubſtantial than wind, within the compaſs of twelve hours.——One Thing I love the Coloniſts for, and that is, they ſpeak out. They have beat the drum, and openly declared themſelves their own maſters; & where's the harm in this? every one of us would do the ſame, if we were ſure we could ſupport it. InGod'sName leave them to themſelves: do not throw away Powder and ſhot upon them: Let them form an Empire among themſelves, if they can unite ſo many diſcordant intereſts. Let not our merchants deſpair of their debts, they will get every ſhilling: ſend a Fleet to New England to be maintained & live upon free quarter there, until the Boſtonians have paid every farthing of what all the Coloniſts are indebted to our Merchants, and leave them to follow their own inventions. Sure it is much better for us they were a free ſtate, and trade with us in the manner they do with other countries, than put us to an annual expence to protect them, and not get any returns for our goods. I am of opinion it would be happy for this Iſland if America and the Eaſt-Indies were ſwallowed up by an Earthquake. Our commerce, which we make ſuch a route about, has undone us. What have trade and our ideal riches bro't us to? no government, no ſubordination, the beſt of K—— inſulted; our leaders have loſt all their ſpring and activity, loaded with debt the nation is unable to ſtand under, what is to be the iſſue? the remedy of the ſelf-denying, ſplitfarthing author of the ſtate of the nation, in-adequate to the diſeaſe; it is mere waſte paper; it wants another gueſs ſtate doctor. I fear Lord Bolingbroke was a Prophet: he ſaid England might be ſaved, yet ſo as by fire: the match I fear is in ſome hands or other that will ſoon try the experiment. Woe be to that day, whenever it comes; there will be much weeping and knaſhing of Teeth; aye, and broken heads too.

Anecdote of LEWIS XIII King of France.

THERE was a grand maſquerade ball held at Paris in the reign of the above weak monarch, who notwithſtanding his dreſs was diſcovered by two young gentlemen, walking in the ball room with his arm round the waiſt of one of his miſtreſſes. The gentlemen ſoon came cloſe up to his majeſty, when one of them complained of the heat of the room, and made a motion to adjourn to the King's Arms. (No replied he) that will not do, the King's Arms is full; but if you think proper we will retire to the King's Head, for that is quite EMPTY.

The INTREPID PATRIOT

Dulce eſt pro patria mori. HOR.

What pity is it a man can die but once to ſave his Country! Addiſon.

WHEN the Emperor Veſpaſian laid his peremptory commands on a particular Senator to give his voice againſt the intereſt of his country, and threatened him with immediate death in caſe he ſpoke the leaſt word in favour of the other party, the intrepid patriot, conſcious that the attempt to ſave the people of Rome from utter ruin was, thro' his prevailing influence, in his power, though the event was ever ſo uncertain, anſwered, with a ſmile, "Did I ever tell you I was immortal? My virtue is in my own diſpoſal; my life at yours Do what you will, I ſhall do what I ought; and if I fall in the ſervice of my country, I ſhall have more triumph in my death, then you in all your laurels."

To the Printer of the Public Advertiſer.

SIR, London, Oct. 21.

SEll out, before the foreign creditors take the alarm, is the advice that I a poor, and I fear unfortunate, Stockholder meet with in all companies: But how can I ſell out, if no one will buy in; and that ſeems to be the caſe at preſent. I was in hopes what we ſhould be told the 8th of November would have revived public credit a little; but the ſtate of the nations has blaſted all my expections from that quarter. We may be told that there have been given the ſtrongeſt aſſurance of a diſpoſition to keep the peace: But alas! what will Bourbon aſſurances avail, when they muſt ſee the preſent is the fitteſt occaſion they can hope for to fall upon us.—Fifteen or 1,600,000 l. of the ſinking fund taken away in time of peace from the public creditors, and applied to the ordinary ſervice, and only poor 5 or 600,000 left to pay off the aſtoniſhing debt of 141 millions; nay, not a ſingle guinea can be paid off next year, it ſeems, unleſs borrowing with one hand, and paying with the other, may be called paying off; for after taking 15 or 1600,000l. to make good the deficiences of laſt year, which will juſt take up the whole of the ſinking fund; then there is 600,000 l. wanted for the civil liſt; but where it is to come from heaven knows.

In ſhort, whether we have peace or war, we muſt be undone I fear, & war will bring us ſooner to the criſis, and give us an excuſe for applying the only remedy our bleſſed M——rs have provided for us——a SPUNGE!

A ſeller out if he could.

L O M D O N, October 22.

Lately the following extraordinary affair happened at Cork, in Ireland:—A livery ſervant applied to his maſter for his wages, and repeated it for ſome time; the maſter always refuſed paying him, till at laſt the ſervant, reſolving not to be put off, loaded his piſtol; and aſked his maſter for the money; the maſter again refuſig, he produced his piſtol; on which the key, of a bureau was delivered him, and from the drawer he took his wages to a farthing, delivered the key, and quitted the houſe. The maſter took him up for a robbery, and the ſervant was ſentenced to be hanged. While the execution was performing the mob cut him down, and he made his eſcape; ſoon after which, information was made that he was ſecreted in a certain houſe, and accordingly was found, and on being brought to the bar, and the identity of his perſon proved, was executed. The mob again roſe, ſeized the informer, diſmembered him, and nailed him to the priſon door.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman, on a journey of pleaſure through the North of England.

"On the whole, I obſerved with great ſatisfaction many remarkable improvements in Lancaſhire: Poor fiſhing towns become the ſeats of extenſive commerce, and their fiſhing-boats converted into ſtately merchant ſhips, traverſing moſt parts of the globe, and bringing wealth from every quarter. Inſtead of thatched houſes and deſpicable cottages, ſuperb edifices the magnificent ſeats of opulence & grandeur, the happy effects of liberty and commerce, which I contemplated with no little elation; but this was greatly diminiſhed, on my viewing their caſtle at Lancaſter, where I met with the following object; namely, an antient woman in her 89th year, who has been a priſoner there near 18 years. I wondered what inexorable creditor, or heinous crime, had occaſioned ſo long an impiſonement, and found this to be the caſe: The poor woman apprehended ſhe had an undoubted right to a certain ſeat in the church of St. Peter's in Liverpool; in endeavouring to maintain her right, ſhe occaſioned ſome trouble to her antagoniſt, who got her into the Biſhop's Court, by which ſhe was excommunicated with the greater excommunication, and in conſequence was attached by a writ from the ſheriff, and committed to this caſtle, in Dec. 1750, and had contined there ever ſince upon the county allowance of 1ſ per week: She hath been ſome time aſſiſted by private charity, very inſufficient for reaſonable ſupport. She was clean, though in rags, & had in her countenance the traces of better days. Judge of her ſituation, enfeebled with old age emmatiated with cloſe impriſonment, deſtitute of every relief, oppreſſed with every want! I found all the pleaſing ideas of liberty and opulence ſo contracted by this poor woman's caſe, as to work the former out of my mind, and cloſe my journey with a painful reflection, that in this land of liberty diſtinguiſhed above all others, there ſhould remain a court ſo near a-kin to the inquiſition, diſgraceful to chriſtianity, and repugnant to every feeling of the human mind."

IT is obſerved, that in Maſquerades all perſons aſſume the characters that are moſt natural to their real diſpoſitions, and it was very univerſally allowed, that this obſervation was ſtrongly illuſtrated in G—r—l C—n—'s appering as an Old Woman on monday night at the Maſquerade; as he has very conſpiciouſly ſhewn, both in Maſquerade and in public office, that his genuine character is that of an Old Woman.

Dec. 14. The Bey of Tunis has ordered his Corſairs to reſpect the Corſican flag, but to attack all the veſſels of that nation, which ſhall bear French colours.

On Monday laſt Earl Temple dined with the Earl of Chatham at Hayes.

'Tis reported with confidence at the weſt end of the town, that no leſs than four American Governors will be ordered home, in order that the miniſtry may have certain demonſtration of the real diſpoſitions of our refractory coloniſts.

According to the laws of population the white inhabitants in our colonies will in a century more, be increaſed to twenty-two millions and a half.

The following, we are informed, is the hiſtory of Lord Chatham's reſignation:—L—d S——e had given inſtructions to L—d R——d, at Paris, to make ſtrong repreſentations concerning Corſica, which were diſavowed by the other Miniſters here, upon the French Ambaſſador's application; this occaſioned L—d R——d to come over! L—d S——e frequently applied to Lord Chatham for ſupport, but could not get audience, till lately, when he carried a memorial from the King of Sardinia, complaining of the Britiſh Miniſtry, in ſuffering one branch of the Houſe of Bourbon to get Corſica, and another to ſeize the Pope's territories, and ſo make themſelves maſters of Italy. Upon Lord Chatham being told that nothing would be done by England he wrote a letter of reſignation.

It is ſaid that the principal freeholders of the adjoining counties to London, intend to inſtruct their repreſentatives to promote an enquiry into the late outrageous violence on the freedom of election in the firſt county in England; and it is expected that Briſtol, Exter, and other great cities of the kingdom will follow their example.

A report prevailed this morning that Great-Britain has been applied to by a certain power on the continent, to intereſt itſelf in the preſent quarrel with the Turks.

We are aſſured, that ſome late public commotions and diſturbances were on Sunday the ſubject of long deliberations in a certain great aſſembly; the farther conſideration of which was poſtponed until their next meeting.

At the finiſhing the examination of the ſtate of the poll-books laſt night at the Crown and Anchor tavern in the ſtrand, it appeared there was a majority of 147 for Mr. Serjeant GLYNN. There was a difference of ſeven votes between the ſheriffs and Cheque-books, which the Serjeant generouſly gave up.

Meſs'rs GREEN and WATSON,

I obſerved in your courant February 20th, an account of the unfortunate death of a lad at Windſor, in the County of Cumberland, ſaid to be by the hands of one Mr. Strong his maſter: together with circumſtances of it, and virdict of the coroners Inqueſt; which account is very far in many reſpects from giving a knowledge of the true ſtate of the affair, and Injurious to the character of the ſaid maſter. In order that the public may be undeceived, and the Injured character of the ſaid Strong ſet right, you are deſired to inſert the following narrative of the affair, as related by two gentlemen of undoubted viracity, belonging to ſaid Windſor, and one of them a member of the coroners Inqueſt.

The relation is this.

THAT the maſter was teaching the child his A. B. C; on pointing him to the letter Z, the lad refuſed to name it tho' much emportuned, which refuſal was (by ſufficient evidence) proved to be willful and againſt knowledge; whereupon a courſe of diſcipline enſued, and the ſaid Strong for that purpoſe got ſeveral twigs none of them exceeding the ſtale of a pipe in bulk at the biggeſt end, not 13 Inches in length, with which he corrected the child, and never uſed but one at a time, except a few ſwitches on his breech, when he uſed two; after ſome conſiderable correction the lad promiſed to name the letter on this condition, (viz.) that he never afterward ſhould be required to do the ſame, and on every other condition entirely refuſed, even 'till the maſter diſcouraged and yeilded up the point, and gave up the cauſe. The lad continued without the leaſt complaint or appearance of Illneſs, for the ſpace of about 2 hours; at the end of which he was ſeized with an Ague, his maſter made application of Camphire and Rum to his back and ſent for a phyſician, who on examining the child, found no ſkin broke on his body, altho' ſome ſtripes appeared, yet no blood iſſued from them, nor the leaſt ſymptom of mortality appeared in them. The phyſician with others then there, after this examination turned to the fire; but had not been there long before an Unuſual noiſe was heard; and behold! 'twas the laſt expiring breath of the child, it being about 3 hours after the end of the correction. The child was opened, but no internal bruiſes or hurt appeared. This narrative may be depened upon as matter of fact.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

A Speech made to the Free[illegible]—b—y
[Conclud[illegible]

FARTHER I am of [illegible] that thoſe acts are founded on principles not agreeable to ſtrict juſtice and truth, the principles I take to be this namely, that different parliaments eſtabliſhed by charter, under the ſame ſovereign have ſuperiority and ſubordination, in ſuch wiſe that ſome are at the controul of others, where there is no clauſe in ſuch charters judicating ſuch ſuperiority, and ſubordination; now that the general aſſemblies of the reſpective provinces are, and have all the authorities of parliaments in and over ſuch provinces in the ſame manner and to all the intents and purpoſes as the parliaments of Great Britain has authority in and over the united kingdoms of England and Scotland, without any indication either in the great charter of thoſe kingdoms or the charters of the provinces of any ſuch ſuperiority or ſubordination, or any other relation that they ſtand in to each other but that of a perfect equality, under one and the ſame ſovereign, I think muſt be granted, which being allowed to be true the reader may draw the conſequence.

But if any ſhould think that the ſovereignty of the Britiſh parliament over thoſe of the provinces, may ariſe from his Majeſty in perſon being at the head of the former, when thoſe of the latter have only his repreſentative, I would only ſay by way of reply, that there is one thing which I fear, and another which I hope. That of my fear is that by the parliament of Great Britain, challenging a ſovereignty over the colonies, his Majeſty will be deprived of his juſt ſovereignty, and the colonies of their juſt liberties, but that of my hope is that the day is approaching that ſome of the American parliaments may have our common and rightful ſovereignty if any ſuch there is lodged in an American parliament.—But this is a digreſſion.]

And now if it be aſked what is moſt proper for the colonies to do under ſuch circumſtances? in anſwer, I would not be underſtood to ſet myſelf up as a dictator, but as a true lover of my King and country, and one that would to the utmoſt of my ability, do and ſuffer for the juſt rights of both would willingly expoſe my character, in giving my ſentiments with reſpect to the above queſtion,

[1ſt I ſay, that inaſmuch as it is a doctrine generally received that public calamities, are ſent by God by way of puniſhment for public ſins, and as the above mentioned grievances are looked upon as ſuch calamities ſent by GOD on theſe colonies, that therefore theſe colonies unite as much as may be in public humiliation repentance and reformation & alſo in unitedly offering up the moſt devout and fervent petitions to the King, in whoſe hand is the hearts of Kings that the heart of our rightful ſovereign may be influenced to ſupport his juſt prerogative & favourably to hear the united application of his loyal but diſtreſſed American ſubjects; as alſo that the hearts of the members of the Britiſh parliament, may be influenced to adhere to the national eſtabliſhed conſtitution, ſo as not to incroach on the royal prerogative on the one hand, nor the rights and liberties of his Majeſty's loyal ſubjects on the other.]

2d That the colonies ſupport the greateſt unanimity among themſelves in perſiſting to make all proper and conſtitutional applications, remonſtrances petitions, &c. to proper perſons for obtaining repeals of ſuch acts: and with reſpect to thoſe provinces which are deprived of authority to join in ſuch petitions, &c. That they be properly remembred by thoſe who are not as yet deprived as knowing that when one member ſuffers the whole body ſuffers in a greater or leſſer degree.

3d That they as much as may be, unite in making all ſuch laws agreeable to conſtitution as may encourage and promote manufactories among themſelves that may leſſen their dependance on the trade with the mother country, and more eſpecially for the manufacturing thoſe articles on which the duties are required by ſuch acts.

4th that they by all ways and means proper encourage œconomy, frugality, and induſtry, whereby America naturally becomes more and more independant on the mother country.

5th That they unite as much as may be, in vindication of their juſt rights, liberties, & free cuſtoms that appear to be curtailed or taken away by ſuch acts, provided redreſs cannot be otherwiſe obtained and as liege American ſubjects to the crown of Great Britain, prove our right to the richeſt part of our inheritance left us by our Britiſh anceſtors, (viz. our liberties and free cuſtoms as Engliſhmen) who always when neceſſity required with reſolution vindicated their rights and liberties—one inſtance among the many which might be given is that of Sir Humphrey Bohun Earl of Hertford, and Eſſex, conſtable of England, and others with him. When King EDWARD the 1ſt being injured by the French King, reſolved to make war againſt him, and in order therefor, required the ſaid Bohun and others to contribute towards the expedition, that is to go in perſon or find ſufficient men in their place in his army, which they refuſed, unleſs it was ordered by parliament according to law, the conteſt grew ſo hot that when the Earl told the King that if his Majeſty pleaſed to go in perſon he would go with him and march before him in the van guard as by right of inheritance he ought to do; but otherwiſe he would not ſtir, the King told him plainly that he ſhould go with any other though he went in perſon, the Earl anſwered, I am not ſo bound neither will I take that journey without you, on which the King ſwore by GOD Sir Earl you ſhall either go or hang. The Earl anſwered I ſwear by the ſame oath I will neither go nor hang; and ſo the King was forced to diſpatch his expedition without them. And afterwards pardoned the ſaid Bohun and all others of his fellowſhip for that they ſtood in the defence of their laws, liberties, and free cuſtoms without inſerting in ſaid pardon the charge of any crime whatſoever.

[I find alſo that the French nation though long ſubjected to a great degree of arbitrary power, are not intirely loſt to ſuch principles of liberty—Madam de Gomez in her Lis Bella Aſſemblee, dedicated to the French King, Vol. 4. page [illegible] has the following remarkable paſſage, viz. "All men were born free but as the paſſions too much indulged, would deſtroy all the ſocial virtues, it was neceſſary they ſhould be under the reſtriction of laws, and that the fear of puniſhment might deter thoſe whom the love of goodneſs would not allure: for the execution of laws there muſt be Magiſtrates and officers, and leaſt there might be corruption in them alſo, there was one ſet over them with the awful title of vicegerent of GOD, to the end his commands might be obſerved with a greater reverence, and his perſon inſpire the more awe, this was the firſt inſtitution of Kings: they were made ſo, not ſo much for the good of themſelves & their families as for the good of the community in general; and I therefore think thoſe nations moſt happy, whoſe monarchs are bound by certain laws; which if they infringe the ſubjects are abſolved from all Allegiance."]

Thus I have gone thro' with what I intended and ſhall conclude with making a motion that our repreſentives be inſtructed to make the foregoing ſentiments the general rule of their conduct in the enſuing aſſembly.

NEW-YORK, March 2.

On Tueſday arrived the Ship Hope, Captain Berrian, in 8 Weeks from New Caſtle.—English papers to the 24th December, give us the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, Dec. 3.

IT was rumoured this morning, that moſt of the M———ry are of opinion, that the people of America ſhould be obliged to ſubmit to the authority of the mother country; that G[illegible] ſhould by no means embroil her[illegible]ing Corſica: that no meaſures [illegible], or any influence uſed to preve[illegible] gentleman taking his Seat.

On Thurſday, [illegible] of Dec. 1768 the day appointed for the Middleſex election, the candidates appeared on the Huſting, at half an hour after eight; the Sheriffs came at ten minutes before nine. Notwithſtanding this the opening of the poll was delayed till near eleven.

One of the narrow avenues, leading to Brentford Butts was occupied very early by a hired mob, with bludgeons, bearing favours in their hats, inſcribed, "Proctor and liberty."—A much larger, but very compact body, armed as the former, and with the like directions, were planted near the Huſtings, on an eminence, and in a diſpoſition which was evidently the arrangement of an experienced ſerjeant. The reſt of the banditti, were ſtationed in different quarters of the town, to ſtrike a general terror into the honeſt part of the freeholders; there was beſides a corps de reſerve which was to ſally forth on a ſignal given.

When theſe diſpoſitions were ſecured, a choſen party of Butchers, in the ſame intereſt, traverſed the town, and inſulted the Huſtings with marrow bones and cleavers.

When Sir William Beauchamp Proctor's numbers were nearly exhauſted, and the cloſe of the poll declared deciſively for Mr. Serjeant Glynn (who had ſtill great multitude, unpoll'd) the ſignal was given. An inſtantaneous and furious, but regular attack, was [illegible]

[illegible] the ſheriffs, the clerks of the poll books, all vaniſhed in a moment.—The whole town was preſently a ſcene of blood. It was not enough to knock down an unhappy man; the blow was followed till he was utterly diſabled. Thoſe who have been expoſed to riots declare they never ſaw ſuch cruelty. All doors and windows were barricadoed. There was no ſhelter, nothing was ſafe. Nor can any thing equal the univerſal conſternation of the frightened people but the abhorrence and execration with which every tongue repeats the name of———.

It appears from every account of the proceedings on Thurſday laſt at Brentford, that the people, who began the riot there, were the friends of the court candidate; and in particular it is affirmed, that when the Iriſh chairmen, and the profeſſed bruiſers at their head, had proceeded ſo far in their cruel and villanous intention of murdering and wounding the people, that the gentlemen upon the Huſtings were in danger of their lives; one gentleman went up to the court candidate, and expoſtulated with him upon the baſe conduct of his mob. My mob! ſaid the Courtier: Yes, Sir, ſaid the gentleman, your mob! and added, Sir, I inſiſt upon your ſpeaking to thoſe fellows who are knocking down the people there. But the courtier refuſed to ſay any thing to appeaſe their fury; upon which the gentleman who had ſpoke to him, finding himſelf in danger of his life, ſeized him by the great coat, and ſhewed his ſtar to the armed ruffians, who inſtantly took of their hats and huzza'd him, while the ruffians were thus huzzaing, the gentleman eſcaped.

LONDON,

Dec. 8. Letters from the confines of Poland adviſe, the Ruſſians are forming an army of ſixty thouſand men near Kiovia, to oppoſe the Turks, whoſe motions threaten ſomething on that ſide.

Letter from the Banks of the Danube, November 15.

"I this moment learn, that the Turks, joined to the confederates of Bar, have entered Poland. The diſtreſs of that unhappy kingdom is beyond expreſſion. The Deſſidents are no longer in ſafety. The Confederates will avail themſelves the more of the ſupport of the Turks, as the Co[illegible] Banicki, Regimentary of the Crow[illegible]red with his troops towards Leop[illegible]ſſians have left a corps near W[illegible]ver the royal reſidence, and are [illegible]rm an army of all their other troop[illegible] a few detachments deſtined to give chace to the confederates.

"The confederates of Bar, have juſt publiſhed a new Manifeſto, wherein they declare the election of the King illegal, and have thereby put the finiſhing ſtroke to their ingratitude towards a Prince, whoſe virtues are not only acknowledged by all the world but who has at the ſame time endeavoured to revive by ſalutary inſtructions, thoſe happy times when Poland, without the aſſiſtance of foreign forces, knew to give law to all thoſe who dared to provoke her."

Letters from Poland mention, that the wife and children of the Prince of Maldavia, and thoſe of moſt of the principle men of the country, have been ſent off as hoſtages to Conſtantinople.

It was yeſterday reported, that the court of Portugal had made ſome extraordinary conceſſions to Mr. Lyttleton, in favour of our commerce, the particulars of which are ſaid to be tranſmitted home by the laſt mail.

It is ſaid, that the King of Denmark and the States of Holland are upon treaty for the redemption of the Chriſtian ſlaves in Africa; in which, it is ſaid, our court has alſo promiſed to concur and to cauſe the ſame to be carried into execution early in the ſpring.

They had an earthquake at Conſtantinople on the 5th of October laſt, and another ſhock was felt there on the 12th of the ſame month.

It is now ſaid, that the cauſe of a certain patriotic Earl's viſit to his noble brother in law, was not political, but entirely domeſtic; and that it was on account of a new deed of ſettlement in favour of LadyC———, if this is the caſe, all the political conjectures occaſioned by the viſit, fall to the ground.

Dec. 10. They write from Leghorn of the 10th of November, that two of the Senators in the late diſpute about the treaty concluded with France relative to Corſica, fought, and one of them was mortally wounded.—The people in general are diſcontented on account of the war now carrying on againſt Corſica.

His Pruſſian Majeſty, ever zealous in the cauſe of liberty o[illegible]ſcience, 'tis reported, is forming a reſpecta[illegible] army againſt the approaching ſpring, to be [illegible] aſſiſt the Ruſſians in defence of the D[illegible] of Poland againſt the Turks, from wh[illegible] 'tis conjectured the Sublime Porte will have more than one if not three or four enemies to oppoſe his deſign on the nothern parts of Europe.

Yeſterday was wrote, in capitals, on moſt of the walls at Brentford, No P-------! No murderer!

Thurſday night as a Linnen-Draper at Hammer-ſmith was ſtanding at his door, with his children, to ſee the company return from Brentford, the mob of Iriſh chairmen came by & attacked him with their ſticks, beat out his brains, and he fell over the children, dead, in his own ſhop.

LONDON,

Dec. 1. By letters from Breſt we have advice, that the court had given orders for ſome new fortifications to be forthwith erected on the Iſlands of Rhee, Oleron, and Belleiſle.

Some letters from Genoa mention, that it was currently reported, that General Paoli had been offered ſome advantageous terms of peace on the part of France; one article of which is, that the Corſicans ſhall be acknowledged an independant nation by his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty.

They write from Toulon, that ſhould General Paoli accept the propoſitions of peace lately offered, ſeveral ſhips of war will be immediately put on the ſtocks at Baſtia, &c. for the uſe of France.

Dec. 2. The Earl of C-----m has ſtrongly declared his diſapprobation of any intended meaſure to expel Mr. W----s.

It is ſaid a diſcovery is made of a deficiency of a great number of thouſands of pounds; for which a late principal is likely to be brought to an account.

Dec. 3. The reconciliation which has lately taken place between the Earl of Chatham, and his noble brother Earl Temple, is ſaid to be chiefly owing to the mediation of, and great pains taken by, a certain Kentiſh commoner, not leſs remarkable for his good ſenſe, than his ſincere attachment to both theſe noble perſons. The Right Hon. George Grenville was heartily acceeded to the above union.

It was rumoured this morning that moſt of the M-----ry are of opinion, that the people of America ſhould be obliged to ſubmit to the authority of the Mother Country: that Great-Britain ſhould by no means embroil herſelf by aſſiſting Corſica, that no meaſures ſhould be taken or any influence uſed to prevent a certain gentleman taking his ſeat.

[illegible] write from Florence, that th[illegible] of the earthquake, w[illegible]t lately at Senta Soſia, on the frontiers of the Eccleſiaſtical ſtate, happened about 11 o'Clock in the evening, and was ſo violent as to throw down ſeveral of the weaker houſes, eſpecially in the country around. The inhabitants, who were all a bed being waked by it fled toward the fields; but in the flight a ſecond ſhock, more terrible than the firſt, happened, by which the ſtrongeſt buildings were overturned, a number of perſons buried under the ruins, and the great bridge which ſeperates Santa Soſia from the eccleſiaſtical ſtate, & coſt that community upwards of 30,000 crowns, ſplit thro' the middle from one end to the other.

Dec. 6. They write from New-York, that a ſurprizing progreſs continues to be made, both there and in New-England, in the eſtabliſhment of manufactures, by means of experienced Artificers from Great-Britain and Ireland.

The following is now a frequent toaſt among the genuine ſons of liberty, viz. the glorious three; Mr. Bourke as the greateſt orator on behalf of liberty, in the houſe; and Mr. Wilkes as the greateſt patriot out of the houſe; and Mr. Serjeant Glynn, as the honeſt lawyer.

Some letters from Leghorn mention, that General Paoli had actually informed his countrymen, that his expectations of aſſiſtance from Great-Britain, were entirely at an end; and it was thought that this diſappointment has been the principal means of inducing that chief to liſten to the late propoſitions of France.

We hear that a motion will be made at the next Court of Common Council, that a congratulatory letter of thanks from the corporation, be ſent to the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex, for their noble and ſpirited conduct in electing Mr. Serjeant Glynn.

Some letters from Poland adviſe, that the Grand Signior has publiſhed a Manifeſto, declaring null and void all the acts of the Diets of Poland, which have been held ſince the election of the reigning King.

Dec. 12. Letters from Leghorn, dated Nov. 14 mention, that two Engineers in the ſervice of France, under pretence of being French deſerters, lately got into Iſola Roſſa, in Corſica, and after having been there a few days, obtained an interview with the Commandant, to whom they declared their real character, and offered a 1000 ouidores to deliver up the fortreſs to the French troops at a certain time, which he agreed to do: but Paoli having ſome intelligence of this plot, ſuddenly arrived at the head of 700 men and cauſed the Commandant of Iſola Roſſa to be arreſted, with the two Engineers, and ſome other perſons.

Dec 13 By letters from the frontiers of Turkey, dated Nov. 29, we learn, that the changes which lately happened in the Ottoman Miniſtry, did not in the leaſt interrupt their warlike preparations, they have an army of 40,000 men between Bender and Choczim and a train of artillery conſiſting of 300 pieces of cannon. Kerim Chirai, the new Kan of the Tartars, has made his entry into Conſtantinople and has had a conference with the Grand Signior. It appears that there has been a deſign to deliver up the city of Kaminiec to the Turks, the fortifications of which place are in a very good ſtate of defence becauſe a new train of artillery has lately errived there from Warſaw, and the Ruſſians alſo cover it on one ſide, and Gen. Braniki is encamped in the neighbourhood.

Yeſterday his Royal Highneſs Prince William Henry, the Princeſs Royal, and Prince Erneſt Gotrob-Albert, her Majeſty's eldeſt brother, were inoculated by Pennel and Cæſar Hawkins, Eſqrs.

Dec. 14. According to recent letters from Leghorn, General Paoli had declared to the Chiefs of Corſica, that no dependance was to be placed on the profeſſions of France, who with one hand held out amicable treaties, and with the other encouraged private treaſons and aſſaſſinations.

They write from Dantzick, that immenſe quantities of ordnance ſtores are now tranſporting from that city, by land and water carriage, for the uſe of the Ruſſian armies.

A letter from James Fort, River Gambia, dated Auguſt 28, mentions that the people of the kingdom of Barrack had, a little time before the above date, taken an Engliſh ſchooner, Capt. Marſhall, well manned and armed, with conſiderable property on board, and murdered all the people, except two who eſcaped by ſwimming. They have alſo taken two ſchooners and their cargoes belonging to Captain Evans, and two boats, laden with goods, belonging to Captain Hodgſon.

It is ſaid that the principal Freeholders of the adjoining counties to London, intend to inſtruct their Repreſentatives to promote an enquiry into the late outrageous violence on the Freedom of Election in the firſt county, in England; and it is expected that Briſtol, Exeter, and other great Cities of the Kingdom will follow their Example.

Dec. 15. All the troops in Sileſia, being the beſt regiments in the King of Pruſſia's ſervice, are in full march to join the Ruſſians.

Some time ago the Grand Signior ordered all his ſubjects to give up the arms they were poſſeſſed of, in order to be publickly ſold; in conſequence of which, great quantities of theſe arms have been bro't to the market but they were for the moſt part in very bad condition. We learn upon this occaſion that the Greeks, who inhabited ſome iſlands in the Archipelago, refuſe to comply with this order, alledging that they want their arms for their own defence.

BOSTON, March 9.

A gentleman at Marblehead writes his friend in Boſton as follows——" By the packet I received a letter from my friend in London, dated 10th of December, as alſo one from the maſter of my ſhip, who had diſcharged his freight there, adviſing me that no freight from Boſton, nor did they expect any, there being no orders on hand for ſhipping any goods, ſo expect my own hemp and duck, for the uſe of the fiſhery only, and 50 chaldrons ſea-coal for ballaſt. They lay all trade is at a ſtand, and no proſpect of mending, what they are to do with the ſhips at home they know not. It now looks as though the Boſton gentlemen were in earneſt.

By advices received per the Lord Hyde Packet we learn That the friends of America frequently meet to conſult the propereſt meaſures for the relief of the colonies; that ſome of the miniſtry had declared they were againſt ſevere meaſures. That as the petition of the committee of convention in Boſton was not received by the Secretary of State, it was delivered in with the other American papers to the committee, who were aranging all the papers to lay before the parliament. That there were ſome in both houſes who were advocates for the colonies. That it was thought by ſome the acts would not be repealed. That our friends thought the people here acted very prudently in their agreeing not to uſe any tea, and in going into other meaſures of œconomy, and promoting manufactures; and adviſe to a ſteady and perſevering purſuit to theſe meaſures as the only means to convince the miniſtry of the impolicy of the ſaid acts.

A letter from London ſays, "American Affairs engage the attention of the Public here, and truly are in a critical ſituation. The late reſolution of ſeveral of the Colonies not to import any Britiſh Manufactues, &c.——make great impreſſions on the minds of People here, and perplex the Miniſtry, ſo that they are at a loſs how to act——for as the Stamp act was calculated to execute itſelf,—ſo the late one of taxation, muſt drop by the colonies not purchaſing the articles taxed, a better way could not have been fallen upon, in the preſent juncture, to ſerve the Liberties of America.—I hope the different provinces will lay aſide their little party affairs, firmly unite, and ſtand to their reſolutions."

The ſame letters inform us, that it is more than probable, that the Earl of Chatham and George Grenville Eſq: will be appointed Secretaries of State before the end of the holidays. As all the different branches of the Grenville family, are now firmly united.—That if this arangement ſhould take place, it is not doubted, but a war will ſoon enſue; which will give great ſatisfaction to a noble Earl, as he will then moſt certainly, SOLELY guide the reins of government.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in New-York, dated Dec 7.

"I was in the Houſe of Commons, at the opening of this ſeſſion.—The Miniſtry went largely into American affairs. In that day's debate, they ſhew'd a firm reſolution to enforce, without entering into the matter of right, which appears to me a diſputable point. I think if the King's Miniſters inſiſts upon the obedience of America, and the Parliament concur in the Meaſures, that it will be the intereſt of America, to ſubmit; ſuch a ſubmiſſion, I am perſuaded, will gain 'em great advantages and indulgencies in other reſpects."

Monday the 17th ult. the Poſt Rider with the mails for Rhode Iſland, New-London, N. York, Philadelphia, &c. &c. was aſſaulted on Boſton Neck juſt after Sun ſet, as he was ſetting out for his journey, by 4 or 5 Perſons who appeared dreſs'd as officers, one of them took his ſword from his belt, and with the ſmall end in his hands ſtruck the Rider on the head with the Hilt, with ſuch violence that it forced the ſword out of the Scabbard and went to a conſiderable Diſtance! The Rider recovering himſelf, inform'd them that he was on his Majeſty's Service, whereupon they all ran off. The Rider would have returned to town, but as there had been ſtoppages lately, occaſioned by the bad travelling, he was determined not to be the means of the mails returning out of ſeaſon, he went on, and at the firſt ſtage had his head bathed which was conſiderably ſwelled by the blow; he reached Newport on Wedneſday, from whence he employed another perſon to perform for him the laſt week.

An Account of a money Eater.

This week a tranſient fellow, an Iriſhman, ſtole from a man in this Town out of the pocket of a coat that hung up in one of the rooms of his dwelling houſe, when the family were all gone from the houſe. The man on his return home, miſſed a Johannes, four half Johannes, and two half piſtereens.——He ſuſpected this Iriſhman, who was at the Barn with a countryman of his, and charged him with the fact: he deny'd it abſolutely, and ſwore he [illegible] got the money. The man that loſt th[illegible] charged him with it ſo ſtrongly, th[illegible] he confeſſed he had got it. The ma[illegible] what he had done with it? the fello[illegible] him he had ſwallowed it—the man told him he lyed—the fellow ſaid he did not, it was true, and ſaid the whole Jo ſtuck by the way, and he could feel it—and ſaid if he had a portion of phyſick, it would fetch it up.—Accordingly a puke was adminiſtred—ſoon after he vomited up the Jo—but the half Joes did not come up—He then ſaid he muſt have ſome phyſick to work down—the next morning a Dr. was ſent for, and gave a cathartick which wro't well and he evacuated three half Joes and the two half piſtareens, the fourth half Jo (if ſwallowed) was not evacuated, when the fellow made his eſcape.

"On life's [illegible] vaſt Ocean diverſely we ſail,
"Reaſon [illegible] the Helm, but paſſions blow the gale."

THE moſt critical ſpectators of the oddeſt ſpecies of mortals have frequently noticed the female party obviouſly excellent in the activity of the imagination, ſprightlineſs of genius, and readin[illegible]ſs of wit, as well as eminent for a more ſa[illegible]pcious judgment, tenacious modeſty, tender aff[illegible]ction and frank ſincerity. Yet it ſeems they alſo have a notable capacity of becoming all [illegible]hings to all men, by various improvements, and artificial modifications, according to the [illegible] biaſs the mind receives to good or evil, by the [illegible] powerful impulſe of early education, and i[illegible]reſiſtable impreſſions of prevalent faſhions, o[illegible] contagious examples in ſuperior acquaintan[illegible]s, or conſtant companions, ſeaſonably confr[illegible]uting, or cultivating "The maſter, paſſion in [illegible] the breaſt." In the foggy morning of a prob[illegible]ationary exiſtence, that important and delica[illegible]te ſtage of life, when want of experience of th[illegible] world, and better acquaintance with m[illegible] and things therein, renders the adventurers [illegible] (however prone to plume themſelves upon th[illegible]is conceited ſelf-ſufficiency) unequal almoſt [illegible] to any purpoſe, except that of blindly follow[illegible]ing the deluſive, infatuating dictates of depra[illegible]ved human nature, and ſtoring an inexhauſtib[illegible] magazine of ſubſtantial materials for bitte[illegible] reflections, penitence and tears, in advancing [illegible]ages; even in ſuch as have the good luck to [illegible] eſcape plunging headlong and hoodwink'd a [illegible] feeble, welcome prey into the voracious, inſa[illegible]iable jaws of a cenſorious, unforgiving wo[illegible]ld. For what other than habitual, vitiated t[illegible]ſte, and innate propenſity to error and folly[illegible], may furniſh a probable cauſe why ſo m[illegible]ny of the foremoſt rank of creatures, nay [illegible] all the human race more or leſs ſenſibly e[illegible]ngaged in the ſame common intereſt, in eager [illegible] purſuit of triumph and happineſs, ſhould ſo f[illegible]requently ſo egregiouſly miſtake both the m[illegible]eans and the end? But yet amidſt the apparen[illegible] diſorders in time and ſenſe, and inevitable c[illegible]ures or obnoxious foibles of a diſtracting, di[illegible]ſtracted mortality, whilſt 'tis matter of chief c[illegible]onſolation, that unerring wiſdom ſits at helm, [illegible]'tis alſo a pleaſing conſideration that there natu[illegible]rally ſubſiſts a general ſtrife, and generous em[illegible]ulation with different ſexes to vie and excel [illegible] in their devoirs and pretty artifices to comm[illegible]end themſelves to each other, purſuant the ſoci[illegible]able, ſympathetic principle, implanted (by the [illegible] author of their exiſtence) in our great-grand [illegible]arents, in innocency and [illegible] with that grateful injunction [illegible] in the earlieſt age of time, whi[illegible] common in inſtinct with all animals,

' That in each living creature you may ſee,
' Conſpicuous effects of their decree;
' All love themſelves, & not themſelves alone,
' Each ſex deſires alike, till two are one.'

yet there is, among the number of poſſibles, ſuch an idea as of mutual refined love & celeſtial immortal friendſhip of which the reaſonable creation, and the married ſtate in particular, is happily ſuſceptable, and alſo capable of abundant proficiency and improvement between the ſexes in preſcribing and practicing artificial ingenious rules for making, maintaining and deſtroying it, both previous and ſubſequent to that important change, and, of cource, tenderly affecting imaginary happineſs below the ſtars.

' For when with choice we fix with ſympathy (we burn,
' Each virtue in each paſſion takes its proper (turn
' 'Till married—reaſon ſtill the welcome ties (improves
' Thro' life [illegible] and (the [illegible]
' But virtue only [illegible] to want a [illegible] (fire,
' Whilſt modeſty ſupports or fans the veſtal fire,
' Tis FRIENDSHIP, friendſhip forms the pureſt (bliſs above,
' And hell it ſelf to live an enemy to love.
' Is virtue then the roſe—the paſſions are the (briars,
' The virgin not the jilt complacency inſpires.'

And though it muſt be granted, the men, in this degenerate æra, have ſome little ſuppoſed advantages over their counter parts (and which they are not always averſe to improve) in point of curſory acquaintance and rambling curioſities "as cuſtom leads the way" where the guile of the ſerpent in a tranſient flaſh ſimiliates the gentleneſs of the dove, yet to mortify their haughty obſtinacy, the fair priſoners have not been left deſtitute of means and diſpoſition to conquer the miſtaken fortitude and humble the unnatural pride of eminent heroes and ſworn advocates for their favorite native liberty.—But yet on the dark ſide the houſe how many, how various, elaborate, falſe, imprudent and therefore unſucceſsful ſteps are taken to accompliſh the deſign? whilſt ſooner or later (happy if it be not too late) we are convinced—if the niceſt ſcruples of rigid virtue and extreme coy affectaion of ſhuddering at mere civilities is provoking on the prudiſh ſide, yet 'tis a right-hand error or the leaſt of two ſuperfluous evils, for ſurely chambering & wantoneſs or exceſſive eaſy fondneſs of extraordinary good-natur'd indulgence in the modiſh way of BUNDLING is nauſious coquetry on the other. There muſt be then a glorious mean betwixt the wild extremes, and ſhe may well hug herſelf and bleſs her propitious ſtars, who is happy enough to embrace it before criminal experiment, the reſult of lawleſs curioſity at an unguarded hour opens her eyes as it did thoſe of mother Eve to ſee herſelf diveſted not only of her INNOCENCE but alſo of her boaſted power to charm!

' Pity may mourn, but not reſtore
' For woman falls to riſe no more!'

Therefore rejoice in unfeigned and unfailing gratitude thou Phœnix of earth and favorite of heaven whoſe juvenile years roll'd away agreeably under immediate controul and direction of ſuch as thought proper to guard your underſtanding by precept, argument and example, againſt thoſe frantic experiments behind the unhallowed curtain "where thicker than arguments temptations throng" happily ignorant of the vice except in theory or hearſay, being early taught to revere that ſacred edict which enjoins cautious abſtinence from all appearance of evil as a moral obligation indiſpenſible in chriſtianity and a political maxim beniſicial in ethicks——but bluſh purity—be aſhamed delicacy, and wonder, O virgin modeſty! that (in her devout addreſs to him whoſe inflammatous eye keener than the lightnings flaſh, penetrates the darkeſt cloud, and brighter than ten thouſand ſuns pervades the thickeſt covering to notice every irregular emotion) ſhe can ſay, without a bluſh at the ſolemn mockery "lead me not into temptation" who voluntarily conducts and fondly accompanies her tranſient gallant unmarried, into her retired Bed Chamber! where "the dragon honor charm'd to reſt" having thus preſumptuouſly looſed the maiden girdle or thrown off her prudential circumſpection and baſhful reſerve, thoſe impregnable barriers to the progreſſive invaſions of ungenerous laſcivious deſigns, the remaing articles of capitulation become thereupon practicable and eaſy as 'tis only to ſurrender at diſcretion whilſt even

' the woman who HESITATES is loſt.'

' For what one likes if others like as well
What ſerves one [illegible] when many wills rebell?
How ſhall ſhe keep what, ſleeping or awake,
A weaker may ſurpriſe, a ſtronger take,
Vice is a monſter of ſo frightful mein,
As to be hated, need but to be ſeen,
Yet ſeen too oft, familiar with her face,
We firſt endure, then pity, then embrace.

Queſtionleſs many have gone to bed in couples over night overflowing with ſanguine reſolutions of perſevering virtue and irrefragable modeſty, who roſe next morning with conſcious bluſhes and guilty horrors in exchange, with the cruel addition of deteſting themſelves and each other for their irretrievable tameneſs. But an unguarded hour & the leaſt encroachment upon the frontiers of virgin modeſt have been the everlaſting deprecation of the honeſt and virtuous few who have religiouſly obſerved the diſtinction to their peculiar honor and joy—what then ſhall even charity herſelf inſer from thus reconnoitring in profile to the very centre of her ſacred rendezvouz for a whole night? inveſtigating her ne plus ultra without mittens between the unſanctified ſheets! But if the conſcience is too lethargic to hold up to view the indiſpenſable duty of ſelf denial and decorum to good effect—if real virtue has no attractive charms, and if arguments and motives drawn from that quarter (wanting the ſanction of oracular faſhion or conformity to more ignoble than mere animal appetites) cary no conviction, force or influence, or if ſecrecy is deſigned as it ſeems from the world, yet methinks 'tis good po'icy in reſpect to obvious intereſt in the preſent ſtate of abſtract progreſſion, to be very cautious of expoſing to tame examination, even of familiar acquaintance. ſuch intrinſic commodities or trinkets in a toy ſhop as are valuable or inveſtigated only almoſt for being inacceſſable or rare—'tis innocent and expedient artifice to ſuſpect, ſuſpend, diſtinguiſh & diſavow thoſe fantaſtic loves, and pretended friendſhips which ſo often commence inſpiration with the appearance of a fair face and as naturally expire, even in pretence, with the welcome or eaſy enjoyment! fluctuating follies of mere paſſionate mimickry, deſerving no better names than capricious whimſical counterfeits or baſe born brats of love!

'Like bubbles on the ſea of fancy born
'They riſe to break and to that ſea return.'

unleſs refined, cultivated, improved, transformed and fixed by uncouth contradictions and inveterate obſtinacy, thoſe inſupportable tortures of anxious ſuſpenſe and vexatious anticipations of dreaded repulſe which ſo often prove the fineſt bait to decoy, engroſs tyranize an enterprizing genius, as naturally attach'd to difficult adventures and impatient of controul as fond of ſtolen waters, and covetous of forbidden fruit. for victory is the object—though the plunder may ſweeten even the extatic pleaſures of conqueſt and which is often valued rather in proportion to the price of purchaſe, than intrinſic worth of the acquiſition.

'Sublimiſt friendſhip, oft from paſſions ſhoot,
'Wild nature's vigor working at the root:

Are ſenſibly paying no great compliments to the virtue of either ſex by this extorted raillery, any riſque the reproach of uncharitableneſs and ingratitude ("abhorred by God and mortals.") for the ſeverity of the inſinuations—but (enough to eclipſe the fancid gaiety of each ſex, and conceited dignity of every claſs of human kind, with bluſhing chagrin, frequent as reflection, and permanent as probation) ſuch notable inſtances of frailty, melancholly ſpecimens of credulity, and obnoxious overtures of the weakneſs of virtuous reſolutions in the one, and eaſy ſucceſs of prompt endeavours in the other ſex, have in all ages (and eſpecially the preſent) where Bundling is in vogue, glared in public view, as may not only juſtify my cenſures and vindicate my tenets but even render the higheſt pretenſions to virtue ſuſpicious eſpecially if a favorite reſpectable ſuitor with all his honorable propoſals may [illegible] that character deſpair of the indulgence, familiarity and freedom his deſpiſed and contemptible rival enjoys clandeſtinely, without reſtraint of grace, honeſty, honor or gratitude on either ſide, or even fear on that account ſhe muſt be abandoned.——As it is an ill bird betrays her own neſt and though the fox ſpares the gooſe near his own burrow yet be it remembred, ſecrecy is uncertain, and "jealouſy is the rage of a man."——Here ſenſe is blind and reaſon mute——here peace is wreck'd, and honor loſt——here charity falls aſleep, and friendſhip finds a grave; or if love eſcapes with ſhattered wings, content becomes an eternal fugitive! I was lately led into this delirium, by an incident ſomewhat hideous in its circumſtances, however ſerious the conſequences, upon which I may further animadvert in my next.

LONDON, Dec. 12.

On Thurſday at the Old Baily the Right Honorable Lord Mayor behaved in a manner ſo truly noble, that his fellow citizens will always remember the name of TURNER with gratitude.——When the Jury was called, his Lordſhip aſked them, upon their honour, if any of them were Freeholders of Middleſex; it appeared that about eighteen of them were ſo, on which his Lordſhip immediately diſmiſſed them, that they might not be hindred from diſcharging their duty at Brentford.

Extract of a Letter from Florence, Oct. 24.

"I have not ſuffered myſelf to be carried away, as many others have been, by an enthuſiaſtic Fever in Favour of Corſica; but I have contracted ſuch a Friendſhip for the General, that I cannot even deſcribe how much I admire him. He certainly is a great Man, who poſſeſſes both Spirit and Eloquence to an amazing Degree, has entirely ſacrificed himſelf for his Country, and is incapable of betraying it. Do not ſuffer yourſelf to be deceived by thoſe whom either the French, or diſaffected Corſicans, deceive by ſuch Calumnies. Whoever would judge of the French in general, from their Behaviour in the laſt Actions in Corſica, could indeed not love them. In two words the Fact is this: They always advanced by Surpriſe and Treachery, endeavouring even to bribe the General's Secretaries; but have been driven back merely by the Courage of the People. The People are good, ingenuous, and courageous, and act openly. What Diſadvantages they ſuſtained, aroſe from the Chiefs, who had more to loſe. It is not now eaſy for the French to get back again to the poſt which they were diſpoſſeſſed of: they muſt ſtay for new Reinforcements. Their Loſſes have been conſiderable: One of their Commanders in Chief has been wounded; 87 Officers killed, or made Priſoners, together with 1800 Soldiers. The military Cheſt, Hoſpitals, Baggage, Tents, Cannons, have been loſt; and, what is worſe, the Troops are diſcouraged in having to fight upon unequal Ground with an Enemy almoſt always covered. I wiſh that this may diſſipate every Shadow of Suſpicion about Paoli from thoſe Powers who are the natural Friends of the Corſicans, and induce them to aſſiſt them powerfully. As from the little Knowledge I have of Corſica, which I have almoſt entirely travelled through, and from ſome other Conſiderations, I fear that nothing will ſave that Country but an open Stand in their Favour."

Meſs's GREEN & WATSON.

I Obſerve in your paper No. 219 a Letter from London, dated 30th Nov. 1768, in the Concluſion of which, in theſe words, "It ſeems as if they (the miniſtry) wiſhed you (the Americans) would propoſe ſome plan of accommodations." Query, how are we able to make any propoſals now ſo many of our aſſemblies are diſſolved?

Meſſieurs Printers,

I Made bold lately to take (not to ſay, purloin) from among the writings of a certain friend, much given to amuſe himſelf with ſcribling, the following letter: which I ſuſpect his own fancy dictated, as it appeared in his own hand writing; tho' it might be (for ought I know) the copy of a genuine original letter. I deſire you to inſert it in the Courant for the Entertainment of others; and I ſincerely deſire pardon of my good friend, if he ſhould conjecture rightly as to the channel by which it came to the Preſs. A letter from a Sailor on board the Connecticut Frigate, to another Sailor, who had heretofore been his Meſſmate, ſome years ago removed from on board the ſame Ship.

Dated on board the Connecticut in Hartford Road February 13, 1769.

Dear Bob,

I Have been many a tedious league ſince you left the Ship, and in many a ſmart Engagement too—I have long wanted to ſee you; for while you was aboard of us you was as clever a Meſſmate as ever I had ſince I knew Stem from Stern; and d'ye ſee, as how you uſed to jaw at me ſome, for ſwearing, I intend to give you an account as how matters ſtand aboard of our Ship, without ſwearing one ſquib in it all.—I remain as yet nothing more than able on board his Majeſty's Ship Connecticut. You know ſhe is a tight, neat Sea-Boat, but a little too crank-ſided. Howſomever we have had foul weather on board ſince you left us, that was worſe than all the Engagements we had through the war. We have got a new Captain and Lieutenant and Mates, and have had ſuch changes in the great Cabbin, that when I go abaft I hardly know who from who, but I'll tell you more about that by and by. Honeſt Joe, the Purſer, has lately left us and gone into Private ſervice——they ſay the Man that has his Birth is as good a lad as need to be; and to be ſure, he looks like a good clever, hearty ſort of a Cook; but howſomever, d'ye ſee, I don't know much about him yet as how becauſe he has been aboard but one cruiſe——Honeſt Joe you know, ſtuck tight to the [illegible], before you left us, and ſo he did through all the war, and was as ſound hearted a lad as ever broke Biſket, tho' mayhap he could not make his Journal appear as fine with your great circle-ſailing Circumbobs, as ſome of the fair-weather Sparks in the great Cabbin.——I don't know what he took Snuff at; ſome ſay 'twas becauſe ſome Inſpectors from the Admiralty ſpoke ſomething or other againſt him. I don't know what, not I, but he has left us, and that is poz.——Our brave old Captain PITCH, has left the Ship this two years or more; ſeveral of the Officers went with him, and have left the Navy ever ſince.——Captain Pitch was a Sailor every Inch of him; he was bred aboard from a Boy; and knew all that belonged to a Ship, from tending the Cook Room to commanding in an Engagement.——Well, reſt his Soul! Tom has ſteer'd the Frigate through many a ſtorm, ſome think he was too apt to Scud away upon every guſt, but you know what a Crank B—— the Ship was. There was ſo many changes and promotions, and the L—— knows what, when Lieut. Bitt-Pins, ſucceed Capt. Pitch that ſundry Midſhipmen got up to the firſt Offices——in ſhort the Ship was ſo capſized that ſcarce an Officer on board did not hoiſt a peg higher or lower. I ſuppoſed when the Hurly burly was over, we ſhould lye all ſnug again, but a new Quarrel, forſooth, hove in ſight; and the whole crew was not to [illegible], into watches, but they were called Star board-men, and Larboard men, becauſe their Cabbins or Hammocks happened to be on this or that ſide of the Ship.——It ſo happened, to be ſure, that moſt of the new Officers happen'd to have their Hammocks or Cabbins fixed, more upon the Larboard, than upon the Starboard ſide of the Ship,—but who the D—! cared about that! howſomever one of the Surgeons, calls out of the Cock-pit. "Trim the Boat"—after that, they began to mutter about "that the Ship ſailed on a carcen with ſo many heavy bodies on the Larboard ſide"——Nay, they could not help jeſting it at every Meſs, that the putting in a new Boatſwain muſt be determined, ſome thing by the ſituation where his Hammock uſed to be——for my own part, I hung my Hammock a mid Ship to keep clear of Jaw a both ſides, but I ſwung ſo much to leeward, 'twas all in vain; I was ſometime Starboad man, and ſometime, Larboard man, juſt as we happened to tack or the wind to veer,—I wiſh we would all try to find the trim of the Ship and be quiet again.

Yours, dear Bob,

TOM LANYARD.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

Pleaſe to give this a place in your next, being the ſubſtance of a ſermon delivered at Hartland, 29th June, 1768, previous to the ordination of Starling Graves, by Joſeph Strong, A. M.

1. CHRIST did give miniſterial power to the apoſtles who were to ordain others, and them others to ordain others, and ſo on to the end of the world.

2. Miniſters of the goſpel muſt receive commiſſion and authority from Chriſt or they have none.

3. This commiſſion in a line of ſucceſſion is not and cannot be proved in the epiſcopal or non-epiſcopal churches. Becauſe,

4. Church miniſters are creatures of the ſtate, who actually have received all their power and juriſdiction to govern the church and give holy orders from King Henry the 8th and from Edward the 6th; the King from hence becomes the head of the epiſcopal church.

5. New England churches have the ſame miniſterial authority as the church of England have, becauſe 77 miniſters made ſo by the biſhop of England, and ſilenced by arch biſhop Laud and others; yet come into New England before Anno 1640, and were reinſtalled or reordained by the brotherhood, as Mr. Willſon at Charleſtown and others. See Dr. Niel.

6 As epiſcopal or church miniſters received their authority not from Jeſus Chriſt, but from the King; and for that reaſon their authority is human and not divine; conſequently invalid; ſo priſbyterian orders coming from theſe ſtate and human creatures is good and valid.——

7. Mr. Strong proves his miſſion jure divino; that is, divine inſtitution, by proving the preſbyterian miniſters received their authority from ſilenced epiſcopal miniſters; whom he proves have no divine authority at all——whether ſilenced or not ſilenced.

8. He challenges the divine miſſion as belonging to himſelf, becauſe his power as a miniſter is not conveyed by the ordination act but by the call of the pariſhioners. Glorious privileges we enjoy! we can chuſe our own miniſters, while the church of England cannot do it. And Mr. Strong might have added thoſe who chuſe the miniſter, maintain him.

9 Mr. Strong follows Dr. Neal's falſe quotations (proved ſo to be by Dr. Maddock and Dr Gray.) Good Mr. Strong fearing the Laudean Novelty or hereſy, has ſtumbled and tumbled into a Stranger or leſs ſable novelty or hereſy.

N B If any error is here ſuggeſted, pleaſe to correct Yours GALLIO.

By giving the following lines a place in your next will very much oblige one of your conſtant readers.

I Am a young woman, perfectly at my own liberty, two and twenty, in the heighth & [illegible] of good health, good fortune, and good [illegible] but I know not how, I muſt acknowledge there is ſomething ſolitary and diſtreſſing in the very natural condition of our ſex, till we have wholly rejected all thoughts of marriage, or made our choice. The man has not yet appeared to theſe eyes whom I could like for a huſband; I therefore apply myſelf to you, to let the world know there is not many miles from your office one that lives in too much eaſe, and is like to be undone for want of that acceptable kind of uneaſineſs, the importunity of lovers. If you can ſend me half a dozen, I promiſe to take him that addreſſes me with the moſt gallantry and wit, and to yield to one of them within ſix months after their firſt declaration they are my ſervants. But at the ſame time I expect them to Fight one another for me, and promiſe to be particularly civil to him who firſt has his arm in a ſcarf, or appears with a broken noſe for my ſake. I expect them to turn all their ſkill and fury towards ſlightly wounding, not killing each other: for I ſhould not take it for reſpect to me to leſſen the number of my ſlaves. But there is nothing proclaims a beauty ſo effectually as an interview of her lovers in ſome retired corner. In hopes of a ſerenade, ſoon after the publication of this letter, I reſt in full tranquility, Your moſt humble ſervant

NEW-YORK, March 16.

We learn, by a gentleman of undoubted Veracity, who left Philadelphia laſt Friday, that a Subſcription, for the Non-Importation of European Goods, was then carrying about, filled a pace, and it was hoped would be univerſal, as he did not hear of any Body's refuſing to ſign, ---it was alſo ſaid that they had Excluded ſome Articles which the other Colonies had included: but what Articles theſe are, we have not yet learnt.

On Monday laſt, according to deſire, there was a Meeting at the Houſe of Bolton and Sigel, of the Subſcribers to the agreement for the non-Importation of Goods when, we hear, a Committee was appointed to inquire into and inſpect all European importations, in order to a ſtrict Compliance with the ſaid agreement, and alſo to correſpond with the other Colonies.

By our late Accounts from South-Carolina, we have reaſon to think they will very ſoon come into a ſimila. Agreement, and alſo, not to import, or purchaſe one imported Slave.

BOSTON, March 16.

By order from home, the regiments quartered in town, are to encamp in the Common, as ſoon as the weather permits.

We learn that the Philadelphia Merchants have ſent a Remonſtrance to the Merchants of London, requeſting they would interpoſe in their Favor:-----That a Committee of the London Merchants had been choſen to take the Affair under conſideration; but nothing of Importance had as yet been done, nor could be during the Receſs of Parliament; and that Mr. Deberde was very aſſiduous in his endeavours to ſerve the Colonies.

There are advices in town, that three of the four regiments coming out this ſpring to America, are the 56th, Col. Welſh, the 61ſt, Maj. Gen. Grey, & the 63d, Col Hotham's.

It is ſaid, that advices have been received by the laſt packet, that four more regiments are ordered out for Halifax, and may be expected there in the ſpring.

LONDON, DECEMBER 12.

The following is a copy of Mr. Serjeant Glynn's Addreſs to the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Middleſex :

“THE warm profeſſions of gratitde ſo frequently uttered by thoſe who feel no gratitude to their conſtituents, becauſe the means by which they ſucceed take off all obligation, make me at a loſs for terms to expreſs myſelf on ſo ſignal, ſo generous, and ſo glorious a ſupport as I have met with from you.

Every means employed, and every influence exerted, during a ſix months canvas, have not been able to divert a great majority of you from eſpouſing the cauſe of a candidate whom you ſuppoſed a friend to the cauſe of the people, and in whom you hoped to find a zealous and diſintereſted defender of the rights and liberties of his country.

“Honour or infamy will deſervedly attend me in the ſame meaſure as my future conduct ſhall anſwer or diſappoint your expectations. I do not owe your ſupport to any perſonal friendſhip or connexions, and am therefore free ever from the temptation of leaning to them. My obligations are to the public, and to the public I will return them.

“For my conduct in the courſe of this election, I can appeal even to my adverſaries : And the truth of my declaration to you has been moſt convincingly proved by the infamous behaviour of my opponents in their lawleſs interruption of the poll ; when a mob of hired ruffians were, at a ſignal, let looſe upon the peaceable, unarmed, and inoffenſive Freeholders of the county of Middleſex, in order to deſtroy thoſe whom they could not corrupt, and to wreſt from them by violence that freedom of election which every undue and unconſtitutional interpoſition had failed to overthrow.

The Sheriffs, and every perſon preſent, were witneſſes of a ſcene never before exhibited at an election :———A deſperate ſet of armed ruffians, with “Liberty and Proctor' in their hats without the leaſt oppoſition, without the leaſt provocation or cauſe of quarrel, diſtroying thoſe who did not lift up a hand in their defence. Sir William, to whom I called to go with me and ſtop this mob, returned me no anſwer, and left me : I remained the laſt man upon the Huſtings. However, I live, Gentlemen, to aſſert not ſo much my election as your rights ; and I pledge myſelf to you, that your blood, ſo wantonly ſhed yeſterday, ſhall be vindicated, and the charge brought home both to the hired and the hirers : The more exalted their ſtations, and the more privileged their perſons, the louder is the call for juſtice, and the more neceſſary its execution.

“Whether as your repreſentative, or a private Gentleman, I pledge myſelf to you to go through with this buſineſs, or periſh in the attempt.

“The freedom of a county election is the laſt ſacred privilege we have left ; and it does not become any honeſt Engliſhman to wiſh to ſurvive it. For my own part, I will not.—And if by this declaration, I may ſeem to depart from that moderation which has always particularly marked my character, it is becauſe I think tameneſs in a cauſe like this, is infamy. There is virtue ſtill left in this country. We are come to a criſis ; & the conſequence of this ſtruggle will determine whether we ſhall be ſlaves, or free.

“It is at preſent depending before the houſe of commons, what meaſures ſhall be next purſued in regard to this election ; when they have decided, I will give you the earlieſt notice poſſible : and I promiſe you that no diſcouragement ſhall ever make me deſert you, who have ſhewn that you will not deſert yourſelves.

I am, gentlemen,
Your moſt grateful and obedient humble
ſervant, JOHN GLYNN.

By advices lately received from Greenock in the weſt of Scotland, we are informed that about 300 perſons have died there of the ſmall pox, of which number were the two Clergymen of the town.

Nov. 26. His Majeſty was attended Yeſterday to the houſe of Peers by his Grace the Duke of Ancaſter and Earl of Denbigh, amidſt a learge concourſe of people, who teſtified their joy on his Majeſty's going to give his Royal aſſent to the bill for prohibiting the exportation of corn, &c.

We hear that a great man in the law has given it as his opinion, that the law, conſtitutionally, does not allow of any alteration of records any more than it did of General warrants ; and that they were both practiſed only as being cuſtomary, but both equally illegal and unconſtitutional.

Yeſterday arrived a mail from New-York, brought by the Hariot packet, Capt. Hawke, and had only 26 days paſſage from New-York to Falmouth.

A Cl—g—n belonging to a Cathedral in the country, it is ſaid, lately diſpatched himſelf with a piſtol.

Some changes in the miniſtry are confidently talked of.

A Capt. in the Weſt India trade has undertaken for a conſiderable wager, to row himſelf, on Monday, next, in a large ſugar pan made of iron and weighing 1700lb. from London-bridge to Greenwich.

Dec. 6. The Duke of Grafton is elected Chancellor of the Univerſity of Cambridge, in the room of the late Duke of Newcaſtle, without oppoſition.

The current report this morning, at the Change, was, that of Mr. Wilke's good fortune in poſſeſſing the twenty thouſand pound prize drawn this day ; but we give it only as a report. It is ſaid this gentleman has received, by way of preſent, upwards of ninety tickets in the preſent lottery.

Some diſturbances in one of our colonies, (of a more ſerious nature than any other in America) has been the occaſion lately of three Cabinet Councils.

Earl Pembroke and Capt. Falkner are now in Corſica, but forbid to draw either the ſword or pen, which a nobleman of no ſmall humour ſaid, 'They were Spectators, and perhaps Guardians, but no Tatlers.

The whole Park of Artillery prepairing by the Turks for acting againſt the Ruſſians, we are told, amounts to no leſs then 6000 Pieces, which are to be managed by a corps of 4000 men, and the like number of camels is collecting for purpoſes of drawing it

We learn that a certain Scotch Nobleman, upon a late memorable occaſion, ſolicited and obtained a douceur of 500l. from a diſcarded Miniſter in favour of the Rev. Mr. Kedgal, as a reward for his extraordinary trouble aſſiduity and ſarvices in a late celebrated Tranſaction.

Mr. Voltaire has given to his pariſh church, a rich alter piece, with ſeveral ſuperb veſtments, and made a kind of harangue or impromptu ſermon on the occaſion.

Many of the Nabobs now here, it is ſaid, heve further views than merely the honour of a ſeat in P——lm——t, or the advantage of a ſmall place——Remittances from the Eaſt come very ſlow of late ; and ſhould no further one's arrive many a coach muſt be laid down, and its owner, perhaps, be happy, for certain reaſons, to walk freely for a few years.

'Or ſay, AM WOUNDED BY IT, you who dare.'

THE other evening, near my lodgings, an odd unthinking couple (who by the way would never thank me for naming them as ſuch, while they think themſelves ſomething) being left by a large family, beſide a ſmall fire, ſecundum morem ſoon retired to a diſtant chamber for greater conveniency, where, whilſt they ſlept, or were otherwiſe engaged, or rather loſt to themſelves, and all ſenſe of virtue and decorum, the only entrance was barr'd in ſuch manner that our tranſitory inamorato, ſufficiently refreſh'd or fatigued to attempt to retire, found himſelf impriſoned, in body as well as ſoul, reluctantly confined to ſcenes of darkneſs, however beſet with diſmal apprehenſions, whilſt reproaching rays of deprecated light from the riſing ſun, fluſh abundant confuſion through the windows, till the other lodgers, going abroad, preſent a favorable opportunity to call a domeſtic ſervant to his relief. But unluckily perceiving the eyes of the people upon him, having taken the alarm, to retrieve his ſinking character and ſhew he had not left all remains of modeſty behind him, ſhame added wings to his feet, and velocity to his wiſhes to tranſport himſelf to a convenient diſtance from the inſulting ſpectators of his viſible mortification—whilſt his forſaken reſtleſs bedfellow improved her confinement to meditate, and her enlargement to practice, ſevere revenge, and ſplenetic pique, with the vital energy of female art, and “and all the raſh dexterity of wit” from her ſqueamiſh ſtomach, emiting a random inundation of malevolent venom on herſelf and all around her, amongſt whom, becauſe I had happened the preceeding evening to ſee them ogling or loking fooliſh together, was acquainted in the houſe, and had frequently run away with credit for the little miſchief done in the neighbourhood, I had a double portion of her diſſipated gall to gargle for a late and therefore genteel breakfaſt ; and by patiently ſubmiting to weather the ſtorm in ſilent approbation, I not only penetrated the ſecret, but alſo acquired a ſett of unwelcome new ideas, laſting as time and reflection, and made freſh and ſurprizing diſcoveries within the ſable vail of effeminate ſmuggling, and wanton intrigue, at expence of general charity & particular friendſhip. But heavens ! muſt I believe that ſingle perſons, & almoſt ſtrangers—of indifferent or unknown characters interchangeably BUNDLE PROMISCUOUSLY without heſitation—and what is ſtill more ſhocking to all modeſty juſtifyin ſunſhine the practice in obſcurity ! “O my ſoul, come not thou into their ſecret, into their aſſembly, mine honor be not thou united” for however common 'tis for young and giddy paramours, indolent ſwine and profeſs'd libertines, to twain or bundle in like manner for different purpoſes ; ſome to repoſe, and ſome to wreck nature ; ſome to make, and ſome to murder love ; they muſt be equally careleſs of the event, or groſly miſtaken in their politics—as ſuch wretched proſtitution, is practically moſt abſurd to recommend to reaſonable beings, or only as Ovid ſays, 'for a ſingle bout,' ſo where there is any juſt eſteem, they hardly perſuade themſelves or others into the practice or I cannot account for their frequent herding with various other partners in the ſame way of libertiniſm in immediate viciſſitudes, in thick ſucceſſions except that.

'There are no charms where there is no re(ſerve
And 'tis on plenty your poor lovers ſtarve.'

Whilſt offer'd ſervices may be ſlighted, and eaſy conqueſts undervalued, roving through ſcenes of variety, excites inſatiable curioſity, and much company keeping, although each fickle amour ſhould be ſtrictly modeſt and innocently courteous, and much more, where all things are common, naturally involves in uneaſineſs, in celibacy, and renders the ſpeculative virtuoſo almoſt incapable to ſhare or reliſh, with joyful contentment, and divine ſatisfaction, thoſe innocent tranſports of mutual ardent, reciprocal LOVE & heaven born, immortal, conſolatory FRIENDSHIP with the connection of ſexes, in the political relation & divine inſtitution of marriage is eſpecially calculated to afford, when the juncture is uſher'd in upon deliberate choice, & rational eſteem, wrought up into inamiſſable complacency by ſequeſted interviews of leiſure hours, profitably employ'd in humourſome, facetious chat, miſcellaneous, edifying and inſtructive confabulations, and innumerable innocent amuſements of ſenſe, and charming entertainment of reaſon with thoſe ſublime, exalted pleaſures of the imagination, in her diverting reveries, which increaſing friendſhip and ingenuity, hope, gratitude and generoſity is never at a loſs to furniſh or propoſe except under the enchanted coverlet, where, theſe bleſſings are rare, & the graces never come till the nuptial rites and ceremonies are decently performed, not where the grand leap is taken in a phrenzy—the raſh effect of anxious deſpair of being pleaſed—or impatience of fruſtrate attempts and repeated diſappointments—or poignant ſtings of criminal commerce—or ſordid covetous motives and mercenary views as averſion or inability to advance the uſual fee for being enroll'd a reputed parent, and Bundling inadvartantly &c. Yet it ſeems uncertain that thoſe who are known to bundle once in their way to matrimony have thereby alienated all affection for each other, and ſenſibly maſacred every hope of felicity in thoſe frequented ſhades of premature correſpondence ! elſe why ſhould the ſo often repeat the experiment ? and improbably they muſt have neceſſarily outliv'd the laſt dregs of their modeſty (unleſs conſcious guilt, of courſe takes it off) otherwiſe why were this temporary pair (an old gameſter almoſt on the wrong ſide of thirty and a flexible coſſet in all the combuſtable ſimplicity of blooming ſixteen) ſo chagrin'd at the diſcovery ; notwithſtanding their vapouring & averments in excuſe that 'tis the antient, eſtabliſh'd mode of courtſhip, and practiced whenever, wherever, and with whomſoever opportunity preſents ; witneſs the hiſtory of Lot and his daughters, the tragical ſtories of Schekem and Dinah Judah and his harlot, Amnon and Tamar, Abſalom and his father's concubines, &c. &c.

Good GOD ! is debauchery 'ſanctify'd from ſhame' by ſuch abandoned profligates ? & lewdneſs by common conſent, become juſtifiable and honorable ! or with the variation of the magnet, is modeſty veer'd about, or its eſſential qualities loſt and extinct forever ! or have virtue & vice, chaſtity and whoredom like a novelty in a freak changed ſides ? or can fleſh and blood take fire in the naked boſom and not be burnt ? or is this the filter to beget FRIENDSHIP, and procure or expreſs eſteem and LOVE ? or am I ſo monſtrouſly bewildered in my ideas of duty and policy, that there may be not only variable and different arts of amorous intrigue, but oppoſite and repugnant rules of ſocial virtues ? ſince doubtleſs what is eſteemed virtue and modeſty in one age, climate, family or perſon, may be quite the reverſe in another eſpecially as to the outlines and circumſcribing circumference ! or how could there be prudes and coquetts, virgins and harlots, in both extremes, extant at the ſame time and place, equally covetous of ſuch an amiable and invaluable reputation as that of modeſt and virtuous ? for you may as well make wild fire by the tail, or tell [illegible] has loſt or miſlaid her modeſty which [illegible] on all hands to be their juſteſt pride and ſupreme height of laudable ambition.

“Marriage is honorable in all, and the bed undefiled,” FRIENDSHIP and charity are the anodynes of life whereof modeſty and virtue are the principle ingredients : but alas ye GOD's ! what havock has light-headed incontinency made among your works !—even with the faireſt part of the fair creation—that indomable paſſions of habitual luſt and venereal deſires aſſuming the reins of government, gain the aſcendat over right reaſon, prevailing with eaſy progreſs and miſtaken triumph——————a coſtly ſacrifice to forlorn hope ; opening the ſcene to loſs of chaſtity and friendſhip, and forfeiture of charity and benevolence, and in barter, making a complete purchaſe of an unalienable title to eternal remorſe, and all this only to gratify the tickliſh itch of a momentary curioſity at immenſe expence of that amiable peace of conſcience, ſatisfactory ſerenity of ſoul, heaven-born innocence & ſelf-approbation, which is vaſtly preferable to all the elaborate diſcoveries and ingenuous attainments in the grand circle of liberal arts and ſciences ; yea infinitely ſuperior to every LEGHORN, (in Italy) Dec. 16.

THEY write from Corſica, that two Engliſh Noblemen who came there, after having ſpoken with General Paoli, returned to Italy in a ſhip under French colours. The Corſicans have taken into their pay 5000 regular troops, in order to enable them to oppoſe the four battalions of French troops that are to go to Corſica in the Spring. Notwithſtanding theſe reinforcements, the Corſicans are more than ever determined to ſpend the laſt drop of their blood in defence of their liberty.

Baſtia, (in Corſica) Dec. 7 A few days ago arrived here in a French ſhip many foreign workmen with utenſils to erect barracks for the French troops in this iſland. The Corſican affairs bear the appearance of regaining a very favourable poſition, as the remonſtrances of many foreign powers to the Court of France have had a good effect.

L O N D O N. Dec, 12.

IT is reported that his Pruſſian Majeſty, ever zealous in the cauſe of liberty of conſcience, is forming a reſpectable army againſt the approaching ſpring, to be ready to aſſiſt the Ruſſians in defence of the Diſſidents of Poland, and againſt the Turks; from whence it is conjectured, the Sublime Porte will have more than one, if not three or four enemies to oppoſe his deſigns on the northern parts of Europe.

Dec. 16. Letters from Florence dated Nov. 14. ſay, " The Senator John Baptiſt Nelli is ſent by the grand Duke to St Sophia, to inquire into the moſt preſſing wants of the inhabitants, whom the late earthquake hath reduced to a moſt deplorable condition, in order to relieve them. All the houſes and churches of the communities of Speſcia, Campo Sonaido Gabalie, and S. Fiora, have alſo been thrown down; and not a building of any kind remains ſtanding at Baletta, except the church and the curate's houſe.

Dec. 26. The friends of adminiſtration laugh at the reports, ſo ſtrongly circulated, of an approaching change in the Miniſtry.

From the Confines of Ruſſia, Nov. 20. It is ſtrongly reported that a Ruſſian army, which was aſſembled in the countries of Caſan and Aſtracan has ſuddenly fallen upon Aſoph, and taken that fortreſs, ſituated on the Confines of little Tartary, at the mouth of the Tanais or Don. We wait impatiently for a confirmation of this news.

Jan. 2. It is reported that three ſail of the line and two frigates are ſpeedily to be put in commiſſion at Portſmouth.

Jan. 10. On Saturday laſt an expreſs arrived from the Court of Berlin, which occaſions much ſpeculation.

Tranſlation of a Letter from Gen. PAOLI.

S I R,

YOu are, without doubt acquainted with my true ſentiments on the ſituation of our affairs. My character has not been that of a hero romance, a Quixote, or an Amadis. There is nothing more real than the object I purſue: But if, inſtead of real objects I purſue a chimera, I am deceived indeed; yet my error ſhall never cauſe me to deſert the common cauſe. What are, for the moſt part, the objects of our purſuits, but dazzling chimeras, which have no other exiſtence than that which our lively and deceived imagination lends them? Upon this principle I will purſue my firſt plan; and if that liberty which I ſeek is not to be found any where I ſtill ſhall account him my enemy, that will undertake to remove the deluſion from my ſight! Let me enjoy this dream, which to me, ſeems ſo much like truth.

The offers that have been made me are both injurious to me, and repugnant to that ſpirit of liberty which circulates with my blood in my veins, and which ſhall circulate with it to the laſt drop. You little know the courage of the Corſicans, if you can believe they will ever ſubmit to a foreign yoke. All the efforts of Genoa have proved ineffectual, againſt their valour and love of liberty: And ſhall we then ſubmit to another Power that comes to offer us its chains; The rocks that ſurround me ſhall melt away, ere I will betray a cauſe which I hold in common with the loweſt Corſican. No; I never will become the baſe deſtroyer of my country, after having been the generous defender of it. If any man was capable of enſlaving me, it would be the Comte de Marbeuf: and the King his maſter could not have choſen a more enchanting man: But, you know, Sir, the price of liberty, like health, is only known when loſt; they are the moſt precious enjoyments of life. Let the mean ſlaves of their maſters wills fawn at their feet, and renounce the natural rights of humanity; as for me, I have learnt to be free; I know how to live ſo; and to die free, I would ſacrifice ten lives if I had them; I have but one, but that ſhall not ſurvive my liberty. Be aſſured, Sir, I ſhall ever be immoveable. Gold loſes its ſplendor, when offered as the prince of liberty. Honours are only able to dazzle fools, if they are not to be obtained but by renouncing the priviledges of human nature. What does it ſignify to me, that I am able to command a multitude of ſlaves, who ſhall come and humiliate themſelves at my feet, if, in a quarter of an hour afterwards, I am forced, in my turn, to humble my ſelf at the feet of another, one degree higher than myſelf? If I fall the victim of liberty, I ſhall fall nobly, and teach others to ſacrifice themſelves to the common cauſe Our love of liberty will ſubſiſt, even among the ruins of our country: it will be enlivened by fire, be born again on the aſhes, and will grow, tho' in irons. Of one ſlaughtered Hero will be produced a thouſand; and, as Tertullian ſaid of the primitive martyrs of the church, Their blood will be fruitful, and heroes will never be wanting in Corſica."

We are informed that the Tartar Snow, Capt. Alexander Stevenſon, on the North Coaſt of Java, in the Eaſt-Indies, ſending his Boat aſhore to wood and water, with ten Men and a European Officer, they were made Priſoners by the Dutch; upon which the Tartar, for Want of Hands, was obliged to bear away for Bencoolen, on the Coaſt of Sumatra.

Jan. 10. Letters from Leghorn ſay, that Gen. Paoli had lately received a conſiderable ſum of money, which it was reported his Agents had ſucceſsfully negotiated in a certain ſtate, to enable the Corſicans to carry on the war vigorouſly againſt France.

It is imagined that the Example of the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex who are to meet on Thurſday next, in order to conſider of proper inſtructions to be given by them to their Repreſentatives in Parliament, will be followed by the Electors, of many other counties and boroughs.

Jan. 14 At a very numerous and reſpectable meeting of the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex held yeſterday at the Mile-End Aſſemblyroom, the following inſtructions were unanimouſly agreed to and directed to be tranſmitted to the Knights of the Shire:

To JOHN WILKES Eſq; & JOHN GLYNN Eſq; Knights of the Shire for the County of Middleſex.

" GENTLEMEN.

' We the Freeholders of the County of Middleſex, direct and inſtruct you our Repreſentatives in Parliament.

' 1. To endeavour to continue to us, and to confirm our old conſtitutional, and only rightful trial — by Jury.

' 2. To promote a ſtrict Parliamentary inquiry into the military in St. George's fields, on Tueſday the 10*th of May laſt.*

' 3. To promote a like inquiry into the riot and Murders commited at Brentford on the 8*th of December laſt.*

' 4. To examine into the adminiſtration of juſtice in this county; particularly into the preſent ſtate of the Commiſſion of the Peace.

' 5. And, as far as in your power, to promote an inquiry into the rights of the public, to the territorial revenue ariſing from the conqueſts in India."

John Saſhbridge, Eſq; Member of Parliament for Hithe in Kent, was, by the general voice, placed in the chair.

The inſtructions relating to the trial by jury was moved by the Rev. Mr. Horne.

The three inſtructions relative to inquiries into the tranſactions of St. Gorge's fields, the riot at Brentford, and the Commiſſion of the Peace, were moved by James Adair, Eſq;

The inquiry relative to the territorial revenue of the conqueſt in India, was propoſed by Benjamin Hayes, Eſq;

The three Gentlemen above mentioned were appointed to carry their inſtructions to the Knts. of the Shire, and deſired to repeat to them the reaſons, (as well thoſe advanced by themſelves as by others in the courſe of the debate) and the motives which induce the county to form ſuch inſtructions at preſent.

We hear that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland will ſail again for the Mediterranean early in the Spring, in the Venus frigate, of which his Royal Highneſs is Commander; and the ſeveral men of war deſtined for that nation, are fitting out for ſea.

The poſtſcript of a letter from an Engliſh Gentleman in Paris ſay, ' It is the admiration of all thoſe who bear conjectures on government affairs here, what the court can mean by ſending a paltry force againſt Corſica. They account for it only on it two principles, that they either do it recover ſome deep laid deſign; (or, to uſe their own phraſe to amuſe) or elſe they have ſtumbled upon that wretched ſyſtem of politics we adopted the beginning of laſt war in regard to America; which gave riſe to that juſt remark, made by the then celebrated Mr. Pitt — That the conduct of the Miniſtry put him in mind of Dolly's Chop houſe — where you were ſerved chop after chop for the benefit of eating them hot.

We hear, a hundred gentlemen have actually entered into a ſubſcription of twelve guineas each, to be renewed annually for the benefit of a certain patriot.

It is reported, as a fact, that in the Weſt-India Iſlands, a part of America, the ſum of 9000l. has been raiſed by ſubſcription, as a preſent to Mr. Wilkes, ' to enable him the better to preſerve his patriotiſm and independency.'

The following is the concluſion of the declaration which the king of Sweden made to the Senate on the 12th ult. when he abdicated the Crown.

' To the right of the nation to tax itſelf, I would have the greateſt attention paid, becauſe I am engaged by oath to let my ſubjects enjoy their liberties and privileges without any reſtriction.

' Nevertheleſs, I pretend not to render the States culpable of that impoſition [the lowering the courſe of exchange to 42 marks, a tax fixed by law, as mentioned, in our laſt] equally imprudent and contrary to law; but from whatever cauſe it may have ariſen, the right of the nation requires that it ſhould judge for itſelf whether it would accept the tax; that is to ſay, the ſtates alone being veſted with power as to this point, ought to be convoked. Conſequently I inſiſt again, that they aſſemble as ſoon as poſſible.

' If it happen, that contrary to my expectation they oppoſe my will, I am obliged to declare to them, in ſuch a caſe that I diſcharge myſelf of the weight of government, which is become quite inſupportable to me, by the grievous affliction which the unhappy ſituation of the neceſſitous occaſions me, and the daily exhauſting of the ſtrength of the kingdom, reſerving to myſelf, when the States, my faithful counſellors, ſhall aſſemble on my account, to acquaint them further with all the reaſons which have induced me, not to concern myſelf 'till that time with the government of the kingdom. I alſo ſeriouſly forbid my name being made uſe of during this interval, in any concluſion of the chamber of Council.

(Signed) ADOLPHUS FREDERICK'

From the Frontiers of Poland, Dec. 22. They write from Warſaw, that Prince Repnin received a courier the day before yeſterday with advice, that Maj. Drewitz, with 300 men, having purſued Prince Sulkowſki, who commanded 1000, had obliged him to fly towards Sileſia, where he fell into the hands of the Pruſſians, to whom he ſurrendered priſoner of war with 600 of his men, who have moſt of them inliſted into the ſervice of the King of Pruſſia.

B O S T O N, March 23.

Extract of a letter from a Maſter of a Veſſel dated London, December 10, 1769.

" I Arrived here the 21ſt November, and am now diſcharged, and ready to take on board; but I cannot learn that there is any goods to be ſhipped for Boſton, nor do I expect any goods but your own, as there is not one order for the leaſt thing. I never knew ſuch dull times here before, & what will be the event God only knows. —— All trade ſeems to be at a ſtand. I am ſorry to ſee I muſt tarry ſo long at this ſeaſon as it is almoſt all night here: I hope to get into freſh air, for here is nothing but ſmoak, fogs and rains."

Extract of another letter from London the ſame Date.

" Every thing ſhall be done to further the diſpatch of your veſſel out; but at preſent we have not a ſingle order ſave one received yeſterday. What can be done with the number of ſhips that will be here from America, we know not. Every thing relative to navigation looks exceeding gloomy at preſent, nor is the proſpect of an amendment more pleaſing.

Extract of a letter from London, dated Jan. 4.

——" In ſhort, it is impoſſible for you on that ſide the Water to judge of the opinion the people in this country have of America. ---- There is a number of Veſſels here put up for Freight for Boſton, New-York, Philadelphia, &c. and not one Merchant in this City dares comply with their Orders, unleſs the Act of Parliament impoſing duties on America is repealed; which there is not the leaſt proſpect of at preſent. Many Ships are ordered to be ſold, and others to return in Ballaſt. I have nothing new to tell you, only that a report prevails, that a rupture between England and France is ſoon expected."

Extract of a letter from LONDON, dated December 30.

" Party here endeavours all they can, to propagate an opinion that we are likely to have a French war; if ſuch a report ſhould be ſpread in Boſton, pay not the leaſt regard to it. -- If there is but a tendency that way, I ſhall have immediate notice of it, which you may depend my ſending you by the firſt opportunity."

Extract of a letter from London, dated Jan. 3.

" I ſuppoſe you want to hear news of this Iſland, party indeed runs high, the 27th of this month, Wilkes's affair is to be debated in the Houſe of Commons, would you think it, but at this preſent time he is put up for Farringdon Without, nay it is thought he will certainly be choſe.

" Have this minute heard for certain Wilkes is really choſe Alderman. — Surely the lower claſs in this nation will never be mad, if they are not now."

Extract of a letter from London, Jan. 4, 1769.

" There is no Chance of its being in our Power to procure a Freight for your Veſſel from hence, ſo expect ſhe muſt go for a load of Salt."

Laſt Wedneſday morning, about four o'clock, the large manſion houſe of Col. Jonathan Moulton, of Hampton, together with two ſtores contiguous thereto, were wholly conſumed by fire occaſioned, it is ſuppoſed, by a beam taking fire under a hearth. The flames had got to ſo great a heighth before the diſcovery that it was with great difficulty the family (between 15 & 20 ſouls) eſcaped with their lives. — The colonel ſaved no other cloathing than a cloak, and a gentleman who happened to lodge in the houſe was obliged to jump out of window —— The Loſs is eſtimated at 3000l. NEW-YORK, March 16.

By the Antigua news papers, we have a relation of a barbarous murder, committed at that Iſland, on the 22d of Januray laſt, on two ſeamen; the ſubſtance of which is as follows——On the evening of the day, one Robert Dunbar, returning home from a public houſe, was met near the door of his lodgings, by one Butler, a corporal in the army, with the piquet-guard; who after ſome words aſſaulted Dunbar, where a ſcuffle enſued between him and Butler in the ſtreet; this occaſioned ſeveral ſeamen and others to gather round to ſee what was the matter; & Butler obſerving the crowd, whilſt he was down, ſuddenly cried out to the guard, and ordered them to prime, load and fire among the thickeſt of them, which being immediately obeyed; two of the ſeamen were ſhot dead upon the ſpot.——The guards were ſoon after taken, and delivered to the civil power, to be dealt according to law.——But 'its ſaid the ſeamen, in general there are much exaſperated and threaten revenge againſt the ſoldiers; However, it was hoped all illegal extremities would be prevented. Dunbar in the ſcuffle alſo got wouned.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

The following are ſaid to be the ſubſtance of the Reſolves, of the Right Hon. the Houſe of Lords, relative to American Affairs.

RESOLVED, that the votes, reſolutions and proceedings of the houſe of repreſentatives of Maſſachuſetts Bay, in the months of January and February laſt reſpecting ſeveral late acts of parliament, ſo far as the ſaid votes, reſolutions and and proceedings import a denial of, or do draw into queſtion the power and authority of his Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and commons in parliament aſſembled, to make laws and ſtatutes of ſufficient Force and validity to bind the colonies and people of America, ſubjects of the crown of Great Britain, in all caſes whatſoever, are illegal, unconſtitutional and derogatory to the rights of the crown and parliament of Great Britain.

II. Reſolved, That the reſolutions of the ſaid houſe of repreſentatives of the province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay in January laſt, to write letters to the ſeveral houſes of repreſentatives of the Britiſh colonies on the continent, deſiring them to join with the ſaid houſe of repreſentatives of the province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, in petitions which do deny or draw into queſtion the right of parliament to impoſe duties and taxes upon his majeſty's ſubjects in America; and in purſuance of the ſaid reſolutions the writing ſuch letters, in which certain late acts of parliament impoſing duties and taxes are ſtated to be Infringements of the rights of his majeſty's ſubjects of the ſaid province, are proceedings of a moſt unwarrantable and dangerous nature, calculated to enflame the minds of his majeſty's ſubjects in the other colonies, tending to create unlawful combinations, repugnant to the laws of Great Britain, and ſubverſive of the conſtitution.

III. Reſolved, That it appears that the town of Boſton in the province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, has for ſome time paſt been in a ſtate of great diſorder and confuſion; and that the peace of ſaid town has at ſeveral times been diſturbed by riots and tumults, of a dangerous nature, in which the officers of his majeſty's revenue there have been obſtructed by acts of violence in the execution of the laws, and their lives endangered.

IV. Reſolved, That it appears that the ordinary civil magiſtrates in the ſaid town of Boſton, did not exert their authority for ſuppreſſing the ſaid riots and tumults.

V. Reſolved, That in theſe circumſtances of the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, and of the town of Boſton, the preſervation of the public peace, and the due execution of the laws became impracticable, without the aid of a military force to ſupport and protect the civil magiſtrate, and the officers of his majeſty's revenue.

VI. Reſolved, That the declarations and reſolutions and proceedings in the town meetings at Boſton, the 14th of June and the 12th of September, were illegal, unconſtitutional, and calculated to excite ſedition and inſurrection in his majeſty's province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

VII. Reſolved, That the appointment at the town meeting on the 12th of September of a convention to be held in the town of Boſton on the 22d of that month, to conſiſt of deputies from the ſeveral towns and diſtricts in the province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay; and the iſſuing a precept by the ſelect men of the town of Boſton, to each of ſaid towns and diſtricts for the election of ſuch deputies, were proceedings ſubverſive of his majeſty's government, and evidently manifeſting a deſign in the inhabitants of the ſaid town of Boſton, to uſurp a new unconſtitutional authority, independent of the crown of Great Britain.

VIII. Reſolved, That the Elections by the ſeveral towns and diſtricts in the province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, of Deputies to ſit in the ſaid Convention, and the Meeting of ſuch Convention in conſequence thereof, were daring inſults offer'd to his Majeſty's Authority, and an audacious Uſurpation of the Powers of government.

IX Reſolved, That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty to return his Majeſty Thanks for the communication which he has been graciouſly pleaſed to make to his Parliament, of ſeveral Papers relative to public Tranſactions in his Majeſty's province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

To expreſs our ſincere Satisfaction in the meaſures which his Majeſty has purſued for ſupporting the conſtitution and inducing a due obedience to the Authority of the legiſlature.

To give his Majeſty the ſtrongeſt aſſurances that his Parliament will effectually ſtand by and ſupport his Majeſty in ſuch further Meaſures as may be found neceſſary to maintain the civil magiſtrate in a due Execution of the Laws in his Majeſty's Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay.

And we conceive that nothing can be more immediately neceſſary either for the maintainence of his Majeſty's authority in the ſaid Province, or for the guarding his Majeſty's Subjects therein from being farther deluded by the arts of wicked and deſigning men, than to proceed in the moſt ſpeedy and effectual manner for bringing to condign puniſhment the chief authors and inſtigators of the late diſorders; to beſeech his Majeſty that he will be graciouſly pleaſed to direct his Majeſty's Governor of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, to take the moſt effectual Methods for procuring the fulleſt information that can be obtained, touching all Treaſons or miſpriſions of Treaſon committed within his government ſince the 30th of Dec. laſt, and to tranſmit the ſame, together with the names of the Perſons who were moſt active in the Commiſſion of ſuch Offences, to one of his Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, in order that his Majeſty may iſſue a ſpecial Commiſſion for enquiring of, hearing and determining the ſaid offences, within this realm, purſuant to the Proviſions of the Statute of the 35th Year of the Reign of King HENRY the VIIIth if his Majeſty ſhall, upon receiving the ſaid information, ſee ſufficient ground for ſuch a proceeding.

LONDON, January 4.

A great man who has been accuſtomed to ſpeak of Mr. Wilkes, ſometimes with the moſt virulent rancour, and at others with the moſt ſovereign contempt, has within theſe two days been heard to ſay, that "he really believes Mr. W. is honeſt in the cauſe of liberty but too much an enthuſiaſt in it.

To the worthy Inhabitants of the Ward of Faringdon Without.

Gentlemen, Freemen, and Fellow Citizens!

I AM truely grateful to you for the Honour I this Day received in being elected Alderman of this large, opulent and reſpectable Ward. Every Power I derive from that high Office, ſhall be employed in the Preſervation of the Rights of the Livery of London, and of all the Freemen of this great Metropolis. After the primary Duty I owe to the County of Middleſex, I ſhall conſider the Claim which you now have upon me, as demanding the utmoſt Exertion of my poor Abilities. I promiſe you a faithful and zealous Attachment to your Service, a diligent Attendance on your Buſineſs, and a ſteady Attention to the Intereſts of our Ward.

From you Gentlemen, I entreat upon every Occaſion, a full and early Communication of whatever you judge of Conſequence to the Proſperity of the Ward, as well as to the Welfare of this free City, and the Support of its Trade and Commerce, which are of the utmoſt importance to its own Greatneſs, and to the whole Kingdom. I will always take a publick ſpirited, decided, and diſintereſted part; and I doubt not of ſupport and Aſſiſtance in all my Undertakings, for they ſhall be directed ſolely by a Regard to the intereſt of the people of England, of this City in general, and our Ward in particular.——The near relation in which I now ſtand to you, will, I hope, furniſh me with frequent Opportunities of knowing your ſentiments in our common concerns, and every Gentleman of the Ward ſhall have an eaſy Acceſs where they have lodged their power, for the juſt Exerciſe of which I ſhall think myſelf in all inſtances accountable to my Conſtituents.

I am, Gentlemen, Freemen, & Fellow Citizens! With Gratitude and Reſpect, Your affectionate, and obedient humble Servant,
King's Bench Priſon, JOHN WILKES.
Jan. 2.

In the Houſe of Commons, the propriety of repealing the Stamp Act was attacked, but Mr. B. in a very able manner ſupported that meaſure, though he choſe to confine himſelf to the ground of commerical intereſt. Enough was ſaid from all quarters to diſcourage the leaſt poſſible hope in America of a repeal of the late duty act, until the duty is ſubmitted to, and then only under the conſideration of a grievance, as a burthen upon the people; that whenever a repeal ſhould be granted, the principle thereof might not be miſtaken in America. Enough was likewiſe ſaid to manifeſt that the billetting ſoldiers in the colonies, by act of Parliament, would never be receded from. The invitation to the inhabitants of Maſſachuſetts to provide themſelves with arms, &c. from an apprehenſion of an approaching war with France, was urged to be "treaſon againſt the ſtate in the perſons voting that requeſt." It is alſo added that, "No application founded upon the ſole right, in the aſſenbiles, to lay taxes upon the people in the colonies, can meet with admittance or reception."

What follows is what we find, in the votes of the Houſe of Commons, relating to Mr. WILKES, viz.

"A petition of John Wilkes, Eſq; was preſented to the Houſe, and read; ſetting forth, that, in April 1763, the petitioner, then a member of the houſe, was by a general warrant apprehended, and carried before the two principal Secretaries of State; that he applied by his friends to the court of Common Pleas for a Habeas Corpus, which was ordered to iſſue immediately; of this he acquainted the ſaid Secretaries at his examination by them, who notwithſtanding, committed the petitioner a cloſe priſoner to the tower, although charged only with a Miſdemeanour; that, for three days, no perſon was ſuffered to have acceſs to him; that his houſe was plundered, his Bureaus broken open, and his papers carried away, under the ſaid general Warrant; that, after his diſcharge from the Tower by the unanimous judgment of the Court of Common Pleas, he was ſerved with a Sub pœna from the Court of King's Bench, upon an information, that counter notices, ſigned Summoning officer, were ſent to ſeveral of the jury, only the day before the trials; that, nevertheleſs, the trials came on the day fixed; that the records were materially altered at lord Mansfield's houſe, by his Lordſhip's orders, againſt the conſent of the Stationer's Solicitor, only the evening before the trials, without the knowledge of the petitioner, he being detained abroad at that time by illneſs; that the papers ſeized under the ſaid General Warrant were produced as evidence on his trials: that Philip Carteret Webb, Eſq; then Sollicitor to the Treaſury, ſuborned and bribed, with the public money, one Michael Curry, to give evidence againſt the petitioner at the trials, according to the directions of the ſaid Mr. Webb; that the petitioner was in March laſt elected Knt. of the Shire for the county of Middleſex; in April appeared before the Court of King's Bench, when the ſaid court committed him to the King's Bench Priſon; and that in June he was ſentenced to a further impriſonment of twenty-two months in the ſaid priſon, where the petitioner now is; and that the petitioner ſubmits the whole of his caſe to the wiſdom and Juſtice of the houſe, in the full perſuaſion of having an effectual and ſpeedy redreſs of all his grievances.

Ordered, That the ſaid petition do lie upon [illegible] table: and that the proper officer or offi[illegible] lay before this Houſe a copy of the [illegible] the proceedings upon the ſeveral [illegible] in the court of King's Bench againſt the ſaid John Wilkes, Eſq;

The 16th of December the Houſe of Lords ſent a Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons, deſiring a Conference with them touching a Matter highly concerning the Peace and good Order, as well as Dignity of his Majeſty's Government; to which the Houſe agreed, and appointed a Committee for that Purpoſe—After a Conference Lord North reported to the Houſe, that it was to acquaint them that the Lords had taken into Conſideration the Contents of a News-Paper, intitled, 'The St. James's Chronicle, or, Britiſh Evening Poſt, of December 10, 1768; and that the Introduction to the Copy of a Letter addreſſed to Daniel Panton, Eſq; Chairman to the Quarter Seſſion at Lambath, printed in the ſaid Paper of Dec. 10th, is an inſolent, ſcandalous and ſeditious Libel, tending to a total Subverſion of all good Order and legal Government.—Whereupon the Houſe of Commons ordered the Printer, Henry Bladwin, and John Swan, to be taken into Cuſtody, and brought before the Houſe, when Mr. Baldwin, ſaid that the Manuſcripts were brought to them from John Wilkes, Eſq; thereupon the Houſe Ordered, That the Conſideration of the Report of the Committee of Conference be adjourn'd to the 27th of January; and that Notice be given to John Wilkes, Eſq; that he ſtands charged by the Evidence with being the author and Publiſher of the Introduction to the ſaid Letter, to be heard at the Bar of the Houſe the ſaid Day, and that the Marſhal of the King's Bench Priſon, then bring the ſaid Mr. Wilkes, if he ſhall ſignify his deſire to be brought up.

The Introduction to the Letter is as follows, viz.

To the Printer of the St. J, Chronicle.

SIR,

I Send you the following authentic State Paper, the date of which, prior by more than three weeks, to the fatal 10th of May, ſhews how long the horrid Maſſacre in St. George's Field, had been planned and determined upon, before it was carried into execution, and how long a helliſh project can be brooded over by ſome infernal ſpirits without one moment's Remorſe.

SIR. St. James's April 17, 1768.

HAVING already ſignified the King's pleaſure to the Lord Lieutenant of the County in which you reſide, with regard to the meaſures to be taken in general for preſerving the peace at a time that ſo very riotous a diſpoſition has diſcovered itſelf among the common people. I Make no doubt but either ſome ſteps have, or will immediately be taken by him on that head; and, I take it for granted, that, as Chairman of the Seſſions, you will meet the Gentlemen, who act in the Commiſſion of the peace for the Borough of Southwark, and Eaſt Hundred of Brixton, to conſult together and fix upon ſome plan for ſecuring the public tranquility againſt any miſchiefs which may happen, ſhould the ſame indecent ſprit of tumult and diſorder which has appeared in the City and Liberties of Weſtminſter, ſpread itſelf to thoſe parts, which are within the line of your duty and though I am perſuaded it's unneceſſary to ſuggeſt to you, or the Gentlemen who will meet you, any part of your duty upon ſuch an occaſion, yet, after the recent alarming inſtances of riot and confuſion, I can't hlep apprizing you, that much will depend upon the preventive meaſuers which you ſhall, in conjunction with the other Gentlemen in the Commiſſion of the peace, take, upon your meeting, and much is expected from the Vigilance and Activity with which ſuch meaſures will be carried into execution. When I inform you that every poſſible precaution is taken to ſupport the dignity of your office; that upon application from the civil Magiſtrate at the Tower, the Savoy, or the war office, he will find Military force ready to march to his aſſiſtance, and to act according as he ſhall find it expedient and neceſſary I need not add, that if the public peace is not preſerved, aand if any riotous proceedings, which may happen, are not ſuppreſſed, the blame will, moſt probably, be imputed to a want of prudent and ſpirited conduct in the civil Magiſtrate. As I have no reaſon to doubt your caution and diſcretion in not calling for troops till they are wanted; ſo, on the other hand, I hope you will not delay a moment calling their aid, and making uſe of them effectually where there is occaſion; that occaſion always preſents itſelf, when the civel power is trifled with and inſulted, nor can a Military force ever be employed to a more conſtitutional purpoſe, than in the ſupport of the authority and dignity of Magiſtracy. I &c. ⁕⁕⁕⁕⁕⁕

P. S. I have, for the greater caution, ſent copies of this Letter to the Members for the Borough, and Mr. Pownall. If you ſhould have received no directions from Lord Onſlow for a meeting, you will conſider this as ſufficient authrity for that purpoſe.

Daniel Panton, Eſq; Chairman of the Quarter Seſſion, at Lambeth.

To the Printer of the St. J. Chronicle.

SIR,

I Send you another State Paper of the year 1765, that it may be compared with the famous State Letter inſerted in your laſt. I ſhall ſoon trouble you with ſome remarks on both. And am Your's, &c.

[Inſerted by particular deſire]

COLIC, ſeems ſtrictly and originally to expreſs only a diſorder of the colon; but cuſtom has apropriated to diſorders that are as different in their nature and method of cure as a ſuppreſſion of urine and a diabates. The diſtinguiſhing names of Collic's are 1ſt. Bilious, 2d Flatulent, 2d Hyſteric, 4th Nervous, 5th Stone, and likewiſe a Colic that workers of lead are incident to, which may make a 6th claſs.——They who are taken with a Bilious Colic are oppreſſed with intolarable anxieties in the Præcordia beyond expreſſion, which are follow'd with pains and convulſions in the bowels.. violent vomitings of a yellow green or black ſizey matter which ſeems to afford ſome temporary relief.—We are inform'd that opening the bodies of the patient after death, the common duct of the bile is generally found obſtructed with ſmall ſtones. The duct itſelf appearing ſurprizingly dilated, inſomuch that it has ſometimes equalled the Vena Portæ. The hiſtory of the diſeaſe and its courſe, is, an obſtruction in the common biliary duct, which prevents the bile from being convey'd into the inteſtines whence it is by degrees accumulated, fills & diſtends the Gal. Bladder and cyſtic duct to ſuch a degree that they are ready to buſt, and have been ſeen ſometimes capable of holding a pint § from hence ariſe thoſe ſurprizing anxieties of the Præcordia, which by conſent of parts, brings on a convulſion of the abdominal muſcles and diaphragm, which cauſes vomiting, &c. By various endeavours or ſtrainings to vomit, the bile is at length drove back thro' the Hepatic ducts into the liver & Vena Cava; in conſequence of which, the blood & whole ſkin are ting'd of a yellow colour, the biliary ducts are then ſet at liberty from their over diſtenſions, and all the torments are eaſed; but more bile being by degrees ſeperated and accumulated as before, the biliary ducts are again diſtended ſo as to cauſe a return of the former pains and convulſions: after this a ſecond criſis follows and the Bile is repell'd into the Vena Cava, ſo as to infeſt the whole maſs of blood. Hence the jaundice is a concomitant of the Colic and ſo the contrary.—If the patient is plethorick he ought to bleed—If a vomiting attends drinking freely of Barly water with a little nitre ſweetned with honey is adviſable ſo as rinſe his ſtomach; after which an anodine may be given and repeated 'till the vomiting abates, then lenitive purges more commonly will procure proper diſcharges by ſtool, but if they ſhould not have the deſired effect, proceed gradually to thoſe which are more draſtic. Clyſters likewiſe and bathing have their uſe. Now whether a patient has a bilious Colic or any other diſeaſe that is attended with ſome ſymptoms in common, the method of treating it if one of our arcana aloetic Doctors is ſent for (as is moſt commonly the caſe) is to give the patient every three hours a large of Barbadoes aloes charg'd with ſpices in a ſpoonful of rum taking one hour after it a powder of Gent, Curcumy, Myrrh, and Glaubers Salts equal parts, an hour after this Lapis Contaryerva or Angelica or maſter Wort proceeds a doſe of the aloes powder and ſlip betwixt the doſe which as they expreſs it, is to nouriſh the patient, accompany'd with a ſtory obſcene told in low dirty language.

I have ſeen children in convulſions from dentition, treated by one of theſe aloetic Doctors (having firſt chriſtened the diſorder ſholar) with aloes and ſpices till after about forty doſes, nature not being able to bare up any longer, death has clos'd the drama. Likewiſe have ſeen patients in the laſt ſtage of a conſumption take aloes by order of ſome the moſt noted illiterate dram drinking ſtrollers—about a year ſince I was call'd to a man that inform'd me that he had a cancer on his ſhoulder he had been to conſult an aloetic cancer Doctor who confirm'd him in his opinion, on examination found it what is vulgarly call'd a wen, which by ſome accident had it, containing membranes broke, and diſcharg'd its contents, of the conſiſtance of honey and was very eaſily cured. By calling ſlight diſorders cancers applying cauſtick's giving aloetic and mercurial purges which by the way would increaſe the diſeaſe juſtly call'd a cancer they have obtain'd a great name with the vulgar;—nay I verily believe that many a pimple that never would have given the patient much trouble if let alone has by being tamper'd by pot aſh externally and aloes and mercury internally prov'd a diſeaſe that has coſt the patient his life. Dr. Fothergill, a juſtly celebrated phyſician in England, ſpeaking of the cicuta ſays I had too great cauſe to lament with many others of the faculty, that a ſpecific remedy for cancerous complaint, was ſtill undiſcovered § ſhall add but one remark more, and that is this, that whoſoever the noſtrum aloetic powder anſwers, the ſpecies Hiera Picra if well prepard is a much more elegant Judicious compoſition and much likelier to relieve the patient,

"It gives me great concern to acquaint you the parliament have come to reſolutions of a moſt vindictive nature, with regard to the miſunderſtanding now ſubſiſting between us and America; and are determined to order over here ſome of the moſt active Men at Boſton to anſwer a Charge of a very dangerous Tendency, and alſo to enforce the Acts (which are ſo diſagreeable to you) to the utmoſt; in Conſequence of this, few or no Goods will be ſhipped to North-America, except to your Province."

"[illegible] Balf and M'Quirk, the two chairmen concerned in the riots at Brentford, were tried for being preſent at, aiding and abetting, the murder of Mr. George Clark. The evidence againſt them was ſhort, clear and poſitive; they were both convicted, and received ſentence of death. Since which they are BOTH reſpited during his Majeſty's Pleaſure."

"The grand committee was to have reported on American affairs laſt Friday, but Wilkes had taken up ſo much of their time, the houſe ſitting four nights ſucceſſively till three in the morning, that they were obliged to poſtpone it to another week. He is expelled, but ſets up and will be choſen again, if the houſe do not firſt diſqualify him by an Act."

NEW-YORK, March 30.

Extract of a letter from London, dated January 29.

"I am ſorry to acquaint you, that we have no reaſon to expect any Change of Meaſures in Favour of America, during the Continuence of the preſent Miniſtry, who are Objects of almoſt univerſal hatred and Contempt.——Mr. Wilkes has been expelled the houſe of Commons, and the Bench of Alderman; but has been again unanimouſly elected Alderman, and it is not doubted but he will be ſo as a Member for the County of Middleſex—There appears at preſent no likelihood that England will ſoon be engaged in any War abroad"—

Arrived at Philadelphia; Ship Unity, Story, from London, in 6 weeks; and Ship Pennſylvania Falconer, from London, in 6 weeks. By the above Veſſels came Papers to the 7th Feb. and all Accounts agree, that the Parliament will not redreſs our Grievances this Seſſion, though they are convinced that the Acts are wrong——American affairs were put off till the 10th of February, when it was expected ſome Reſolves would be made againſt us.

Mr. Wilkes has taken up much time of the Parliament, and on the 4th of Feb. about 4 in the Morning he was expelled the Houſe.——He ſets up again for Middleſex, and has printed a ſpirited Addreſs to the Freeholders of that County—His Election for an Alderman was alſo ſet aſide by the Court of Aldermen and Common Council, but was again elected, no Perſon ſetting up againſt him.—And it is thought no one will attempt to oppoſe him at the Election for Middleſex.

The Brave Corſicans hold out well, but the Papers ſay that France is marching 30,000 Men to be ready to embark for that Iſland.

Governor B—— Letters have been read, which are ſaid to be very inflammatory, and makes the People of N. E. to be Rioters, and every Thing that is bad.

I juſt now have an account from London which ſays that they were in hopes that the R—gh—m Party would ſoon come into the Miniſtry who would repeal the Acts we complain of.—That L. H—b—gh ſays the Acts are bad, but will not repeal them while America denies their Right.—That the Tide was turning in our Favour, That the M—t—y are heartily ſick of taxing America, and only want to ſave the Honour of Parliament, to get rid of them.—And, that if we ſtick cloſe to the Non-Importation of Goods, as the Manufacturers were beginning to complain,——they ſeemed to think the Miniſtry would be obliged to repeal them the latter End of the Seſſion.

Boſton, March 30.

The Town of Lexington, at their annual Town Meeting, have come into a Reſolution not to drink any more TEA, until the late unconſtitutional Acts are repealed. An Example worthy Imitation.

The Quebec Gazette mentions, That Mr. Latham, Surgeon to the 8th Regiment of Foot, had innoculated Six and Thirty Perſons lately, and that they all ſucceeded with the uſual happy ſucceſs.

BOSTON, March 23.

The Speaker of the late Houſe of Repreſentatives for this Province, received the following Letter laſt Week.

North Carolina, Newbern, 10th Nov, 1768

SIR.

THE Houſe of Aſſembly of this Colony being Prorogued to the 3d Inſtant, prevented my ſooner laying before them your important Letter of the 11th of February laſt, the Purport of which they proceeded immediately to take into their Conſideration.——And I am directed to inform you that they are extremely obliged to the Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, for communicating their ſentiments on ſo interreſting a Subject, and ſhall ever be ready firmly to unite with their Siſter Colonies in purſuing every Conſtitutional Meaſure for Redreſs of the grievances ſo juſtly complain'd of.

This houſe is deſirous to cultivate the ſtricteſt Harmony and Friendſhip with the Aſſemblies of the colonies in general, and with your Houſe in particular.

With you we entertain the ſtrongeſt confidence of his Majeſty's Clemency and Juſtice; nor do we doubt but that the dutiful and united Supplications of his loyal American Subjects will meet with his moſt gracious Favour and acceptance.

This Houſe have therefore taken the earlieſt Opportunity permitted them of purſuing Meaſures for obtaining Redreſs ſimilar to thoſe adopted by your's, and have directed their Agent Henry Euſtice McCulloh, Eſq; to join the Agents of the other Colonies in obtaining a repeal of thoſe oppreſſive Acts of Parliament impoſing duties on Paper, Glaſs, &c. in America.

The Aſſembly of this Colony will at all times receive with Pleaſure the opinion of your houſe in matters of general concern to America and be equally willing on every ſuch occaſion to communicate their Sentiments, not doubting of their meeting a candid and friendly acceptance. In the Name and by Order of the houſe of Aſſembly.

I am, with great Regard,
Sir, Your moſt obedient humble Servt.
JOHN HARVEY, Speaker.

To the Hon. Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; late Speaker, &c.

Williamſburgh, (in Virginia) February 23.

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman in London, to his friend in Virginia, dated November 9.

"During the debate in the Houſe of Commons, on the King's Speech, doctrines were mentioned that would ſet America all in flames, if they were admitted, by N—th, C——tl, and B——n These were to govern America by military force ſeize Oti; (whoſe name was frequently mentioned) and all the leading men at Boſton, and every where elſe, who oppoſed their meaſures, bring them here, and hang them. The Miniſtry are violent againſt us, but they will meet with very violent oppoſition. The ſenſe of the Houſe, which was uncommonly full, ſeemed to me to be this; They will receive American complaints, amend or take away the force of the late revenue law, puniſh Boſton, reward that devil B——d, and inſiſt on the right of taxation, which you muſt acknowledge—How this will go down with you, I know not; but I think all America ſhould be ſwallowed up in an earthquake, if they do not ſtand by Boſton; for if that fall, they will in a ſhort time; they muſt ſhare the ſame fate. And let this be the American political creed, that a firm, ſteady and determined union, and conſtituional oppoſition, will be the ſureſt ſafeguard from hence. The affair of Boſton being totally minſterial, when it come to be fully debated and all the papers are before the Houſe, it is very poſſible the Miniſtry may be overſet; for they have only the Bedford landed intereſt for them, and I think they have not the confidence of the mercantitle intereſt.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the VIRGINIA GAZETTE, Feb. 2.

IT is curious, Mr. Rind, to ſee what an inundation of addreſſes have flowed in upon our Governor, ſince his arrival. They tell him that he is poſſeſſed of every virtue to render this country happy——May he ſo: patience I am ſure he has and no inconſiderable ſhare of it too! or he never could, with any tolerable degree of it, have gone thro' with the half of thoſe fulſome panegyricks that have been offered. I think it is very well, and even commendable to ſay all theſe clever things of a man when we know him, and that he deſerves them; but really, I think it is a great deal too much to ſay of one that we know very little, or nothing at all of; which I take to be the caſe at preſent. Whoever has taken the pains to obſerve the nature, or general run of addreſſes, will find the following obſervations are not without foundation.

The firſt that can be particularly taken notice of were preſented to Richard Cromwell, ſon to Oliver the Protector, in 1658. They came in to him, in great abundance, from every corner of the kingdom. Lives and ſtore of fortunes were offered him—By whom? by thoſe very men who were conſpiring his deſtruction! And before he had well peruſed, theſe flattering addreſſes, he received an order to leave White-hall, and became again one of the mobility. At the reſtoration, Charles the 2d had alſo his full ſhare; and indeed they ſeemed to be in earneſt, but, either thro' his bad conduct, or the levity of the people, or both, before his death, matters were greatly changed, inſomuch, that it may be doubted, whether or not, if he had ſerved a few years more, they would have had the trouble of driving from the throne, that godly maſs-loving Catholick, James the ſecond. William the third, one of the greateſt Princes that ever filled the Britiſh throne, received a plentiful ſtock of this ware; And tho' the nation is more obliged to him than any of his predeceſſors, yet had that hero, and patriot, great reaſon to complain of the diffidence which the Parliament conſtantly entertained of him, by ſcarce ever giving the neceſſary ſupplies, till the ſeaſon for action was ſo far advanced, that his enemies had always the ſtart of him in the field and by that means were rendered abortive the wiſdom of all his meaſures for the common liberties of Europe. From this it may appear, that addreſſes are little elſe but ſcurrious ſpices of lip-loyalty. A commodity, it is true, don't coſt much, but it is a mark of mean condeſcenſion, that men, who are determined to be free, ſhould avoid.

What is the reaſon the meeting of our Aſſembly is put off till May!—Is it to wait with patience, to ſee what ſteps our imperious Lords and Maſters at home will be pleaſed in their great wiſdom, to take? Lords and Maſters, by the by, who are bought & ſold like ſheep in the markets. It is well known that the country levy cannot be laid, ſo as to be collected the next year, if our Repreſentatives do not meet before the time now appointed; which will be exceeding inconvenient to individuals, and to the public in general.—A plenitude of thoſe awful ſounds reſcinding and deference to acts of Parliament, will be heard from all ſides.——But, I flatter myſelf, ſuch ſounds will never chill the generous blood of my countrymen: No! I hope they will ſuffer all ills, even prefer the deſperate remedy of the Numantines of old, rather than give up one jot of their juſt rights and privileges; but we are not reduced to this extremity; we have a moſt extenſive and fertile country to the weſtward; for my own part, I ſhould not heſitate one moment to leave a plentiful and unincumbered fortune, and travel over the bleak and rugged Alleghanies, and there, in the evening of my days, bleſſed with freedom, and covered with the ſkins of beaſts, with pleaſure ſurvey the ſite of a new empire.—What may we not expect after ſeeing that Lord Hillſborough has dared to write to that infernal firebrand, G——s B——d, that the military is to be called in to the aſſiſtance of the Civil Magiſtrate; by which our brothers and fellow citizens of Boſton, are to be ſacrificed to the unrelenting vengeance of that mercileſs tyrant? Such cruel and unneceſſary indignities are enough to rouſe up the dead to deeds of deſperation! Let it not be ſaid that there is a Riot act to curb the people of Britain: That is nothing to us, nor is it any thing to the purpoſe. Their Repreſentatives conferred this glorious ſtamp of ſlavery upon them. Thank God our Repreſentatives have not, as yet, been quite ſo complaiſant. I don't at all doubt, that the very Parliament that is now ſitting, will, before it riſes, ſhew us, here, ſome ſuch kindneſs; but I hope our Courts of Juſtice will never even ſuppoſe that to be law, which at once overſets all law; and that juries, if it is found neceſſary, will be reſolutely determined to judge of the law, as well as of the fact.

Your's CURTIUS.

LONDON, Feb. 1.

THE witty Lord Wharton on the expulſion of Biſhop Atterbury, ſaid, he had already lived to ſee that but two things were out of the power of the Britiſh Parliament: one was, to make a man of a woman; the other, to frame an oath that a courtier would not ſwallow.

We are informed, that ſix ſhips of the line are to be added to the formidable fleet now fitting out for the Mediterranean, for the 6000 troops we are obliged, by an article of the late peace, to furniſh a certain great power on the continent whenever he is attacked, and that the Britiſh fleet will ſail to Conſtantinople.

By letters from Stockholm, dated the 29th ult. every thing was very quiet in that capital; that ſome of the great Officers had reſigned their poſts.

Letters from Warſaw of Dec. 21, adviſe, that the troubles which lately deſolated great Poland, are diminiſhed ſince the Pruſſian troops patrolled there.

We hear that commodore Palliſer will ſoon be appointed to the command of his Majeſty's ſquadron in the Mediterranean.

Yeſterday at twelve, Mr. Wilkes arrived at Weſtminſter from the King's Bench, and was conducted by the Marſhal from the coach up the ſtairs leading to the Houſe of Commons (which with the paſſages and avenues were vaſtly crowded) to the apartment of the Serjeant at Arms. The populace gave him three huzzas on his getting to the top of the ſtairs.

Feb. 3. It is now become faſhionable for the ladies to drink patriotic toaſts:—Thoſe already come to hand are, Lady Cambden, Lady Saville, Miſs Wilkes, Mrs. Hayley, and Mrs. Macaulay.

Feb. 4. Mr. Wilkes's behaviour, on a ſolemn occaſion, was acknowledged, even by his opponents, to be firm, manly, decent; [illegible], but not crouching.

Feb. 6. A new writ is iſſued out for a Member for Guilford, in the room of Sir Fletcher Norton, Knt. whoſe patent was made out on Friday as Lord Chief Juſtice in Eyre.

We hear Humphry Coats, Eſq; who has been very ſtrenuous in the cauſe of a popular patriot is gone down to Guilford, to offer himſelf a candidate.

Saturday morning a certain Patriot loſt his Seat in a certain Aſſembly.

Mr. Wilkes has lately received the collection of books, medals, and drawings, left by the Baron de Winckleman, who was lately murdered.

By a letter from Paris, dated Jan. 22, we hear that they have received no news of any conſequence from Corſica, but that great preparations are making for an entire conqueſt of thoſe ſtubborn iſlanders early in the next ſpring; ſeveral regiments whoſe battalions have been completed, have received orders to file off towards Provence, to embark on board a number of tranſports at Toulon, which are deſtined for Corſica.

Feb. 7. We hear that John Wilkes, Eſq; is totally excluded from ſitting in the preſent Parliament, notwithſtanding what may be aſſerted to the contrary.

It is confidently aſſerted that no perſon who has been expelled, can have a place during the parliament in which he was ſo expelled. It is ſaid it took riſe on Sir R——'s W——'s being re-choſen after expulſion.

Philadelphia, March 30.

We have the following Extracts of Letters from London, viz. January 29 1769.

"American affairs remain in Statu quo. The Lords, not long ſince, drew up a Number of reſolutions, not very favourable to your Neighbours, which they ſent down to the commons for their Approbation. Theſe reſolves they backed with an addreſs to his Majeſty, of the ſame benevolent tendency. The Commons chagrined at ſuch an Infringement of their Dignity, have reſented the Propoſal; from which the Friends of America are led to hope, that the preſent Seſſion may diſcover ſome Signs of Penitence in the Parent, to the Diſtreſſes ſhe has brought on her Children."

January 31, 1769.

"In reſpect to public affairs, we cannot but be of the Opinion, that altho' many things are adverſe to America, yet the tide is turned in her Favour, by the Idea of raiſing Taxes on your Side daily decreaſing here amongſt all Parties; and we think that no Miniſter will again attempt the taxing of you, as we believe they are heartily ſick of the late act, and want only to ſave the Honour of P——t, to get rid of it.—The moſt ſanguine of their Friends agree, that it is improper, and uncommercial; and that had a Petition come over from your Merchants, on the Principle of Inexpediency, in ſtead of that from your Aſſembly, denying the Right, it would have been, ere now repealed—The Miniſtry at the ſame time declare, that they will oppoſe a repeal as long as America ſhall think that their threats are to oblige a Compliance; however, we hope a little Patience will bring it about, every thing being done, that is in the power of your Friends here, to effect it, and as ſpeedy as the nature of the caſe will admit."

February 4. 1769.

'Indeed the face of politics, wears a melancholy aſpect at preſent, and what will be the iſſue Heaven alone can tell. While the colonies are in an uproar about their Liberties, the people here are enraged, almoſt to a degree of deſperation, at ſeeing their rights infringed in the perſon of Mr. Wilkes, who was yeſterday expelled the houſe of commons by a Majority of 133' Nothing ſo much alarms the merchants here, as your reſolutions to import no more Goods, which will have a more ſalutary influence than all the mob triumphs in the world.'

February 6.

——" The doors of the houſe of commons are now ſhut againſt every body but members—Whilſt the legiſlature have many important matters to attend to, which require immediate diſcuſſion, the commons were employed all laſt week, night and day (for they ſat every day till two, three or four in the morning) on Mr. Wilkes's affair; and on Saturday the fourth, he was expelled between two and three in the morning. He avowed the prefatory remarks to lord Weymouth's letters, which is the firſt reaſon aſſigned in the following reſolution for his expulſion, which is copied from their Journals, viz.

" That John Wilkes, Eſq; a member of this houſe, who hath, at the bar of this houſe confeſſed himſelf to be the Author and publiſher of what this houſe has reſolved to be an inſolent, ſcandalous and ſeditious libel, and who has been convicted in the court of king's bench, of having printed and publiſhed a judgment, be expelled this houſe.'

'This reſolution was carried, upon a diviſion, by 219 to 137, and a new writ is iſſued for electing another member in his room. But as they paſſed no vote of diſqualification, he will doubtleſs be re-choſen, and in that caſe this buſineſs will be, in part, to do over again; ſo far I mean, as reſpects the propriety of his ſitting in the houſe.

'G Grenville was among thoſe who voted againſt his expulſion, obſerving, that upon the firſt point reſpecting Lord Weymouth, it was an offence againſt a private Man, and was cognizable and puniſhable by common law; and that with regard to the other two, he was now ſuffering the Judgment of the court of king's bench; that he wiſhed lenitive meaſures to be followed, in order to quiet the minds of the public, and to render him of no conſequence; and that Wilkes himſelf was ſo ſenſible of this, that he wiſhed for nothing more ardently than perſecution, and would be diſappointed, if he had it not.

'Thus this matter ſtands at preſent. Wilkes hath ſince publiſhed a moſt extraordinary addreſs to the Freeholders of Middleſex, a copy of which I ſend you. He ſeems now to be abſolutely deſperate, and reſolved either to bring down upon his head the whole Vengeance of the Legiſlature, or to bully the Miniſtry into an accommodation with him. We ſhall ſee how it will terminate."

WANTED, a Man to labour on a Farm, who can be well recommended. Enquire of the Printers hereof.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, & Freeholders of the County of Middleſex,

GENTLEMEN,

THE Proceedings of Yeſterday in the Houſe of Commons fill me with the deepeſt Concern, and I can truly ſay, much more on your account than my own. I can not be deprived of the Glory of having been choſen a Repreſentative in Parliament for the firſt County in England; but I feel with Anguiſh of Heart, that the preſent Miniſtry have found Means to ſuſpend for ſome Time the Plan of Uſefulneſs to my Conſtituents, and Service to this Kingdom, which I had meditated. What adds however the moſt to my Grief, is the melancholy Reflection that by my Expulſion the miniſtry have thus openly ſhewn, that they entertain no Scruple of violating the ſacred Rights of the People, even in the moſt important Caſe, that of having a Deputy nominated by themſelves to the great Council of the Nation. They have in the Inſtance of Yeſterday robbed a very reſpectable Part of this Kingdom of their nobleſt Inheritance, of their Share in the Legiſlative Power. No Set of men in this Country, have hitherto ventured ſo groſsly to abuſe the Truſt repoſed in them, nor to give ſo fatal a Stab to the Vitals of our Country. The threatning aſpect of all our public affairs does not preſent any thing equally alarming, except in the late Inſtance of Ruffians hired to be your Aſſaſſins and the Murderers of the Conſtitution at our laſt County Election, whom public Juſtice and an honeſt Engliſh Jury have hitherto in vain ſentenced to Death. I think with Horror on what we may in future dread for the Liberties of all the Commons of Great Britain from ſo deſpotic an Adminiſtration, if our gracious Sovereign ſhould much longer continue to them the Power of the State.

Permit me Gentlemen, to renew to you the aſſurances of inviolable attachment to your Service and the Cauſe of Liberty to which my Life is dedicated. My Courage is not appalled, nor my Spirit in the leaſt abated. I will carry with me to the Grave an unſhaken Fidelity and ardent affection to you and to this Country, an invincible Hatred and Oppoſition to its Enemies. I hope ſtill to give you further Proofs of my Sentiments by my Parliamentary Conduct. I flatter myſelf that the relation between us, which ſubſiſted Yeſterday, although now diſſolved, by the Violence of arbitrary Miniſters, will in a ſhort Time again, take place. Every Mark of your Regard I ſhall value in a high Degree, and I truſt that my Conduct will convince you, that I am not quite unworthy of the Choice, which I have now the Honour of humbly ſoliciting.

I am ſtrongly influenced on this Occaſion by a particular Reaſon, which ſtrikes me very forcibly, and I believe will have the greateſt Weight with you It is, that by a ſecond Choice of me for this County, you, Gentlemen, the independent Freeholders, will aſſert the clear rights you derive from the Conſtitution of naming your own repreſentatives. If Miniſters can once uſurp the Power of declaring who ſhall not be your repreſentative, the next Step is very eaſy, and will follow ſpeedily. It is that of telling you, whom you ſhall ſend to Parliament, and then the boaſted Conſtitution of England will be entirely torn up by the roots. The Parliaments of Great-Britain will become not only as inſignificant as thoſe of France, a meer State-Engine of Government but a grievous Burthen and infinite Miſchief to the Nation. The preſent great Criſis affords the Opportunity of aſſerting your moſt valuable Privileges, and of ſhewing yourſelves ſuperior to the inſolent Mandates of a Miniſter, who has the Preſumption to treat Engliſhmen as Slaves.

The rights of this free Kingdom, Gentlemen, have been frequently violated in my Perſon. You have now in me the Opportunity of vindicating them, and I hope without the reproach of Vanity I may add, that my Firmneſs in the Support of our common Liberty under Circumſtances equally perilous and intricate, has ſecured me your Confidence, and will be conſidered by you as a Proof that you may again ſafely honour me with this freſh Teſtimony of your Eſteem, the chooſing me a ſecond Time the repreſentative of my native County in Parliament.

I am, GENTLEMEN,
With true regard and Gratitude,
Your moſt obedient, and Affectionate humble Servant,
JOHN WILKES.

In our laſt were publiſhed a number of Reſolves of the Right Honourabl the Houſe of Lords, relative to American affairs:—The following we hear were alſo propoſed at the ſame time, but not then agreed to by the ſaid Houſe, viz

RESOLVED, That it appears that the Council for ſaid Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay, not only refuſed to give their Aſſiſtance to his Majeſty's Governor for the ſuppreſſing the Riots and Tumults, and for ſupporting the Civil Power in the Execution of the Law, although repeatedly called upon ſo to do, but did, at a Time when the Town was in ſuch a State of Diſobedience to all lawful Authority, and when the Officers of the Revenue were compelled to ſeek Shelter from the Fury of the People on board one of his Majeſty's Ships of War, concur and join with the Houſe of Repreſentatives in a Reſolution to enquire into the Grounds and Reaſons of the People's Apprehenſions that Meaſures had been taken or were taken for the Execution of the late Revenue Acts of Parliament by a Naval or Military Force.

Reſolved, That it appears that the ſaid Council for the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, did at a time when it was evident that the Commiſſioners of his Majeſty's Cuſtoms could not ſafely reſume their functions in the town of Boſton, not only decline to propoſe to adviſe any meaſures for giving them ſuch protection, but did on the contrary adviſe the Governor not to accept an offer from Gen. Gage to ſend Troops, and did declare that if any perſon had made application for Troops to come thither, they deem'd them in the higheſt degree unfriendly to the peace and good order of that Government, as well as to his Majeſty's ſervice and the Britiſh intereſt in America.

TELEMACHUS.

IF rational and irrational creatures, were of the ſame external ſhape, and manners, is it not certain that before there were opportunities, for the firſt to diſtinguiſh each other, to ſeperate from their adverſaries, and to form an union among themſelves; they might be upon a level, or in ſeveral reſpects upon great diſadvantage; tho' united they might be vaſtly ſuperior. Since union is of ſuch efficacy, that ten men united, might be able to accompliſh, what ten thouſand of the ſame natural ſtrength and underſtanding, wholly ununited could not. In this caſe then, brute force might more than maintain its ground againſt reaſon, for want of union among the rational creatures; or if a number of men were to land on an iſland inhabited only by wild beaſts, a number of men who by the regulations of civil government, the inventions of arts, and the experience of ſome years, could they be preſerved ſo long, would be really ſufficient to ſubdue the wild beaſts, and to preſerve themſelves in ſecurity from them; yet a conjuncture of accidents might give ſuch advantage to the irrational animals, as that they might at once over power, and even extirpate, the whole ſpecies of rational ones. Length of time then, proper ſcope, and opportunities, for reaſon to exert itſelf, may be abſolutely neceſſary to its prevailing over brute force. Farthermore; there are many inſtances of brutes ſucceedidg in attempts, which they could not have undertaken, had not their irrational nature rendered them incapable of foreſeing, the danger of ſuch attempts, or the fury of paſſion, hinder their attending to it; and there are inſtances of reaſon, & real prudence, preventing mens undertaking, what, it hath appeared afterwards they might have ſucceeded in, by a lucky raſhneſs, and in certain conjunctures, ignorance and folly weakneſs and diſcord, may have advantages: ſo that rational animals have not neceſſarily the ſuperiority over irrational ones. But how improbable ſoever it may be, it is evidently poſſible, that in ſome places the latter may be, ſuperiour. And were the former wholly at variance, and diſunited by falſe ſelf-intereſt and envy, by treachery and injuſtice, and conſequent rage and malice, amongſt each other, whilſt the latter were firmly united amongſt themſelves by inſtinct, this might greatly contribute to the introducing ſuch an inverted order of things. For every one would conſider it as inverted; ſince reaſon has in the nature of it a tendency to prevail over brute force, notwithſtanding the poſſibility, that it may not prevail; and the neceſſity which there is of many concurring circumſtances to make it prevalent.

Now virtue, in a ſociety has a like tendency to procure ſuperiority, and additional power; whether this power be conſidered as the means of ſecurity from oppoſite power, or of obtaining other advantages. And it has this tendency by rendering public good, an object and end, to every member of the ſociety; by putting every one upon conſideration and diligence, recollection and ſelf government; both in order to ſee what is the moſt effectual method, and alſo in order to perform their proper part, for obtaining and preſerving it; by uniting a ſociety within itſelf, and ſo increaſing its ſtrength; and which is particularly to be mentioned, uniting it by means of veracity & juſtice, for as theſe laſt are principal bonds of union, ſo benevolence, or public ſpirit, undirected, unreſtrained by them, is——no body knows what.

NEW-YORK, APRIL 6.

On Tueſday laſt the General Aſſembly of this province met here according to prorogation, when John Cruger, Eſq; being choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Repreſentatives; His Excellency Sir Henry Moore, open'd the Seſſions with the following Speech.

Gentlemen of the Council, and
Gentlemen of the General Aſſembly.

THE Services for the current year having in a great meaſure been provided for, I ſhall avoid laying before you any thing which might prolong your Seſſion at this inconvenient Seaſon, and confine myſelf intirely to ſuch matters as will require your immediate attention.

The preſent method of appointing an Agent to ſolicit the affairs of this colony in England, being liable to many objections, I have it in command to recommend to you the rule obſerv'd in the Weſt-India Iſlands, Virginia, Carolina, & Georgia, as the only proper and conſtitutional mode by which any perſon can be ſufficiently authorized to repreſent the province, and to act for it in all matters which concern its intereſt in general: this has been uſually done by an act of the Governor, Council, and Aſſembly, ſpecially paſs'd for that purpoſe, which practice has been formerly adopted here; a regulation of this kind ſo evidently appears to be calculated for the public benefit as to require nothing farther to be ſaid in ſupport of it, and a deviation from the mode approv'd of in other colonies may in future create great difficulty and diſappointment in tranſacting the affairs of this province, both in office and Parliament.

Gentlemen of the General Aſſembly,

By the Barrack Maſter's account which I have directed to be laid before you, it will appear that the greateſt Part of the Sum granted in the laſt Seſſion for the ſupport of his Majeſty's Troops in this province, was employed in paying off a conſiderable arrearage due to ſeveral perſons for neceſſaries furniſh'd by them ſome time before the commencement of the Seſſion in which that appropriation was made; this obliges me to lay the preſent deficiency before you, and to recommend ſuch additional proviſion to be made, as may be adequate to the Service required.

Gentlemen of the Council, and
Gentlemen of the General Aſſembly,

Whatever you may have to propoſe during the courſe of your Seſſion for the public benefit, will always meet with the readieſt concurrence on my part, and I ſhall be happy to co-operate with you in every meaſure for promoting his Majeſty's ſervice and the advantage of the province.

H. MOORE.

Extract of a Letter from London.

" The great territorial acquiſition of the Eaſt-India company, are now become an important national concern the revenues drawn from them yearly amount to four millions ſterl. it is expected that the propriety of a company of merchants, holding ſuch extenſive dominions, and princely revenues will, this winter, be a grand object of parliamentary enquiry, the conſequence of which will be the annexing theſe territories to the Britiſh crown. It is well known that the preſent revenue may be greatly increaſed under proper management, and the nation in general ſeem to have fixed their attention on the eaſt, as only quarter from whence they can expect relief, without which the landholder, the manufacturer and all ranks of people, in caſe of a war, would be involved in general diſtreſs. If this important change ſhould take place, the good effect that is hoped from it, will appear in a ſpeedy reduction of the heavy taxes under which the people now labour."

Extract of a Letter from Cape Nicola Mole, Feb. 28.

"Trade is very dull here. All things we bring low, and Molaſſes very ſcarce and dear:—There are near 40 Sail of Engliſh Veſſels here, above one Third of which are from Rhode-Iſland; and number of others which have been for ſome time at Turk's-Iſland, are alſo expected from thence, as no Frenchmen will go there when Molaſſes is at ſo great a Price here."—

[We hope our Cuſtomers will excuſe the Publication of following Piece in anſwer to Diſhabille, which is the laſt they ſhall be troubled with on the Subject.]

Meſſieurs Printers,

AS it is not an unuſual courteſy for you to gratify occaſional correſpondents, by publiſhing in your Courant their productions; I hope you will favour me ſo far as to inſert the following animadverſions upon a pair of helter ſkelter diſſertations on BUNDLING; which made their appearance in your papers No. 222 and 223; and indeed, I muſt beg leave to challange ſome right, in vindication of that innoſcent couple on whom the "odd unthinking" Diſhabille has poured ſuch prodigious vollies of calumny. And it may be matter of ſpecial utility, and public emolument, that ſome piece in your Courant which he facetiouſly concieves to be "a mirror ſuſceptable of various images, of diverſe objects and oppoſite characters" ſhould meet him face to face, and as ſuch ſhew him his own deformity.

In regard to BUNDLING (as he calls it) it ſeems to be the prevailing opinion of mankind, ſo far forth as the ſmall circle of my acquaintance is ſuſufficent to inform me, that tho' it be a practice not abſolutely neceſſary in the delectable ſcenes of courtſhip; yet ſimply conſidered, it is in its own nature perfectly innocent; and altho' in ſome few inſtances, it has been miſimproved and made ſubſervient to evil purpoſes, 'tis no more than may be ſaid of every other conveniency of life; and can, by no means, demand ſuch extraordinary uncharitableneſs.

As the gentleman ſet out to be "droll and impertinant" I ſhall not oppoſe him in thoſe comical characters; eſpecially, ſince he has acted up to them ſo preciſely: But, that private pique and perſonal ſpleen ſhould ſwell into public ſatyr and notorious aſperſion, is an egregious miſtake, in any one who makes any the leaſt pretence to good breading.

The ſtory of the Fox & the grapes was never more applicable.——He no ſooner finds himſelf out rival'd, but he vents his choler not only againſt his rival, but againſt his inflexible "flexible coffee." Gives a recital of the tranſactions of that very night in which he met his final repulſe in two tedious and unentertaining diſcourſes on BUNDLING tho' interlarded with uncharitable reflexions and enormous miſrepreſentations; this being his forlorn hope, the only way left him to retaliate his mortifying diſappointment.

True it is, this couple were that ſame night impriſon'd in their retirement, the door was bolted, and it was with difficulty got open the next morning; but who did it?. Who could we ſuſpect but Monſieur Diſhabille who ſeldom fails of acting up to character? Here I would beg leave to obſerve, this mighty cenſor has acted with a great deal of propriety in the chuſing of his name, for to be ſure he was in Diſhabille, when, not long before this, he aroſe from his bed in the dead of the night and came to me, who was then deſirably entertained by the fire ſide; to reprimand me, for telling that he had been an eve dropping which by the way, (tho' I had ſuſpected that his ear had been apply'd to the key-hole, I had never reported;) but "jealouſy is the rage of a man" as he wiſely obſerves, and tis cruel as the grave too, and he was probably in the ſame dreſs, or rather in the ſame undreſs, when the door was bolted.

As he ſays that he frequently run away with the credit for the little miſchiefs done in the neighbourhood, it is but too true; and if he had ſaid for the greater part of the greater miſchiefs too, there had been no want of evidence to prove the aſſertion, of which theſe very pieces of which I am now ſpeaking, afford a freſh and glaring inſtance.

As 'tis his practice only, and not his principles that affect me, I ſhall ſay nothing of them but, that by addreſſing the deity in the plural number "but O ye GODS! what &c." it appears that he is a little touch'd with the old heathen doctrines of Polytheiſm.

The many ſcurrillous epithets that he has given me (which I need not repeat) are ſufficiently expreſſive of his venemous diſpoſition, rancour and malignity which is all without provocation except the abovemention'd diſappointment; for which he may only thank his own debility.

Mr. Diſhabille threatens another appearance, if he is not laught out of countenance for this; why do you think, my friends, that if al created nature ſhould laugh till their ſides ake, they could extort one bluſh, from a man ſo ſwallow'd up in the enthuſiaſm of honourable courtſhips; No, no my countrymen, you muſt now expect the [illegible] plus ultra, all the hard words that can be pick'd up in the whole field of literature, will now be thrown into heaps (as the farmer piles up the ſtones in his meadow) the ſtacks will be bigger than ever: but I hope it may all tend to the public good, that hereafter we may not be ſo hampered & bewilderd with that redundant bombaſt, that prodigious waſte of language which has been laviſh'd on the two former eſſays.

Perhaps, Mr. Diſhabille it may not be amiſs when you have compleated the other chapter; to employ your quill, if not your brain, to ſhew the diſtinctions between a BARRATOR and a BARRISTER. To collect ſome helter ſkelter ſcraps relative to the attorneys duty, endeavour to rectify ſeveral perſonal errors in at leaſt one practitioner which might poſſibly be more uſeful and edifying to the public if not to you, than all thoſe mighty florid and ſolemn haranges on the great and important ſubject of BUNDLING; and perſonal damage and private character, may then remain untouch'd.

'Eternal infamy the ſordid wretch confound,'
Who firſt rais'd calumny to dance her giddy round:
"A vice that 'ſpite of laws and and reaſon reigns"
And too oft beats in croſs'd inamorato's veins.
"So tis thro' life"——e'en every chagrin'd dupe is ſo;
Some ſilly freak transforms a friend into foe.

I am Gentlemen, yours &c.

The DISPUTE adjuſted.

Animadverſions upon Thoughts on Government, as they relate to the diſputes about American colonies.

THE author of a late Publication, entitled, Thoughts on the origin and nature of government, &c. appears to be egregiouſly miſtaken in his firſt idea of the diſputes between Great Britain and her colonies. For he begins his pamphlet with ſaying,—"the queſtion whether the legiſlative power of Great-Britain has a right to tax its American Colonies? is a queſtion of all others the moſt important Thoſe who compare it to that which was diſcuſſed at the Revolution, do not ſufficient juſtice to its importance; for it is not concerning the forms of our conſtitution, or the ſhare which this or that man, or this or that family ſhould have in the ſupreme government; but whether there ſhould be any ſupreme government at all?

Now this is far from being a true ſtating of the caſe, it has no foundation in the moſt explicite and extenſive claims made by the Americans. In all their addreſſes, they avow a ſubjection to the Britiſh government; and by no means, deſire to throw off their allegiance or dependance on Great Britain. All they aſk, is, to have their charter-rights and privileges uninjured, which they have long enjoyed; and to have an equal ſhare of liberty with the moſt loyal Britiſh ſubjects. If this they have with them the law of reaſon, truth, and equity; which they have made conſpicuous, in their very nervous and pathetic pleadings with the Britiſh adminiſtration.

Among the many defences of their juſt claims, there are two home publications, that contain unanſwerable arguments in favour of the colonies, viz. An inquiry into the nature and cauſes of the preſent diſputes between the Britiſh colonies in America and the mother country.—and the caſe of Great Britain and America, addreſſed to the King and both houſes of parliament. In the latter is clearly ſhewn, 'that the colonies of every popular, mixed, and free government preſerving their duty, have a right to be free;—and that if our dominion over Americans be founded only in our ſtrength, it will ſubſiſt no longer than their weakneſs. It is therefore evident, that we ſhall hold America by a better ſecurity if we do not enſlave it. Nor is it by any means certain, that even our preſent emoluments would be leſs, if we extort nothing from them againſt their own conſent; for even in the laſt war they incurred a debt of 2,600 000l. Without aſſuming a deſpotic authority over them which is intolerable to human nature, we may yet retain a power amaſingly extenſive. A power over the commerce of a nation, affects the merchant, the Innholder the manufacturer. Tho' we cannot dive into their purſes, to wreſt from them, what they have already acquired, we can prevent their future acquiſitions. Nay, we can do more; we can make what they poſſeſs already leſs valuable by its ſtagnation. Tho' the power of granting belongs ſolely to themſelves, they will yet have but little to refuſe. Let this content us, that the ſea, the common benefit of mankind, may be denied them, that the labour of their hands, the ſtrength and the ingenuity which nature has beſtowed upon them, ſhall be converted to our purpoſes; but for our own ſakes, let us not diſcourage that induſtry, which is to benefit ourſelves; what we permit them to acquire, let that be their own.'

Thus is the queſtion fairly and fully ſtated, as it relates to the diſpute between Great Britain and her colonies. But as the author of the 'Thoughts on Government' has made the repreſentation, it has all the ſtrong features of falſehood upon it; and notwithſtanding his reproachful freedom taken with that brave people, the coloniſts of America have been incapable of any conſpiracy with one King or another, in order to obtain a diſpenſation from the laws of the land, or the authority of parliament; but, on the contrary, have made it appear they have both better read and underſtood Algernon Sidney and Locke on government, and have infinitely more juſt notions of it than the author of the Thoughts ever had.

To ſpeak my mind with the freedom of a proteſtant Briton, the taxation ſcheme, and the coercive meaſures with Americans, I fear may prove a ſcheme, which can ſerve no purpoſes but thoſe of ſhaking the pillars of a Proteſtant ſyſtem, and of giving the enemies of Britain every advantage over us. Aſſured I am that by the ordinances made for the province of Quebec, 1764, under G———r M———y, much more indulgence is given to the Canadians—for even in eſtabliſhing courts of Judicature, the judges in the court of King's-bench have a latitude given them beyond what the laws of England require—This being the expreſs conceſſion which gives them an authority paramomunt to thoſe laws—"the judges in this court are to determine agreeable to equity, having regard nevertheleſs to the laws of England, as far as the circumſtances and preſent ſituation of things will admit, until ſuch time as proper ordinances for the information of the people can be eſtabliſhed by the Governor and Council, agreeable to the laws of England."—Here is an open conceſſion made in favour of Canadians, but then, they are Papiſts—how unfortunate for N—w-E———d it cannot plead the merit of equal indulgence from their circumſtaces and preſent ſituation! I am, your's &c.

Hartford County,

My Friends.

I HAVE taken much pains to find out the foundation of our growing poverty; and among the many conjectures (ſo many as are about perpetual motion) I fix it upon litigation; rather than in ſupporting miniſters of the goſpel, which is but poorly done in this colony. Now if my conjecture be right, the new-lights ought to omit ſpewing out ſuch invictives (as have too often filled up pages of the news-papers) againſt maintaining eccleſiaſtical officers by an annual ſtipend——'tis no reflection to ſay their conſciences are ſeared who refuſe paying 6ſ. per annum to the miniſters of the goſpel, and yet at the ſame time can conſiſtent with their tender conſciences pay £. 6 to the miniſters of the law; only to maintain a ſuit of but 5ſ. conſequence, thus men act, to gain this world, and conſcienciouſly loſe their ſouls.——I ſay litigation is the cauſe of our growing poverty, nakedneſs, and frigid confinement. In this county are 52 miniſters of the goſpel, their annual ſalleries upon a medium is £. 60, and therefore £. 3620 pays all theſe miniſters. The general liſt of this county is about £. 500,000, and 7 farthings on the pay will amount to £. 3620, ſo that every man whoſe liſt is £. 100, pays 14/7 by the year, for ſupport of the goſpel miniſters——and many men ſay it grieves their conſcience to be forced to pay any thing to the miniſters of the goſpel, yet I never heard one of them complain of their conſcience being offended when their neighbours forced them into the law, but can conſcienciouſly fight their antagoniſts by paying money to defend their temporal intereſt, thus they prefer mammon before the ſeed of the ſpirit. O conſcience! thou unintelligable phantom, waſting on the tongue of hypocrites and living in the ſouls of ſaints once view, and once come among us, that we may be ſeperates no more——in this county we have twenty miniſters of the law or lawyers I viewed the docket, I found 77 actions for the ſuperior court laſt term, the county and jury fees in each action 46/6, total £. 1790-6 4 lawyers to each action, and 6 dollars to each lawyer, £. 3 8 0, allow 6 evidences to each action makes 462 witneſſes, each upon a medium coſt £. 2-0-0, total £. 924——Plaintiffs & Defendants 154, coſt £. 308——77 copies from the county clerk, £. 23 2 0 and many other trifles, total £. 1742-2-6. Plaintiffs bill of coſt here follows, a writ £. 1 4 0 conſtable 60ſ. two lawyers 16ſ. Plaintiffs travel and attendance 26/2, 12 evidences travel and attendance £. 23-1 4 42 copies 42ſ. 21 affidavits 62ſ. Total, £. 34 12 6. The defendant appealed to the ſuperior court, where were 119 actions to be tried in ten days, when all parties attended out that ſeſſions; and then 'twas continued to the next, when all parties appeared as before; and then 'twas again continued, with 77 other ſuits, and then come to a trial, and upon a demurer, the plaintiff loſt his cauſe. The defendant's bill amounted to £. 64 0 9, being not half the coſt he had been out, but alſo the plaintiff has money yet. He petitions for another trial—'twas granted. To court all parties come as before. It was continued by reaſon of a multitude of actions, from court to court, and accounting from the beginning, the 9th court gave judgment in favour of the plaintiff that he ſhould recover 200 acres of wood land and his coſt. Now double the firſt bill, taxed £. 34 12 6 nine times, and it is 311-6-8, and this is but the bill on one ſide, and out of this ſum 60l. for the lawyers for one caſe; and ſuppoſe 77 actions to go on in this manner, among thoſe 20 lawyers, at ſix courts in one year, and three for the next half year, then theſe 20 lawyers divide the ſtock, 4640l. each lawyer ſhares 232l. for 18 month's ſervice, while each miniſter of the goſpel ſhares but 90l. for the ſame length of time; and yet one half is not told you, for 'tis too common that at a county court, the docket contains above 2600 actions, that is to ſay, 4000 for 20 lawyes, for only 14 days. One thing may be here obſerved, that theſe lawyers whoſe ſallaries in common are 600l. per ann. cannot bear with thoſe hierlings that divine for money, and hate nothing like an over wealthy prieſt. What will be the end of theſe things? See the defendant, who loſt his caſe, you will have the anſwer. He has left his native friends, his wife and children to the mercy of the public—and the plaintiff is ſcratching his head for anguiſh, is fored to ſell his new acquired land at 11/ per acre being worth 40/, then his negro's, and laſt of all his patrimony and is ſettled in Coas where lawyers and litigation cannot live———now the Plaintiff and Defendant can live together, can meditate on death and the benefits of peace and love, and the prieſt is their deareſt friend on earth.

I next preſent you with a landlords bill—horſe-keeping one night 1/6 lodging 4d ſupper breakfaſt, and dinner, 2/10, half a dram 4d pottle of oats 4d, ditto for five days, & then ſix days horſe hire, ferry, and time makes up the ſum of 3l for one evidence—upon the whole this diſtructive method is peculiar to this colony, whoſe inhabitants juſtly boaſt the higheſt privileges, who ſing the ſong of liberty and property and whoſe practices are moſt abuſive and fatal to all expected happineſs—complain of miniſters of the goſpel ſtarving your children after viewing this account, if you can, and uſe a good conſcience out of malice to your innocent neighbour in giving more than you can ſpare from your family to the miniſters of the civil law to intercede for you before a judge and jury, whoſe breath is in their noſtrils and whoſe ways are the ways of peace and love, and whoſe ſalvation will be imperfect at their final tryal, when every ſecret demurrer and perverſe ſtep ſhall be diſcloſed, then ſhall every change and chance be overwhelmed with the government of perfection and faithful ſervants of God ſhall ſhine as the ſtars forever, ſaith

LAZARUS.

From the BOSTON GAZETTE.

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

THE Reſolves lately publiſhed in our Papers of the Lords, it is ſaid were introduced into the Houſe by L—H——h, and ſeconded by the D. of B——d; but were oppos'd among others by the Duke of R——d and Lord Sh——ne. Lord Sh——ne ſaid he had his ſentiments of American affairs, which he reſerved to the time when thoſe affairs would come before the houſe in a more important view. The Duke of R———d ſpoke ſtrongly againſt the reſolves, and appealed to their L—ps whether it was equitable, or could tend to the honor of that auguſt body, or give to the Americans at this critical ſeaſon, an advantageous and reſpectful idea of the Britiſh government, to decide upon ſuch important queſtions when accounts that lay before them, were all from one ſide, and whole realms were to be condemn'd unheard; without being allowed any opportunity of refuting or alleviating the charges laid againſt them, or even knowing what thoſe charges were.———This weighty objection it ſeems did not prevent the paſſing the Reſolves; though we cannot find that any ſatisfactory reply to it, from the principles of reaſon and equity, or the ſpirit of the Britiſh conſtitution, ſo favourable to the ſubject, and mild to the accuſed.

The M———y greatly wanted, and no doubt ſtrenuouſly exerted themſelves to procure a ſ——h at the opening of parliament, and ſuch reſolutions from both houſes, as might prove a ſanction to their own impolitic and violent meaſures reſpecting America. To whoſe miſrepreſentations, theſe ruinous meaſures to both countries, are principally owing, no one is at a loſs to determine. A dark Cabal here, have left no means unemployed, to beguile the leading men in the Britiſh government into theſe meaſures and to create a pretence, a very falſe one indeed, for enforcing them into a military power. A———n has fallen into the ſnare; and aſhamed to confeſs its own weakneſs; and not knowing how to make an honorable retreat, fly to P———t for protection. It is certain that among ſixty papers, laid before the Lords, which are alſo to come before the Commons, more than thirty Letters were from G———r B——d to the ſecretary of State.

Some among us are of opininion that theſe reſolutions, as we have ſeen no copy publiſhed by Authority, muſt be ſpurious; for they can not ſuppoſe that a majority of the houſe of L—ds would ever ſo ſeverely condemn the Circular letter of the Maſſachuſetts Houſe of Aſſembly, which implies nothing but a right in Britiſh ſubjects to unite in humble Supplications to the Throne. Good GOD! If this is denied us, this laſt refuge of the miſerable, what have we left!

It is alſo deemed highly improbable that any one ſhould dare, ſo far to impoſe upon ſuch an auguſt aſſembly, as to lead them to call the letter of the Selectmen to the ſeveral towns a PRECEPT, when it aſſum'd no ſhadow of authority; and to condemn a large number of as loyal ſubjects as any in the Britiſh Empire, for meeting together to recognize and ſtrengthen the authority of government, to petition their ſovereign under their grievances, and to promote order and a good temper among their fellow ſubjects; towards all which ſalutary purpoſes their meeting was known to have a happy influence at a very critical ſeaſon. Whatever grounds there may or may not be for ſuch ſeppoſitions, we are told by our friends on the other ſide the water, that ſome of the reſolves of the Lords, will meet with oppoſition in the houſe of Commons. But even the copy of them that has appear'd here is far from being pleaſing to the Cabal: They ſuppoſe that all the reſolutions except the laſt are deſign'd to lie in the journals, and have all their effect there; they find nothing ſaid of disfranchiſing the town of Boſton, of annulling the conſtitutional aſſemblies of the ſeveral towns, of vacating provincial charters, and appointing the council of the Maſſachuſetts by the King, &c—This is the game at which they have play'd, and in which they are greatly diſappointed.

The laſt reſolve, which all the foregoing were deſign'd to introduce, perplexes and chagrins them: There is a formal addreſs of the Lords beſeeching the King, to require the Governor of the Maſſachuſetts to do, what is not only his indiſpenſible duty; but that of every good ſubject. According to this reſolve it ſeems their Lordſhips, with all the artful and aggravated accounts of G. B before them, cannot as yet find any ſatisfactory evidence of treaſon or miſpriſon of treaſon—They appear to have expected this, but the proof fails. They therefore ſupplicate his Majeſty to require Governor Bernard to make farther enquiry—This is particularly diſtreſſing to the Cabal; Their whole force now lies before Parliament, and ſo far are they from being able to make any addition to it, that plain and indiſputable facts, if attended to, muſt invalidate what they have already offerte.———When we reflect upon the treatment America in General, and this province in particular has receiv'd, and trace methods by which the Great have been abuſed, and the whole Empire ſhaken———What boſom burns not in it's Country's Cauſe?

CHARLES TOWN. (S. Carolina) Feb. 20.

Extract of letters from London, dated November 10.

" There had been a motion in the houſe of Commons for altering the addreſs propoſed, in which the Commons thank his Majeſty for having taken ſuch ſteps as he judged neceſſary for ſupporting the conſtitution, and repreſſing the diſorders which happened at Boſton; but as ſome gentlemen doubted the propriety of ſome of thoſe meaſures, they were of opinion, they ought not to return thanks for the meaſures taken, until they knew from authority what they were; and therefore Mr. Dowdeſwell moved that, inſtead of the paragraph of thanks for the ſteps taken, the Houſe ſhould aſſure his Majeſty, that they would immediately take into conſideration the ſteps which had been taken, not doubting however, in the mean time, but that ſuch had been purſued as ſhould be tho't to be prudent and proper, for the ſuppreſſion of the attempt made againſt the authority of government, and in ſupport of the conſtitution: among other things it was ſaid, a mandate from a Secretary of State, to diſſolve an aſſembly for non compliance with an order or requiſition from a Secretary of State, carried with the appearance of an attempt towards the exerciſe of a power over the people in the colonies, which the Commons of Great-Britain would never approve or countenance: and Mr. Grenville was of the ſame opinion, adding, that it was the duty of the houſe to ſuperintend the meaſures of Miniſters, and to prevent the ſubjects of the colonies from being aggrieved by unjuſtifiable acts of power ſhewn them by any miniſter and therefore approved of the alteration propoſed: but as the miniſtry had declared tere was nothing in the words of the addreſs offered, which could preclude gentle gentlemen from having an account of the meaſures directed, and to give their opinion thereon when laid before them, it was hoped that the alteration moved for would be withdrawn: Mr. Dowdeſwell declining to comply therewith, a queſtion was put, whether the words objected to in the addreſs offered ſhould ſtand part of the ſame, it was carried in the affirmative. The propriety of the repeal of the Stamp Act was attacked; but Mr. Burke in a very able ſpeech, ſupported that meaſure, tho' he choſe to confine himſelf to the ground of commercial intereſts, diſclaiming any other foundation thereof. Enough was ſaid, from all quarters, to diſcourage the leaſt poſſible hope in America of a repeal of the late duty act, until duly ſubmitted to, and then only upon the conſideration of a grievance, in point of burthen upon the people, that, whenever a repeal ſhould take place, the principle thereof might not be miſtaken in America. Enough was alſo ſaid to manifeſt, that the matter of billetting Soldiers in the colonies by act of parliament will never be receded from. The inhabitants of the Maſſachuſetts, to provid themſelves with arms, &c. from an apprehenſion of an approaching war with France, made a great impreſſion upon the minds of the members, and it was urged to be treaſon againſt the ſtate in the perſons voting that requeſted ſo that, in this conjuncture of things the houſe would not aſſent to a propoſition for a repeal of the billetting clauſe in the mutiny act.

Boſton, April 13.

On Tueſday laſt came on before the Superior Court of Judicature for this Province, the Trial of Badger, Donelly, and Carmichale, for wilfully ſetting fire to the Goal in this Town, with an intent to burn it, when they were all three acquitted.—They were next day tried for a Miſdemeanor, for ſetting fire to it, with Intention to make their Eſcape, and found guilty.

HARTFORD, April 17.

From Eaſt-Windſor 1ſt Pariſh, we hear that a ſmall number of Young Women, in a particular neighbourhood in that place, were very buſy with their ſpinning-wheels on the 5th inſt. at evening they preſented to Miſs Perry Conſort of the Rev. Joſeph Perry, 49 runs of well wrought Yarn, as the product of that days Induſtry, and a teſtimony of their good will. An example this of female induſtry, and generoſity, that juſtly deſerves notice, & can't but be applauded by the Public. One of thoſe young women, that day carded, and that very well, ten pounds of tow.

Meſſieurs Edes and Gill,

Pleaſe to publiſh the following Addreſs to the Inhbitants of North America.

March 28th, 1769.

My Country-Men,

THE terrible ſtrides that tyranny has lately made acroſs the atlantic, and the bold attemps to enſlave this, yet free people, are truly alarming; if we would therefore yet be free (for it is yet in our power) let us of every province have but one general view, and unitedly oppoſe every attempt to enſlave us. It is poſſible to put it out of the power of our enemies to injure us, even without coming to blows. Oeconomy, frugality and ſetting up new manufactures, with non importation of the infinite number of articles which are wholly luxurious, baubles, &c. all which were they to be enumerated, would more than fill this and ſeveral other ſheets, would effectually do it: If a prudent œconomy and frugality were obſerved in every family throughout this vaſt continent, I am perſwaded it would leſſen the import, full one thired, the conſequence would be non imployment for the manufacturers in foreign countries, eſpecially in that country, where they are trying their utmoſt to bring us into a ſtate of abject ſlavery; this would be ſuch a ſaving of money as would ſave our country. Another conſequence would be frequent emigrations of tradeſmen, mechanics, and huſbandmen, which would introduce new manufactures amongus, and teach us the beſt methods of cultivating our lands. We ſhould firſt of all attend to eſtabliſh the manufacturing ſuch things as are ſubject to the preſent unconſtitutional duties. Every free man ought to have an abhorrence not only of the modus of this new taxation, but alſo of the application of the money when collected. But to return to œconomy, &c we already make paper here that is very good, and by picking up the loſt materials which we have in great plenty, we might in time make much more than we conſume (Break Tow I mean) a few more revenue acts would work miracles, would turn break tow into Demi, and Imperial Paper; but why can't we improve this valuable, (tho' worſe than waſted) material without being driven to it?—If ſome friend to his country would with great plaineſs and implicity publiſh an acount of the marchinery and proceſs of making paper, as we have ſo many ingenious mill-wrights about in the country, and ſo many good ſtreams, I doubt not but that we ſhould ſoon have a number of paper-mills erected, and this (at preſent uſeleſs) article become a moſt uſeful material. As for the other tows, hackling and ſwingling, they are too valuable for this uſe, the firſt is near as good as the flax, differing in nothing from it but in the length of the fibres; and the latter is not ſhorter but only coarſer, and is in great demand for the ſpinning wheel, which muſt by all means be kept going. The reaſon why the break tow is not ſpun, is becauſe the labour in preparing it for the wheel is ſo much that it would be dearer than flax, beſides the ſhortneſs of the fibre (which renders it more fit for paper) makes it leſs for yarn, not having ſufficient ſtrength.—In ſhort there is no difference between breaking tow when thoro'ly cleanſed, (which may be ſufficiently done by a common flail, on a floor in a briſk dry wind, frequently ſhaking out the chaff to the wind, which will carry it off) and the very fineſt flax, except it be in length. It is neceſſary that this rough material ſhould be cheap, therefore (with ſubmiſſion to better judgment) that it may be had cheap, 'tis beſt for the manufacturer to collect it himſelf, rough as it is, as it would coſt nothing at preſent, unleſs a few coppers given to children to ſave it. The manufacturer having it near a ſtream, and at certain ſeaſons, his workmen unemployed, he may be making frequent experiments about bleaching, cleanſing, &c. as he (who is beſt judge) may think fit. I would therefore propoſe in the firſt place, that coarſe paper may be made for packages of Loaf Suger, &c. next experiment may be a little finer, prehaps paper for rooms to be painted or ſtained, and ſo by degrees to riſe even to the fineſt paper, if it will bear; but this I entirely ſubmit, and ſhould be glad the public had better directions. I leave this ſubject at preſent, and ſhall hint at another which to me appears worthy public notice,—'Tis notorious that at preſent this country does not produce wool enough, a propoſal then that will help us to as many coarſe woollen goods as could be made from the fleeces of ten thouſand ſheep (in one province only) might be well accepted. Query then, If all the caſt off tattered woollen clothes in this province were collected and manufactured in the manner paper is made, tho' matted in larger pieces, it would not fully ſupply this province at leaſt with floor carpets, perhaps ſome coarſe bed cloths?

Let us voluntarily, my countrymen, now, and with vigour, enter upon the ſcheme of living more within ourſelves, and let it not be ſaid of us, that neceſſity and not virtue has put us upon frugality and œcononmy.

AMERICUS.

From the Providence Gezette of March 4.

Being a Spectator at the Sitting of the Aſſembly at Providence, I had an Opportunity of hearing the public Letters read: Among others, one in particular excited my Curioſity. I therefore took it down in Characters, from which I wrote the whole at large, and having heard the ſame read a ſecond time, you may be aſſured the following is a correct Copy. As it is of a pretty extraordinary Nature, you are requeſted to inſert it in your uſeful Paper.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

From the Connecticut Journal, &c.

Meſſ. Greens,

You will oblige many of your readers by giving the following remarks upon a piece ſigned L. H. a place in your paper.

THE author of this piece tells the world he there publiſhes the genuine method adopted by the Hulls, in the cure of the bilious collick, and ſays he does it from a principle of benevolence to mankind; and as every man ought to be beſt acquainted with his own heart, I am not in a diſpoſition to diſpute his ſincerity: However, I dare ſay, there may criticks be found, who will charge this gentleman with a manifeſt contradiction, when he ſays he has a long time wiſhed that ſome one of the family of the Hulls, would be ſo generous as to publiſh the method they uſed in the cure of this diſeaſe, but has ever wiſhed for it in vain; and yet in the next ſentence declares, that himſelf and the world are beholden to one of this family for the knowlege of the method he here undertakes to publiſh. He does not pretend he was born with this ſkill himſelf, but declares he had it from one of the family, whom he before affirms never to have publiſhed it; and indeed the leſs candid may even diſpute his ſincerity, as he has given ſome ſmall occaſion at leaſt for it, by his treatment of the Hulls; for, as in the caſe above, he both condemns and acquits them; ſo again he courts them one breath, calling them a worthy family, & in the next charges them with acting beneath the character either of chriſtians or gentlemen: Which conduct recalls to my mind the ſtory of Joab, who took Amaſa by the beard with one hand to kiſs him, and ſtabed him with the other. But tho' his ſincerity ſhould remain unimpeached, yet the publick will do well to conſider, whether his zeal for their good is according to knowlege.

In another obſervation our author tells us, he is not about to recommend the Hulls method in the cure of the colick to be the beſt. But a juſt reply to this is, that their method cannot ſtand in need of his recommendation, to give it reputation with the publick, ſince it has been practiſed with ſuch general ſucceſs in all parts of the country, for more than ninety years paſt. But L. H. has ſuggeſted, that as people are much prejudiced in favour of this method, ſo many lives have been loſt for no other cauſe than the Hulls keeping it a ſecret. It is replied, that it is well known that many of the practitioners in the colony pretend to be maſters of Hulls ſkill; and it is the opinion of the judicious, that a greater proportion of lives, by far, have been loſt thro' the injudicious practice of theſe falſe pretenders, than by the diſtance traveled to procure men really ſkilled in the diſeaſe. And as many lives have doubtleſs been already loſt, by ſuch falſe pretences, ſo was I not of opinion that the method L. H. here publiſhes, would be productive of ſtill greater ill conſequences, I had paſſed it unnoticed: And I now declare upon the faith of an honeſt man, that however, our author might obtain his receipt, it is not genuine, nor agreeable to any method ever yet adopted by the Hulls; and it is my opinion, that it will, if practiſed, be a prejudice and not a benefit to mankind; and really, tho' he reflects bitterly upon the Hulls, for making their ſkill in this diſeaſe a noſtrum, yet he has the ſame reaſon to cenſure doctor Bateman, Lockyer, Godfrey and others, on account of their arcana nay even his Majeſty himſelf for ſupporting them in ſuch a practice. Upon the whole, if any lives have been loſt by reaſon that the Hulls ſkill was kept a ſecret the blame ought not to lie on them, but on the falſe pretenders to their ſkill; for the Hulls, and the maſters of their art, have ever practiſed and are ſtill ready to furniſh every judicious practitioner in the country with their powder, and direct them how to apply it, provided they will acknowlege the truth, viz. that they have not got this ſkill and will ſubmit to be inſtructed by them, which if they are honeſt men, and real friends to the publick good, they muſt be convinced is a conduct infinitely more becoming them and every good man, than to pretend to that knowledge which they have not the leaſt foundation to claim. BOSTON, April 3

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London, of the 2d of January 1769.

—"Would you believe that the mean ſcandalous dirty fellows, beſides their public memorial againſt Mr. F———r, repreſented him as, not only unfaithful in his office, but that he was concerned in trade & ſmuggling The falſehood of which was ſo immediately made to appear, that he was inſtantly reinſtated, with a ſmart reprimand to thoſe that had diſplaced and miſrepreſented him. And I am told, a hint that will cool their courage in dirty plans for the future, notwithſtanding they wrote the T— that their influence and authority at leaſt, (if not their exiſtence in office) very much depended upon the determination of their L———ps in this matter. Mr. F—— is but this day arrived, and I hear that his friends, (the D. of Malbro' and Ld Rockingham) mean to ſtir further in the affair, when ſomething more worth communicating may tranſpire, which you ſhall have by Davis. Mr. T———k is alſo his warm friend, and is very wroth about the treatment he has met with —Several of theſe gentlemen's memorials, together with many of G. B——'s letters and papers have been laid before P——t the purport of ſome of them I have heard, and they are curious indeed, beyond deſcription. No doubt they'll all be publiſhed, when ſome individuals on your ſide the water will find themſelves mentioned with much freedom indeed ——Should G———t think proper to put the writers of theſe letters and papers to the proof of what they have repreſented, it may be found a very diſagreeable buſineſs. For I have it from very good authority, that G———t now begin to ſmell a rat, and are well diſpoſ'd to make a thorough enquiry into the conduct of their own ſervants on your ſide of the water."

Reflections on Patriotiſm.

SUPERIOR talents and ſuperior rank amongſt our fellow creatures, whether acquired by birth, or by the courſe of accidents, and ſucceſs of our own induſtry, are noble prerogatives. Shall he who poſſeſſes them repine at the obligation they lay him under of paſſing his whole life in the nobleſt occupation of which human nature is capable? To what higher ſtation, to what greater glory can any mortal aſpire than to be, during the whole courſe of his life, the ſupport of good, the controul of bad Government, and the Guardian of public Liberty?

Neither Monteigne in writing his Eſſays, nor Des Cartes in building new Worlds, nor Burnet in framing an antideluvian Earth, no nor Newton in diſcovering and eſtabliſhing the true Laws of Nature on experiment and ſublimer Geometry, felt more intellectual joys than he feels who is a real Patriot; who bends all the force of his underſtanding, and directs all his thoughts and actions, to the good of his country. When ſuch a man forms a political ſcheme, and adjuſts various and ſeemingly independant parts in it to one great and good deſign, he is tranſported by imagination, or abſorbed in meditation, as much and as agreeably as they; and the ſatisfaction that ariſes from the different importance of theſe objects, in every ſtep of the work, is vaſtly in his favour. It is here that the ſpeculative Philoſopher's labour & pleaſure end. But he who ſpeculates in order to act, goes on, and carries his ſcheme into execution; his labour continues, it varies, it increaſes, but ſo does his pleaſure too. The execution indeed, is often traverſed by unforeſeen and antoward circumſtances, by the perverſeneſs of friends, and by the power of enemies; but the firſt and laſt of theſe animate, and the docility and fidelity of ſome men for the perverſeneſs and treachery of others. Whilſt a great event is in ſuſpenſe the action warms, and the very ſuſpenſe, made up of hope and fear, maintains no unpleaſing agitation in the mind. If the event is decided ſucceſsfully, ſuch a man enjoys pleaſure proportionable to the good he has done; a pleaſure like to that which is attributed to the ſupreme Being on a ſurvey of his works. If the event is decided otherwiſe, and uſurping Courts or overbearing parties prevail, ſuch a man has ſtill the teſtimony of his conſcience, and a ſenſe of the honor he has acquired to ſooth his mind and ſupport his courage. For altho' the courſe of ſtate affairs be to thoſe who meddle in them like a lottery, yet it is a lottery wherein no good man can be a loſer; He may be reviled, it is true, inſtead of being applauded, and may ſuffer violence of many kinds. I will not ſay, like Seneca, that the nobleſt ſpectacle which God can behold, is a virtuous man ſuffering and ſtruggling with afflictions; but this I will ſay, that the ſecond Cato driven out of the Forum, and dragged to priſon, enjoyed more inward pleaſure, and maintained more outward dignity, than they who inſulted him, and who triumphed in the ruin of their country.

Et cæca cupiditate corrupti, non intelligunt ſe dum vendunt, et venire.

VIENNA, January 11.

LETTERS from Conſtantinople of the 16th of December adviſe, that the Engliſh Ambaſſador there had delivered a ſecond memorial to the porte, in order to procure the liberty of the Sieur Obreſkow the Ruſſian Reſident. He therein repreſented, that in caſe the ſaid Reſident, who is known to be in a very bad ſtate of health, ſhould happen to die, the public would look upon that event to have been premeditated by the Government, which would bring upon the porte the reproach of all other powers; and that beſides, if during the courſe of the war, any Ottoman Nobleman, ſhould be taken priſoner by the Ruſſians, he would be expoſed, by way of a repriſal, to the ſame fate. Theſe remonſtrances have produced this good effect, that the Ruſſian Reſident and his retinue have been removed to the houſe of the keeper of the Caſtle of the Seven Towers, where they are much more happily lodged.

Conſtantinople, Dec. 16. The ardour with which the preparations of war are carried on with Ruſſia, makes it ſufficiently apparent that the Porte pays very little regard to the inſinuations of the miniſters from ſome foreign powers who would inſpire her with pacifick ſentiments. The authority of the new Grand Vizir is very great, beſides a very numeros retinue the chancery of ſtate, the department of the finances, and ſeveral other public offices, with all the ſtate papers from the beginning of the preſent century, are ordered to follow him; the offices of the department of foreign affairs have received the ſame orders, greatly to the diſatisfaction of the miniſters, who reſide here, from the Chriſtian powers, who are by this order obliged to ſend their chief interpreter to the army, beſides the delay of public buſineſs, which muſt naturally enſue.

A body of 7000 men, commanded by Hali Bey, and another of 6000, commanded by Fieſch Ullā Pacha, Beglerbey of Natolia, are upon the march, and expected ſoon at Adrianople. The reſt of the Aſiatic troops are to embark near the Dardanelles, in order to be tranſported by the Black Sea to Gallipoli, becauſe they do too much miſchief when they paſs through the ſuburbs of this capital. We learn from all parts of the empire, that the ſeveral commanders in chief, vie with each other in providing the moſt coſtly field equipages, in order to appear with ſplendor.

The Grand Signor has demanded of the Jews, Greeks and Armenians, eſtabliſhed in this city, a contribution of 650,000 paſters.

Peterſburg, Dec 30. The diligence with which the troops of the Empreſs are ſupplied with all ſorts of neceſſaries, gives us hopes that they will be able to open the campaign before the Turks, and even to carry the ſeat of war into their territories. It is aſſured that Prince Repnin, our ambaſſador at Warſaw, will be recalled from thence. The empreſs will certainly continue to entertain a perfect good underſtanding with the King, and the ſoundeſt part of the Republic of Poland, her imperial majeſty having the defence of that kingdom as much at heart as that of her own.

Warſaw, Jan. 7. Even the Turks are ſtruck with Horror at the Barbarities daily committed by the Confederates upon the Diſſidents; the body of Capt. Godin, who was murdered by the Confederates of Bar, continued without burial for ſeveral days, and was expoſed by thoſe Barbarians to be devoured by dogs.

Madrid, Jan 9 The Court has received advice, that on the 15th of October, a terrible ſtorm happened at the Havanna, which continued for three hours. Near 1000 perſons loſt their lives. Among whom were great Numbers of negroes; moſt of the Sugar plantations were entirely deſtroyed: and moſt of the ſhips upon the coaſt were driven on ſhore. The damage is computed at 3,000 000 Piaſters.

Paris, Jan. 15. It is ſaid that ſeveral of our Officers of Artillery have obtained leave to ſerve in the Turkiſh army; that is, to act againſt the Ruſſians.

LONDON,

Jan. 11. By letters from Vienna we are aſſured, that the Pacha of Boſnia, commander of the Turkiſh troops in the province Montenero, has ſettled matters on an amicable footing with Stephano the celebrated adventurer.

Jan. 19. It is ſaid, that by the death of the late Mrs. Mead, a fortune of near 100,000*l. devolves to the wife and daughter of John Wilkes, Eſq;*

The friends of the colonies and nation in general, are in high ſprits, as affairs are ſaid to be likely to terminate to the mutual ſatisfaction of all parties.

Jan. 19. The laſt letters from Warſaw ſay, "All the advices we receive from the frontiers next to Turkey agree, that there are no Tartars at this ſide the Nieſter, that the Confederates of Bar who are rettuned into Podolia, are not more than 500 in number, and that they commit no exceſſes."

Jan. 26. At a meeting held yeſterday of a conſiderable number of the electors of the city and liberty of Weſtminſter, at the great room over Exeter Exchange in the Strand, the following inſtructions to the Right Hon. Earl Percy and the H. Edwin Sandy, Repreſentatives in Parliament for that city and liberty, were agreed to, and are to be preſented to them by a committee of the electors appointed for that purpoſe:

"Gentlemen,

"We the electors of the city & liberty of Weſtminſter, direct and inſtruct you our Repreſentatives in Parliament,

Firſt, To endeavour to continue to us, and to confirm our old conſtitutional rights of Juries, to the general excluſion of proceedings by information and attachment.

Second, To promote a ſtrict parliamentary inquiry into the tranſactions of the military in St. Georges's fields, on Tueſday the 10th of May laſt.

Third, To promote a like inquiry into the riot and murders committed at Brentford on the eighth of laſt December.

Fourth, To examine into the adminiſtration of juſtice in this city and liberty, particularly into the preſent ſtate of the commiſſion of the peace,

Fifth, As far as in your power, to promote an enquiry into the rights of the public to the teritorial revenue ariſing from the conqueſts in India.

Sixth, And we do ſtrongly inſiſt, that you never ceaſe your endeavours to promote a parliamentary inquiry into the caſe and grievances of John Wilkes, Eſq; and to vindicate and ſupport the rights of the people who have elected him their Repreſentative."

At the above meeting Mr. Humphry Coates being preſent, was called on to take the Chair, which in compliance with the Gentlemen's requeſt he did. Mr. Martyn, Attorney, then moved the above ſucceſſively.

At this meeting there was but one diſſenting voice.

NOTICE is hereby given to the creditors of John Hopſon of Colcheſter an Inſolvent debtor to meet at the houſe of John Taintor Innho der in Colcheſter to receive their ſecond diviſion of ſaid Hopſon's eſtate from us the ſubſcribers on the 16th day of May next.

The following extraordinary Piece is taken from a late London Paper.

IN vindication of the ſtrong meaſures ſaid to be taking by adminiſtration for bringing back the colonies to their obedience to parliament, it is proper to acquaint the public with a few facts extracted from authentic papers.

It appears by a letter from Governor B—d that there are five hundred men enrolled in Boſton for the purpoſe of ſeizing upon Caſtle William.

The chief towns in the province of Connecticut and New Hampſhire, have concurted with the town of Boſton in all their reſolutions, and agreed to ſupport them at the hazard of their lives.

The merchants (not the mob) in New-York, obliged the captains of the tranſports Gen. Gage had hired to bring troops from the ſouthward, to break their charter parties, & the General could get none other to go up on the errand.

The people of Pennſylvania, defer joining with the people of Boſton in their reſolution to ſtop the trade, only until they ſee whether parliament will repeal duties.

The principal people in Virginia waited on Lord Bottetourt, immediately after his arrival, to inform him, that it was the determined and unanimous reſolution of the inhabitants to oppoſe by every legal method, the collection of the late duties, and to refuſe obedience to acts of parliament for levying money in the colonies.

Need it be added, that the Empreſs of Ruſſia charges the houſes of Auſtria and Burbon, with inſtigating the Turks to fall upon her, and that memorials are daily expected from Peterſburg and Berlin, reminding us of our Guarantee of Sileſia, and deſiring to know what part we will take, ſhould Auſtria and Bourbon attack it?

Diſpatches are neceſſary; but he that runs may read. Beware of the I'des of March.

CASSIUS.

LONDON.

Extract of a letter from Paris to a gentleman in London, dated Dec. 23.

—"You Engliſh conſider us French as enemies to liberty; You reproach us for endeavouring to reduce Corſica to our obedience, and ſay that if we heard of a free man on the other ſide of the globe, you ſuppoſe we ſhould haſten thither to make a ſlave of him. How eaſy it is for men to ſee the faults of others, while blind to their own! The Corſicans are not ſo remote from us as the Americans are from you;——they never enriched us by their labour or their commerce;——they never engaged in our wars, and fought as brothers, ſide by ſide with us, bleeding in the ſame cauſe; they never loved and honodred us; they are not our children. ——But all this your American coloniſts have been and are to you!——Yet at this very moment while you are abuſing us for attempting to reduce the Corſicans, you yourſelves are about to make ſlaves of a much greater number of thoſe Britiſh Americans: depriving them of their property by the authority of your laws; taking away the right of giving their own money; arbitrarily diſſolving their parliaments and dragooning their citizens. In ſhort, you appear to have no idea of liberty, or real deſire to ſee it flouriſh & increaſe: all the liberty you ſeem to value, is the liberty of abuſing your ſuperiors, and of tyranizing over thoſe below you."

The Stewart of one great man, and Agent of another, have both diſappeared on account of orders being given for taking them into cuſtody, for having hired ſome of the fellows concerned in the Brentford riot.

Jan. 19, It is ſaid a petition of a very ſingular nature has, within theſe few days, been ſent from America, to be delivered to a certain great perſonage.

Jan. 21. It is aſſured that Mr. Serjeant Glyn, the preſent truly worthy Repreſentative of Middleſex, having in part fulfilled his promiſe to the public, of "bringing the charge down to the hires and hired," is now furniſhed with ſufficient materials to fulfil his promiſe with reſpect to the former; in conſequence of which be it determined, that notwithſtanding their greatneſs, they ſhall not break the laws with impunity, no more than the unfortunate hirelings, which they employed and ſeduced to break the moſt ſacred laws of the community.

Jan. 24. There are many more perſons concerned in the late affair at Brentford, than may be either ſafe or prudent to mention. Theſe things muſt be left to time and Juſtice to diſcover and puniſh.

BOSTON, April. 20.

Since our laſt, the Captains Dixey and Skillings arrived at Marblehead, and the Captains Davis, Hood, Coffin, Galef, Bryant & Freeman arrived here from LONDON: Capt Galef had the ſhorteſt Paſſage, having brought Prints to the 19*th of March. By private letters by the above veſſels, we learn.*

THAT the Agents for the Colonies were determinnd to petition the houſe of Commons for the Repeal of the late Revenue Acts: We learn further, that there was no Deſign in the Miniſtry to put the Reſolves paſſed by the two Houſes into Execution by adviſing his Majeſty to iſſue a ſpecial Commiſſion, for trying Treaſon committed in the Colonies (if there had been any ſuch committed) in England.—That it was aſſerted in the Commons in the Courſe of the Debate upon theſe Reſolutions, that ſuch a Commiſſion never would nor conſiſtent with [illegible] Crown, be iſſued,—this was peremptorily and poſitively aſſerted and the Crown-Lawyers called upon to anſwer it.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, Feb. 26.

"ONE of your Friends in the Houſe called for the neat Produce of the new duties throughout the Colonies, and it did not appear they had produced One Shilling: that the Expence of Collecting was too great for the Income.—The Attorney-General declared there was no Treaſon nor Miſpriſion of Treaſon in the Papers now before the Houſe: which Papers are the Grounds of all the Proceedings."—

The day Capt. Calef left London it was ſaid, that American Affairs had been again taken up in Parliament; and that the Speeches were more in favour of America than at any Time ſince the Beginning of the Seſſions: By which it was tho't by ſome the Revenue Acts would ſoon be repealed; tho' by others it was imagined it would not be before the next Seſſion: It was the Opinion of the principal Merchants that the Reſolution of Non-importation of Goods would ſave us.

The Duke of Cumberland Packet, ſailed from Falmouth, for New-York, the 7th of March.

Capt. Johnſon in a Ship for this Place; and the Brig Triſtram, Shand, for Rhode-Iſland, ſailed from London the Beginning of March.

We hear the Manufacturers in England began to complain Loudly for want of Employ, occaſioned by the Exports to America falling prodigiouſly ſhort this Year.

The Reſolutions of the Aſſembly of New-York in November laſt, when received in England, gave great offence to the M------y, and upon reading them the Merchants there were adviſed to make no farther repreſentations in favor of the Americans.

The Editor of the Gentleman's Magazine ſays, tho' the American tranſactions may ſeem tedious at preſent, when every News-Paper is full of them, yet they will afford Materials for an important Part of the Hiſtory of the preſent Times.

HARTFORD, April 24.

We hear from a Neighbouring town, remarkable for their ſteadineſs in the cauſe of liberty, that in a late Company among other Loyal and patriotic Toaſts given out, was the following,

"May the Diſſolution of the late Boſton Aſſembly and the authors of it, be had in Everlaſting Remembrance, with the utmoſt abhorrence deteſtation and Reſentment, by all true friends of Great Britain, and America and there poſterity."

JOURNAL of OCCURRENCES,
In Boſton, ſince the Arrival of His Majeſty's Troops.

BOSTON, March 9.

THE Procedure of G. B. the C—m—rs, &c. with reſpect to the trade of this Province is ſuch, that the moſt juſt and impartial Repreſentation thereof muſt be the greateſt Reproach on their official conduct and Characters: The Appearance of Guarda Coſtas, and Cuſtom-Houſe Boats in our Harbour, and the Parade of Tide Waiters, Land Waiters, Surveyors, Searchers, and we know not what other Kinds of Cuſtom and Revenue Officers, on our Wharves, is uſeleſs, and is extravagantly ridiculous, as is that of the, Troops in our Streets and Commons.——All this may indeed lead Foreigners to conclude that the chief Part of our Commerce is really detrimental & ruinous to our Mother Country, and that it is intended wholly to annihilate it——The Error of the former Part of the concluſion, may be pointed out hereafter, but the verity of the latter muſt appear from the following Relations.——A ſmall Schooner from Maryland, with a Load of Corn, when coming into the Harbour, was at different Times, boarded with no leſs than four Boats from our Guards Coſtas, and ſearched and rummaged by thoſe Marine Cuſtom-Houſe Officers; and no ſooner had ſhe touched the Wharf, than four Land Tide Waiters, &c. took Poſſeſſion of her, for another Search, and to inſpect her unloading: Our other Proviſion Veſſels have been dealt with in much the ſame Manner. A Sloop from the Weſt Indies, laſt from the Vineyard, was no ſooner arrived in the Harbour, than one Manwaring, lately brought from Quebec, as a ſuitable Perſon to anſwer the Purpoſes of the C——m——rs, came on board, bringing a Number of other Officers as Aſſiſtants, who with dark Lanthorns, Gimblets Spears for the piercing of Casks, Spits and other Introduction, made a thorough Rummage and ſearch of the Hold and Cabbin, when happening to find a ſmall Caſe which contained ſcarce ſix Quarts of Foreign Spirits, Part of the Captain's Sea Stores, this faithful Officer thought himſelf obliged to carry off the ſame to his Employer; the Maſter then reported at the Cuſtom Houſe, all the Molaſſes which came in her from the Weſt Indies, together with 40lb. of Indigo upon Oath; informing at the ſame Time, that having received Damage to his Rudder, while at the Vineyard, he was obliged to take out Part of his Molaſſes, in order to repair the ſame; this it ſeems was conſtrued by the C——m——rs as breaking Bulk before an entry, and the Veſſel actually ſeized for the ſame, and the Owner thereby obliged to make a Journey to Boſton, of above one hundred Miles, at this difficult Seaſon for Travelling; the Cargo has been ſince releaſed, but the Owner is not yet certain that his Veſſel will not be libelled in a Court of Admiralty.

March 10. A Ship from Liſbon with a Load of Salt, owned as it is ſaid by Mr. Lane, of London, which has been arrived for ſome time, was the other Day ſeized, and taken Poſſeſſion of by order of the C——m——rs. It ſeems one of the Sailors had acquainted an Emiſſary of the B——d, that while the Ship was froze up at the Vineyard, Part of the Cargo had been ſold; Upon the ſtricteſt enquiry it appears that the Captain, had diſpoſed of a few Lemons, not more than 1500, and that this is the only pretence as yet made for the Seizure and Detention of ſaid Ship and Cargo.

March 11. A Veſſel from Maryland, loaded with Corn and other Grain, had a Number of Cuſtom-houſe Officers placed on board her, ſo ſoon as ſhe got to a Wharf, who proved that they were more ſagacious, than the Marine Officers, who had rummaged her hold before them; for in their Searches, they actually found about forty Pounds Weight of refuſe Tobacco, ſtuffed near the Maſts, ſcarce worth four Shillings Sterling, to prevent the Grain running into the Bilge Water, which has by the C——m——rs and their abettors, been thought a ſufficient Breach of the Acts of Trade, to juſtify their ſeizing and taking Poſſeſſion of ſaid Sloop——Whether more Tobacco, or any Thing elſe may be turned out, when ſhe is unloading, that has not been reported at the Cuſtom houſe, neither we nor the C——m——rs can as yet pretend to ſay: That Veſſels ſhould be ſeized and taken from their owners upon ſuch ſlight Pretences, in order to ſearch for Articles, upon which a Libel may be founded, and a condemnation obtained, we may venture to affirm, is a Practice not countenanced even in old Countries, and a Grievance that affords the American Merchant a juſt cauſe of Complaint.

March 12. Several Veſſels which had been ſeized and detained from the owners for a conſiderable Time, to their very great Damage, have been releaſed to them again: One that had been libelled, has been cleared by a Decree of the Judge of Admiralty, and ſome Cargoes, which had been taken Poſſeſſion of by the Cuſtom Houſe Officers, have been delivered up to their owners, while nothing has as yet been determined by them, with reſpect to the Veſſels.——Thoſe who are ſtill concerned in Trade, are continually diſtreſſed or alarmed, and know not how to conduct themſelves; ſcarce a Veſſel enters at the Cuſtom Houſe from a foreign Voyage, but the Capt. is reminded by one or another of the Cuſtom-houſe or Revenue Officers, that ſome omiſſions had been made in his Papers of clearance, &c. for which he was liable to a Seizure; and ſuch advantages have been taken by the C——m——rs of the little Miſtakes made by a Maſter or the Merchant: That Shipping is now become the greateſt Burden, and our Navigation is daily decreaſing, which muſt be ſeverely felt by the Nation in a future War, an Event which may too ſpeedly take place—The Seas cannot then be ſpread as they have been, with our private ſhips of War, and though the pockets of Americans, may then be forceably opened by a Britiſh M——r, he will certainly find, that preceding ones have drained them to the very Bottom.

March 14. G——r B——d's Picture has been lately returned to Harvard College to be hung up in the Library: Our American Limner, Mr. Copely, by the ſurpriſing art of his Pencil, has actually reſtored as good a Heart as had been taken from it; tho' upon a near and accurate inſpection, it will be found no other than a falſe one.—There may it long remain hanging to ſhew Poſterity the true Picture of the Man, who during a weak and w——d A——n, was ſuffered to continue in the S—t of G——n——t, a ſore Scourge to the People, until he happily awakened a whole Continent to a thorough Senſe of their own Intereſt, and thereby laid the Foundation of American Greatneſs.

March 16. Being Thurſday, we are informed orders have been given out to the Soldiery, that they keep in their Barracks from Friday 9 o'Clock until the Lord's Day following; and that every Man be provided with ſix Pounds of Powder and Ball: The picquet Guards were alſo ordered to hold themſelves in readineſs to turn out at a Minute's Warning.——Various are the conjectures of the Inhabitants on this occaſion; ſome think that it is in order to reſtrain theſe Men from all Extravagances upon the Morrow, which is Saint Patrick's Day, while others are of the Mind, that it is in conſequence of ſome reports which have been propagated, that there are to be Effigies hung upon the tree of Liberty, on the Saturday, being the anniverſary of the repeal of the Stamp act, and that great Diſturbances are then like to take Place; it ſeems the G——r would have it thought ſo, or he would not have told his C——l not long ſince, that he had been informed of ſuch intentions, and that he gave them this advice, that they might conſider before hand the part they had to act, as he ſhould certainly call upon them for their advice and aſſiſtance in caſe it ſhould ſo happen.——We apprehend ſuch reports are only propagated by the cabal to anſwer certain purpoſes of their own, and that the Behaviour of the Sons of Liberty on that Day will be ſtill, as it ever has been, ſuch as cannot reflect any Diſhonour upon themſelves, or in any reſpect tend to create the leaſt Diſturbance among us.

March 17. Inſtances of the Licentious and outrageous Behaviour of the Military conſervators of the Peace ſtill multiply upon us, ſome of which are of ſuch a Nature, and have been carried to ſo great Lengths, as muſt ſerve fully to evince that a late Vote of this town, calling upon the Inhabitants to provide themſelves with arms for their defence, was a meaſure as prudent as it was legal; ſuch Violences are always to be apprehended from Military troops, when quartered in the body of a populous City; but more eſpecially ſo, when they are led to believe that they are become neceſſary to awe a Spirit of Rebellion, injuriouſly ſaid to be exiſting therein. It is a natural right which the people have reſerved to themſelves, confirmed by the bill of rights, to keep arms for their own defence; and as Mr Blackſtone obſerves, it is to be made uſe of when the Sanctions of Society and Law are found inſufficient to reſtrain the Violence of oppreſſion.——We are however, pleaſed to find that the Inhabitants of this town, under every inſult and outrage, received from the Soldiery, are looking up to the laws of the land, for redreſs; and if any Inſtance ſhou'd be powerful enough to deprive the meaneſt Subject of this Security; the people will not be anſwerable for the unhappy Conſequences that may flow there from.

The following articles are from the London prints to the 16th of March brought by Capt. Caleſ, mentioned in our laſt.

LONDON, March 1.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of MIDDLESEX.

GENTLEMEN,

THE Unanimity you have ſhewn in the ſecond choice of me as your repreſentative has not prevented my ſecond Expulſion, without any new pretence. Another writ is ordered, and I muſt again entreat you to confirm your former choice by honouring me a third time with your Votes at the enſuing election, which will be at Brentford on Thurſday, the 16th of March, I will never give up the cauſe, nor quit the ſervice of my conſtituents, and I make no doubt that your perſeverance in the Support of your own rights, by a repeated Exertion of the powers you derive from the conſtitution, will, in the end, be crowned with the deſired Succeſs. In caſe of any future expulſions, I will regularly repeat to you the offer of my humble Services, that you may have again an opportunity of vindicating your moſt valuable Privileges, the rights of all the Electors of this Kingdom, which I will never abandon nor betray.

I hope none of my Friends will be abſent from Brentford of the 16th, of March, and I ſhall be particularly obliged to them for early appearance,

I am, Gentlemen,
Your faithful, humble Servant,
JOHN WILKES,
King's Bench priſon, Wedneſday Feb 22, 1769.

London Tavern, Feb. 25. 1769

MANY Gentlemen, Members of Parliament and others, diveſted of every perſonable conſideration, and unconnected with any party, have formed themſelves into a Society at the London tavern, under the tit'e of SUPPORTERS OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS.

The ſole aim is to maintain and defend the legal conſtitutional liberty of the ſubject. They mean to ſupport Mr. WILKES and his cauſe, as far as it is a public cauſe. For this purpoſe only they ſollicit the countenance and encouragement of the public, whoſe emolument & advantage alone are intended.

LONDON.

March 1. Yeſterday the right Hon. the Earl of Chatham arrived in town, and paid a viſit to Earl Temple, at his houſe in Pall Mall, where he dined, and in the evening returned to his ſeat at Hayes.

It is ſaid that there will be a general meeting this day, at the King's-Arms in Cornhill, of the marchants and other eminent perſons of this metropolis, in order to cauſe a committee to draw up an addreſs to be preſented to his Majeſty, expreſſive of their duty and loyalty, and to ſhew their diſlike of the many private meetings lately held on particular occaſions.

Yeſterday morning ſever l of the agents for the co'onies waited upon his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, on affairs of great importance to North America.

Some letters from Conſtantinople mention, that the Grand ſeignior has declared his intention of heading in perſon the grand Ottoman army this ſummer againſt the Ruſſians.

Letters from Rome mention, that it is generally imagined there that his holineſs the Pope died broken-hearted, on account of the great oppoſition he has met with of late from ſeveral Roman Catholick potentates, and their infringements of his prerogative.

Extract of a letter from Plymouth, Feb. 26.

"Laſt night his Majeſty's Frigate Gibraltar, parted from her moorings between the Iſland and the main, and drove on the rocks under the weſtermoſt pointed of the hoe, where ſhe now lies with the loſs of her bowſprit, and a l her maſts, but it is thought the hull and ſtores will be ſaved."

LONDON, March 2.

Yeſterday was he'd, at the town hall in Southwark, the moſt numerous and reſpectable meeting of the Electors of that borough, that was ever known in the memory of man. Edward Stevens, Eſq; by general conſent, was appointed chairmam; Sir Joſeph Mawbey, Bart. one of the members, Henry Thrale, Eſq; came ſoon after, in conſequence of a meſſage for that purpoſe. Sir Joſeph Mawbey defended the propriety and neceſſity of Inſtructions, at this critical period, in terms that met with the general approbation of the meeting, and declared his intention of ſupporting the conſtitutional liberty of this Country, without place, penſion, or emolument whatever, unawed by power, and influenced only, not by men, but meaſures, and avowed his ſtrong attachment to his Majeſty's Perſon and Family, and the principal of the glorious Revolution. A Queſtion was then put, and the ſenſe of the company taken, whether the inſtructions ſhould be given, when there appeared many hundreds for the propoſition againſt about a dozen of a contrary opinion. The Inſtructions are in general like thoſe of London; the following is one.

VI. That, as Trade and Commerce to our American Poſſeſſions is of the utmoſt importance to the Manufactures of G. Britain you uſe your utmoſt endeavours to reconcile the unhappy differences ſubſiſting betwixt the Mother Country and the Colonies, to the total excluſion of the Manufactures of other Nations.

Paragraph of the Inſtructions from the City of Briſtol.

"V. That you exert all your abilties, to ſupport and extend the trade and Manufactures of this Nation in every branch. That you will heartly join in all meaſures for reconciling the difference, unhappily ſubſiſting, between this Kingdom and its Colonies; and that you will be ſtrenuouſly active in obtaining a repeal of the laws, impoſing duties on Britiſh Manufactures exported to America, which has been found highly prejudical to the Nation in general, and to this city in particular.

March 3. A Meſſage was on Wedneſday ſent by a Great perſonage to both houſes, the contents of which have not yet tranſpired.

Edinburgh, March 3. Laſt night about half an hour after ſeven o'clock, arrived an expreſs from London, with the news that the decree of the court of ſeſſion in the cauſe of Douglas was reverſed without a vote.

The reſtoration of this noble and illuſtrious family, gave univerſal joy to all ranks of people here; the whole town was immediately illuminated, and bonfires appeared in all corners of this city.

LONDON, MARCH 8.

It is conjectured, that the different litigation of the grand cauſe of Douglas in France, Scotland, and England, have coſt the contending parties at leaſt 100,000. each, The conteſted eſtate, it is ſaid, amounts to about 17,000l per ann.

Yeſterday morning there was a numerous meeting at the London Tavern, of Gentlemen, Members of Parliament, and others, who have formed themſelves into a ſociety, under the title of ſupporters of the bill of rights, when, it is ſaid, a large ſum of money was ſubſcribed for the ſupport of Mr. Wilkes and his cauſe, which, with what had been received before, for the ſame purpoſe, it is ſaid, amounts to upwards of 10,000l.

A few days ago the right Hon. the lord Viſcount Molyneux renounced the Errors of the Church of Rome, and on ſunday laſt received the Sacrament at St. Martin's Church.

Five noble perſonages we are told have entered their proteſts, on the ſubject of a late great Cauſe.

We hear that the right Hon. the Counteſs of Huntingdon has taken the Chapel, near the long Room at Hampſtead, for the uſe of the Rev. Mr. George Whitefield.

They write from Birmingham, Sheffield, and Mancheſter, that a great number of hands are now unemployed, on account of the little demand of goods, owing to the failure of orders from America.

Letters from Rome aſſure, as a fact, that four days before the death of the pope, his Holineſs ſent eighty Zequins to the Roman College for ſome maſſes, "That Heaven would be pleaſed to grant him on the approaching Feſtival of the purification (the day on which he actually died) the bleſſing which he had ſo long ſought and prayed for.

Extract of a Letter from Rome, Feb. 4.

"The ſudden death of Clement XIII is attended with many reflections: tho' it muſt be allowed, that it is nothing very ſurprizing to ſee a man, ſubject to a deliquium of the ſpirits, and whoſe pontificate had been to him almoſt a continued ſcene of ſolicitude, chagrin and embarraſſment, died at the age of ſeventy ſix.

March 10, It is ſaid that the Council, to whoſe opinions the queſtion touching the legality of Mr. Wilkes's election of an Alderman has been referred by the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, are Mr. Attorney and Solicitor General, Sir Fletcher Norton, Mr. Serjeants Glynn and Leigh, Mr. Yorke, Mr. Recorder, and Mr. Common Serjeant. That the opinions will not be given until after the Serjeants return from the Circuits, as they are firſt to hold a conſultation.

The following is ſaid to be the plan of the ſupporters of Mr. Wilkes, with regard to the next election of a Member for the county of Middleſex. Mr. Wilkes is to be continued in the light of a candidate till the election; if at that time the ſheriff does for him, and no other perſon ſhall be put up as a candidate, he will continue his pretenſions, and neceſſarily be returned; but if the ſheriff does refuſe to admit him as a candidate, or any other perſon ſhall be ſet up by the M—y againſt him he will decline, and Sir J—D—, or ſome other perſon will be nominated by Freeholders in Mr. Wilkes's intereſt, and in all probabillity choſen.

It is ſaid that Governor Stevens will be a Candidate for Middleſex in the room of Mr. Wilkes.

Political Debates at preſent run ſo exceedingly high, that many of our pulpits inſtead of expounding the word of God, have lately employed themſelves in diſcanting upon rty diſputes; but, it is hoped, that the right verend Bench of Biſhops will not ſuffer the ferior Clergy to preach more on temporal atters to their flock than is neceſſary, to ake them good ſubjects, and uſeful Mem bers of Society.

It is ſaid that a certain Clergyman is under a proſecution, for a certain ſermon he preach ed about a fortnight ſince, to the Eaſtward of this Metropolis.

MARCH 13. We are aſſured, that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland is appointed a Vice admiral, in the ſame ſtation as his late royal highneſs the duke of York, and yeſterday he appeared at court in new regimentals.

March 15. Yeſterday morning ſeveral Agents for North-America waited on the E of Rochfort, on affairs of conſequence, relative to the plantations.

March 17. Yeſterday morning came on, at Brentford, the Election of a knight of the ſhire, for the county of Middleſex, when John Wilkes, Eſq; was re choſen without oppoſition. Mr. Dingley, who had offered himſelf as a candidate by an advertiſement in the papers, appeared on the Huſtings, but was not propoſed by any gentleman preſent; and tho' the ſheriffs repeatedly went round the Huſtings to aſk if any gentleman would offer himſelf as a candidate, no one was nominated whereupon Mr. Wilkes was declared duly elected.

March 18 Laſt night a popular Gentleman was expelled from a certain aſſembly.

A new writ is ordered to be iſſued for the election of a Knight of the Shire for the county of Middleſex, in the room of John Wilkes Eſq; he being judged incapable.

SALEM, April 25.

A very melancholly accident happened, laſt Saturday morning, on board the Brig Pitt Packet, commanded by Capt Thomas Power, belonging to Marblehead, and bound in there from Cadiz: the Brig, when within about 7 leagues from Cape Ann, came acroſs the Roſe man of war, was boarded, and two of her men impreſſed; but theſe being, for ſome reaſons, releaſed, the Lieutenant of the Roſe, with a number of men, again boarded the Brig, in order to take ſome of the other men, who, 4 in number, had ſecured themſelves in the Fore-Peak, determining to defend themſelves, with ſome Harpoons, &c. they had provided for the purpoſe, as long as they had life. The Lieutenant made uſe of moderate, kind and perſuaſive arguments, and offered, firſt, to take but two, and afterwards but one, if they would ſurrender themſelves; but all propoſals and intreaties being ineffectual to induce them to come up, the Lieutenant informed them that he was determined to make uſe of force; and the ſailors as reſolutely proteſted that they would kill any who ſhou'd attempt to take them, ; a Piſtol charge of powder was fired at them, which burnt the face of one Michael Corbett; and afterwards another of them received a piſtol ſhot in his arm, which broke the bone; this increaſed their reſolution of dying rather than to ſurrender: and their whole conduct ſeemed to manifeſt ſuch an abhorrence of being forced on board a man of war, as to prefer death to ſuch a life as they deemed ſlavery—They repeatedly declared they would kill the firſt man that offered to approach them: and a man the Lieutenant ſent in to begin the attack upon them, was conſiderably wounded: on which he retreated. The Lieutenant then told them that he would lead the way to them himſelf: Corbett anſwered him, with the moſt ſolemn proteſtitions, and called Almighty God to witneſs, that ſure as he advanced one inch further, he ſhould inſtantly loſe his life. The Lieutenant told them he had ſeen many brave fellow, ſhould take a pinch of ſnuff, and then conſider of it; which having deliberately done, he began to ſtep towards them, when Corbett, agreeable to his promiſe, immediately threw a Harpoon which did inſtant execution, hit the Lieutenant near his throat, and cut the jugular vein; on which he only had time to ſay, that they had taken his life; and, gaſping three or four times, fell down and expired. The ſailors ſtill continued to defend themſelves, notwithſtanding there was a large number of Marines at this time on board the Brig; but having provided themſelves with a quantity of liquor, all but Corbett became ſo intoxicated therewith that they were ſoon pulled out; he continued to defend himſelf for near three hours and an half after he killed the Lieutenant, and it was tho't, would have been killed upon the ſpot, rather than have been taken, if he had retained the uſe of his limbs; but being alſo overcome with liquor, was by that means taken. The Lieut. we hear was named Paddiſon, a young gentleman between 20 and 30 years of age, and was much reſpected. The Capt. of the Roſe, after this tragical affair tho't himſelf obliged to take the charge of the Brig, as well as the men, and carried them to Boſton. The Corpſe of the Lieutenant was kept on board the Brig, where it was to remain till a Jury of inqueſt ſhould be ſummoned on the ſame.—Not one American belonged to the Brig.

BOSTON, April 27.

Extract of a letter from a member of Parliament, to a gentleman in this Town, dated February 17, 1769.

"THE colonies ſtand at preſent in a "ſtrange point of light here, "eſpecially from the late reſolves of "the aſſembly of New-York:—

"Thoſe who ſee the extenſive Miſchief "which muſt ariſe from theſe Animoſities "are by ſuch conduct precluded from doing "any ſervice.—they want ſome inſtances of "temper and moderation whereon to found "an application for the repeal of the late acts "and regulations.

"Would the colonies petition with temper and with full acknowledgement of the "ſupreme right of this country to regulate "the general commercial ſyſtem, I have "little doubt that the unhappy Idea of taxation would long, even forever, be laid aſide."—

We hear that his Majeſty has been pleaſed to confer on his Excellency Francis Bernard, Eſq; the honor of a Baronet of G. Britain,

HARTFORD, May 1, 1769.

We hear, that a tranſient Perſon, in his Travel through the Country, happened to go into a neighbouring Town, where he chanc'd to meet with a Young Lady on Friday 21ſt Inſtant, with whom he immediately contracted a moſt familiarly acquaintance; and after a ſhort Diſcourſe, a propoſal of marriage was made by the Gentleman, which was gladly accepted of by the young Lady—accordingly they were the next Sunday Publiſhed, and on Monday were Married, and for a reward to the Gentleman that join'd their hands was given a chain of ſleve buttons and Three Coppers in CASH. On the Thurſday following they ſet out for the native Place of the young Lady to take poſſeſſion of her fortune (which was ſaid to be very large) which however the right Owners kept from them. On Saturday they returned back again, the Gentleman was then filled with repentance, without any proſpect of relief.

Pleaſe to inſert the following in your next and you will oblige yours, &c.

We pant to prove, what Hymens rites contain,
To taſte the bliſs, and ruſh into the chain.

ILLUSTRIOUS CLIDAMIRA! I read with ſenſible pleaſure, your obliging requeſt, to Meſſ's Green & Watſon, to ſend you a dozen victories of cupid. Permit me, Madam, to act a part on that ſtage of honor, and to be one of the highly favoured competitors for ſuch an immortal prize. If you Madam, ſhould condeſcend to gratify this requeſt, and I be attended with the glorious ſucceſs of vanquiſhing my opponents (though at the expence of bloodſhed, carnage and ſlaughter) to reign the ſoul monarch of your ineſtimable charms, to lead you through delicious ſcenes, to Hymens ſacred rites: to tranſport you from that uneaſy ſituation of which you complain, inevitably attending the fair ſex in their impatient progreſs thro' the dark and gloomy ſcenes of ſingle life; to feaſt on joys refin'd, to drink full draughts of pleaſure, reſult from mutual love, bliſsful concomitants of the conjugal ſtate, will be inexpreſſubly pleaſing to him who is, venerable lady, your ladyſhips moſt devoted admirer

BUT while the perſons and properties of the Inhabitants, are ſuffering ſuch repeated Injuries from the Soldiery; G. B. and the C——m——rs go on, exerciſing their ſeverities againſt the Merchants.——A Veſſel belonging to this town, juſt returned from the Weſt Indies has been ſeized and taken poſſeſſion of by a party of the Revenue Officers; the only pretence therefor, being this; that while the Veſſel lay at the Vineyard Wind bound, one of the ſeamen took the liberty to diſpoſe of his adventure, which was not more than half a barrel of molaſſes: This information, it is ſaid was obtain'd through the inſtrumentality of one of their gang, who it ſeems had found means to influence a common ſailor to make this notable diſcovery.——Some hogſheads and barrels of molaſſes, which came from Newbury, have alſo been ſeized & carried off to the Cuſtom Houſe Store; a moſt extraordinary procedure! the Captain of ſaid veſſel, having declared, when he reported this cargo at the Cuſtom Houſe, that he could not aſcertain the exact quantity taken on board at Newbury, as the mate's and Seamen's adventures were unknown to him, and therefore requeſted that it might be noted, that he deſired a poſt entry, thoſe adventures were therefore not taken out of the veſſel, but only hoiſted upon deck at noon day, where they were to have remained until the captain had made the propoſed entry, had they not been taken from thence, as above recited.

March 20. Saturday laſt being the Anniverſary of the repeal of the Stamp act, the ſame was noticed as has been uſual. The Britiſh flag was diſplayed on Liberty Tree, and at noon a number of gentlemen met in the hall under the ſame, where a number of loyal toaſts were drank, and the greateſt order and decorum obſerved by the company.

The confinement of the ſoldiery to their Barracks upon Saturday, together with a wicked report, which was ſpread among them by our enemies, that the Sons of Liberty had intended, to expoſe the effigy of St. Patrick, upon the Tree of Liberty, on ſaid day, ſo provoked our military, that numbers of the three companies, quartering at Murray's Sugar houſe, determined to ſally forth that night and cut down the Tree of Liberty; accordingly, juſt before 11 o'clock the ſignal was given by firing a gun, as was intended, over the guard houſe, when by careleſsneſs they fired a brace of balls through the ſame, but happily hurt no one; immediately thereupon every man was out with his arms complete; and alſo axes and ſaws, to demoliſh the Tree of Liberty; one ſoldier in his freak, fired a ball from one room to another, and ſhot the tail of a Seargeants ſhirt off, but did no other damage: The officers were immediately alarmed, and by their intreaties and promiſe of pardon; the ſoldiery returned to their Barracks, and remained quiet thro' the night.

March 21. We are adviſed from Providence, that on the 18th of March, a day auſpicious to American freedom, early in the morning a paper appeared on Liberty Tree, and another in the moſt public part of the town, of the following contents.

To the SONS of LIBERTY.

DEARLY BELOVED,

REvolving time hath brought about another anniverſary of the repeal of the odious Stamp Act——an act framed to diveſt us of our liberties, and to bring us to ſlavery, poverty and miſery: The reſolute ſtand made by the ſons of Liberty againſt the deteſtable policy, had more effect in bringing on the repeal, than any conviction in the P—rl—m—t of G—t B——n of the injuſtice & iniquity of the act.——It was repealed from principles of convenience to O—d E——d, and accompanied with a declaration of their right to tax us. And ſince the ſame P——t have paſſed acts, which, if obeyed in the colonies, will be equally fatal.——Although the people of G—t B——n be only fellow ſubjects, they have (of late) aſſumed a power to compel us to buy at their market ſuch things as we want, of European Produce and Manufacture; and at the ſame time have taxed many of the articles, for the expreſs purpoſe of a revenue; and, for the collection of the duties, have ſent fleets, armies, commiſſioners, Guarda Coſtas, Judges of Admiralty, and a hoſt of petty officers, whoſe inſolence and rapacity are become intolerable.——Our cities are garriſoned the peace and order which heretofore dignified our ſtreets, are exchanged for the horrid blaſphemies and outrages of ſoldiers.——Our trade is obſtructed——our veſſels and cargoes, the effects of induſtry, violently ſeized; and, in a word, every ſpecies of injuſtice that a wicked and debauched Miniſtry could invent, is now practiſed againſt the moſt ſober, induſtrious and loyal people that ever lived in ſociety.——The joint ſupplications of all the colonies have been rejected, and letters and mandates, in terms of the higheſt affront and indignity, have been tranſmitted from little and inſignificant ſervants of the crown, to his Majeſty's grand and auguſt ſovereignties in America.

Theſe things being ſo, it becomes us, my brethren, to walk worthy of our Vocation——to uſe every lawful mean, to fruſtrate the wicked deſigns of our enemies at home and abroad——and to unite againſt the evil and pernicious machinations of thoſe who would deſtroy us. I judge that nothing can have a better tendency to this grand end than encouraging our own manufactures, and a total diſuſe of foreign ſuperfluities.

When I conſider the corruption of G——t B——n—their load of debt—their inteſtine diviſions, tumults and riots——their ſcarcity of proviſion and the contempt in which they are held by the nations about them; and when I conſider, on the other hand, the ſtate of the American colonies, with regard to the various climates ſoils, produce, rapid population, joined to the virtue of the inhabitants, I cannot but think that the conduct of O—d E——d towards us, may be permitted by divine wiſdom, and ordained by the unſearchable providence of the Almighty, for haſtening a period dreadful to G——t B——n.

Providence, A SON OF LIBERTY.
March 18 1769.

The above among other articles of a like tenor, have been inſerted in this journal, with an honeſt intention, to convey to the people of Britain, the unhappy tho' powerful tendency of the late meaſures, reſpecting America, to alienate our affections and excite ſuch reſentments, as muſt be productive of the moſt unhappy conſequences to Great Britain; conſequences which we are ſurpriſed, that the weakeſt ſtateſman and moſt ſhort Sighted Politician, ſhould not have fully apprehended.

March 22. Governor Bernard, has publiſhed a Proclamation, for a general Faſt to be kept the 6th of next month.—It has been obſerved, that in all the Proclamations of his predeceſſors on ſuch Occaſions, they never once omitted, the following ſupplicatory Article, viz. "That God would be graciouſly pleaſed to continue to us, the Enjoyment of all our invaluable privileges, of a civil and religious Nature." But that our preſent Governor has not once inſerted ſuch a clauſe.—— We are not at a loſs however, to account for ſaid Omiſſion.——This Gentleman had not been long among us, before he diſcovered a Diſlike to our conſtitution, and a Diſpoſition to get the ſame new modeled, as ſoon as an opportunity preſented, this accounts for all his conduct, relative to the Stamp Act, at which time his Speeches and Letters, as well as his converſation clearly diſcovered, that he was making the moſt daring attempts to effect his deteſtable purpoſes; may the people of this province, unite in their Supplications on the approaching Faſt, that thoſe ineſtimable privileges may ſtill be preſerved, and tranſmitted inviolate to the lateſt poſterity.

March 23. We have before mentioned the ſpirited Reſolves, which had paſſed the aſſembly of North-Carolina they carry in themſelves, the beſt Compliment, to the good Senſe and patriotiſm of thoſe worthy Members.——The Speaker of the late houſe of Repreſentatives for this Province, has juſt received the following Letter.

North Carolina. Newbern, 10th Nov. 1768

SIR.

THE Houſe of Aſſembly of this colony being Prorogued to the 3d Inſtant, prevented my ſooner laying before them your very important Letter of the 11th of February laſt, the purport of which they proceeded immediately to take into their Conſideration. And I am directed to inform you that they are extremely obliged to the Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, for communicating their Sentiments on ſo intereſting a Subject; and ſhall ever be ready, firmly to unite with their Siſter Colonies, in purſuing every Conſtitutional Meaſure, for Redreſs of the Grivances ſo juſtly complain'd of.

This Houſe is deſirous to cultivate the ſtricteſt Harmony and Friendſhip with the aſſemblies of the colonies in general, and with your houſe in particular.

With you we entertain the ſtrongeſt confidence of his Majeſty's Clemency and Juſtice; nor do we doubt but that the dutiful and united Supplications of his loyal American Subjects, will meet with his moſt gracious Favour and acceptance.

This Houſe have therefore taken the earlieſt opportunity permitted them, of purſuing Meaſurs for obtaining redreſs, ſimilar to thoſe adopted by your's, and have directed their agent Henry Euſtice McCulloh, Eſq; to join the agents of the other colonies in obtaining a repeal of thoſe oppreſſive acts of parliament impoſing Duties on Paper, Glaſs, &c. in America.

The Aſſembly of this colony will at all times receive with pleaſure, the opinion of your houſe in Matters of general concern to America, and be equally willing on every ſuch occaſion to communicate their ſentiments, not doubting of their meeting a candid and freindly Acceptance. In the Name, and by order of the houſe of Aſſembly.

I am, with great Regard,
Sir, Your moſt obedient humble Servant,
JOHN HARVEY, Speaker.
To the Hon. Thomas Cuſhing, Eſq; late Speaker, &c.

The above Letter completes the anſwers to our Circular Letter.——The colonies no longer diſconnected, form one Body; a common Senſation poſſeſſes the whole, the circulation is complete; and the vital Fluid returns from whence it ſet out—If this circulation is kept up, its conſtitution will be firm and durable.

March 24. Not long Since, there was a promiſe given in Meſſrs. Fleet's Paper, by a perſon unknown, of a full anſwer to the Farmer, in a Series of Letters; it was never imagin'd that this large promiſe could be fulfill'd tho' it excited ſome Expectation.——At length the Mountain brings forth,—and there appears in the Evening Poſt, as ſtrange, awkward, uncouth a Figure of a writer, as ever thruſt himſelf into public View; without any traces of parts or Education, reaſon or humour, ſtrength or fancy, taſte or even Grammar: He oppoſes himſelf to a writer poſſeſſed of all: The expectation he had rais'd, was ſoon changed into ridicule, and the public laugh at this miſhapen object, whoſe Malignity againſt the rights of America, fully juſtifies what might otherwiſe appear an inhuman Diverſion. This wretch however, has tho't himſelf qualified, (and prehaps for once he has tho't right) to make a panegyric, upon one of the principal authors of the troubles of America, and the perplexities of Britain. No one can doubt, that like other late proſtitutes, he writes for a large Fee, and if it ſhould bear any proportion to the public Scorn, which falls to his own ſhare, and that of the cauſe in which he is engag'd; it muſt be a large one indeed.

CLIFTON, Feb. 6 1769.

Mr. URBAN,

IF the voice of a well-meaning individual could be heard amidſt the clamour, fury and madneſs of the times, would it appear too raſh and preſumptuous to propoſe to the public, that an act of indemnity and oblivion may be made for all paſt tranſactions and offences, as well with reſpect to Mr. Wilkes as to our Colonies? Such ſalutary expedients have been embraced by the wiſeſt nations.—Such expedients have been made uſe of by our own, when the public confuſion had arrived to ſome very dangerous and alarming criſis; and I believe it needs not the gift of prophecy to fore-tell that ſome ſuch criſis is now approaching.——Perhaps it be more and praiſe worthy to make ſuch an act immediately, in order to prevent the poſſibility (not to ſay the probability) of an inſurrection at home, and in our dependencies abroad, than it will to be obliged to have recourſe to one, after the miſchief has been done, and the kingdom has groaned under all the miſeries that avarice, ambition, hypocriſy, and madneſs, could inflict upon it. An act of grace, indemnity, and oblivion, was paſſed at the reſtoration of King Charles the ſecond; but I will venture to ſay, that had ſuch an act been ſeaſonably paſſed in the reign of his unhappy father, the civil war had been prevented, and no reſtoration had been neceſſary. Is it too late to recall all the meſſengers and edicts of wrath?—cannot the money which is now waſted in endleſs and mutual proſecutions, and in ſtopping the mouth of one perſon, and in opening that of another, be better employed in erecting a temble to Concord?—Let Mr. Wilkes lay the firſt ſtone, and ſuch a ſtone as I hope the builder will not refuſe. May this Parliament, to uſe Lord Clarendon's expreſſion, be called the healing Parliament! May our foul wounds be cleanſed, and then cloſed! The Engliſh have been as famous for good nature as for valour; let it not be ſaid that ſuch qualities are degenerated into ſavage ferocity!—If any of my friends in either houſe of legiſlature, ſhall condeſcend to liſten to, and improve theſe hints, I ſhall think that I have not lived in vain.

WILLIAMM DRAPER.

The foregoing produced ſome Remarks in the London Chronicle, in which it is acknowledged that the gallant, the generous Conquerer of the Manillas meant to ſecure the Peace and Welfare, the Honor and intereſt of his Country by his Propoſal; yet it would not anſwer the End he deſigned; and in reference to Mr. Wilkes, this Remarker ſays, —IF the adminiſtration would be united among themſelves for a few hours, if they would once lay aſide their private views, and attend to a public point of great importance, the ſtouteſt hero of oppoſition, either in or out of the houſe will ſoon ſhrink from the conteſt, and will confeſs that law, ſupported by government, magna eſt, & prævalebit.—There is virtue enough left in this country to ſave it, if it be well directed and properly exerted; nor is it the city of London, nor the county of Middleſex, nor is it the continent of America, nor the continent of Europe united, that can ſhake the conſtitution of this kingdom, if it ſtand on juſt ground.

But if that is not to be the caſe, if the law muſt be ſuſpended, becauſe the government is not able to carry it into execution, Actum eſt de Roma. I have read, ſir, of a mob led Queen, but God forbid I ſhould ever live to ſee a mob led Senate.

To Sir WILLAM DRAPER.

——I Know, that the public are greatly obliged for your letter relative to Mr. Wilkes and the American Colonies—'Twas ſhort, but very ſweet.—He is a good doctor, who, in deſperate caſes, does not employ corroſive medicines, when lenitives may be efficacious——I would humbly ſubmit this to our ſtate Phyſicians.——Be tois as it may, your leter above hinted at appears to me ſo extremely ſalutary, that I wiſh it were properly reprinted, and hung up in every houſe throughout the Britiſh kingdoms, as a moſt excellent Momento.

PACIFICUS.

LONDON

Extract of a letter from a Soldier in Boſton, in New England, to his Brother in London, Dec. 12, 1768

—"Tell Molly ſhe need not be afraid for me now. We are all come from the back wild country [Nova-Scotia] and lodged ſafe at Boſton. There is no danger of loſing our ſcalps, at preſent, for there are ſome hundred thouſand farmers and country folks between us and the Indians. We are now among a very good ſort of people, who mean us no harm, but wiſh us to quit the army and live among them. I am told it is eaſy for a man to get a little farm in this country, and if Moll was but here, I would certainly do it."

A Letter from a Son in America, to his Father in London.

Lancaſter, in Penſylvania, Sept 25.

HONORED FATHER.

"This I ſend to let you know the miſerable ſtate I am in, having no friend in this part of the world to apply to, to help myſelf with the leaſt article of life. I engaged with Mr ——in London, for 30l. per annum, as a joiner, and embarked on board a merchant ſhip; but on our arrival at Maryland, to my great grief and amazement, I, and others, were coupled together as convicts, and carried ſeventy miles into the country, and ſold for ſlaves; and after having deen exchanged and ſold many times, I am now in the province of Penſylvania, where I am kept worſe than a chriſtian would keep a dog. I have nothing to eat but Indian corn boiled, and ſalt, all the winter; and in the ſummer, nothing but ſour butter-milk and muſh*, I have even forgot the taſte of butter, cheeſe, meal, or wheat bread; and dear Sir, I have not taſted beer, wine, or any kind of ſpirit this year. I have not rags ſufficient to hide my nakedneſs ſummer or winter: my allowance is one pair of ſhoes, one pair of ſtockings, one pair of flannel drawers, two ſhirts, and one pair of crocus trowſers, with a jacket, which muſt ſerve a year; if they were worn out in three months, I muſt go naked till the next year. I have fainted and dropped ſeveral times ſince I have been put to hoeing the ground, merely through want of neceſſary ſuſtenance. I have no bed ſummer or winter, nor any more than one blanket to cover me on the ground. The hut in which the negroes, & myſelf lay laſt winter, we were obliged to quit; for the ſnow had fallen into it two feet deep: and for nine days we made fires in the woods at night, and there ſlept, not daring to approach the houſe where the maſter or overſeer dwells, who are by every one looked upon to be the ſevereſt in America."—The letter concludes with a confeſſion of his guilt and folly in having left his father, and promiſes of reformation if he ſhould be reſtared to favour.

* This muſh is Indian meal boiled in water till it is about the thickneſs of haſty pudding, and ſerves inſtead of bread.

By Capt. Coleman, lately arrived at Boſton, there is London Prints to the 24th of March, which contain the following Articles, viz.

St James's March 22.

This day a moſt numerous body of the Merchants, Traders, and other principal Inhabitants of the City of London, waited on his Majeſty by the Earl of Hertford, Lord Chamberlain of the Houſehold they preſented the following Addreſs.

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty,
Moſt gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Merchants, Traders, and other principal inhabitants of your city of London, truly ſenſible, that it has been your Majeſty's conſtant care and principal object, ſince you aſcended the Throne of your illuſtrious anceſtors, to ſecure to your people the full enjoyment of their religion, laws, & liberties inviolable, and to make them happy and flouriſhing, under your Majeſty's moſt auſpicious government, beg leave to proteſs our ſteady loyalty and duty to your Majeſty, and our firm reſolution to exert our utmoſt power in ſupporting the honour and dignity of your Majeſty's Crown, in preſerving the ſafety, peace, and tranquility of your Majeſty's realms, in maintaining public credit, and promoting commerce, for the benefit of your ſubjects thro'out your dominions.

And we beg leave to expreſs our concern and abhorrence of every attempt to ſpread ſedition, to inflame the minds and alienate the affections of a free and loyal people from the beſt of Kings, and his government, which we apprehend has of late been encouraged, without the leaſt ſhadow of foundation by ſome few ill deſigning perſons, to anſwer ſiniſter and ſelfiſh purpoſes.

And we moſt ſincerely pray Almighty God, that your Majeſty's great and bright example of piety, goodneſs, and clemency, may operate ſo effectually upon the minds of your People, as to ſuppreſs that ſpirit of licentiouſneſs, profaneneſs, and irreligion, which has been induſtriouſly propagated, to delude the unwary to their own deſtruction; and that the ſame good Providence will grant your Majeſty a long and happy reign over a dutiful and loyal People, and bleſs your endeavours with ſucceſs, in a firm and permanent eſtabliſhment of our moſt excellent conſtitution, which is not only admired, but envied by all foreign nations.

To which Addreſs his Majeſty was pleaſed to return this moſt gracious Anſwer.

THE juſt ſenſe you entertain of my deſires to ſecure to my people the full enjoyment of their religion, laws and liberties; and the ſtrong aſſurances you give me of your reſolution to ſupport the dignity of my crown, to preſerve peace among my ſubjects, to maintain public credit, and to promote commerce, afford me the greateſt ſatisfaction; as well as your abhorrence of that inflammatory ſpirit of ſedition, which it has been the buſineſs of artful and ſpecious miſrepreſentation to propagate.

The warm wiſhes you expreſs for the ſtability and permanence of this happy conſtitution, and the intereſt you take in my proſperity, will always deſerve my favor and protection.

They were all moſt graciouſly received and had the honor to kiſs his Majeſty's hand.

LONDON, MARCH 23

YEſterday at noon, a great number of the moſt opulent Merchants, &c of this city ſet out from the Royal Exchange in their carriages in order to preſent an addreſs to his Majeſty attended by the city Marſhal and about a dozen conſtables; before they got to Cheapſide the mob ſhewed them many marks of their reſentmint, hiſſing groaning throwing dirt, &c. but when they arrived near St. Dunſtan's church, in Fleet ſtreet, the multitude grew quite outrageous, broke the windows and panne's of ſeveral chariots, by throwing of ſtones dirt, and rubbiſh into them; and diſpatched a party to ſhut the gates at Temple Bar, on which the cavalcade was obliged to ſtop. Mr. Cook, the city Marſhal, and his attendants, going to open the gates, were very ſeverely treated; Mr Cook's cloaths were torn off his head cut in two pieces & he was obliged to take ſhelter in the tavern the corner of Sheerlane. The populace then attacked the Gentlemen in their carriages; Mr. Bochem, Mr. Muilman, Mr. Anderſon, Mr. Watkins, and many other Gentlemen were covered with dirt, and obliged to take ſhelter in Nando's Coffee-Houſe. Some of the coaches then drove up chancery lane, Fetterlane, and ſhoe lane; but the greateſt part of the Gentlemen, finding it impoſſible to proceed, returned home. The Addreſs, however, did, at length, reach St James's, but the mob threw dirt at the Gentlemen as they got out of their carriages at St. James's Gate. A hearſe, with two white horſes and two black, joined in the train, at Exeter Change, and followed all the way to St. James's.

Yeſterday the Lord Steward of his Majeſty's Houſhold had his wand broke by the mob at St James's, on his appearance to protect the Gentlemen who came with the Addreſs.

Joſeph Watkins, jun. Eſq; delivered the addreſs to his Majeſty, which was graciouſly received. It was ſigned by above one thouſand principal Merchants and Traders of this City.

The glaſſes of the Duke of Kingſton's chariot were broke by the ſame Gentry at St. James's; the riotous proceedings ſtill incraſing, and likely to prove extremely outrageous, the horſe guards were obliged to be ſent for, which proved the only effectual remedy to ſuch licentious behavour, and made a total diſperſion of the mob; ſeventeen of the Rioters were taken into cuſtody, and were carried before Sir John Fielding to be deat with according to Law.

March 24 The number of Gentlemen who ſet out with the Addreſs were about 600, and only between 120 and 150 reached St. James's whoſe carriages were covered with dirt and much damaged.

The rage of the mob was ſcarce ever known to laſt ſo long as it did on Wedneſday, there being ſcarce any abatement of their fury from Cheapſide till they were diſperſed by the horſe guards at St. James's.

Yeſterday morning his Majeſty's Proclamation for the ſuppreſſing of riots, tumults, and unlawful aſſemblies, was read and ſtuck up at the Royal Exchange, Whitehall, and in other public places in the cities of London and Weſtminſter.

Lawrence Balfe and Edward M'Quirke, the two chairmen, were yeſterday diſchaged out of Newgate, they having given bail to plead his Majedy's Pardon.

BOSTON, MAY 4. 1769

Saturday April 29th, his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Baronet, Governor, Commodore Hood, his honor the Lieut. Governor, A. Oliver, ſecretary, and the Hon. Robert Auchmuty, Eſq; Judge of admiralty; went on board the Roſe man of war, to take the ſteps previous to the trial of the men concern'd in the death of Lieut Panton. Capt. Caldwell of the Roſe, received and entertained them with the greateſt politeneſs. We hear the trial will come on within fifteen or ſixteen days.

It has been reported that Lieutenant General Sir Jeffrey Amherſt, Colonel of the 2d Regiment of Foot, would be appointed commander in chief of his Majeſty's Forces in America, and Governor of this province: it has alſo been reported that Lieutenant General Stadholme Hodgſon, Colonel of the 4th Regiment, will be appointed to the ſaid Command and to the Goverment; while other report that his Excellency Thomas Pownall, Eſq; formerly Governor of this province, will again be appointed to this Government; but we do not learn whether there is any foundation for any of theſe reports.

We hear that his Majeſty, as an additional proof of his Regard for Governor Bernard, beſides granting him the Dignity of a Baronet, ordered all the Fees to be paid out of the privy Purſe.

NEW-YORK, May 4.

In conſequence of goods being ſent from London, in Capt. Munds by the merchants there, without orders, and repugnant to the agreement entered into by the inhabitants of this city a number of the merchants aſſembled laſt Saturday evening, and agreed, that the ſaid goods ſhould be ſtored immediately without opening any of the packages, which agreement was inſtantly complied with by the gentlemen to whom they were addreſſed.

My L—d N——h who is C——r of the Ex———r, ſaid in the houſe that he hoped ſoon to ſee America proſtrate at his feet.

New-London, March 28.

Yeſterday a coaſting ſloop of about 40 tons, Eliſha Beckwith, maſter, was brought from Lyme, by ſome people belonging to the tender in this harbour; there being found on board ſaid ſloop, two kegs of ſpirits, and three raw hides.

HARTFORD, May 8.

We hear there is lately formed at Oneida (one of the five confederate nations of Indians) a Church of Chriſt conſiſting of ſeventeen Members, under the paſtoral care of the Rev. Mr. Samuel Kirtland Miſſionary to the Indians—Numbers more being awakened out of their heatheniſm, and offering to join themſelves to the church, ſince the firſt communion of the holy ordinances of the Lord's Supper, March 5, 1769. There is a conſiderable Proſpect of the Goſpel's being ſpread among thoſe nations; and it is hoped they will not be forgotten in the prayers of all that wiſh well to, and deſire the enlargement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

STolen or ſtray'd from Seth Smith 2d of Suffield, on the Monday night laſt in ſaid Suffield, a dark ſorrel mare, with a white ſpot on her noſe, about 8 years old, paces & trots, about 13 hands and a half high, ſomething low in fleſh, one fore and one hind foot ſhod, the hair much wore off on her thighs and by the girt, and had on a good hunting ſaddle about half wore, and a good bridle. Whoſoever ſhall return ſaid mare, ſaddle and bridle, to ſaid Smith, or ſaid mare alone, or let him know where ſhe is, or diſcover the theif, ſo tha the may be brought to puniſhment, ſhall have three dollars reward, and all neceſſary ccharges paid by the ſubſcriher.

By JOSEPH BELLAMY, D.D.
Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the Things which I ſay?
Luke vi, 46.

Meſſ Green & Watſon,
Pleaſe to inſert the following.

Tea ! how I tremb'e at thy fatal ſtream ?
As Lethe, dreadful to the Love of Fame
What devaſtations on thy banks are ſeen ?
What Shades of mighty names which once have been ?
But this inhuman Triumph ſhall decline,
And thy revolting Naiads call for wine ;
Spirits no longer ſhall ſerve under thee :
But reign in thy own Cup Exploded Tea !
Citronia's noſe declares thy ruin nigh :
And who dares give Citronia's noſe the Lye ?
YOUNG.

WHILE our Country has been groaning under the Preſſure of an almoſt inſupportable Load of Debt, and our inveterate Enemies at Home, aſſiſted by their creatures and Tools in our very Bowels, are endeavouring by unconſtitutional and oppreſſive Meaſures, not only to deprive us of our natural and inherent Rights and Liberties but alſo to render our little of Property Leſs, A Number of able and Zealous advocates for Liberty, fir'd with becoming Love for their Country, have laboured to rouſe their Countrymen to a proper ſenſe of their danger and point out the means of Eſcape, viz. By a firm and Steady adherence to their Native Rights and Liberties which have been ratified and confirmed to them by Charters repeatedly recognized : and by retrenching every uſeleſs Expence, and adopting every mode of Induſtry Frugality and Oeconomy. Of the Enumerated Articles of unneceſſary Expence, the Indian Herb call'd Tea, graces the Catalogue ; nor ſhall preſume to ſay undeſervedly. Much has been urged againſt its uſe, not only as being productive of many chronic Diſeaſes with thoſe whoſe Veſſels are naturally tender and delicate, and lead in active lives more eſpecially the Fair Sex (which ſome Phyſicians have had honeſty enough to affirm, though at the Riſque of their Reputation (with the Ladies) as perſons of ſkill in their Profeſſion) but alſo, a vaſt miſpence and loſs of Time the moſt precious Jewel (excluſive of Tea itſelf, and its coſtly Apparatus) in afternoon Viſits and parties of Pleaſure. But alas ! how ineffectual are Remonſtrances when oppos'd to the Gratifications of Senſe ? Tea is ſtill in Vogue and high eſteem with the feminine Gender, yet I dare venture (without pretending to a Spirit of Divination or Prophecy) to prognoſticate its diſgrace is near, which will reſult firſt negatively, not from a Senſe of duty to their Country ; nor ſecondly from a regard to their own health and Conſtitutions, or that of their Poſterity : But thirdly and Affirmatively, from a fondneſs for novelty and change, and want of Reliſh to ſuch frequent draughts of a Watery Element ; Faſhions in Dreſs, diet, &c. ſeldom ſurvive general Uſe ; they become too Vulgar (however good) to be any longer continued by Perſons of Spirit and delicacy of Taſte ; nor could Tea have liv'd out half its days had it not been for the frequent changes it has undergone, by joining with it ſometimes Sugar, ſometimes Milk or Cream ſometimes both ; and then returning to it again (as the Chymiſts ſay) in puris Naturalibus. The laſt and only thing that can ſupport its afternoons uſe much longer, is the aſſiſtance it may receive from the Weſt Indies. Hyſtory informs us of ſome States, that have been obliged to Submit to the Superior Strength, & become tributary to thoſe whom they had called in as Auxilliaries ; and ſuch O Tea ! thou dear Deſtroyer of Thouſands, muſt be thy future hapleſs Fate. I am credibly informed (for I ſeldom have the opportunity of obſerving it myſelf) that when our modiſh married Ladies are aſſembled to ſpend the afternoon in Chat and Tea, it is very faſhionable, at leaſt in ſome places, if not generally, for the good Lady of the Houſe to regale her Viſitants with a mugg of flip, or glaſs of cherry, previous to their ſetting to Table, in order as ſome may imagine to whet the Appetite and give a Reliſh to the Watry repaſt. I ſaid married Ladies, becauſe I have not heard, nor do I believe it has yet obtained among the unmarried for reaſons too obvious to need the mention. Yet I think it more than barely poſſible, that when this deteſtable practice this [illegible] to wives and curſe of huſbands ; ſhall make its public apearance, cloathed with the Sanction and Authority of married Ladies in high Life ; That ſome of our young ones of bold and enterprizing Spirits, adopting the Sentiments of Widow Lackit in the Tragedy of Oronoko. That modeſty means nothing, and is the Virtue of a Girl that knows not what ſhe would be at may imitate their example, and ſo the practice become general ; but of ſhort Duration, for Incompatibles will never agree and coaleſe, how eaſy to foreſee the alternative. O Tempora O Mores !

BOSTON, March 25.
JOURNAL of OCCURRENCES,

A Number of reſolves, ſaid to be the reſolves of the H—e of L——ds reſpecting American affairs have made their appearance in all our News-Papers.

THE reſolves, lately publiſhed in our papers as the Lord's, it is ſaid were introduced into the houſe by L—— H———h, and ſeconded by the D. of B———d ; but was oppoſed, among others by the Duke of R—d and Lord Sh——ne. Lord Sh——ne ſaid he had his ſentiments of American affairs, which he reſerved to the time when thoſe affairs would come before the houſe in a more important view. The Duke of R———d ſpoke ſtrongly againſt the reſolves, and appealed to their L———ps whether it was equitable, or could tend to the honour of that auguſt body, or give to the Americans at this critical ſeaſon, an advantageous and reſpectful idea of the Britiſh government, to decide upon ſuch important queſtions, when the accounts that lay before them, were all from one ſide, and whole realms were to be condemn'd unheard ; without being allowed any opportunity of refuting or alleviating the charges laid againſt them, or even knowing what thoſe charges were.—This weighty objection, it ſeems, did not prevent the paſſing the reſolves ; though we cannot find that any Lord offered any ſatisfactory reply to it, from the principles of reaſon and equity, or the ſpirit of the Britiſh conſtitution, ſo favourable to the ſubject and mild to the accuſed.

The M———y greatly wanted, and no doubt ſtrenuouſly exerted themſelves, to procure a ſ—h at the opening of parliament, & ſuch reſolutions from both houſes, as might prove a ſanction to their own impolitic and violent meaſures reſpecting America. To whoſe miſrepreſentations, theſe ruinous meaſures to both countries, are principally owing no one is at a loſs to determine A dark cabal here, have left no means unemployed, to beguile the leading men in the Britiſh government, into theſe meaſures, and to create a pretence, a very falſe one indeed, for enforcing them by a military power. A——n is fallen into the ſnare ; and aſhamed to confeſs its own weakneſs ; and not knowing how to make an honourable retreat, fly to P——t, for protection. It is certain that among ſixty papers, laid before the Lords, which are alſo to come before the commons, more than thirty are letters from G——r B———d to the ſecretary of ſtate.

Some among us are of opinion that theſe reſolutions, as we have ſeen no copy publiſhed by authority, muſt be ſpurious, for they cannot ſuppoſe that a majority of the houſe of L——ds wou'd ever ſo ſeverely condemn the Circular Letter of the Maſſachuſetts houſe of Aſſembly which implies nothing but a right in Britiſh ſubjects to unite in humble ſupplications to the throne: Good God ! It this is denied us, this laſt refuge of the miſerable, what have we left !

It is alſo deemed highly improbable that any one ſhould dare, ſo far to impoſe upon ſuch an auguſt aſſembly, as to lead them to call the letter of the Selectmen to the ſeveral towns a Precept, when it aſſum'd no ſhadow of authority ; and to condemn a large number of as loyal ſubjects as any in the Britiſh Empire, for meeting together to recognize and ſtrengthen the authority of government, to petition their ſovereign under their grievances, and to promote order and a good temper among their fellow ſubjects ; towards all which ſalutary purpoſes their meeting was known to have a happy influence at a very critical ſeaſon. Whatever grounds there may or may not be for ſuppoſitions, we are told by our friends on the other ſide of the water, that ſome of the reſolves of the Lords will meet with oppoſition in the houſe of commons.—But even the copy of them that has appear'd here is far from being pleaſing to the cabal ! they ſuppoſe that all the reſolutions, except the laſt, are deſign'd to lie in the journals, & have all their effect there ; they find nothing ſaid of disfranchiſing the town of Boſton, of annulling the conſtitutional aſſemblies of the ſeveral towns, of vacating provincial charters, and appointing the council of the Maſſachuſetts by the King, &c.—This is the game at which they have play'd, and in which they have been greatly diſappointed.

The laſt reſolve, which all the foregoing were deſign'd to introduce, perplexes and chagrins them : there is a formal addreſs of the Lords beſeeching the King, to require the governor of the Maſſachuſetts to do, what is not only his indiſpenſable duty but that of every good ſubject. According to this reſolve it ſeems their Lordſhips, with all the artful & aggravated accounts of G B before them, cannot as yet find any ſatisfactory evidence of treaſon or miſpriſion of treaſon —They appear to have expected this but the proof fails. They therefore ſupplicate his Majeſty to require governor Bernard to make farther enquiry—This is particularly diſtreſſing to the cabal . their whole force now lies before parliament, and ſo far are they from being able to make any addition to it, that plain and indiſputable facts, if attended to, muſt invalidate what they have already offered.——When we reflect upon the treatment America in general, and this province in particular has receiv'd, and trace the methods by which the great have been abuſed, and the whole Empire ſhaken ———What boſom burns not in its country's cauſe ?

March 26. The new commiſſion, conſtituting Robert Auchmuty Eſq; judge of Admiralty, &c. was read in open court of Admiralty, and upon a motion made by the K's advocate, the proſecutions which have for many months paſt been carrying on againſt John Hancock, Eſq; and other gentlemen of this town were dropt.——We cannot help remarking at preſent, that one of the witneſſes ſummoned on the part of the crown in theſe vexatious proſecutions, ſtands preſented by the grand jury of the county for Perjury, in this very inſtance ; but we ſhall defer a full narration of the infamous ſteps taken by the C—m———rs without the leaſt ſhadow of proof, to haraſs and if poſſible, to ruin the fortunes as well as reputations, of gentlemen of the moſt diſtinguiſhed and unblemiſhed character ; until we ſhall have leiſure to make it the particular object of our attention.

March 27. The grand jury for the County of Suffolk, broke up laſt week, having ſat a longer time than uſual : among other bills found by the ſaid jury are one againſt Capt. J—n W—n, for ſtirring up, exciting, and encouraging the negro ſlaves in Boſton to a conſpiracy againſt their maſters ; one againſt Lieut. M———r, of the 14th regiment, quartered in this town, and a number of ſoldiers, for forceably breaking open and entering the dwelling houſe of Mr John Hemminway in the night, with deſign to revenge the murder of a favourite dog ; another againſt a number of ſoldiers, for way laying, aſſaulting, and ſmiting ſome inhabitants of the town in the night,——another againſt a number of ſoldiers, for aſſaulting with drawn cutlaſſes and bayonets ; ſmiting and wounding John Ruddock Eſq; one of his Majeſty's juſtices of the peace, when ſuppreſſing a riot at the north part of the town, late at night, in which they were actors ; and another bill againſt one Joſeph Muzzele for Perjury in the caſe between the King and John Hancock, Eſq; lately pending in the court of vice admiralty——Mr. Att ——y then laid before the jury, a recogniſance of one S—s B———t of Connecticut, to anſwer at the court of aſſize to the charge of enticing ſoldiers to deſert, from the regiments quartered among us, but there not being any kind of proof produced to ſupport ſaid charge——No bill was found againſt him.——The behaviour of the K--g's Att———y while attending the jury was in their opinion, no other than might be expected from one who had lately received ſo many lucrative court favours through the inſtrumentality of a G———r, to whoſe views he had for ſome years paſt rendered himſelf quite ſubſervient——What treatment the bills referred to, will meet with when laid before the C——t, a little time muſt determine.——If the dignity of a B——ch of J——s, and the peace and ſecurity of the ſubject, are to be ſacrificed to the perverſe will and evil intention of a G———r and C———rs. The province is then in a pitable caſe indeed.

London Advices in March.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of MIDDLESEX.

AFTER the Senſe of the County had ſo lately appeared in the cleareſt manner by my unanimous Re election, I did not expect that any Gentlemen could have been found to oppoſe me, ſtill leſs in unfair a way as by a Declaration not many hours previous to the Poll. The Advertiſement of Mr. Charles Dingley in every public paper is ſtolen upon us only this morning although the Day of Election has been fixed near a month. This plan of Trick & Surprize has been however concerting for ſome Weeks in a clandeſ-and dark Manner with the Enemies of your Freedom and Independency. The Meanneſs and artifice of this ungenerous attack is to be ranked among the various miniſterial Meaſures employed to ſet aſide the Man of your free choice, but your Firmneſs and Spirit have rendered vain and fruitleſs all the contrivances of low cunning, and Efforts of weak Malice. My opponent declares under his hand, that he had been ſolicited by ſome reſpectable Freeholders of the county of Middleſex to offer himſelf as a candidate to repreſent them in Parliament on account of the preſent vacancy, but in fact no Freeholder could be prevailed upon even to put him in Nomination. The noble Stand you have made this Day in a cauſe which is common to every Elector of Great Britain, will be remembered with Gratitude by our lateſt poſterity. My perſonal obligations to you, Gentlemen, for your generous Support on this occaſion I can never forget, but as an Engliſhman the Greatneſs of your conduct in ſo important and trying an Inſtance affects me ſtill more ſenſibly for you, have glorioſly aſſerted the clear rights of every Freeholder in the Iſland, which a deſpotic Miniſtry had openly invaded.

The manly Spirit you have exerted this Day in direct oppoſition to every art and Intrigue of a corrupt Adminiſtration, cannot fail of making a ſtrong Impreſſion a Sea of Men, who ſeek the ruin of public Liberty. They have long loſt ſight of all national good, but they may now poſſibly refrain from futher acts of Deſpotiſm, and if we enjoy the noble Privileges of our country, confirmed by the Great Charter and the Bill of Rights, particularly thoſe reſpecting the Freedom of Elections, ſecured to us by the Wiſdom and valour of our Anceſtors, we ſhall owe our happineſs to the zeal and vigour, with which you Gentlemen, and the other independent Electors of this Kingdom have ſupported theſe original and primary Rights of Engliſhmen. Whatever be the conſequences of this day's proceedings, you have the ſatisfaction borne your teſtimony to the juſt claims or every Freeholder, and the beſt rights of our inheritance.—The nation will in this age do juſtice to your merit; but your reward will not have an end with the preſent times your names and memories will become dear and venerable to all future ages.

I am Gentlemen,
With much reſpect and Gratitude,
Your affectionate and faithful humble Servt.
JOHN WILKES.

King's Bench Priſon, Thurſday Mar. 16, 1769.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of MIDDLESEX.

Gentlemen,

I Had warm hopes that ſome Freeholder of much property and abilities (though with a more willing mind, or a heart better diſpoſed to do ſervice I believe there is not one) would have offered himſelf, to have repreſented you in parliament, but as there was no ſuch offer made publickly, and I know ſeveral who were applied to I reſolved on Tueſday afternoon to be the humble inſtrument of reſtoring, if poſſible, peace and union to the Freeholders of Middleſex I immediately ſent paragraphs which could only be inſerted in two papers, and the next day, being that of the Election I advertiſed, and made my public offer of ſervice. I proceeded to the Poll, attended by my ſervants, got upon the Huſtings, and was endeavouring to advance but was prevented, and I could plainly perceive a fixed intention to cruſh me, or to do me ſome perſonal injury. In this ſituation without any perſon to aſſiſt me, one or two of Mr. Wilkes's party who knew me, begged of me to get off, if I valued my life, which without their advice, I muſt have been obliged to do, I ſtayed without the Huſtings amidſt the Clamour of Numbers, until the Sheriffs came, when I humbly requeſted their protection, as I was a candidate for the day, and had agreed to pay half the expence of the booth. They told me I muſt do the beſt that I could, and follow them. Alderman Halifax in particular, was very deſirous of protecting me, but the Sheriffs, and under Sheriffs, hurried on; the ſame party ſtopped me from the following, and I remained in the ſame very dangerous Situation I was before.

I then thought there was no time to be loſt; and in order to uſe the proper means of offering myſelf formally, I retreated, and wrote a Letter to the Sheriff, begging to have ſafe Convoy and Security for that purpoſe. I likewiſe ſent meſſengers immediately on my retreat, requeſting the Sheriffs to ſtop the buſineſs, until I could come; and diſpatched my letter, I believe within a Quarter of an Hour, declaring the firmneſs of my reſolution to be a Candidate; which letter being produced, I flatter myſelf, will do me no diſcredit.——My meſſengers being, it ſeems, known in the croud, were threatned, & prevented, from getting to the Sheriffs, before a declaration was made that Mr. Wilkes was duly elected; all which I preſume, was within half an hour, which I had not conceived the leaſt apprehenſion of ſo ſudden an end of the buſineſs. It reſts now only to thank thoſe gentlemen, who came with the generous views of doing ſervice to the King and country, and intended to give me their votes, which I underſtand, tho' upon ſo ſhort a notice, were to the number of 4 or 500 at leaſt, & who were at a loſs what to do, as I was not put in Nomination. I thank them with the warmeſt gratitude, and every good and loyal ſubject who wiſhed me ſucceſs. I declare, with all ſincerity, that I have no view whatever, but that of the public good, and an honeſt ambition to prove myſelf,

Gentlemen,
Your moſt faithful, humble ſervant,
CHARLES DINGLEY.

A.

IN the New London Gazette, of April 21. I obſerve a piece ſigned W, wherein the writer is deſirous of knowing "whether the good deſign of our pious rulers, in appointing a day of public faſting and prayer, throughout the colony, is not in ſome meaſure fruſtrated by any miniſter, or miniſters neglecting, or refuſing to read the governor's proclamation for the obſervation of ſaid day (and the therein mentioned petitions to be offered up to the throne of grace) in their reſpective aſſemblies:" which, I ſhall not now take upon me to determine. But, this I think we may determine, that it greatly maniſeſts their diſregard of the Governor and Council, and an high inſult to their authority, in paſſing over and ſlighting their proclamation, in a manner that ought not to be overlooked. Therefore, upon enquiring into this affair, I find that Mr. G——s, m—ſ—ry at N L was the perſon pointed at; and that he actually neglected to read the proclamation for laſt faſt day, as if on purpoſe to inſult the authority of this land. This is not the firſt time he has tranſgreſſed in this particular no, we have ſeen a proclamation ſtuck upon the church door——at another time we have hear'd him add to a Governors' proclamation, "We in particular, my brethren, ought to pray, that God would, out of his infinite mercy, ſend us a godly and pious Biſhop, one that would have the good of the church at heart," &c. What an inſult is this, not ſonly upon the Governor and Council, but alſo upon the whole community! inſtead of praying for this, let us all earneſtly pray, that we may be directed into ſuch meaſures as will effectually ſtop this greateſt of all evils, and fruſtrate the machinations of all our enemies. What civil or religious views this gentleman can have, in deſiring a Biſhop, is beſt known to himſelf; but I ſhould think, that a Biſhop would not approve of this gentleman's baptizing an infant at a private houſe, and that without ſureties or ſponſors.

Here then you ſee a prieſt, inſerting an additional clauſe in the Governors proclamation of his own head, and which would be ſubverſive of our happy conſtitution Seeing this unnoticed, the next proclamation he receives ventures to pin it upon the church door; and has now at laſt, intirely thrown it aſide. The next thing we may ſeaſonably expect is, that the days appointed for theſe ſolemnities will be wholly diſregarded by the epiſcopalians in this town. My fears are not groundleſs. We all know that parſon P——rs of Hebron, did actually encourage and exhort his people to diſregard the Governor's proclamation for a faſt, on purpoſe to try (as he ſaid) the ſtrength of our law over epiſcopalians in this reſpect (as he intended to appeal home) but, I think he found that our laws were ſufficient to reſtrain his licentious behaviour. Time was, when epiſcopalians uſed to intimidate us by menaces of applying home—but thanks be to heaven, that time is at an end. They would ſcarce dare to complain of being puniſhed for breaking the King's laws, or if they ſhould have courage to complain, we have nothing to fear. If the epiſcopal miniſters are exempted from reading the governor's proclamation in their churches, it would eaſe the minds of many to be informed of it. If they are not exempted, we ſhould be glad to have them brought to a ſenſe of their duty. I much queſtion whether a poor congregational miniſter would eſcape with impunity, if he ſhould neglect or refuſe to read a proclamation; and why ſhould the epiſcopal clergy be treated with ſo great deference, as if they were above law; their abilities, I am ſure do not ſet them above their brethren, and I know not what elſe ſhould.

Hartford, 15th May, 1769.

Meſſ Green & Watſon,
Pleaſe to inſert the incloſed in your next, and you will oblige your Humble Servant,
B. GALE.

To Meſſ. Thomas & Samuel Green, Printers in New Haven.

GENTLEMEN,

I Obſerve inſerted in your Journal of the 12th inſtant, a billet which I wrote to my good friend Theophilus Nichols, Eſq; of Stratford, at the cloſe of which, was theſe words, "My views are to give battle, and not to give or take quarters" At the foot of which publication, the following quere is inſerted, viz. "Whether it will be neceſſary for the other members of the aſſembly to carry with them their ſwords and piſtols, in order to enable them properly to accept the challenge?"

Although I am not ſuſpicious that either the hon. houſe of repreſentatives, or the public, will think there is the leaſt danger of the effuſion of blood, but will conclude from the publiſher's own account of the affair—that it was an open billet—ſent by the common poſt rider——wrote to an intimate friend and acquaintance, it would excite no other ideas than theſe, viz that ſome things which I conceived of the higheſt importance to the peace and ſafety of this colony, would probably be brought before this aſſembly, which I deſigned to oppoſe, and ſome others which I thought would have a happy tendency, which I ſhould endeavour to promote, in both which I hop'd for his aſſiſtance.

But as this billet, wrote on my own private buſineſs, to which the above recited paragraph is annexed, is brought to public view, in a way and manner ſo ſingularly adapted to the polite taſte of the publiſher, I think proper to acquaint the public, 1ſt. What I had in my mind, to which I alluded, by that expreſſion in my billet.

2d. To whom the public are indebted for this very extraordinary diſcovery, to which the ſafety of our whole legiſlature may be attributed.

3d. By what means this conſervator of our ſenate became poſſeſs'd of ſo important a ſecret.

4th. What ſpecial advantage the publiſher propoſes to receive from this diſcovery.

Firſt. One principal thing I had in view, which I hop'd to prevent, was, I was given to underſtand, a motion was deſigned to be made by the Suſquehannah company, which if granted, I conceived would tend to involve the colony in a controverſy of a more dangerous tendency than that which now ſubſiſts with Mr. Maſon, of which there is not the moſt favourable proſpect of a happy iſſue.

What I was determined to urge was, that a journal of the proceedings and debates of the houſe of repreſentatives ſhould be publiſhed, and alſo the ſtate of the public accounts, and tranſmitted to the ſeveral towns in this colony annually, by which our conſtituents might be able to judge of the rectitude of our public proceedings, and the diſpoſition of our public monies, in both which, if I ſhould be unſucceſsful, I ſhould have at leaſt the approbation of my own mind, of having faithfully endeavoured to ſerve my conſtituents.

Secondly. I would inform the public, (and I have it from authority that may be relied upon) that the perſon to whom the public are indebted for this diſcovery, is Mr. Thaddeus Burr of Fairfield, a gentleman of an independent fortune, who for a number of years, in order to render himſelf of greater importance in the eſtimation of the public, than his natural abilities juſtly entitles him to, hath put himſelf at the head of a ſmall party, which is not likely to fluriſh in the latitude of the county of Fairfield.

Thirdly. Mr. Burr's own account of the way in which he made this diſcovery I take to be genuine, and to which I hope he will not object, viz by pimping into an open billet, ſent to an intimate friend by the poſt-rider, who accidentally dropt it in a public tavern, to which Mr. Burr OCCASIONALLY reſorts.

Fourthly. The moſt probable reaſons I can conjecture, which induc'd this patriot, at his own private expence, to procure a publication of this diſcovery, which he had made in ſo genteel a manner was, that as from a knowledge of his general character, two years paſt, he had been diſappointed of the commiſſion of the peace, which was attempted by ſome of his friends, to have been procured for him, as a reward of ſervices——he was in hopes this generous concern for the ſafety of the general aſſembly, might recommend him to their future favours. And as you have been prevailed with to publiſh his performance (unparallell'd for delicacy and politeneſs) you will, I truſt, think yourſelves inexcuſable to the public, if you do not inſert this, at the requeſt of, Your Humble Servant,

BENJAMIN GALE.

Some additional articles which occurred at the time of the rior, when the merchants went to addreſs his Majeſty on the 22d of March laſt.

WHen Mr. Boehm was obliged to get out of his coach at Nando's coffee-houſe on Wedneſday laſt, to avoid the mob, in his hurry he left the original addreſs under the cuſhion of one of the ſeats of the coach, and immediately ordered the coachman to go home; ſome of the mob opened the coach door, and began to ſearch for the addreſs, but the coachman declaring it was ſent before (though he knew not where it was) they were leſs diligent in their ſearch, and miſſed laying hold of it, by not feeling ſix inches further on the ſeat.——The coachman then drove back, but inſtead of going home, thinking his maſter or miſtreſs might want the coach next day, he drove to the coach-maker's in Biſhopſgate-ſtreet. As ſoon as Mr. Boehm was ſafe in a coffee-houſe, ſome gentlemen went to St. James's to inform the Lords in waiting the occaſion of their delay, and that Mr. Boehm would follow when the crowd was a little diſperſed; but after waiting an hour or more, and no addreſs arriving, a meſſenger was diſpatched back to the coffee-houſe for the addreſs, where Mr. Boehm, having miſſed it, remained in great ſuſpence, and had ſent to his houſe to have his coach ſearched, but no coach was arrived there, which cauſed great confuſion for ſome time; at laſt one of the ſervants hinted that the coachman might have gone to the coach-maker's, as it wanted repairing, where they ſent, and luckily found the addreſs under the cuſhion, which was immediately forwarded to St. James's. This accident retarded the preſenting the addreſs for two hours. In the mean time thoſe gentlemen who had arrived at St. James's, and were waiting for it, by the advice of Sir F. N. had begun to ſign a copy, which one of the gentlemen had by him, in order to preſent it, when luckily the addreſs arriv'd after a dozen had ſign'd the copy.

We are informed that the perſons taken into cuſtody at St. James's, charged with breaking the peace, will be tried by a ſpecial commiſſion.

BOSTON, March 28
JOURNAL of OCCURRENCES,

THE charge and Vexation of clearing out Veſſels coaſting from one Part of the Province to another, is a growing evil.—The maſter of a Veſſel, owned at Duxbury, a town in the port of Boſton, to which harbour the Coaſters go and return in about a fortnight, having taken ſome Neceſſaries on board for the people dwelling there, was, as all others are, obliged to clear out, &c The charge of which amounted to three dollars: a large tax upon the Engliſh merchandize tranſported from port to port, in the courſe of a year, and a great diſcouragement to our trade and navigation.——ſufferances muſt be obtained at the Cuſtom Houſe, before ſhot, powder, rum, ſugar, molaſſes and any trifling articles are taken into a coaſter: A Brazier of this town put a bar of ſteel on board one of theſe boats for a cuſtomer, and offered to ſwear it was Engliſh; this was not ſatisfactory, unleſs he would ſwear to the very Veſſel this bar was imported in; this could not be done by him, as the ſteel in his ſtore had been mixt; the ſkipper was therefore prevented from receiving it on board, and obliged to return it back to the Brazier: A merchant of this town, was put to the like Difficulty, reſpecting a box of Briſtol glaſs, and another relative to a cheſt of Engliſh Tea: And we are told, that in conſequence of orders from the C—m——rs, it is required at the Cuſtom Houſe, when a barrel of ſugar, rum, and a few pounds of Coffee, &c. &c. &c. are reported for ſhipping to any place even in this harbour, that inſtead of the uſual certificate from the merchant, that thoſe goods were legally imported and had paid the impoſed duties, the vender of ſuch articles muſt make oath, as to the Veſſel it was imported in; and alſo the Purchaſer, that they are the ſame; and even the Trukman is to give evidence that ſuch goods have been put on board thoſe coaſters.——The confuſion which muſt be occaſioned by ſuch before unheard of requirements, in a new country, whoſe ſettlers are ſcattered along an extenſive ſea ſhore, and are conſtantly needing ſupplies, are as obvious, as the illegality and impolicy of theſe and ſuch like proceedings of the American B——d of C——ts.

March 29. By the number of veſſels, brought into this, and other American Harbours, by our little guarda coſtas, we might be ready to conclude, there had been a formal declaration of war againſt the trade and navigation of this continent, and that in the manner of purſuing it, the G——r and C——m——rs were determined to make it as diſtreſſing as poſſible.——A veſſel owned in the colony of Connecticut, having received on board, ſeveral hogſheads of rum at the Iſland of St Chriſtophers for which a clearance could not be produced, was taken poſſeſſion of by an Engliſh guardacoſta, near the Vineyard, &c is now brought into this harbour. Another veſſel belonging to a Gentleman in this town, returning from the Weſt Indies, being met with by a guarda coaſta at no great diſtance from this place, ſhe was ſtopp'd and ſearched; and a trifle of coffee being found on board, ſhe was ſeized; and the captain inſtead of bringing her into the port ſhe was bound to thought proper to carry her into Rhode-Iſland harbour.

April 2. There are ſhameful inſtances of ſome perſons in all towns, who eſteeming money the chief Good, are not unwilling to diſpenſe with troops being quartered among them, provided their gains may be thereby increaſed; the wiſe and good, who prefer the public proſperity to their own little intereſt, are very differently affected by ſuch an occurrence; knowing that vice debaſes, and muſt finally work out the ruin of the moſt flouriſhing Societies; they cannot but be deeply affected, with the prevalency of it in this town, more eſpecially ſince the troops came among us; the exertions of the moſt faithful Magiſtrates are not ſufficient to ſtop the progreſs of every Immorality: The air is contaminated with oaths, and Blaſphemies: violences are in the midſt of us; and the Sun as well as the Moon and Stars, witneſſeth to the ſhameful proſtitutions, that are daily committed in our ſtreets and commons.

LONDON.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Middleſex.

Gentlemen,

IF I had not experienced your unwearied zeal for liberty and the defence of the fundamental rights of the ſubject, I ſhould feel ſome uneaſineſs in being now obliged, by a third expulſion, to beg the favour of you to attend ſo ſoon again at Brentford to ſupport your former choice. But I know you have the cauſe of your country at heart, and that you glory in every opportunity of convincing the world that you will never give up that title to a free election. If you tamely ſuffer this moſt valuable right of chooſing your own repreſentative in Parliament to be taken from you, or render'd of no effect, you muſt not expect that the enjoyment of any meaner or more inconſiderable franchiſe, will be long permitted. The ſpirit of every Engliſhman revolts at the very idea, and the Freeholders of Middleſex have always firmly ſtood foremoſt in the day of trial, however ſevere and perilous.

The next County Court is fixed for Thurſday the 13th of April, when the election will come on at Brentford. The appearance of my friends at an early hour of that day, I ſhall eſteem as a very particular obligation.

I am Gentlemen, with King's-Bench Deference and reſpect.
Priſon, Saturday Your faithful, & obliged March 18, 1769. Humble ſervant,
JOHN WILKES.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the county of Middleſex,

GENTLEMEN,

AFTER the moſt mature deliberation, and at the deſire of very many friends I am again a candidate for the honour of repreſenting you in Parliament, and I mean humbly to ſolicit that truſt as frequently as any vacancy ſhall be declared, in violation of your inherent and unalienable rights, which I will ever ſupport. I conſider the privilege of electing your own repreſentative, the perſon, to whoſe charge is committed the diſpoſal of your properties and lives, as the firſt principle of our conſtitution, as the eſſence of that power which the people have reſerved to themſelves. If it is taken from you that inſtant you will ceaſe to be free, for you will be governed by laws to which you have not given your aſſent, or perhaps be ſubject to the caprice and arbitrary will of a miniſter or a minion. I therefore am determined, gentlemen, on every occaſion to aſſert your rights, and I will not ſhrink from any danger, when I have ſo great an object in view.

A reſolution of the houſe of Commons does not make the law of this kingdom, nor can it deprive the electors or elected of any legal right. It cannot create or deſtroy the capacity of either, derived from the law of the land. It is only the opinion of one third part of the legiſlature. The returning Officer has an act of Parliament for his guide, an act of all the three eſtates of this realm. The form of his oath is preſcribed in that act. He is ſworn to return ſuch perſon, or perſons, as ſhall to the beſt of his judgment appear to him to have the majority of Legal votes. If he does not, he is declared guilty of wilful perjury. Should I be ſo diſtinguiſhed by your favour, as to be a third time elected your repreſentative, the only alternative left to the ſheriff is to return me, or to perjure himſelf. The juſtice and impartiality of the ſheriff cannot be queſtioned. The houſe of Commons are the ſole judges who are duly elected, but the people only have the power of determining who are the fit and proper perſons to be entruſted, under theſe reſtrictions and qualifications alone expreſly declared by act of Parliament.

Devoted as I am a perſonal ſacrifice to the revenge and implacability of a moſt deſperate and deſpicable ſet of men in adminiſtration, I go on however very deliberately in the way of truth and honour in the purſuit of your intereſts, and the cauſe of freedom. I will be conſiſtent and uniform to the end, at the hazard of all I hold dear, to you, I will proceed to expoſe, and, if poſſible, bring to juſtice, thoſe exalted offenders, who, betraying the ſacred truſt, for which they are reſponſible to the public, have been long and aſſiduouſly labouring to effect the ruin of this nation. At the ſame time the utmoſt of my little influence and abilities ſhall be exerted to prevail on the real friends of our king and country, to heal our unhappy diviſions, to correct the errors, which, contrary to it's firſt principles, have crept into our conſtitution, and to reſtore it's genuine, original purity. By ſuch means alone the dignity of the crown, the good order of government, and the liberties of the people, can be preſerved. We ſhall then only be truly happy as men, as freemen, as Engliſhmen.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your moſt faithful, and obedient humble ſervant,
King's Bench Priſon, JOHN WILKES.
Monday, February 20, 1769.

A HINT,

IT gave us great pleaſure to ſee the Empreſs of Ruſſia beginning the war againſt the Turks, with ſetting a part a day to aſk Succeſs in it, of the ſupreme diſpoſer of all things, as well as to return public thanks for the recovery from the ſmall-Pox,

The King of Pruſſia has likewiſe ſet a part a day to beg of God a ſafe delivery to the Princeſs of Orange.

It is many years ſince a day was ſet a part for prayer and humiliation in this country: Surely we, as a nation, have many things to be thankful for, many things to hope and fear. Such an appointment would give heart-felt pleaſure to Millions of his Majeſty's moſt faithful Subjects; and if the appointment was to extend to North-America, and indeed to the whole British Empire, to be on the ſame day, it would add a ſolemnity to it, that would be very pleaſing. It might pleaſe the all-wiſe Governor of the Univerſe to hear our united prayers to direct and diſpoſe all matters that are not rightly underſtood, between us and our American Brethren in particular, to an iſſue, the reſult of which might be of the moſt extenſive advantages.

There are many inſtances of public deliverances being vouchſafed to this country, in anſwer to public Prayer.

If theſe lines ſhould chance to be ſeen by our Gracious Soverign; may the King of Kings put into his heart to appoint ſuch a day, is the hearty paryer of MILLIONS.

For the Public Ledger.

On ſeeing Capt. A—— at Mrs. Cornely's dreſt fantaſtically.

'TIS ſaid that our Soldiers ſo lazy (are grown,
With luxury, plenty, and eaſe,
That they more for their Carriage (than Courage are known.
And ſcarce know the uſe of a piece.
Let them ſay what they will, ſince it (nobody galls,
And exclaim out, ſtill louder & louder;
But there ne'er was more money expend(ed in Balls,
Or a greater conſumption of Powder.

March 9. We have authority to inform the Public, that for the encouragement of our Navigation, by increaſing the number of ſeamen in the Merchants Service, there is preparing, under the patronage of the chief Magiſtrate of this City, a Bill to oblige the owners of all BritiſhShips, to take boys to ſerve as apprentices on board their reſpective Veſſels, in proportion to their tonnage or number of Men; the alarming decreaſe of able ſeamen, being a convincing proof that the intended Nurſeries of that uſeful body of Men, on the ſupport of which, our exiſtence as a Commercial and Maritime Nation depends, require ſpeedy and effectual Regulation.

If ſuch an act ſhould paſs, it would promote and facilitate the laudable plan begun by Sir John Fielding, and which it is to be hoped, will be taken up and extended by the Marine ſociety, whoſe aſſiſtance during the late war was a great national benefit.

March 17. Yeſterday a grand proceſſion of upwards of 200 horſemen, with colours flying, proceeded over Weſtminſter Bridge, in their way to the King's Bench Priſon, to congratulate Mr. Wilkes, on his being a third time elected member for Middleſex.

At a very numerous and reſpectable meeting of the Merchants and tradeſmen of Liverpool, at George's Coffee-houſe, on Wedneſday ſe'nnight, purſuant to public notice, an addreſs was propoſed, and unanimouſly agreed to be tranſmitted to Sir William Meredith, Bart. and Ribard Pennont, Eſq, the worthy repreſentatives in Parliament for that borough.

Yeſterday there was a grand councill held at St. James's —The only officers of ſtate preſent were the Earl of Hertford, Earl of Talbot, Duke of Ancaſter, and Lord Weymouth.

Tueſday there was a very numerous meeting of the gentlemen ſupporters of the Bill of Rights, at the London tavern, Lord Mountmorris in the chair, when a further ſum, it is ſaid, was ſubſcribed in ſupport of Mr. Wilkes and his cauſe.

It is ſaid orders are given for ſeven new frigates of thirty ſix guns each, to be built in private dockyards on the river Thames for the government ſervice.

Letters from Dantzick, dated March 1. ſay, "The troubles which have ſo long diſtracted this unhappy kingdom. begin now to be felt on the frontiers of Royal Pruſſia, which had hitherto been free from them. All the roads are infeſted with parties who call themſelves Confederates, ſome to plunder, and others to get out of the way of the Ruſſians, who purſued them very cloſely. The poſt coming from Warſaw hither was ſeized a few days ago It is likewiſe melancholly to ſee that many of the principal and moſt opulent families are obliged to ſend their jewels and other valuable effects here, and to Hamburgh and Holland, either to ſell or pawn, in order to raiſe money for their preſent ſubſiſtence. One merchant in particular lately arrived from Warſaw had a diamond of 31 carrats and a half, which it is ſaid he intended to ſell in Holland."

Aſſembly Room, Mile End, March 20. 1769

At the Meeting of the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex, this day, at the Aſſembly-room, Mile end, there was the greateſt appearance, perhaps that ever has been known on a like occaſion.

The chair was filled by Mr. Sawbridge, who having declared the cauſe of this meeting to be the rejection of Mr. Wilkes, and a new writ ordered for the election of a repreſentative in his ſtead, for the county, and to take the opinion of the freeholders, whether they would again ſupport their former choice.

It was unanimouſly reſolved to ſupport their former choice of John Wilkes, Eſq; to be a repreſentative in Parliament for the county of Middleſex.

Other gentlemen then ſpoke in their turns, in regard to the propriety & legality of this proceeding. And it was clearly ſhewn, that, there is no law to exclude Mr. Wilkes, nor to puniſh any perſon for voting for him, and that as often as Mr. Wilkes, ſhall be choſen the law will oblige the returning officer to declare him duly elected, in defiance to any act that might be made uſe of to the contrary.

Some ſpeeches were thrown out about petitioning; but Mr. T——, with a true patriotic ſpirit recommended moderation, and expreſſed his hopes that integrity and firmneſs on the part of the county, would prove of more real effect towards a happy end to the affair in debate, than any meaſure that ſhould carry in them the appearance of anger and revenge.

Accordingly it was unanimouſly agreed, to wait the iſſue of the next election the 14th of April.

It was then moved, to thank the Sheriffs for their candor and conduct at the laſt election, which was carried nem. con.

It is impoſſible to deſcribe the heartineſs of the freeholders, who proteſted that they would go to Brentford not only every month, but every day, if neceſſary, rather than deſert or betray their rights; and would ſooner lay down their freeholds, or their lives, than give up their inherent and unalienable privilege of chuſing

The meeting was adjourned to the Monday after the next election; when the freeholders will meet again to determine the neceſſary ſteps to be taken in ſupport of their rights and liberties.

Laſt Saturday died at Buſh Hill, near Enfield, in the 88th year of his age, Mr. David Barclay, late of Cheapſide, where he reſided above 70 years. and, by an extenſive commerce with America, acquired a large fortune, and with that univerſal reputation for laudable induſtry, ſtrict probity, unaffected benevolence and liberality, as will perpetuate his Memory with Honor and Reſpect to the lateſt Poſterity He was the only ſurviving Son of Mr. Robert Barclay, author of the famous apology for the Quakers, dedicated to King Charles the Second; and was not the leſs remarkable for having had the ſingular Honor of receving under his roof three ſucceſſive Kings on their acceſſion to the throne, when they favoured this city with their royal preſence.

Tueſday there was a numerous and reſpectable meeting of the ſupporters of the Bill of Rights at the London Tavern in Biſhopſgate-ſtreet; when they received the report of the Committee appointed to examine into the ſtate of Mr Wilkes's affairs, and ſet a part 1500l. to diſcharge the demands of the moſt neceſſitous of that Gentleman's Creditors. After dinner 500l. was ſubſcribed towards ſupporting the cauſe.

It is remarked with pleaſure that among the number of Mr. Wilkes's friends are 5 of the city members.

Some letters from Leghorn mention, that General Paoli had lately diſcovered two of his own relations to have been engaged in a treaſonable correſpondence with France.

Some letters from Leghorn mention, that three of Paoli's privateers had fallen into the hands of the French. in conſequence of the victory over the Corſicans.

Letters from Madrid, dated Feb. 14. ſay "The family of the Governor of Mazagan in Africa arrived here the 29th ult. That fortreſs is actually beſieged by between 25 and 30.000 Moors. We are embarking here with the utmoſt diſpatch, every kind of ammunition and proviſion for that place."

Letters from Madrid, dated Feb. 14 ſay, "The king, in order to favour the Indian fabricks of cotton and painted linen in the province of Catalonia, hath ſuppreſſed for ten years the municipal tax which uſed to be received in the ports of Barcelona on the cotton of America and of this kingdom."

Wedneſday the papers and journals kept by the officers on board the ſwallow ſloop of war, lately returned from the ſouth ſeas, were brought up from Portſmouth to the admiralty office, for the inſpection of the Commiſſioners of that board. The ſhip is ordered round to Woolwich, and to be paid off.

OS TON, May 18.

We have Intelligence from gentlemen of undoubted credit, that the merchants at Philadelphia, at a meeting lately held in that city, came into an agreement not to import any goods from Great-Britain untill the late Revenue Acts are repealed.

We hear that Capt. Shand's Veſſel that arrived at Providence laſt Week from London, is fully loaded with Goods, and that capt. Hannes who arrived alſo laſt Week at Newport, Rode-Iſland, brought a conſiderable Quantity of goods; but we are informed from good Authority; that there is not a ſingle Package on board either for any mearchant in this Town.

The Providence paper begins to fill up with Advertiſements of Engliſh & India goods Lately imported there from LONDON.

There were this ſpring ſeveral more Veſſels loading at London, with dry goods for Quebec than uſual.

We hear that the Detachment of the 56th regiment commanded by Capt. Willſon, are to embark for Halifax this day.

It is ſaid that the 14th regiment now here is deſtined this ſummer for New-York, and the regiment in that City is to return home.

His Majeſty's ſhip Romney and Huſſar ſailed laſt Saturday for Halifax. The Commodore's Broad-Pendant is now hoiſted on board the Rippon of 60 guns, which is the only King's ſhip now in this harbour.

Laſt Friday the Senegal Sloop of War ſailed from Rhode-Iſland for this place.

Two whaling Sloops the ſame day came into Newport, from which place they had not been out above ten Days, and brought in with them upwards of 90 Barrels of Oil.

The following Piece of Intelligence is inſerted verbatim as it was received.

PROPOSALS

For continuing and improving the

PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE,

AND

UNIVERSAL ADVERTISER.

(at the moderate Price of Ten Shillings per Annum)

By William Goddard.

(To be embelliſhed with COPPER PLATES, which if ſold ſeperate, could not be afforded for the Price of a Year's CHRONICLE.)

THE Printer of the Pennſylvania Chronicle, &c. having inſtituted his Paper with a view of ſerving the public, (as well as to obtain for himſelf ſuch moderate ſubſiſtence as one of his profeſſion has a right to expect) is very deſirous to extend its utility and as a proof of his ſincerity, he propoſes now to make ſome conſiderable improvements which he hopes will merit the attention and encouragement of the Public.—To this end he has greatly enlarged his correſpondence in Europe, and to the numerous daily and weekly News-Papers, has ordered an additional conſtant ſupply of the beſt Political Pamphlets Regiſters, Reviews and every other temporary production that may enable him to proſecute his deſign with credit to himſelf and ſatisfaction to his ſubſcribers.—Several gentlemen of great learning and ingenuity, in this and the neighbouring provinces have promiſed to lend their aſſiſtance, ſo that there may not be wanting ſome original productions, which may exhibit agreable ſpecimens of American humour and genius.——The paper will thus become not only a Regiſter of the Beſt Intelligence (in which no article, Foreign or Domeſtic, worthy the Public Notice, will be omitted) but a repoſitory of ingenious and valuable Literature, in proſe and verſe;—and to incite perſons to preſerve their papers, which will grow into a family Library of Entertainment and Inſtruction, he intends printing them in a very handſome Quarto, on a good fair paper, with a new and beautiful Elzevir type, to be embelliſhed annually with two elegant Copper plates, (which are already contracted for) to be executed by the moſt ingenious Artiſts; one to ſerve for a Frontiſpiece, and the other to cloſe the Volume. A neat Title, and a copious and uſeful Index will likewiſe be added.

THE extraordinary expences that the printer muſt neceſſarily incur, by providing theſe improvements, will require further Encouragement, and induce him, whilſt he is returning Thanks to his preſent generous Subſcribers, to ſolicit the favour of others, as every one muſt be ſenſible from ſo ſmall a price as Ten Shillings a year, and the conſtant and incidental expence of a Preſs, how ſmall a profit will remain to the Printer.——Nor can the advance of Five Shillings for the firſt Half year, which he requeſts from every ſubſcriber, both new and old, be looked upon as unſeaſonable, on the preſent improved and expenſive plan, which will require an immediate ſupply.

THE conſtant attention the Printer has always ſhewn to gratify the Public, the open and impartial manner in which he has managed his preſs, Unbiaſſed by Party, the free acceſs every man has to it in private diſputes without prejudice or Affection on either ſide, may, he hopes, entitle him to ſome degree of merit in his buſineſs, and conſequently to thoſe favours of the public, which he will be always equally ready to acknowledge and ſtudious to deſerve.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the Printer, at his Office in market Street, and by many Gentlemen in different parts of America, (particularly by moſt of the Poſtmaſters, Bookſellers, and Printers) in whoſe hands ſubſcription papers will be left; and the printer would be much obliged to any of his old Friends and Cuſtomers for their good Offices towards the future ſucceſs of his Undertaking.

N. B. The greateſt attention will be paid to the regular diſpatch and delivery of the papers in town and country.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the printers hereof.

The caſe of Mr. JOHN ADAMS, humbly ſubmitted to the conſideration of the independant freeholders of Middleſex, at this critical period.

JOHN ADAMS, Eſq; a member of the Houſe of Aſſembly in this iſland of Barbadoes, in the year 1762, had armed his ſlaves to oppoſe the ſheriff in the execution of his duty. This act was attended with flagrant circumſtances. He was proſecuted, convicted, fined and impriſoned. The Houſe tho't Mr. Adams unworthy of holding a ſeat in it; and a motion being made to expel him, he was expelled accordingly. A writ was iſſued for the election of a repreſentative for the Pariſh of Chriſt church, which Mr. Adams had repreſented.—The electors ſaid, the crime or crimes for which Mr. Adams was expelled, were not committed, in the Aſſembly: They were cognizable only in the courts of law; to which Mr. Adams had ſubmitted and received ſentence: A ſentence, which, by the laws, did not affect his ſeat in the Aſſembly, and therefore they re elected him: But upon the return of the writ, it was again moved, that he ſhould be again expelled: And he was expelled accordingly. The ſpirit that prevailed in the pariſh of Chriſts Church was notorious. The electors ſeriouſly took up the caſe as a matter of right, belonging to themſelves. They conceived this arbitrary expulſion to be a breach of the peoples natural and unalianable privileges; which the Aſſembly, who derived it's authority from the people, was bound to ſupport. And they ſaid from SYDNEY, that the Aſſembly did not enjoy "an inherent, but a delegated power; and whoever receives it is accountable to thoſe who gave it; for they who give authority by commiſſion, do always retain more than they grant." Cap. 3. ſec. 38. Had a third writ been iſſued the electors, notwithſtanding the ſecond expulſion, would ſtill have returned him, to aſſert and ſupport their own inherent right to a free choice; and to preſerve what did conſtitutionally belong to them, the power of being not only the moſt proper, but the ſole and excluſive judges, who were fit perſons to repreſent them in the Aſſembly. The aſſembly fearing, or not liking a third election of the ſame perſon, and entertaining great indignation againſt Mr. Adams, came to a reſolution, at the time of a ſecond expulſion, to bring in a bill to diſqualify him from holding a ſeat in the Aſſembly. The bill was paſſed by the Aſſembly, and by council, and was aſſented to by the Governor, Charles Pinfold, Eſq; Dr. of the civil law.

Mr. Adams could not reſt eaſy under ſuch ſeverity, but applied for redreſs to the juſtice and moderation of his Sovereign, the preſent King. This gentleman was unconnected, unſupported. His fate was to be determined by the equity of his caſe.

Upon his appeal, the act of diſability was abſolutely repeal'd: with a declaration that it was arbitrary, and contrary to the ſpirit of the Britiſh conſtitution; as it deprived his Majeſty of the ſervice of a ſubject.

N. B. The reaſons that attended the repeal were expreſſed in the ſtrongeſt terms; and founded upon an opinion given by the late Sir Matthew Lamb, Bart. council to the board of trade.

Memorandum. In the celebrated "letter on libels, warrants," &c. Page 74 ſixth edit. there is this remarkable paſſage; "With regard to the inſignificance of a mere reſolution of the houſe of Commons, I recollect that ſomething of a like ſort was flung out by a learned gentleman, who cloſed the whole of his argument on this point, by ſaying, that "had he the honour of preſiding in any court of law he ſhould regard ſuch a reſolution no more than he would that of ſo many drunken porters in Covent Garden." ‡ This opinion was given in the memorable debate on general warrants, by Sir Fletcher Norton, Kt. then his Majeſty's attorney general, and now cheif juſtice in Eyre. If ſuch, in this great lawyer's opinion, was the inſignificance of a reſolution of the houſe of Commons then, a freeholder of Middleſex would be glad to know, what gives it force & importance now? If a ſingle vote of the hoſe of Commons can diſqualify or disfranchiſe an Engliſhman, why can it not naturalize a Jew, remove a turnpike gate, &c.—Things of much leſs conſequence?

THIS day the Freeholders, and other Inhabitants of this town, met by adjournment at Faneuil-Hall, to receive the reports of ſeveral Committees; when among others the following were accepted, viz. The Report of a Committee relative to employing the poor, in which the overſeers had a grant of £.500 lawful money, to be apply'd for the procuring of ſpinning wheels, &c. for ſuch Women and Children as are unable to purchaſe them.——Another report, pointing out the moſt likely methods to check the progreſs of vice, and immorality; wherein it was obſerved, that nothing would better contribute to bring the propoſals to effect, than agreeing upon ſome effectual ſcheme for employing the numerous poor of this town.——And another, directing, and empowering, the Selectmen to bring ſuch actions as they may judge proper to prevent or remove any treſpaſſes upon the town's lands, and for obtaining damages for the ſame.——

April 5. The Committee, to conſider what was further neceſſary to be done for vindicating the character of the inhabitants, and obtaining the knowledge of ſuch repreſentations as may have been made to their [illegible] reported, the Draft of a humble Petition to his Majeſty, which [illegible]ly accepted, and ordered to be tranſmitted to the Hon. Col. Iſaac Barry, a Member of the Britiſh houſe of Commons, with the deſire of the town, that the ſame might be immediately preſented.—In this petition the town expreſs their Grief and aſtoniſhment, to find that ſuch accounts had been laid before the houſe of Lords, as to induce them to paſs a reſolve, that they had been in a ſtate of diſorder and confuſion for ſome time paſt.——They aſſure his M——y, that none of his ſubjects in the town, can be juſtly charg'd with diſaffection to his perſon, Family, or Government, or the leaſt diſpoſition to oppoſe the due reſtraints of Law, or conſtitutional Authority.——And that the only inſtance that could bear a repreſentation of diſorder in the town within the year paſt, was in a great Meaſure occaſioned by the Miſconduct of ſome of the ſervants of the crown; who by exerciſing a power not warranted by acts of Parliament, or beyond, ſome individuals; but that the diſorder was immediately diſcountenanced, and ſuppreſſed by the body of the inhabitants. That his Majeſty's Council however, the next Morning, began an inquiry into the diſorder, and the perſons active in it, but were ſtop'd in the proceſs by G. B. himſelf, who choſe in his own Way and Manner, to take depoſitions and tranſmit them, ſuch as they were, without giving the town the leaſt Notice of what they contain'd, or the knowledge even of the Magiſtrate before whom they were taken! They complain to his Majeſty that their public tranſactions have been repreſented as ſpringing from undutifulneſs, diſaffection, and even the principles of rebellion; the unhappy effects of which they feel in the ordering a military force, under a ſuppoſed Neceſſity of them to aid Civil authority, and preſerve the peace, while the town is kept in total ignorance of the Matters alledged againſt them.——They repreſent to his M——y, that they had particularly waited on G. B and intreated him to point out in what reſpects the public tranſactions of the town had militated with law, but could not obtain ſuch a Favour.——They beſeech his Majeſty with hearts full of affection and Duty, and at the ſame time, with the warmeſt attachment to their own conſtitutional rights, liberties, and privileges, to allow them to declare thoſe accounts to be ill grounded, which have repreſented them as held to their allegiance and duty, only by the band of terror, and the force of arms; and they ſupplicate the removal of a military power,—a power unneceſſary,—a power unfavourable to commerce deſtructive to Morals, dangerous to law, and tending to overthrow the civil conſtitution.——They fly to the juſtice as well as the clemency of the S——n, and pray that they may be favour'd with copies of Governor Barnard's letters (ſome of which have ſince come to hand,) the Memorials of the commiſſioners of the cuſtoms in America, and other papers, that affect their moſt important intereſts, that they may have the opportunity of vindicating themſelves; and they conclude with declaring that they doubt not their being able to make their innocence appear to the ſatisfaction of their S——n, and the ſhame of their Accuſers.

April 6. [illegible] Appointment of acting Juſtices for every county, too much care cannot be taken, that they be not, only perſons of the beſt Morals, but of a ſpirit which will lead them to act up to the true character of Reforming Magiſtrates: This town has been ſo happy in times paſt, as to have a Number of ſuch Magiſtrates; men who nobly exerted themſelves, for the ſuppreſſion of drunkenneſs, Sabbath breaking, Profaneneſs and other Immoralities; and it is cauſe of Thankfulneſs, that the preſent day ſtill afford inſtances of ſuch faithfulneſs.——However, it ſeems G. B. is of opinion, that a reform of the Magiſtracy is become abſolutely neceſſary for making better times; but diſpairing of having the conſent of his C——l for diſplacing any of the preſent juſtices; he has ſeen fit to add a Number to the Bench, who are to labour in this ſalutary Work.——The people might reaſonably have concluded, that a ſuppreſſion of the immoralities enumerated, would have been the main object of their purſuit, but it ſeems nothing leſs is intended,——a reform of Government and [illegible] of the Manners of the people, is the ſervice allotted them; and this reform is to conſiſt in a bracing up of Government, which has been repreſented to be in a much more lax ſtate than are our Morals. A Foreigner has been pitch'd upon to take the lead in this arduous undertaking, of bracing up Government, the plain Engliſh of which, is, ſtrengthning and aiding the Meaſures of an avaricious, arbitary G——r; but the ſervice has proved too fatiguing for even a F——ch Conſtitution,——he often reels and ſtaggers under his load of ſervice,——poor Gentleman, ſome perſons were paſſing his houſe the other night as he was coming to his ſtreet door with a large taper in his hand, to light one of his clan into the ſtreet, when they obſerved his knees to ſmite one againſt another, which preſently after buckled under him, and this reformer received a fall, which excited the pity rather than laughter of the beholders.——It is to be hoped ſome proper help will be ſpeedily afforded him, as it cannot but excite ridicule, to perceive a lax unbraced Magiſtrate, employed in bracing up Government.——It is a ſerious truth, that if Magiſtrates are vicious and immoral, the people will ſoon be ſo; and if in theſe Appointments, ſo little regard is paid even to political characters, as that T——s, and R——s, may be entruſted with the execution of the laws, provided they will act in ſubſerviency to the views of a F——h arbitrary, G——r, the rights, as well as the Morals, of ſuch a people, muſt be in the moſt deplorable Situation.

April 7. The reſolutions of the Merchants of Philadelphia, not to import any more foreign Merchandize, while the preſent reſtrictions, Burdens, and impoſitions, upon the trade of North-America are continued gives high ſatisfaction to the true friends of the Colonies in this province, as does the conduct of the Merchants in New York, in appointing a Committee to inquire into, and inſpect all European Importations, in order to a ſtrict compliance with their agreement, reſpecting a Non importation of Foreign Wares; which Committee is to correſpond with the Merchants of other colonies.——Meaſures which we hope will be adopted by all their Neighbours and be productive of the moſt ſalutary Effects to a whole Continent.

April 8. The capacity of a hottentot at this time of day, is ſufficient to diſcern, that our ruin can come only from ourſelves: And that our fellow Subjects in Great Britain, can't deprive us of our rights if we mind our own Buſineſs and let theirs alone. The truth is, we have no Occaſion for Britiſh Manufactures, they are Rank Poiſon to the conſtitution of this country. We live in a land that flows with Milk and Honey, and with ſuitable culture, will preſently yield us the Neceſſaries and convenences of life in rich Abundance.

We have had line upon line, and lecture upon lecture, to ſhew us the importance and Neceſſity of diſuſing as faſt as poſſible European Articles, and attending to thoſe that are fabricated and Manufactured in America, as the only Way to unrivit the chains, and burſt aſunder the Bands of Iron that are faſtened on us.

Thoſe perſons who for the ſake of a little ſordid Pelf, directly or indirectly, encourage or connive, at the importation of articles pernicious to the conſtitutional rights of this country, ought to be look'd upon as men deſtitute of reaſon, civility, and common ſenſe. The people of Great-Britain, by the burdens and impoſitions on trade and by their coerſive and vigorous Meaſures, abundantly intimate that our trade in thoſe parts is diſagreeable, and that it would be well to forbear, at leaſt for a ſeaſon.—It muſt therefore be unmannerly and contrary to the rules of reaſon, and good Breeding, to keep haunting them, after their actions have amounted almoſt to a flat Denial.

countrymen, reſolve to be conſtitutionally free, and not barter away our Birth-right privileges for that which profiteth not. Let us ſave our Money in order to ſave our Country; let the Buſineſs of Importation, already thickſet with Difficulties, and dangerous to purſue, come to a period, and thoſe who promote it to the Diſadvantage of the cauſe of Liberty, be looked upon with an Eye of contempt. Let us by no Means promote or eſteem thoſe, who are purſuing intereſts diametrically oppoſite to the Intereſt of the public, and who to gratify their avaricious cravings, would ſell their country, and compaſs Sea and Land to obtain articles, which if obtain'd tend to involve America in irretrievable ruin."

April 9. There have been great Diſturbances not long ſince, in the Barracks at New-Boſton, and ſome tumults in the ſtreet near them, occaſioned by the Inſults and outrages of the drunken ſoldiery, in which ſeveral of the inhabitants, as well as the Soldieres were wounded.——Violences muſt be expected from Soldiers, who have a raging appetite for ſpirit and whoſe Barracks, are encircled with Diſtilling Houſes and dram ſhops.

April 10. Two ſoldiers the other evening, left the Guard on the Neck, and were making off into the country; one of them who had been much in Liquor, on coming to his ſenſes, thought it moſt expedient to return, and throw himſelf upon the mercy of a court, Marſhal; by this court, we are told, he was ſentenced to have only eight hundred Laſhes, three hundred and eighty of which he received in part, and was then carried off to the Hoſpital, to all Appearance a dead Man.

April 11. There was very ſevere Whippings the Day before Yeſterday: a Grenadier having recieved about two hundred Laſhes, in part of a Court Marſhall's ſentence, the Doctor as it is ſaid, adviſed to his being looſed from the Halberts, it being his opinion, that a greater Number might endanger life. He was accordingly unlooſed, when he fell upon the ground ſenſeleſs, but upon pouring ſome Water down his throat, he ſoon came to himſelf; this encouraged the human officer, to order his being again tied to the halberts, and that the Drummers ſhould proceed in executing the ſentence; he accordingly recieved about fifty more Laſhes, as ſeemingly inſenſible of the ſtrokes as would have been a ſtatue of Marble: He was then taken down and conveyed away to the Hoſpital, a ſeeming Corps.

April 12. Yeſterday Morning it was confidently reported to the inhabitants, by ſeveral of the ſoldiers, that the granadier whipped the day before, was actually dead. The minds of people were agitated with this News; the circumſtances of his Puniſhment, could not but greatly affect them: They applied to the two coroners in town, who diſcovered that they needed no ſtimulus, to diſcharge their Duty ———Thomas Daws, Eſq; immediately proceeded to the Hoſpital in the common, and would not be ſatisfied with any information of doctors, &c until he had ſeen the man, and was aſſured that he was living; ſoon after Mr Pierpoint, the other coroner, made a legal inquiſition: he alſo informed the inhabitants, that the Man was alive, but that he appeared to him to be in a moſt hazardous condition.

We hope he may recover or in caſe of his death, that it may be manifeſted to the world, that the town of Boſton in New England, as well as the city of Wincheſter, in Old England, has its Worthies, who can never reſt until they have taken all proper and legal methods, to clear the land of the Guilt of that blood, which would otherwiſe lie upon it.

LONDON, Feb. 9.

Letters from Paris mention, that it is not expected there that General Paoli can hold out above one campaign againſt the power of France, not only on account of ſuperiority of numbers, but alſo as great dependance is placed on the deſertion of ſome of the chiefs in Corſica, and that in all probability by the powerful influence of gold, more will follow the example.

They write from Conſtantinople, that the Turkiſh army, deſtined to act in Poland, will conſiſt of 250 000 men; that a body of 140 000 Tartars have orders to make an irruption in the empire of Ruſſia, and that the ſum aſſigned by the Porte for the expences of the war, amounts to 250 millions.

It is rumoured no leſs than three foreign miniſters took the earlieſt opportunity to diſpatch expreſſes to their ſeveral courts, on the ſubject of a late expulſion.

The expences attending the proſecuting a certain popular priſoner, are now ſaid to amount to no leſs than 600 000l, which have all been deſtayed by one ſingle perſon.

Feb. 10. It is ſaid his Sardinian Majeſty has made a very forcible remonſtrance to the court of France, in relation to the invaſion of Corſica, which it is hoped will be attended with conſequences that will be very advantageous for the ſpirited natives of that iſland.

By Letters from Corſica, we hear that a report prevails in that iſland, that the dey of Algiers has offered to furniſh the brave Paoli with a conſiderable ſupply of troops and warlike ſtores, in order to enable him to preſerve the liberties of his country from the encroachments of his ambitious enemies.

Feb. 11. It is ſaid that a certain gentleman lately promoted to a high office, received the ſum of 5000l. as a retaining fee in a certain cauſe, with 1000l. for his brief; and that he, with the reſt of the council, will receive 50l. per day till it is determined.

Feb. 13. It is thought that matters will very ſhortly be made deciſive reſpecting America; not only by a ſtrict ſupport of the ſupreme legiſlative authority over them, but likewiſe bringing the inſtigators and ringleaders of the late commotions there, to a ſtrict account for their proceedings.

It is ſaid, that as ſoon as a certain great affair is bro't upon the tapis, a celebrated ſtateſman, who has retired from all public buſineſs, has ſomething very extraordinary and very intereſting to offer on the ſubject of territorial right, &c.

We hear ſome perſons are under proſecution for tranſmitting a late addreſs without proper authority.

The King of Pruſſia has bought in all the demands of the German Commiſſaries who were denied payment by the board of enquiry in London, after the war. They were paid, (or perhaps overpaid) one million in lieu of ſeven. How this monarch expects to get in the remainder, is what the French call Un myſtère de la cour. But it is imagined that great politician would not give even five per cent. ready money, if he were not ſure of obtaining the reſt.

Two great officers in the city, in the law department, have given it as their opinion that a certain popular gentleman is not eligible for the office of Alderman, being in execution at the time of election.

Letters from Paris, dated, January 31. declared, that no news of any conſequence had lately been received at court, relating to the affairs of Corſica. It appears that the count de Marbeuf has received orders to act only on the defenſive, till the large body of troops from Provence arrives to reinforce him, and that then his inſtructions are, to act in the moſt vigorous manner, in order to reduce the iſland under the dominion of France, which, it is thought, will be affected in about two months as ſeveral of the firſt families in that iſland, have offered to join the King's troops, provided their privileges relating to commerce, &c. are not infringed.

We are aſſured, that an eminent, merchant, in this city, remarkable for his attachment to the cauſe of liberty, tranſmitted to General Paoli, on Friday laſt, the ſum of one thouſand pounds, which he had collected among his friends, for the relief of the brave Corſicans, in conſequence of the ſubſcription ſet on foot by Mr. Boſwell.

The final determination of the ineligibility of a certain gentleman to an office of ſome importance in this city, is we hear, not yet made; as the law officers, to whom the matter was referred, though they have already declared the election to be void on account of his being in execution at that time, have deſired the opinion of the ſolicitor and Attorney General on this matter.

Feb. 14. It is now thought, that a bill of incapacitation will not be brought againſt a certain gentleman.

It is ſaid, an application has been made, in an extraordinary tone, by the ambaſſador of a great power, demanding our making part in a quarrel wherein we are at preſent no ways concerned; and with a haughty declaration, that not a ſingle article of commerce (through the medium of other powers, which muſt inevitably raiſe the price of them to us) ſhall be permitted to be imported from his ſoveteign's dominions, for Britiſh uſe.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

I Truſt you will be ſo kind as to inſert this in your next, by way of reply to a paſſage publiſhed in your paper, 230, ſigned A, viz. "We all know that parſon Peters of Hebron, did actually encourage and exhort his people to diſregard the governor's proclamation for a faſt, on purpoſe to try, (as he ſaid) the ſtrength of our law over epiſcopalians in this reſpect, as he intended to appeal home; but I think he found that our laws were ſufficient to reſtrain his licentious behaviour."

Who this A. is, may be well known by Antidote——who, "we all know" one, may be known by the wrangling, quack, lying club, whoſe reſidence is upon the banks of the river ſtyx, and their ſign is will, faction and folly.

A's know-ledge would be better employed in a chirurgical way of tapping heart ulcers, and gutting men, contrary to the advice of all his betters, than in writing libels to fill up New-London papers, about epiſcopalian miniſters, where, for want of room to vent his knowledge in chicanery and falſe accuſations, begs a place out of his own peſtilential latitude, that miſery may have company 'Tis for A's frequent ill-conduct, in publiſhing lies for truth, that I am prevailed on to appear in your paper. A's character is ſo remarkably diſpitious at home and abroad, may I ſay, "we all know that,——&c. that had he ſigned his name Dr. P-r—s, inſtead of his ancient Indian mode of buſh-fighting, by a fictitious name, either Antidote Antic riſt, or A, he might have filled every paper with every invective and falſehood concerning me, which his fetid conſcience or ſtomach could have belched forth, and I would have riſqued my character to the public, without opening my mouth.

This Lond Bucaneer, not content to libel the clergy of the church of England in general, "of lying & prevaricating in the moſt ſacred things, and teaching damnable doctrines," and as he has worded them, really blaſphemous, and wholly denied by every miſſionary in the colony, has now attached Mr. G—— and myſelf in another form, untrue as the former, and untrue as his maſter's ſaying ſkin for ſkin, &c I ſpeak for myſelf, I have always obſerved the proclamation of the governor as much as I have Chriſtmas or Good Friday, and in my next I will ſet that mater in its true light. Your's, &c.

NEW-YORK, May 25.

On Tueſday laſt our annual COMMENCEMENT was held in this City. The Proceſſion, which was large, and more ſolemn than uſual, began to move at 10 o'Clock, from King's College to Trinity Church, in the following order. 1ſt, The young Gentlemen belonging to the College-School. 2dly, The Students of the College. 3dly, The former Graduates. 4thly, The Preſident and Profeſſors. 5thly, The Clergy. 6thly, His Excellency Sir HENRY MOORE, Bart. with the Members of his Majeſty's Council; & many other Gentlemen. Military as well as civil, who attended on the Occaſion.

The Commencement was opened by Dr. COOPER, with Prayer: After which he introduced the Exerciſes by a very nervous and elegant Latin Oration. The Candidates then proceeded in the following Order.

Salutatory Oration, Latin by Mr. Nicol.
On Benevolence, Engliſh by Mr. Vardil
De Imitatione, by Mr. Cooper.
On the Employment of Time, by Mr. Beekman.
De Utiliate Artium et Scientiarum, by Mr. Barclay.
Medical Diſſertation, by Mr. Tucker.
Do. by Mr. Kiſſam.

The Preſident then conferred the following Degrees.

Caleb Cooper. A. B. Robert Tucker, and Samuel Kiſſam, M. B.

Maſters of Arts.

Rev. John Tyler, Rev. Ebenezer Kneeland, Henry Lloyd, John Watts, Edward Nicoll, John Troup, ſen. John Troup, jun. John Vardill, James Barclay, Gerrard Beekman.

Validictory Oration, by Mr. Watts.

The Audience, which was extremely crouded gave the higheſt applauſe to the different Performances.

Immediately before the Time of conferring degrees, the Preſident left his ſeat, and was ſucceeded by Samuel Bard, M. D. who delivered a moſt animated Speech, containing Advice to the Gentlemen who were to be graduated in Medicine; At the concluſion of which he took occaſion to urge, with great Pathos and Strength of Argument, the Neceſſity of eſtabliſhing a regular HOSPITAL in this City, for the reception of the poor Sick; and ſet the advantages reſulting from ſuch an inſtitution in the moſt ſtriking Point of Light.

The buſineſs of the Commencement being ended, the proceſſion returned in the ſame order as before, to the College Hall, a little after 3 o'clock; where after an handſome entertainment, a ſubſcription was opened by his Excellency the Governor's particular deſire, for the erection of a public Hoſpital. His Excellency and other gentlemen who were preſent, ſubſcribed very liberally for the purpoſe. The ſum then raiſed amounted to near a thouſand pounds. It is not to be doubted that this laudable example will be followed by all other opulent and public ſpirited patriots in the province; who, we cannot but hope will countenance, and otherwiſe contribute to carry into execution, ſo charitable a ſcheme, which cannot fail of producing the moſt ſalutary effects to the community.

N. B: Meſſis Tucker and Kiſſam, are the firſt Gentlemen who have been graduated in phyſic at this college. Their extenſive knowledge in that branch of ſcience, diſcovered in their diſſertations, and the very critical public examinations which they underwent, previous to the commencement, did much honour to their own abilities, as well as to the different profeſſors in medicine, who had the care of their education; and is an happy preſage of the future utility of the inſtitution.

The Court of Admiralty mentioned in our laſt was held by virtue of a ſpecial commiſſion for the trial of pirates, &c. It conſiſted of his Excellency the Governor, preſident; the gentlemen of his Majeſty's council the Judge of the Admiralty, the commander of his Majeſty's Ship deal Caſtle, the Deputy Secretary and the receiver General and collector of the Province. After the trial and condemnation of Joſeph Andrews, for the Murder of Capt. Ruluff Duryée, Peter Demilt Mate, Cobbs the cabin Boy, all belonging to the Sloop Polly; as alſo of Wells Coverley, and an Antigua Captain, who had ſold his Veſſel and was returning home, and of John Van Bunſchooten, who went for his health, paſſengers on board, in ſeptember 1766. On Friday the 19th the Court met again for the trial of Stephen Porter, Mariner for the Murder of Capt John Weſtcot and ſundry others, on board a Briſtol Ship on the high ſeas, on the coaſt of Guinea, in the year 1766. But on the officer's going to bring him before the Court he found him hanging to one of the Bars of the priſon Window, quite dead having made uſe of a String by which he ſupported his Irons, The cornor's Inqueſt brought in their Verdict Self Murder and he was ſentenced to be buried in the high way, at the upper end of the Bowry lane, with a Stake ſtuck through his body, which ſentence was executed accordingly, and on Tueſday laſt Joſeph Andrews, according to his Sentence was hanged on the ſhore of the North River. When he was dead his body was cut down, and hang'd in chains on a high Gallows, on the moſt conſpicuous part of Bedlow's Iſland. He confeſſed the muraers for which he ſuffered, but ſolemnly denid having ever been concerned in any other Murder or capital crime.

HARTFORD, May 29.

Laſt Friday Night, about 12 o' Clock, the Houſe of the Wid. Willard of Newington, was conſumed by Fire, together with the greateſt part of her houſhold Furniture, and a conſiderable quantity of Engliſh Grain. As there had been no fire in the Houſe the latter part of the Day, it can't be imagin'd how it could take Fire at that Time of Night, unleſs it was done by ſome evil-minded perſon.

About two years ſince, Mrs. Willard had a large Barn burnt in the ſame extraordinary Manner.

On TIME.

SAY, is there aught that can convey
An Image of its tranſient ſtay ?
'Tis an Hand'sbreadth ; 'tis a Tale ;
'Tis a Veſſel under Sail ;
'Tis a courier's ſtraining Steed ;
'Tis a Shuttle in its Speed ;
'Tis an Eagle in its Way,
Darting down upon its prey ;
'Tis an Arrow in its Flight,
Mocking the purſuing Sight ;
'Tis a Vapour in the Air ;
'Tis a Whirlwind ruſhing there ;
'Tis a ſhort liv'd fading Flow'r ;
'Tis a Rain-bow on a Show'r ;
'Tis a momentary Ray,
Smiling in a Winter's Day ;
'Tis a Torent's rapid Stream ;
'Tis a Shadow ; 'Tis a Dream ;
'Tis the cloſing Watch of Night,
Dying at the riſing Light ;
'Tis a Landſcape vainly gay,
Painted upon crumbling Clay ;
'Tis a Lamp that waſtes its Fires ;
'Tis a Smoke that quick expires ;
'Tis a Bubble ; 'tis a Sigh ;
Be prepared O Man ! to die.

On ETERNITY.

WHAT is Eternity ? Can ought
Paint its duration to the thought ?
Tell ev'ry beam the ſun emits,
When in ſublimeſt noon he ſits ;
Tell ev'ry light-wing'd mote that ſtrays
Within his ample round of rays ;
Tell all the leaves, and all the buds,
That Crown the gardens and the woods ;
Tell all the ſpires of graſs the meads
Produce, when ſpring propitious leads
The new born year ; tell all the droops
The night, upon their bended tops,
Sheds in ſoft ſilence, to diſplay
Their beauties with the riſing day ;
Tell all the ſands the ocean laves,
Tell all its changes, all its waves ;
Or tell, with more laborious pains,
The drops its mighty maſs contains ;
Be this aſtoniſhing account
Augmented with the full amount
Of all the drops the clouds have ſhed,
Where'er their watry fleeces ſpread,
Through all the tracts of time's long tour,
From Adam to the preſent hour,
Still ſhort the ſum ; nor can it vie
With the more numerous years that lie
Emboſom'd in ETERNITY.
Was there a belt that could contain
In its vaſt orb the earth and main ;
With figures was it cluſter'd o'er,
Without one cypher in the ſcore,
And could your lab'ring thought aſſign
The total of the crowded line,
How ſcant th' amount ! th' attempt how vain
To reach Duration's endleſs Chain !
For when as many years are run,
unbounded age is but begun.
Attend, O Man, with awe divine,
For this ETERNITY is thine !

THE Printer of the Pennſylvania Chronicle, &c. having inſtituted his Paper with a view of ſerving the public, (as well as to obtain for himſelf ſuch moderate ſubſiſtence as one of his profeſſion has a right to expect) is very deſirous to extend its utility and as a proof of his ſincerity, he propoſes now to make ſome conſiderable improvements which he hopes will merit the attention and encouragement of the Public.—To this end he has greatly enlarged his correſpondence in Europe, and to the numerous daily and weekly News-Papers, has ordered an additional conſtant ſupply of the beſt Political Pamphlets Regiſters, Reviews and every other temporary production that may enable him to proſecute his deſign with credit to himſelf and ſatisfaction to his ſubſcribers.—Several gentlemen of great learning and ingenuity, in this and the neighbouring provinces have promiſed to lend their aſſiſtance, ſo that there may not be wanting ſome original productions, which may exhibit agreable ſpecimens of American humour and genius.——The paper will thus become not only a Regiſter of the Beſt Intelligence, (in which no article, Foreign or Domeſtic, worthy the Public Notice, will be omitted) but a repoſitory of ingenious and valuable Literature, in proſe and verſe ;—and to incite perſons to preſerve their papers, which will grow into a family Library of Entertainment and Inſtruction, he intends printing them in a very handſome Quarto, on a good fair paper, with a new and beautiful Elzevir type, to be embelliſhed annually with two elegant Copper plates, (which are already contracted for) to be executed by the moſt ingenious Artiſts ; one to ſerve for a Frontiſpiece, and the other to cloſe the Volume. A neat Title, and a copious and uſeful Index will likewiſe be added.

THE extraordinary expences that the printer muſt neceſſarily incur, by providing theſe improvements, will require further Encouragement, and induce him, whilſt he is returning Thanks to his preſent generous Subſcribers, to ſolicit the favour of others, as every one muſt be ſenſible from ſo ſmall a price as Ten Shillings a year, and the conſtant and incidental expence of a Preſs, how ſmall a profit will remain to the Printer.——Nor can the advance of Five Shillings, for the firſt Half year, which he requeſts from every ſubſcriber, both new and old, be looked upon as unſeaſonable, on the preſent improved and expenſive plan, which will require an immediate ſupply.

THE conſtant attention the Printer has always ſhewn to gratify the Public, the open and impartial manner in which he has managed his preſs, Unbiaſſed by Party, the free acceſs every man has to it in private diſputes without prejudice or Affection on either ſide, may, he hopes, entitle him to ſome degree of merit in his buſineſs, and conſequently to thoſe favours of the public, which he will be always equally ready to acknowledge and ſtudious to deſerve.

 Subſcriptions are taken in by the Printer, at his Office in market Street; and by many Gentlemen in different parts of America, (particularly by moſt of the Poſtmaſters, Bookſellers, and Printers) in whoſe hands ſubſcription papers will be left ; and the printer would be much obliged to any of his old Friends and Cuſtomers for their good Offices towards the future ſucceſs of his Undertaking.

N. B. The greateſt attention will be paid to the regular diſpatch and delivery of the papers in town and country.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the printers hereof.

THE
Connecticut COURANT.
Numb. 233.
Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

The SPEECH of his EXCELLENCY the Right Honourable NORBORNE Baron de BOTETOURT, his Majeſty's Lieutenant and Governor General of the Colony and Dominion of Virginia, and Vice Admiral of the ſame, to the General Aſſembly, convened at the Capitol on Monday the 8th Day of May, 1769.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Burgeſſes,

THE King having been graciouſly pleaſed to appoint me to the high office of his Majeſty's Lieutenant and Governor General of this his ancient & loyal colony and Dominion of Virginia, I loſt no time in repairing to my Government, in order to enter as ſoon as poſſible upon the execution of the important truſt committed to my charge ; and give me Leave to aſſure you, that it is with the greateſt Satisfaction, I have now, in obedience to his Majeſty's command, the Honour to meet you in General Aſſembly.

You, Gentlemen, who know intimately the true Intereſts of the Colony, are the beſt Judges of the Meaſures neceſſary to be purſued for its advantage and proſperity : and the frequent Experience his Majeſty has had of your zeal & wiſdom, leaves no room in the royal Breaſt to doubt that you will give me all ſuch Advice & aſſiſtance as may enable me to promote and render permanent the Happineſs of Virginia ; a ſteady purſuit of which is the firſt and great command of my royal maſter, who entertains the moſt paternal affection for all his ſubjects in every part of his Dominions, however remote from the Seat of his Empire, and makes the general happineſs of them all equally the object of his Royal Care and attention.

For my own part, however conſcious I may be of want of ability, I ſhall not doubt, through your counſel and ſupport, to be enabled to do my duty as becomes a faithful ſervant to the beſt of Sovereigns, and a moſt ſincere friend to the welfare of this colony. It is to theſe principles I am to truſt for ſucceſs in my adminiſtration, and I hope by my actions to merit your confidence and affection.

It is with great ſatisfaction I have the honour to acquaint you, that her Majeſty was laſt November happily delivered of a Princeſs, and that both are well.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Burgeſſes,

I HAVE nothing to aſk, but that you conſider well, and follow exactly, without paſſion or prejudice, the real intereſts of thoſe you have the honour to repreſent ; they are moſt certainly conſiſtent with the proſperity of Great Britain, and ſo they will for ever be found, when purſued with temper and moderation.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Burgeſſes.

IT is a peculiar Felicity to me, and a great addition to the many honours I have received from my royal Maſter, that I have it in command from his Majeſty to declare and communicate, what will be ſo honourable to this Colony, and muſt therefore be ſo agreable to you, his gracious intention that for the future his chief Governors of Virginia ſhall reſide within their Government.

To his EXCELLENCY the right Honourable NORBORNE Baron de BOTETOURT, his Majeſty's Lieutenant and Governor General of the colony and Dominion of Virginia, and Vice-Admiral of the ſame.

The humble ADDRESS of the COUNCIL.

May it pleaſe your EXCELLENCY.

WE his Majeſty's dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Council of this his moſt ancient colony and Dominion of Virginia, now met in General Aſſembly, return your excellency our hearty thanks for your kind and affectionate ſpeech at the opening of this Seſſion.

And as every Event that adds to the domeſtic happineſs of the beſt of Sovereigns, muſt give the ſincereſt Joy to all his ſubjects, we beg leave to rejoice with your Lordſhip on the ſafe Delivery of the Queen, and the Birth of another Princeſs.

Our Minds are filled with the moſt lively Sentiments of gratitude to his great goodneſs appointing a Governor in chief to reſide among us.

The Arrival of your Lordſhip in that Capacity has diffuſed a general Joy through the whole country ; and we flatter ourſelves, from your Lordſhip's Experience, and great Knowledge in the true principles of Government, that when the annals of theſe times ſhall be handed down to Poſterity, they will here begin a new Æra ; your Lordſhip's Adminiſtration will be diſtinguiſhed by the love of order, the ſteady and impartial diſtribution of Juſtice, and the conſtitution will be fixed on the ſolid Baſis of public Liberty.

Permit us, my Lord, to indulge this pleaſing hope, and to aſſure your Excellency, in the ſtrongeſt Manner, of our unſhaken Fidelity to his Majeſty, and our firm attachment to his ſacred perſon and Government ; on the ſupport of which, we are fully convinced, the ſafety and proſperity of this Colony will entirely depend.

To which his EXCELLENCY was pleaſed to return the following ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN of the COUNCIL,

IT is impoſſible to be more pleaſed and obliged than I am by every word in your moſt affectionate Addreſs.

I rejoice in your Ideas ; and will report to my royal Maſter, that his council of Virginia will yield to none of his Subjects, in Loyalty and Devotion to his ſacred Perſon and Government.

From the London Gazetteer, &c. Feb. 17.

To the PRINTER,

A vile reproach caſt upon the Boſtonians, cenſured.

THE copy of a letter from Governor Bernard to Lord Hillſborough, publiſhed in your paper of Feb. 21, is extremely ſeaſonable ; as it will give every thinking mind, that has ability of judging about things that differ, with any preciſion, an Idea of what the ſons of genuine British liberty may expect to be the tremendous conſequences of ſuch a Governor and of ſuch an a——under which he is continued.——But alas ! alas ! how few are there in this day of general diſſipation and diſſoluteneſs, that know what it is to think at all ! and fewer yet, who will be at the pains of calculating the probable conſequences of meaſures when laid before them. If ever there was a critical ſymptom of approaching ruin, it is now to be diſcovered in the univerſal infatuation that has ſeized us, occaſioned by the large doſes of opium that have been plentifully given among the people, by a ſet of phyſicians who adviſe gratis, as the generous ſons of Loyola are wont to do. I wiſh theſe demons may not get poſſeſſion of St. —'s chapel, as well as of St—'s ? for I can aſſure you, that not many days ago I heard the queſtion put, "Do you think his——ever reads the public papers ?" If he did, he muſt certainly feel ſome apprehenſions excited about public meaſures." And what do you think was the reply ? After ſome pauſe—Sir, " It is ſaid he has them every day laid before him." I know not any more of the facts, than as conjectural ; but am perſuaded, would it have any truth, there would be ſomething in it very extraordinary.

Upon the ſuppoſition of ſuch an exceſs of care, I am of opinion, that if thoſe papers are of ſuch a ſpecial complexion, there is one paragraph in the Gazetteer, of the day abovementioned, ſhould be allowed a place. i.e. if it has not been honoured with ſaluting the eye of——viz. That deſcription given of the people of Boſton, New England, which ſays, " That the men are all hypocrites, & the women w—s ; that there is not an officer in the ſea or land ſervice, nor a common man, down to a drummer, that cannot have his bedfellow for the winter ; ſo that the yankey war, contrary to all others, will produce more births than burials. " What r——e L——, or Letcher, drew up this character of the Boſtonians, I cannot tell ; but ſhould gueſs it muſt have been the production of ſome hand infamouſly guilty of ſuch debaucheries : ſome wretch that can violate, without remorſe, the firſt law of ſociety ; an execrable being, that ſcruples not to rank with himſelf a people truly venerable for the religious regard they pay to the divine conſtitutions. Such calumny, ſuch defamation, diabbolically ſporting with the characters of a ſingularly brave people could only be intended to take off the painful ſympathizing concern of the generous Briton, who cannot but feel for them under their oppreſſions. The miſcreant neither feareth God, nor regardeth man, elſe he would not have known, that on Aſh Wedneſday he had the curſes of all the people ! for curſed is he that beareth falſe witneſs againſt his neighbour ; or that ſmiteth him ſecretly, and wounds his reputation by calumny and ſlander. If hypocricy and whoring were not at this day more faſhionable in Old, than they are in New England, we might hope for much better times than what are likely to riſe before us. But let me tell this ſlanderer, how he ſtands in the opinion of two wiſe men.

It is a certain ſign of an ill heart, to be inclined to defamation. — Spectator No. 427. And Solomon ſays, He that uttereth a ſlander, is a fool.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, Feb 9. 1769.

"How long we may be permitted to carry on a friendly communication, will become a queſtion, as the ſword of civil war ſeems ready to ſtart from the ſcabbard, and eager to be embrued in our brother's blood. Our M——y, who, by the power of giving places and penſions, have ſecured a majority in both H——s of P——t, are determined to carry their point againſt the freedom of America, and by that means to pave the way for an attack on our conſtitution; and will ſpare no blood or treaſure (except their own) to effect this infamous purpoſe; nor do I ſee, at preſent, any thing to prevent it but a popular commotion, which indeed, our people ſeem ripe for, and want only a few able leaders; whether Wilkes will prove one, I cannot determine, but thus far I can aſſure you, that ſetting aſide all prejudices and popular clamour againſt his former irregularities, we muſt acknowledge, that he has done and ſuffered more for the cauſe of liberty, than any patriot in our times, and in all his latter conduct, he has been ſo ſteady, and ſo conſiſtent, that it has gained him univerſal applauſe. I ſay univerſal; for he is not only idolized by the mob, but careſſed and ſupported by a great majority of ſenſible thinking men in this city, and the counties around it.

"Your memorial from Philadelphia will come to nothing, at leaſt I fear ſo. I attended the meeting of the merchants and manufacturers, and we choſe a reſpectable committee to wait on the M——y: but what could be expected from men who had already taken their party and who have not the leaſt idea of juſtice or liberty."

Extract of another letter from the ſame Gentleman, March 4.

"Since the account I give you in my laſt, of your Philadelphia memorial, I find that all my ſuggeſtions are confirmed, and that no relief is to be expected for our colonies. I underſtand that your province will, immediately on this news, follow the example of Boſton, and New York, and ſtop the importation of European goods; this plan, if univerſal, might have ſome effect, but if partial, will only tend to your own prejudice, and inflame meaſures ſtill more."

In a letter from London, of March 6th there is the following paragraph

"I am perſuaded that I ſhewed ſome judgment in my laſt letter, when I ventured to pronounce, that this country would know too well the value of the colonies, to ſuffer theſe unhappy differences that have ariſen, to be carried to a much greater heighth; and, without pretending to be let into the cabinet ſecrets, I ſtill hold the ſame opinion, notwithſtanding the Boſtonian grievances are redreſſed, as a witty News paper of this day informs us."

Extract of a letter from London, March 8.

"A heavy cloud continues to hang over the public face of affairs. The Miniſtry ſeem totally to have loſt the confidence of the people. The violent declarations which they have made, and the arbitrary meaſures they are purſuing do no great honour to their abilities, nor the exorbitant deficiency of the civil liſt, to their integrity. As far as I can learn, they are however likely to continue in power, and perhaps for this reaſon, that in the preſent embroiled ſtate of affairs, no other ſet are found deſperate enough to undertake it after them."

BOSTON.

In our laſt we mentioned an affair which happened at Cape-Anne, relative to the reſcue of a Priſoner from a Deputy-Sheriff;—ſince which we have ſeen a Memorial of Jacob Parſons, of Glouceſter, the ſaid Deputy Sheriff, preſented to his Excellency Sir Francis Barnard, Baronet, Governor; and the honorable his Majeſty's council, of this province, repreſenting, that on the 15th Inſtant, he had in his cuſtody, having duly taken by virtue of a proceſs of law, one Joſiah Merrill, as a priſoner: that while he was in the due execution of his office, one Samuel Fellows, a comander of one of his Majeſty's armed cutters, then in the harbour of Cape-Anne, with four of his men, with fire arms, cutlaſſes, &c. came on ſhore in a boat, and ſaid Fellows immediately accoſted the ſaid Merrill, by aſking him, "What he did there?" Upon which ſaid Merrill replied, that "an officer, had taken him, and had him in cuſtody for debt;" That in conſequence of this reply, ſaid Fellows commanded ſaid Merrill to come away to him, and that he would protect ſaid Merrill: That on this encouragement ſaid Merrill broke away from the Deputy Sheriff, & run towards ſaid Fellows: whereupon the Deputy-Sheriff commanded, in his Majeſty's name, ſeveral perſons to aſſiſt in ſeizing and ſtopping his priſoner; which they obeyed & ſeized and held ſaid priſoner; that while this paſſed, ſaid Fellows was within four rods from the Deputy-Sheriff and his aſſiſtants, ordered his four men to fire: whereupon two of Fellows's men leaped upon the beach, and ran towards them until they had got within two rods, when they preſented their arms directly at the Deputy Sheriff and his aſſiſtants, and then fired; the ſhot and ball ſcarcely miſſed them, and entered a ſtore within a few inches of where they ſtood; The priſoner taking advantage of the conſternation they were in, broke away and ran towards ſaid Fellows's boat: That during the whole of this time ſaid Fellows and his men, altho' they were repeatedly told that the Deputy-Sheriff was a King's officer, kept a conſtant round of oaths and imprecations upon the Deputy Sheriff and his aſſiſtants; damning the King's officer and all who belonged to him; ſwearing he would blow the brains out of the firſt man who offered to touch ſaid Merrill, or come towards the boat; that they would take better ſight the next time, and the like; that as ſaid Merrill came nearer to the boat, ſaid Fellows and his men kept firing at the Deputy Sheriff, till ſaid Fellows commanded his men not to fire any more yet; but to keep a reſerve for any who ſhould attempt a retaking of ſaid Merrill: And that after ſaid Fellows and his men had fired 6 or 7 times, by which the Deputy Sheriff and his aſſiſtants were in the moſt imminent hazard of their lives, the ſaid Fellows & his men ſtill defending ſaid Merrill, retired on board the boat, and ſtill kept firing, as they left the ſhore; and has not ſince been able to retake the priſoner, or bring ſaid fellows to juſtice.—The Memorialiſt implores his Excellency and Honors to take the Affair into conſideration, and to act thereon, as they ſhall deem moſt for the advancement of juſtice, and the preſervation of peace, order, and good government, &c.

The foregoing contains the ſubſtance of the narration of the affair, extracted from the Memorial.

His Excellency the Governor and his Majeſty's council taking the ſaid memorial into conſideration: his Majeſty's council adviſed and ordered, That the King's attorney make ſtrict Enquiry into the Affair, and proſecute in Law the ſuppoſed offenders.

The ſaid memorial having been communicated to commodore Hood, he was pleaſed to ſignify that he would give immediate orders for enquiring into the Affair, and do all in his power to ſecure the perſon offending in ſo notorious a Manner, to appear and anſwer for his conduct in a court of juſtice; and hath ſince acquainted the Governor and council, that the ſaid Samuel Fellows is an inhabitant of the province, and has been only a few months in his Majeſty's Service, and was acting as a Midſhipman on board a ſmall tender belonging to one of his Majeſty's Sloops, that he is now ſecured, and ſhall be ready to anſwer for his conduct, conformable to law, whenever demanded.

We hear that the cutter is arrived in this Harbour, and Yeſterday the Deputy Sheriff came to town, and made application to the Attorney-General, who is proſecuting the affair, agreeable to the order of his Excellency the Governor and Council.

TOM LANYARD's ſecond Letter.

Dear Bob,

I Find my laſt Letter, falling into the hands of a Smuggler, was Ship'd on board the Connecticut Courant; (which is the name of one of our Tenders, employ'd ſince you left us) and being brought on board, was read, and ſpelt, and explain'd by the whole crew, ——Well, there was no Treaſon in it, thank God; ſo I am determined to write again, to let you know a little of what has paſs'd, on Board ſince my laſt.—You no doubt have heard, as how on our General Muſter; all the Officers on Board kept their ſtations, except the Surgeon, who for ſomething or other done, or ſaid, which diſpleas'd the Officers in the Great Cabin; is now ſuſpended, and it is tho't will be diſcharg'd at the Gangway.——You know him, he is a briſk Lad; but ſomething free in his Journals, about Wind and Weather, bearings and diſtances, and the like;—Howſomever, I wiſh Dear Bob, this was the worſt of it, or that I was well aſhore, or had a birth along ſide of you;—You muſt know that for ſome time we have had terrible foul Eaſterly weather, with ſuch ſqualls and puffs, that the ſhip is now in the very worſt trim of any in the Navy.——You remember when we had them Storms, and Hurricanes, from that point, four, or five and twenty years ago—the like the oldeſt Sailor on Board had never been in; or heard of, that it rack'd our upper Works confoundedly.——And afterwards when we loſt our Mainmaſt, and Fore Yard, in one of them Turnado's; I remember you ſaid, they would one day either founder, or render us unfit for ſervice, I believe you was right, and that it will turn out ſo ſoon—we have had of late them Gales ſo long, and ſo ſevere, that we have fell ſtrangely to the Leward, & no longer ago than yeſterday, drifted cloſe on a Leeſhore, which not a ſoul on board knew.—You'll be ſurpriz'd, when I tell you all the Officers in the great Cabbin, were ſtanding in for it; and going on ſhore, and had actually hoiſted out the Boat, though the Breakers were then in ſight —but the Lads on Board proteſted againſt it, and warm Jaw was as plenty among us, as warm flum when a ſhip is paid off—The ſquall came on and it blew all a-frett, when, finding ourſelves cloſe in nearing the Land, and ſhallowing our water faſt; we let go our beſt Bower Anchor, paid out a ſmall ſcope of Cable, and thank God it brought us up, & here we are riding bows in, every pitch; and trembling all of us, (except ſome of your Land Lubbers, who think themſelves always ſafe if they are on ſhore, though it were in the d——dominions) leſt ſome flaw ſhould chance to trip the Anchor, when we unavoidably go right on ſhore.——Well if I get home ſafe from this cruize, and Betty will take me for a Meſſmate for the whole Voyage of Life, I'll quit the Ship, and work on ſhore, or look out a better ſea-boat; or one that is kept in better repair; for we are gone of late ſtrangely to rack; and I'm told, not a Carpenter or Caulker will ſtrike a ſtroke on her, on account of the old bills not being paid off; and indeed we honeſt Lads find it hard to get a Saturday night's cann, ſcor'd up on tick at the drink houſes, as we uſed to do; but if we can claw off this ſhore; and I have time, I'll write you more of that matter. I am your old Friend

TOM LANYARD.

NEW-LONDON, May 15.

There has lately appeared off this harbour, an ill-looking voracious Sea Monſter; which has put all our Coaſters upon a ſharp look out, to ſteer clear of its devouring Jaws. It has been obſerved to devour whole veſſels at once; but ſome it has diſgorged within an hour after it has taken them; ſome it has kept down a day, ſome two, & ſome a Week. But its Conſtitution is ſuch, that it can keep down nothing long, which may prehaps be owing to ſome bad Vermin inhabiting its ſtomach. It is particularly fond of all ſorts of Weſt India produce, Rum, Molaſſes, Sugar, Cotton, Coffee, Cocoa, &c.

When it was firſt obſerved from ſhore, by a great Number of people, there were various Conjectures what it could be: Some ſaid that it was an old Shipwreck'd HULL with a TON on it. One ſaid when he firſt ſaw it, it looked like a P then like an AX with a clumſy handle, and then like a TON, for it kept altering every Moment. Another ſaid it looked like a TEMPLE, but after viewing it through a good Perſpective Glaſs, they all agreed that there was nothing in it that looked like a TEMPLE. Then an old aboriginal Native, who had been on a hill for ſome time viewing it, ſaid he thought it looked like ROBINSON cruſo and his Man Friday BENIGHTED. After ſome time it drew near to the ſhore, when they could obſerve it quite plain, they found it was a rotton BURCH Log with a broken REED ſticking in it for a Maſt.

We here the above monſter has ſince made its Appearance in Newport Harbour.

PROPOSALS
For continuing and improving the
PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE,
AND
UNIVERSAL ADVERTISER.
(at the moderate Price of Ten Shillings per Annum)

By William Goddard.

(To be embelliſhed with COPPER PLATES, which if ſold ſeperate, could not be afforded for the Price of a Year's CHRONICLE.)

THE Printer of the Pennſylvania Chronicle, &c. having inſtituted his Paper with a view of ſerving the public, (as well as to obtain for himſelf ſuch moderate ſubſiſtence as one of his profeſſion has a right to expect) is very deſirous to extend its utility and as a proof of his ſincerity, he propoſes now to make ſome conſiderable improvements which he hopes will merit the attention and encouragement of the Public—To this end he has greatly enlarged his correſpondence in Europe, and to the numerous daily and weekly News-Papers, has ordered an additional conſtant ſupply of the beſt Political Pamphlets Regiſters, Reviews and every other temporary production that may enable him to proſecute his deſign with credit to himſelf and ſatisfaction to his ſubſcribers.—Several gentlemen of great learning and ingenuity, in this and the neighbouring provinces have promiſed to lend their aſſiſtance, ſo that there may not be wanting ſome original productions, which may exhibit agreable ſpecimens of American humour and genius.——The paper will thus become not only a Regiſter of the Beſt Intelligence (in which no article, Foreign or Domeſtic, worthy the Public Notice, will be omitted) but a repoſitory of ingenious and valuable Literature, in proſe and verſe;—and to incite perſons to preſerve their papers, which will grow into a family Library of Entertainment and Inſtruction, he intends printing them in a very handſome Quarto, on a good fair paper, with a new and beautiful Elzevir type, to be embelliſhed annually with two elegant Copper plates, (which are already contracted for) to be executed by the moſt ingenious Artiſts; one to ſerve for a Frontiſpiece, and the other to cloſe the Volume. A neat Title, and a copious and uſeful Index will likewiſe be added.

THE extraordinary expences that the printer muſt neceſſarily incur, by providing theſe improvements, will require further Encouragement, and induce him, whilſt he is returning Thanks to his preſent generous Subſcribers, to ſolicit the favour of others, as every one muſt be ſenſible from ſo ſmall a price as Ten Shillings a year, and the conſtant and incidental expence of a Preſs, how ſmall a profit will remain to the Printer.——Nor can the advance of Five Shillings, for the firſt Half-year, which he requeſts from every ſubſcriber, both new and old, be looked upon as unſeaſonable, on the preſent improved and expenſive plan, which will require an immediate ſupply.

THE conſtant attention the Printer has always ſhewn to gratify the Public, the open and impartial manner in which he has managed his preſs, Unbiaſſed by Party, the free acceſs every man has to it in private diſputes without prejudice or Affection on either ſide, may, he hopes, entitle him to ſome degree of merit in his buſineſs, and conſequently to thoſe favours of the public, which he will be always equally ready to acknowledge and ſtudious to deſerve.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the Printer, at his Office in market Street, and by many Gentlemen in different parts of America (particularly by moſt of the Poſtmaſters, Bookſellers, and Printers) in whoſe hands ſubſcription papers will be left; and the printer would be much obliged to any of his old Friends and Cuſtomers for their good Offices towards the future ſucceſs of his Undertaking.

N. B. The greateſt attention will be paid to the regular diſpatch and delivery of the papers in town and country.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the printers hereof.

From the New-York, Mercury.

Mr. GAINE,

The following extraordinary narrative, being ſo well ſupported as to its being matter of fact, by the concurring teſtimony, of a conſiderable number of credible perſons; that I doubt not, but your giving it a place in your next Monday's paper, Will oblige the ſpeculative and curious, among your cuſtomers.

ON Monday morning the 3d of April laſt, at New-Canaan in the county of Albany, in a ſmall ſtream of water, a fluid was obſerv'd to riſe up, having all the appearance of blood, from which place and for the diſtance of a few rods below, was a caſcade fix'd, under the end of which was a veſſel plac'd to receive the water that ſhould run from the aforeſaid ſtream, for the uſe of ſeveral adjacent families, which water ſo receiv'd in the ſaid reſervoir, was tinged to the degree of a deep carnation. In about an hour after the water was obſerv'd to run clear. And on the Tueſday and Wedneſday mornings following, the water runing along the aforeſaid ſtream was obſerv'd to be of the ſame reddiſh colour, proceeding from the like cauſe. On the ſucceeding Sabbath day morning a fluid, like unto the former was ſeen to guſh out of the ground in a path, oppoſite to, and about a rod and a half diſtant from the aforeſaid ſtream, and took its courſe along the aforeſaid path, for a conſiderable diſtance, where it ceaſed running. And on Monday morning it was ſeen to riſe out of the ground at the ſame place and of the ſame colour, as the day before, and run along the ſaid path; after a ſhort ſpace it ceaſed, when it dried up, and was attended with a nauceous ſmell, like unto putrid blood.

What ſo remarkable an incident portends, I leave to the ſpeculation of the curious.

WILLIAMSBURG, May 11.

To his Excellency the Right Hon. NORBORNE Baron de BOTETOURT, his Majeſty's Lieutenant and Governor general of the Colony and Dominion of Virginia, and Vice Admiral of the ſame.

The humble Addreſs of the HOUSE of BURGESSES.

My LORD,

WE his Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Burgeſſes of Virginia, now met in General Aſſembly beg leave to return your Excellency our ſincere and unfeigned thanks for your very affectionate ſpeech at the opening of this Seſſion; and we do with the higheſt Satisfaction and pleaſure embrace this firſt opportunity, which has been offered to us as well for ourſelves as in behalf of all our conſtituents, to congratulate your excellency on your appointment to this Government and your ſafe and early arrival.

The aſſurances of the Royal favour, communicated to us through your excellency, cannot but impreſs the heart of every Virginian with the moſt lively and indelible Sentiments of Duty and affection. Permit us then, my Lord, to renew our aſſurances to your excellency of our moſt cordial and inviolable attachment to his Majeſty's ſacred perſon and Government, the real happineſs and proſperity of which have ever been the grand leading objects of our warmeſt wiſhes.

His Majeſty's gracious appointment of your Lordſhip to ſo important a Station, at the ſame time that it holds forth to the world the ſtrongeſt evidence of your Lordſhip's exceeding Merit, is a recent proof to us of his paternal affection for this his antient and loyal colony.

We receive with equal pleaſure and Gratitude the intimation of his Majeſty's gracious purpoſe, that his chief Governors of Virginia ſhall in future reſide within their Government, as from hence we are perſuaded, that much honour and many ſignal advantages will redound to the Colony; and we do aſſure your Lordſhip, with that Sincerity which truth ought ever to inſpire, that we eſteem as a peculiar Mark of the royal attention to our happineſs your Lordſhip's appointment to preſide over us, ſince we cannot but regard the Diſplay of ſo many virtues and abilities, during the ſhort time of your reſidence here as a ſure preſage, that wiſdom and Benevolence will eminently diſtinguiſh your Lordſhip's Adminiſtration.

As we ſhall ever participate even of his Majeſty's domeſtic Felicity, we do very cordially congratulate your Lordſhip; as the immediate repreſentative of the beſt of Sovereigns on the late birth of a Princeſs, an additional and endearing pledge to the Britiſh Nation and all its connections; and it is with great pleaſure we learn, that her Majeſty and the Royal Infant are in perfect health.

It is an indiſpenſable duty which we owe to our conſtituents, and which at preſent is ſtrongly enforced by your Lordſhip's recommendation and advice, that we ſhould diſpaſſionately and with the greateſt candour conſider the important Buſineſs upon which we are now aſſembled; and we beg leave to aſſure your excellency, that if in the courſe of our deliberations, any Matters ſhould ariſe, which may in any ſort affect Great-Britain they ſhall be diſcuſſed on this ruling principle, that both our Intereſts are inſeparably the ſame.

It only remains, my Lord, for us to offer up our moſt fervent Prayers to that ſupreme being, the Sovereign diſpenſer of every good and perfect Gift; beſeeching him to inſpire your Lordſhip with all wiſdom, and that his Majeſty will long continue you the happy ruler of a free and happy people.

To which his EXCELLENCY was pleaſed to return the following ANSWER.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the houſe of Burgeſſes.

I CORDIALLY pray for that Wiſdom which you have kindly implored the Almighty to grant me. My Situation calls for it, and the People of Virginia have a right to expect it.

When my gracious Maſter ordered me here, he commanded me to do Juſtice, and to maintain the rights of all his Subjects; I joyfully accepted the glorious command, and in the Execution of it, will exert that honeſt zeal, which all good Men will approve.

His Majeſty ſhall be fully informed of your expreſſions of Gratitude, loyalty, and attachment to his ſacred perſon and Government, and ſhall be told of your kindneſs to me.

RESOLVES of the HOUSE of BURGESSES, paſſed the 16th of May 1769.

RESOLVED, Nemine Contradicente, THAT the ſole right of impoſing taxes on the inhabitants of this his Majeſty's colony and Dominion of Virginia, is now, and ever hath been, legally and conſtitutionally veſted in the Houſe of Burgeſſes, lawfully convened according to the antient and eſtabliſhed practice, with the conſent of the council, and of his Majeſty, the King of Great-Britain, or his governor for the time being.

RESOLVED, Nem Contradicente, that it is the undoubted privilege of this colony, to petition their Sovereign for redreſs of grievances; and that it is lawful and expedient to procure the concurrence of his Majeſty's other colonies, in dutiful addreſſes, praying the Royal interpoſition in favour of the violated Rights of America.

Reſolved, Nemine Contradicente, that all trials for Treaſon, Miſpriſion of Treaſon, or for any Felony or crime whatſoever, committed and done in this his Majeſty's ſaid colony and Dominion, by any perſons reſiding therein, ought of right to be held, and conducted in and before his Majeſty's courts, held within his ſaid colony, according to the fixed and known courſe of proceeding; and that the ſeizing any perſon or perſons reſiding in this colony, ſuſpected of any crime whatſoever, committed therein, ſending ſuch perſon or perſons to places beyond the Sea to be tried, is highly derogatory of the rights of Britiſh Subjects, as thereby the ineſtimable Privilege of being tried by a Jury from the Vicinage, as well as the liberty of ſummoning and producing witneſſes on ſuch trial, will be taken away from the party accuſed.

Reſolved, Nemine Contradicente that an humble, dutiful, and loyal addreſs, be preſented to his Majeſty to aſſure him of our inviolable attachment to his ſacred perſon and Government; and to beſeech his royal interpoſition, as the father of all his people, however remote from the ſeat of his empire, to quiet the Minds of his loyal ſubjects of this colony, and to avert from them thoſe dangers and Miſeries which will enſue, from the ſeizing and carrying beyond ſea any perſon reſiding in America, ſuſpected of any crime whatſoever to be tried in any other Manner than by the antient and long eſtabliſhed courſe of proceeding.

The following order is likewiſe in their Journal of that date.

ORDERED, that the Speaker of this houſe do tranſmit, without delay, to the Speakers of the ſeveral houſes of Aſſembly on this continent, a copy of the reſolutions now agreed to by this houſe, requeſting their concurrence therein.

The following is an addreſs to his Majeſty, in their journal of the day after:

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty:

The humble ADDRESS of his dutiful and loyal Subjects the HOUSE of Burgeſſes of his Majeſty's antient colony of Virginia, met in general Aſſembly.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

'WE your Majeſty's moſt loyal, dutiful and affectionate ſubjects the houſe of Burgeſſes of this your Majeſty's antient colony of Virginia, now met in general Aſſembly beg leave, in the humbleſt manner, to aſſure your Majeſty that your faithful ſubjects of this colony, ever diſtinguiſhed by their loyalty and firm attachment to your Majeſty and your royal Anceſtors, far from countenancing Traitors, Treaſons, or Miſpriſions of Treaſon, are ready at any time to ſacrifice our lives and Fortunes in defence of your Majeſty's ſacred perſon and Government.

It is with the deepeſt concern and moſt heartfelt grief, that your Majeſty's dutiful Subjects of this colony find that their Loyalty hath been traduced, and that thoſe meaſures which a juſt regard for the Britiſh conſtitution (dearer to them than life) made neceſſary duties, have been miſrepreſented as rebellious attacks upon your Majeſty's Government.

When we conſider that by the eſtabliſhed laws and conſtitution of this colony the moſt ample proviſion is made for apprehending and puniſhing all thoſe who ſhall dare to engage in any treaſonable Practices againſt your Majeſty, or diſturb the tranquility of Government, we cannot without horror think of the new, unuſual, and permit us, with all Humility, to add unconſtitutional and illegal Mode, recommended to your Majeſty, of ſeizing and carrying beyond ſea the Inhabitants of America ſuſpected of any crime, and of trying ſuch perſons in any other Manner than by the antient and long eſtabliſhed courſe of proceeding; for how truly deplorable muſt be the caſe of a wretched American, who, having incurred the diſpleaſure of any one in power, is dragged from his native home and his deareſt domeſtic Connections, thrown into a priſon, not to await his trial before a court, Jury, or

Judges, from a knowledge of whom he is encouraged to hope for ſpeedy juſtice, but to exchange his Impriſonment in his own country for fetters among ſtrangers: Conveyed to a diſtant land where no Friend, no relation, will alleviate his diſtreſſes or miniſter to his neceſſities, and where no Witneſs can be found to teſtify his Innocence, ſhunned by the reputable and honeſt and conſigned to the Society and converſe of the wretched and the abandoned, he can only pray that he may ſoon end his miſery with his life.

Truly alarmed at the fatal Tendency of theſe pernicious counſels, and with hearts filled with angiſh by ſuch dangerous Invaſions of our deareſt privileges, we preſume to proſtrate, ourſelves at the foot of your royal Throne, beſeeching your Majeſty, as our King and father, to avert from your faithful and loyal ſubjects of America thoſe Miſeries which muſt neceſſarily be the conſequence of ſuch Meaſures.

After expreſſing our firm confidence in your royal Wiſdom and goodneſs, permit us to aſſure your Majeſty that the moſt fervent prayers of your people of this colony are daily addreſſed to the Almighty that your Majeſty's reign may be long and proſperous over Great Britain and all your Dominions; and that after Death your Majeſty may taſte the fulleſt Fruition of eternal Bliſs, and that a deſcendant of your illuſtrious Houſe may reign over the extended Britiſh Empire until time ſhall be no more.

The following Order follows the Addreſs.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do tranſmit the ſaid Addreſs to the Agent for this colony with Directions to cauſe the ſame to be preſented to his moſt excellent Majeſty, and afterwards to be printed and publiſhed in the Engliſh papers.

WEDNESDAY May 17.

YEſterday at 12 o'clock, his Excellency the Governor went to the Capitol, and having ſent a Meſſage by Mr. Walthoe to the Hon. the Speaker and houſe of Burgeſſes, commanding their immediate attendance in the Council chamber, which they inſtantly obeyed, he ſpoke to them as follows:

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Burgesses.

I Have heard of your Reſolves, and augur ill of their Effects, you have made it my Duty to diſſolve you, and you are diſſolved accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 17.

THE late Repreſentatives of the people then judging it neceſſary that ſome Meaſures ſhould be taken in their diſtreſſed Situation, for preſerving the true and eſſential intereſts of the colony, reſolved upon a Meeting for that very ſalutary purpoſe, and therefore immediately, with the greateſt order and Decorum, repaired to the houſe of Mr. Anthony Hay in this city, where being aſſembled, it was firſt propoſed, for the more decent and regular Diſcuſſion of ſuch Matters as might be taken into conſideration, that a Moderator ſhould be appointed, and on the Queſtion being put, Peyton Randolph, Eſq; late Speaker of the houſe of Burgeſſes, was unanimouſly elected.

The true State of the Colony being then opened and fully explained, and it being propoſed that a regular Aſſociation ſhould be formed a Committee was appointed to prepare the neceſſary and moſt proper regulations, for that purpoſe, and they were ordered to make their Report, to the General meeting the next Day at 10 o'clock.

[The particulars of the General Meeting the day following, with the report of the committee, together with their reſolves being very lengthy, we have only room for the following general account, viz.]

THAT they met according to adjournment, when the committee made their report, which being read, ſeriouſly conſider'd and approv'd of, was ſign'd by a great number of the principal gentlemen of the colony, then preſent; wherein they unanimouſly agreed and reſolved, That they would, by all ways and means in their power promote and encourage induſtry and frugality, and diſcourage all manner of luxury and extravagance.——That they would not at any time hereafter, import any manner of goods, merchandize or manufactures, which are or ſhall hereafter be taxed by act of parliament, for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue in America, (except paper, not exceeding eight ſhillings per ream, and ſuch articles as orders have already been ſent for) nor purchaſe any ſuch after the firſt day of September next.——That they would not import ſlaves, or purchaſe any imported, after the firſt of November next——That they would not import any wines of any kind whatſoever, after the firſt of September next, unleſs the acts of parliament impoſing duties thereon, are repealed.——That for the better preſervation of the breed of ſheep, they will not kill, or ſuffer to be killed, any Lamb that ſhall be yeand before the firſt day of May in any year, nor diſpoſe of ſuch to any butcher whom they may have reaſon to expect intend to kill them——and that theſe reſolutions ſhould be binding on every ſubſcriber, from the time of his ſigning the ſame for and during the continuance of the before mentioned acts of parliament, or until a general meeting of the ſubſcribers ſhall determine otherways.

The Reſolves being finiſhed the following Toaſts were drank, and the Gentlemen retired.——The King—The Queen and royal Family—His Excellency Lord Botetourt and proſperity to Virginia—A ſpeedy and laſting Union between Great-Britain and her colonies—The Conſtitutional Britiſh Liberty in America, and all true patriots, the Supporters thereof—Duke of Richmond—Earl of Shelburne—Col. Barre.—The late Speaker—The Treaſurer of the Colony—The Farmer and Monitor.

LONDON,

April 1. The frequent conferences lately held between the Right Hon. the Earls Temple and Chatham, are, it is ſaid, on the ſubject of ways and means to appeaſe the people, and to reconcile the preſent unhappy diviſions.

Yeſterday there were five indictments preſented at the New Guildhall, Weſtminſter, againſt the five perſons taken into cuſtody laſt week at St. James's, which were all thrown out by the grand Jury.

April 4. It is now ſaid that the interceſſion lately made by ſome very great perſonages, has been attended with ſo much ſucceſs as to obtain a promiſe, that if the next election be decided in favour of a popular candidate, all oppoſition ſhall ceaſe.

It is ſaid that Lord C——m hath declared his diſapprobation of a late meaſure, in terms that will open the eyes of the preſent adminiſtration, and which may probably make proſelytes of more than one of them.

We are told, that if a certain noble marquis and his friends, come again into office, one of the firſt meaſures will be to eſtabliſh an equal land tax throughout the kingdom, and to lop off many penſions on the eſtabliſhment of a neighbouring country.

We hear that a change of miniſtry will be the infallible conſequence of ſome late reſolves.

We hear that there have been lately very high differences between ſome reſpectable perſonages, about the utility of granting a free pardon to the patriot previous to the next election; and that a lady of the firſt conſequence, has declared her determined reſolution of quitting this kingdom for ever, if that event ſhould take place.

Saturday about ſeven in the evening, four empty waggons came to the houſe of the Rt. Hon the Earl of Bute in town, and carried off the houſhold goods, furniture, &c which were previouſly packed up for that purpoſe, but to what part of the country they are removed is yet unknown.

The meeting at Newmarket this ſeaſon has not only been the moſt numerous and brilliant known for many years paſt, but remarkable for good ſport and uncommon high betts. Amongſt the variety of ſums won and loſt, we hear that three brothers (perſons of faſhion) had the good fortune (by laying on one ſide) to win no leſs a ſum than 14000l. the eldeſt 8000l. the ſecond 4000l. and the youngeſt 2000l.

On Friday laſt five gentlemen of Blackman-ſtreet won 5000l. at Newmarket, on the famous horſe young Gimcrack. They made a purſe, and ran a lottery chance.

April 6. We have the pleaſure to acquaint the public, that Lord Chatham is now in better bodily health, than he has been for 4 or 5 years paſt; and that his mental faculties are as ſtrong as ever, which the world will ſoon be convinced of in a cauſe, that will add a greater luſtre to his character, than all the former great events which have been atchieved by his ſuperlative oratory.

This day at noon a council was held at the cock pit, on affairs of importance.

The Earl of Bute is expected daily to arrive in town from Italy.

We are cerdibly informed, that the inhabitants of the ward of Farringdon without, will not be repreſented, by an alderman till April 1770.

It is confidently ſaid that a gentleman of unqueſtionable character and fortune not hitherto mentioned, will declare himſelf in a few days, who it is thought, will put an event much talked of out of all doubt.

It is ſaid that 5000l. has been offered to ſuppreſs a late publication.

Yeſterday Mr. Luttrell and Mr. Roach went to the ſheriffs at the Old Bailey, and acquainted them of their intention of offering themſelves candidates to repreſent the County of Middleſex in Parliament, at the election which comes on at Brentford on Thurſday next. Several of Mr. Wilkes's Friends alſo attended in order to ſettle with thoſe Gentlemen ſome Matters relative to the carrying on the Election.

The preſent Eaſt India Sale is ſaid to be one of the greateſt there ever was ſince the eſtabliſhment of the Company. There are above 33 000 Cheſts of Tea; and a very few Years ago 11,000 Cheſts were thought a Quantity ſufficient to glut the Market; from whence may eaſily be drawn the amazing progreſs of Luxury in this Age and the growing importance of the Company.

A Military Gentleman in the Eaſt Indies, is ſaid to have loſt 75 000 l. by the Failure of the French Eaſt India Company.

April 11. We hear the Earl of Chatham has had a Relapſe of his Gout, and is now laid up with it in both his hands and feet.

It is ſaid that a freſh Feud has ariſen between two right Hon. Brothers, which has, in ſome degree, fruſtrated the plan of meaſures that has, for ſome time, been under conſideration. The cauſe of this Quarrel is not publickly known, though ſome pretend to ſay, a certain popular gentlemen was the object.

The Budget was opened yeſterday by the C——r of the E——r as uſual; but, it is ſaid, does not meet with the univerſal approbation as was expected.

It is thought no further ſteps of Conſequence will be taken relative to the Americans, but that the future proceedings will be left to the diſcretionary Powers, &c. with which the commander in chief has been inveſted.

It is ſaid that a certain great lawyer, whoſe reſignation is much talked of, is poſſeſſed of a fortune of near 500,000l.

BOSTON, June 8.

Tueſday arrived here his Majeſty's Ship Beaver, Capt. Belew from Halifax.

The Beaver had 5 days paſſage from Halifax, and bro't letters for ſeveral gentlemen in this town, dated London April 17. which came in two veſſels arrived at Halifax in ſhort paſſages from London, one of them a ſhip of 400 Tons. The chief intelligence that we hear ſhe brought are, That Col. Luttrell was ſuſtained as a member in the Houſe of Commons for Middleſex, having had the higheſt Poll next to John Wilkes, Eſq; who had been expelled.—Upon which a Number of the Inhabitants of Middleſex went and demanded him out; and that it was with difficulty he eſcaped from them.—That the colonel's houſe was pull'd down by the Mob.——That the Parliament was Prorogued. Nothing further done relative to America.

It's ſaid that the veſſel arrived at Halifax brings advice, that the mob in London went to the Houſe of Commons and demanded Col. Lutteral who made his eſcape out of a back window; that they afterwards pulled down his houſe, on which the parliament was prorogued, and the management of American affairs remitted to the miniſtry. whoſe paſt conduct with regard to the Colonies was highly approved of.

NEW-YORK, June 8.

By late Letters from Detroit, we learn, that an Indian War is daily expected, the Indians aſſembling in great Numbers at that Place; that the Inhabitants have all retired into the Fort; and that the Traders that went up this Spring, have proceeded no farther than Niagara.

Extract of a Letter from Lake Ontraio, dated May 21.

"Juſt now an Expreſs arrived here from Detroit, adviſing the Boats not to proceed to that place, becauſe they had good reaſon to imagine the Indians would ſtrike this ſeaſon, from hints that ſome of them had given when drunk in conſequence of which, many of the Inhabitants of Detroit had removed their families and effects into the Fort. The Boats which had paſſed Niagara Carrying Place, I underſtood are returned with all their Goods."

Extract of a Letter from Albany, May 28.

——"I fear we are on the eve of an Indian War:—Letters from Detroit adviſe, that the Indians are aſſembling: That the Inhabitants are returning to the Fort; and ſuch Traders as had not left Niagara and Oſwego, when the accounts came, remain at thoſe Places."

Another Letter ſays that Sir William Johnſon was ſet out on a Viſit to the Indians, in order to try to ſettle and reconcile matters.

HARTFORD, June 12.

Laſt Thurſday his Honor the Governor, was pleaſed to put an End to the General Aſſembly, the Buſineſs of the Spring Seſſions being finiſhed.

The 16th of laſt month, a proclamation was iſſued by Governor Penn, ſtrictly forbidding the ſettlements of the people of this colony on the lands claimed by them on the Suſquehannah, or any other perſons, without the permiſſion of the proprietors of Pennſylvania.

A. In your paper 230, deſires to know, whether Epiſcopalian Miniſters are exempted from reading the Governor's Proclamation for a faſt—to ſatisfy A's frequent wants I ſay——"where no law is, there is no tranſgreſſion." The governor's proclamation never enjoin any miniſters to read it except that which enjoins the expreſs words how the King and royal family ſhall be prayed for——but how that law is inſulted by adding and taking away. I ſhall not ſay Mr. A. if you had had any love for the truth or had known any thing about my licentious conduct——(as you term it) you muſt have ſaid every thing to reverſe of what you have ſaid——the truth is I never objected the keeping of the governor's faſt and have always notified my people of the day——and have always preached on the day and have alway exhorted them to be orderly to the law of God and man——this is my very reaſonable objection, viz. I cannot obey two oppoſite laws at one and the ſame time—the Rubrick of the church of England confirmed by act of parliament to be a law which I am oblig'd to obey by my own ſubſcription at my ordination; which law enjoins me to rejoice and be exceeding glad upon Sundays, Chriſtmas and Eaſter Holydays, &c.—But the governor's proclamation enjoins all to faſt upon Eaſter holydays—I cannot ſerve two maſters of the twain whom ſhall I obey, the governor or my ordinary? I appeal to the public——and may they judge whether I inſult the governor by ſanctifying his faſt with prayer and thankſgiving ſermons or whether the governor's proclamation inſult the Rubrick and laws of the Britiſh Parliament by changing the national thankſgiving days into faſting days—out of neceſſity I muſt diſobey one of theſe powers unleſs his honor will condeſcend ſo far as to appoint his faſt not upon the King's thankſgiving day for the future or elſe the King and parliament yield up their power to his honor to change days months and years, as his honor ſhall think fit and holy——I ſay until one or the other of theſe are done I am already ſworn to obey the Rubrick of the church of England as it now is—Now I really believe churchmen's Holydays are as ſacred and as legal, as thoſe of diſſenters——and yet——the diſſenters by an act of toleration freely given them by the church of England are excuſed (for plea of conſcience) from any pecuniary puniſhment for nonobſervance of her Holydays Sunday excepted——if A would but conſider the land of retaliations and git but a grain of charity that golden Rule will ſilence him for the future.

Mr. A if his honor will appoint his ſpring faſt (which is ſo abſolutely neceſſary for your community, one week ſooner 'twill be in the time of Lent——when churchmens licentious conduct will abate and all agree I hope to ſupplicate the infinite God to fruſtrate the machination of all our enemies and pray that all our abilities may be enlarged to deny vice and falſe reports more and more.

☞ Eight of my pariſhioners were fined for breach of public faſt in the time of Eaſter Holydays I being at Preſton that day, their fault is not mine, more than eight perſons who are diſſenters have been fined in Hebron for like offence. I am the publick's humble ſervant, SAML. PETERS.

LONDON,

April 13. It is expected the houſe of commons will adjourn for the ſummer the latter end of this Month.

The Budget being found on Monday Night laſt full of Breaches, was ſent to a Sempſtreſs in Pall Mall to be fine drawn againſt To-morrow, when it is to undergo another Examination.

We are aſſured, that the French court hath given Inſtructions to count de Vaux, who has lately been appointed commander in chief of their Troops in the Iſland of Corſica, to behave with the utmoſt Lenity to ſuch Priſoners as fall into his hands, and to purſue every Method in his power to give the moſt agreeable Impreſſion of the French Nation.

By Letters from Peterſburgh we learn, that a large Body of confederates have been defeated near Dubna by col. de Brink, that he has taken a great Number of Priſoners, with horſes and Ammunition; and that the Son of Marſhal Pulawſki was killed in the Encounter.

This Morning, about Eight o'clock, a numerous Cavalcade of Freeholders, in the Intereſt of Mr. Wilkes, preceded by Muſic playing, and Standards flying, on which were printed Magna Charta and the Bill of rights, went in proceſſion through the city to Brentford.

This Morning, as Col. Luttrell, with a ſmall party, was proceeding on Horſeback to Brentford, he was met at Hyde-park corner by a mob, when a Diſpute by ſome Accident ariſing, ſeveral of the people, it is ſaid, were rode over, and that one perſon among them, a gentleman's ſervant, was ſtruck ſo violent a blow on the head with a loaded ſtick, that 'tis thought he cannot recover. On the other Side, the people charged the colonel and his party, in their turn, and pelted them ſo furiouſly with Dirt, &c. that they drove ſome of them almoſt into the river, and put the whole party in ſuch a Manner to the rout, that they rode diſperſed over the Field, and a few galloped off full ſpeed for Brentford.

The poll, we are told, was carried on in a different Manner from what it uſed to be, the Electors all giving their votes ſingly, and not by four at a time, as before, ſo that it went on very ſlowly.

Seven o'clock. We have juſt learnt, that the poll ended about five o'clock, when the Numbers were as follow.

Monday night, at a coffee-houſe, not far from St. James's, ſome gentlemen were talking about the inſtructions juſt given by the Liverymen of London to their repreſentatives in parliament; when one of them declared, they were the beſt he ever read, and that he never ſaw any that were at once ſo ſtrong and poignant, and yet ſo cool and diſpaſſionate; and ſaid he hoped the electors of every county and city in the whole kingdom would copy after their laudable example; when other gentlemen immediately replied, that the inſtructions were undoubtedly well drawn up, and much to the purpoſe; but that he had ſome doubts whether the Liverymen of London, or any other electors in the nation, had, at this time, any right to inſtruct their repreſentatives at all; for, ſaid he, our conſtitution, is totally changed in this important point; and thoſe who formerly received wages from their conſtituents for the trouble of ſerving them in parliament, now pay large ſums of money to thoſe who elect them for that purpoſe; and, continued he, are not thoſe the ſervants who receive money, and the maſters who pay it? Wherefore, ſaid he, it is a doubt with me, whether Members of Parliament are not at this time ſeptennial maſters, inſtead of ſervants, of the people? and can ſervants have any right to inſtruct their maſters?

BOSTON, April 28.

AT the Superiour Court held in Charleſtown, application was made by the Cuſtom Houſe Officers, for a full Supply of Writs of Aſſiſtance, which were accordingly granted. By the late acts the Officers of the Cuſtoms are "empowered to enter into any houſe, Warehouſe, Shop, or other Place, in the Britiſh Colonies, or Plantations in America, to ſearch for, or ſeize prohibited or uncuſtomed Goods,"——A dreadful power indeed! And if we can recollect Inſtances of ſuch a wanton Uſe of this power, even in Boſton, as that a Magiſtrate ſhould be threatened and his houſe rummaged, by an Officer in reſentment at his being fined for Breach of Law, what may we not fear at a Time when Spaniſh policy has been ſo far adopted, as that the moſt ignorant, Hair-brain'd, and extravagant perſons in commiſſion on board the Ships of war are converted into Cuſtom-houſe officers: If we only reflect, that the Judges of theſe American courts, are appointed during Pleaſure, that ſome of them are already penſioned, and that one purpoſe for which Money is to be levied upon the colonies by a late Act is, that they may have adequate proviſion made for them, which is to continue during their complaiſant Behaviour, what an Engine of oppreſſion may this authority be in ſuch hands! We are well aware that Writs of this Kind, for ſearching houſes in England, have been granted under the Seal of the court of Exchequer, according to the Statute, which Seal is kept by the chancellor of the Exchequer: It ſhould, however be remembered that the Cuſtom-Houſe Officers, at home are under certain Checks, and reſtrictions, which they cannot be under the Writ of Aſſiſtance ought to be look'd upon as a different Thing there, from what it is here. In England the Exchequer has the power of controuling them in every Reſpect; and even of inflicting corporal Puniſhment upon them for Mal conduct, of which there have been Inſtances; they are the proper officers of that court, and are accountable to it as often as it ſhall call them to account, and they do in fact account to it for Money receiv'd, and for their Behaviour once every Week. Do the officers of the Cuſtoms here account with the Superior court, or lodge Money, received into the hands of that court; or are they as Officers under any Sort of check from it? will they concede to ſuch powers in the Superiour court? Or does this court, notwithſtanding thoſe are powers belonging to the Exchequer, ——notwithſtanding it is ſaid to be veſted with all the Powers belonging to the Exchequer notwithſtanding this very writ of Aſſiſtance is to be granted as a power belonging to the Exchequer, will the Superior court itſelf aſſume the Power of calling theſe Officers to account, and puniſh them for Miſbehaviour? We know not of one Inſtance of this Sort, but on the contrary, have we not ſeen not long ago, an inferior Cuſtom houſe officer, who has ſince ſwelled into a C——m——r of the B——d of C—ſ—ms, refuſing to account to any power in the province for Monies receiv'd by him by Virtue of his Office, belonging to the province, and which we were then aſſured by the joint Declaration of the three Branches of the Legiſlature, was unjuſtly as well as illegally detain'd by him?

But notwithſtanding Writs of Aſſiſtance iſſued in Britain are guarded with ſuch reſtrictions, "The greateſt Aſſertors of the rights of Engliſhmen have always ſtrenuouſly contended that ſuch a power was dangerous to Freedom, and expreſsly contrary to the common Law, which ever regarded a man's houſe as his Caſtle, or a Place of perfect Security.——If ſuch power was in the leaſt degree dangerous there, it muſt be utterly deſtructive to liberty here. For the people of England have two Securities, againſt the undue Exerciſe of this power by the crown, which are wanting with us.——In the firſt place if any Injuſtice is done there, the perſon injured may bring his Action againſt the Offender, and have it tried before Independent Judges, who were no Parties in commiting the Injury.——Here he muſt have it tried, before dependent Judges, being the men who granted the Writ."

April 29. We are well informed, that the Officers of the Cuſtoms applied the laſt year to the chief juſtices of Bench of Judges, in ſeveral of the colonies, from granting them writs of Aſſiſtance, but that thoſe juſtices from a tender regard to the Conſtitution, and the rights of American freeholders, did actually refuſe a compliance with thoſe demands. —The C——l——r of the Port of New-London in Connecticut, has lately applied a ſecond time to the Superior Court there for ſuch Writs; at the ſame time laying a letter before them, which he had received from one of the Crown Lawyers in England, in Anſwer to one wrote upon the Subject, in which letter, a great compliment was paid to the chief Juſtice of the Maſſachuſetts, for the proof he had given of a right Underſtanding of the law, and of his zeal for his Majeſty's Service, by ſo readily granting thoſe writs, upon the application made by the Cuſtom-houſe Officers; and his example was worthy of their Immitation. The court did not however, think proper to ſhow a like compliſance, but choſe to refer this requeſt, to the conſideration of the general Aſſembly at the approching Seſſion.

April 30. The quartering Troops in the body of a Town is as ruinous to the Soldiery as it is diſtreſſing to the Inhabitants? every day furniſhes out Inſtances of their Debaucheries and conſequent Violences.

As an aged woman at the North part of Boſton, was ſetting the other Evening in a lower room, having no perſon in the houſe with her; a Soldier came in and ſeeing her have a Bible on the table before her; he expreſſed his Approbation of her Piety and attempted a kind of Expoſition upon ſome parts thereof, but ſoon dropping this diſcourſe, he acquainted her that he had a Swelling on his hip and ſhould be glad of her advice; but while the good woman was attending to his ſolution, this abandoned wretch, ſeized her by the ſhoulders, threw her upon the Floor, and notwithſtanding her years, attempted a rape upon her, which was prevented by the reſiſtance and Screams occaſioned by his brutal behaviour; he thought proper to hurry off taking with him a bundle of ſhirts and other linen, which had been juſt before ſent into the houſe for waſhing, and ironing; the buſineſs which this perſon followed to obtain a livelihood.

May 1. A Captain of a Veſſel lately arrived from Halifax paſſing the ſtreets laſt evening, in company with two married women, were met by ſome Soldiers, who immediately accoſted them in a rude indecent Manner; the Captain thought proper to inform them, that thoſe women were married, and alſo to reprove them for ſuch behaviour; but for taking this Liberty, he was preſently knocked down, and had like to have loſt an Eye by a blow received.

May 2. On the other Night paſt 11 o' Clock ſeveral officers one Soldier, meeting with two of the towns Watchmen, they began to curſe and damn them, and ſoon after the Soldier ſtruck one of the Watchmen, who returned the blow, which laid him in the gutter, then the two officers came up, and were as free with their blows as the Soldier; the Noiſe and racket ſoon brought other Watchmen to the Aſſiſtance of thoſe who were aſſaulted, when one of the officers drew his Bayonet, and damning them, ſaid ſtand off, or I will run you through; the Watchmen not being intimidated, gave him a ſtroke on the arm which obliged him to drop the Bayonet; when they ſeized him and carried him off to priſon, the Watchmen were followed by another officer, with a drawn Sword or cutlaſs under his arm, but being told that if he did not leave them, they would endeavour to ſecure him alſo, he thought proper to ſheer off. Several officers came at different times, and offered the watchmen drink or money, if they would releaſe the priſoner, but to their honor they refuſed thoſe officers, and entered a complaint againſt them to the magiſtrate the next morning.

INTELLIGENCE EXTRAORDINARY.

It is currently reported, that the ghoſt of the late Mr. Clark, who was ſaid to have been murdered at Brentford, did appear to a gentleman of the faculty, and aſſured him that he was not murdered, but died of his own accord; and therefore requeſted that, for the ſake of the unhappy rioters, and ſome other great perſonages, he would cauſe the matter to be inquired into by a ſelect number of his brethren, who ſhould have a ſolemn meeting for that purpoſe, where he would teſtify the ſame thing in an inviſible but yet very ſenſible manner. From the reſult of the matter it ſeems that the ghoſt was as good as his word, by which ſome diſagreeable conſequences are happily prevented.

ADVICES by the PACKET.

Corſican Gazette.

MURATO, Feb. 17.

ON the 13th of this month we had advice that the regiment de la Mark quartered on the lands of Barbaggio ſeemed to paſs their time with little attention. Accordingly, at four in the evening, the General detached 400 men, in order to ſurpriſe that poſt the ſame night, but our people were prevented executing their project as premeditated, by reaſon that the enemy had been adviſed, by a ſpy, of our motions, and were on their guard. Our people were therefore obliged to attack them, and endeavour to overcome them by force, in which they at laſt ſucceeded, after a vigorous reſiſtance from the French, 100 of whom, who were in the houſes in the heights, were made priſoners; 160 more which were in the houſes below, after an obſtinate reſiſtance, ſurrendered by capitulation, in conſequence of which they were conducted to San Fiorenzo, obliging themſelves not to ſerve during one year. During this engagement one of our detachments, which was to have fortified themſelves at the paſſage of Tigeme, not having time to do it, was attacked the 15th with great violence by the French, who obliged them to quit the eminences which they had taken poſt on. Other French detachments cut off the retreat of our people, thoſe who had conquered at Barbaggio reſiſted the firſt and ſecond day with great reſolution, but ſeeing no poſſibility of holding out for want of proviſions and ammunition, on the 16th in the evening they ſurrendered by capitulation, in conſequence of which they were conducted to Baſtia, there to remain, and the officers to have the town for their priſon.

" Our loſs, killed, wounded, and priſoners, does not amount to 200 men, that of the enemy is of no ſmall conſequence, eſpecially the killed and wounded."

Baſtia, Feb. 27. A ſmart action happened a few days ago between the French &Corſicans, which was faught with great obſtinacy on both ſides, and ended with little advantage on either. It is ſaid that ſeveral chiefs have quitted Paoli, and aſſembled at Roſtino.

Caſal, March 2. It is reported that there has been a freſh engagement in Corſica, much more bloody than that of the 14th of laſt month; and that the Malcontents had retaken Barbaggio and Patrimono from the French.

Balogna, Feb. 20. In a late action one of our ſoldiers was taken priſoner by the French, who loaded him with chains, and carried him to Baſtia, as if he had been an aſſaſſin. If the remonſtrances which we have made againſt a conduct ſo contrary to the rules of war are not to be liſtened to, our people, who are much irritated, will be obliged to make repriſals on the enemy, whoſe cruelty is the leſs excuſable, as in that very action ſome of our people having taken a French Serjeant priſoner, and finding that while they were purſued by the enemy, they cou'd not carry their priſoner along with them, rather than put him to death, they generouſly ſet him at liberty.

Copenhagen, Feb. 29. The affairs of the North begin to take a ſerious turn. The Empreſs of Ruſſia requires her Allies to furniſh her the ſtipulated ſuccours either in men or money. As our kingdom is among the number of her Imperial Majeſty's Allies, we are bound to ſend her 6000 Men, or 60,000 crowns every year, during the war. As ſo large a ſum might diſorder our finances, the court has reſolved to pay her contigent in men. His Majeſty has therefore ordered ſix new regiments to be raiſed in Norway, five of infantry, and one dragoons. The army in Denmark has alſo been augmented with 16 battalions.

Bruſſels, April 6. According to advices from the frontiers of Turkey, the Tarters have penetrated into New Servia, and committed horrible ravages there. We are aſſured that they have burnt almoſt every village in that province, that they have carried off 14 000 families, and more than 100 000 cattle of different kinds. Theſe advices, however, which are dated the middle of March, make no mention of a battle, which according to ſome Gazettes, hath been fought between the Ruſſians and Tartars, wherein the latter are ſaid to have obtained a complete victory, cut to pieces near 30 000 Ruſſians, and made 20 000 priſoners: but neither time or place of this engagement is mentioned. [Bruſſel's Gazette]

LONDON,

March 23. This day his Majeſty went in ſtate to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the royal aſſent to the following Bills, viz.

The bill for puniſhing mutiny and deſertion in the American colonies, and for providing quarters for his Majeſty's troops in the ſaid colonies.

The bill to diſſolve the marriage of his Grace the Duke of Grafton with his preſent wife, to enable him to marry again, and for other purpoſes.

And ſeveral other private bills.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at London to his friend in Leeds, dated Mar. 16.

——" This S——n of P——t is like to paſs over without a repeal of the American duty acts, or any redreſs of their grievances. The reſolutions lately paſſed here, and the conſequent addreſs, will, I apprehend, tend to widen the breach, and put an end to the commerce between the two countries.--- Pennſylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas, who have hitherto kept out of the agreement not to import Britiſh goods, will, I think, on ſight of that addreſs, and thoſe reſolutions, accede to it."

This day arrived the mails from Holland and Flanders.

Extract of a letter from Warſaw, March 4.

" This moment a courier is arrived with the news, that the confederacy of Palatinate of Lencizia has been deſtroyed by the Ruſſians; and that of the palatinate of Plock has alſo met with the ſame fate: ſo that there now only remains the confederacy of Great Poland, beſides that of Bar, which is but in a tottering ſituation, from the purſuit of the Ruſſians. The corps of Ruſſians which was in Volhynia has entered the palatinate of Braclau in the Ukraine, to oppoſe the Kan of the Tartars."

Letter from the banks of the Danube, Mar. 4.

" The Kan of the Tartars having marched from Balta into the New Servia with an army of 50,000 men, his advanced troops were there attacked with ſuch ſucceſs by a corps of Ruſſians under General Iſakow, that his project was entirely diſconcerted; and M. Iſakow afterwards made a motion with his corps which cutting off their retreat towards the Ottoman dominion, obliged them to march towards Poland, whither the Ruſſian General followed them, to put them between two fires. We are impatient to hear ſome further particulars, & the conſequences of this affair. In the mean time, the weather is become extreme cold, which the Tartars cannot bear, and numbers of them are already dead. The intemperance of the climate likewiſe occaſions a great deſertion amongſt the Ottoman troops; and, beſides, ſome epidemical diſtempers, which have even the appearance of contagion, make great ravages amongſt them.

BOB MIZEN.

BOSTON June 12.

By Capt. Hall who arrived laſt Friday, in about 6 weeks from London, we have it from the beſt authority that about the 20th of April, poſitive orders were iſſued from Lord Hillſborough's office for requiring Governor Bernard immediately to repair to London: and from the ſame authority we are told he will never return to this government. The deep affliction this news gives may be read in every countenance.

The General court of this Province having been convened by governor Bernard into this town, in which there are no leſs than 3 regiments, and the main guard with cannon placed within a few feet of the Court Houſe, and having remonſtriated without effect, have for 13 days paſt made a ſolemn and expreſſive pauſe in public buſineſs.

It is confidently reported that Lord Botetourt has wrote for ſhips and troops to quell the noble ſpirit of the Virginians. The late reſolves of their houſe of Burgeſſes will reflect a laſting honor on themſelves and their conſtituents.

Great commotions all over England, in London it is ſaid that no leſs than 110,000 were aſſembled at one time on account of Mr. Wilkes's place being aſſumed by Col. Luttrell; the whole county of Middleſex are about preſenting a petition to his Majeſty, in which our Americans are particularly noticed. It is ſaid much depends upon the ſucceſs of this petition.

By all the accounts from London we find, that an eminent politician among us is not only come to the end of his tether, but has helped to bring greater folks than himſelf into the ſame beaſtly ſituation

We hear that orders have been received by the packet for the 64th and 65th regiments, with the train of artillery, to be removed from this place to Halifax, and that they are to embark in about ten days. 'Tis alſo ſaid, the 14th regiment is ſoon to go to New-York, and that the 29th will be ſtationed at the Caſtle.

BOSTON, June 15.

We are aſſured that the order for Sir Francis Bernard, Bart. to return to England, is expreſſed to be to attend the KING as governor, to report to him the preſent ſtate of the province; that it contains inſtructions for the adminiſtration of the government during his abſence; and that there is no intimation of any intention at preſent of ſuperſeding his commiſſion. We hear that he propoſes to embark about the end of July.

The Public may be aſſured that the following Intelligence comes from Gentlemen of diſtinction (our friends) on the other ſide of the water, by the laſt veſſel from London.-------

THEY write that the parliament remain fix'd in their reſolution not to repeal the duty acts this ſeſſion and will riſe the firſt of May. They hope the people here will remain as fix'd in their reſolution of induſtry and frugality till thoſe acts are repeal'd. And if they cou'd be ſure of that, they ſhould almoſt wiſh them never to be repeal'd; being perſuaded that we ſhall reap more ſolid and extenſive advantages from the ſteady practice of thoſe two great virtues, than we can poſſibly ſuffer damage from all the duties the parliament can levy on us. The friends to the late ſevere meaſures flatter themſelves that we cannot long ſubſiſt without their manufactures;——they believe that we have not virtue enough to perſiſt in ſuch agreements; --they imagine the colonies will differ among themſelves, deceive and deſert one another, and quietly one after another ſubmit to the yoke, and return to the uſe of Britiſh fineries: they think that tho' the men may be contented with homeſpun ſtuffs, the women will never get the better of their vanity and fondneſs for Engliſh modes and gewgaws. The miniſterial people all talk in this ſtrain, and many even of the merchants.-- If under all the inſults and oppreſſions we are now expos'd to, we can prudently as we have lately done, continue quiet, avoiding tumults, but ſtill reſolutely keeping up our claims and aſſerting our rights, we ſhall finally eſtabliſh them; and this military cloud that now bluſters over us, will paſs away, and do us no more harm than a ſummer thunder ſhower—But the advantages of our perſeverance in induſtry and frugality will be great and permanent: Our debts will be paid; our farms will be better improv'd and yield a greater produce: Our real wealth will increaſe in a plenty of every uſeful Home production, and all the true enjoyments of life, even tho' no foreign trade ſhould be allow'd us: All Ireland is ſtrongly in favour of the American cauſe. They have reaſon to ſympathize with us.

NEWYORK, June 15.

Extract of a letter from London, dated April 4.

" The p——— will be prorogued in a few weeks——The American petitions have all been thrown aſide, nor will any thing be done towards redreſſing our grievances till next year. The preſent M——y is now more unpopular than ever.——Wilkes's friends increaſe daily; ſome of the richeſt and moſt reputable gentlemen in the kingdom have openly eſpouſed his cauſe: No reaſons have as yet been given by the p———t for his being expelled the houſe after the firſt time: They plead in general that he is a man of bad principles and worſe morals.

" Dr. W-r-b-rt-n, the learned biſhop of Glouceſter, is now one of the minority. He preached a Sermon at the Chapel Royal a few weeks ago, which gave great offence to his ——— it was aimed at the M———rs, whom he accuſed of being the authors of all the ſedition and tumults in the kingdom. Some ſay the K—— roſe up to go out, but was prevented by the — who ſat by him—the papers will tell you of his being repeatedly inſulted by the mob, at the playhouſe, &c."

The Reſolutions of the Philadelphia Merchants have alarmed the M——y greatly. They wiſh the late Acts were repealed, and yet are aſhamed to repeal them, as it will call their Prudence and Authority in Queſtion. It gives great pleaſure to the Friends of America to hear that Manufactures are encouraged among you: Theſe will make you rich: theſe will make you free; theſe will make you happy in ſpite of all G——. B——— can do.

Meſſ'rs Green & Watſon,

By giving the following a Place in your next, you will much oblige an old Cuſtomer,

UNION is the band of ſociety, and (in many caſes) of the utmoſt importance. The neceſſary Cement of incorporate bodies, and many other connections in life——And (where confederacies are not dangerous, and deſtructive of civil liberty, or property) is a duty which ought always to be inculcated.

There are ſome corporations that are of very great utility to mankind——others, that ſeem to wear ſuch an aſpect, but upon critical examination, appear to be of a contrary tendency,—Our own underſtanding and experience, muſt point out the advantages, and diſadvantages of ſuch connections. And when any ſociety, or body incorporate, is found not to anſwer the general good, as was propos'd in its formation, it is beſt in ſuch caſe, to diſband. Such (I humbly conceive) the medical corporation of Litchfield county to be.—The deſign of this ſociety was to promote a good agreement, and harmony amongſt it's members, endeavour to be mutually aſſiſting to each other, in the healing art, and to keep out all Quacks, and vain pretenders to Phyſic.—But if experience (the beſt guide, in all human affairs) ſufficiently teaches us, that theſe ends cannot be anſwered, then the very deſign of its inſtitution is fruſtrated, and at an end. I ſhall here offer a few reaſons why I think theſe cannot be anſwered, under the preſent conſtitution of ſaid ſociety.——And here firſt, The grand thing, which is to keep out Quacks, and pretenders can (under it's preſent conſtitution) in no meaſure be anſwered. We have had too many proofs of this (ſince the formation of the ſociety) to doubt of the truth of the aſſertion.——An inſtance of late of the ſociety's receiving one into their body, who had read ſome, but never liv'd with any practitioner, or been in the practice himſelf——but he now comes, cloath'd with the authority of the ſociety, recommended to the people, as one worthy to be apply'd to in caſe of life and death,—And yet I ſincerely think that the perſon, they have thus recommended, would paſs a better examination than one half of the examiners. And if this is the caſe, there is no poſſibility of keeping out Quacks. Every member of the ſociety has an equal right to vote, and if the major part are pretenders themſelves, then how will the formation of ſuch a ſociety keep out pretenders? And tho' the perſon refer'd to above, may make a good practitioner in time; yet I think he is by no means qualified at preſent, and life is too dear to be trifled with in this manner. I know the excuſe of ſome of the principal members of the ſociety is, that they were impos'd upon—but if Quacks, and pretenders, can impoſe upon the ſociety then how is the ſociety conſtituted to keep out Quacks and pretenders? The more united then a corporate body are, (the major part of whom are unqualified perſons themſelves) renders it (in proportion) hurtful to mankind. A ſociety whoſe very formation and exiſtence recommends a number of unqualified perſons to the public, where the lives of mankind are concerned, is hurtful in its very nature; and the ſooner diſbanded, the better.—Beſides I am not certain but that a confederacy of Doctors might be hurtful to ſociety (even on ſuppoſition they were never ſo well qualified) the matter of medicine lies much in the dark, (with regard to the vulgar) and it is very difficult for common people to determine whether they are well or ill uſed in demands made upon them, and a combination of Doctors perhaps gives them a greater advantage to impoſe on mankind by extravagant demands, than if no ſuch combination had been form'd.

Moreover there are ſome obligations to the laws of the ſociety, which I think are not in the beſt manner calculated to anſwer the good ends propos'd——one I would in a ſpecial manner remark upon, which is that no fellowſhip, or council is to be held, with ſuch as are not of their communion (tho' never ſo well qualified in other reſpects) if any regular practitioner in the county ſhould upon the whole, think it not beſt to join with the corporation, &c he muſt be diſcountenanced, and all the injury poſſible done him, ſo far as the influence of the corporation can extend, but another that has no other qualification to recommend him, but only that he has join'd the medical club, muſt be careſt, and recommended to mankind as an able phyſician, when he ſcarcely knows the difference between a Bagpipe, and a Glyſterpipe——Where is then the Juſtice or equity of this method of proceeding? Or how is it conſiſtent with principles of liberty? Union (on a good baſis) is deſirable, on a bad one worſe than nothing, and notwithſtanding all the pretenſions to friendſhip ſo warmly aſſerted; I wiſh there was no reaſon to complain of inſincerity even among ſome of the principal members, and firſt promoters of the affair, ſome who are deſirous to agrandize themſelves and father their blunders upon their neighbours, ſome men have a peculiar faculty (by ſome ſly innuendo's to exculpate themſelves (in their horrid miſtakes) and make others bare the blame.

I have had the honour to be a member of the ſociety myſelf, but (from what little experience I have had) I am fully convinc'd, that the foundation is deficient; and in conſequence the ſuperſtructure can't be good.

MESSRS GREEN & WATSON,

Pleaſe to inſert the incloſed in your next and you will oblige your humble ſervant.

T. BURR

I Think Dr Gale had no occaſion to fill up ſo much of your uſeful paper, to inform the publick how I came by the billet referred to, or in cenſuring my conduct for pimping into the ſame; as I had before frankly declared how the diſcovery was made and the publick were as well able to form a judgment of my conduct therein, before the Dr. made his learned obſervations, as they now are; but it is very eaſy to ſee with what views he enlarges ſo much on that particular, which is only to divert the reader from the principal deſign of my publication, and fix his attention on a trifling circumſtance; Such I muſt beg leave to call it, notwithſtanding the Dr. is pleaſed to ſay ſo many hard things about it? what man is there, who finding an open billet in a publick houſe, would not think himſelf intitled by cuſtom, conſtant practice, and all the rules of good breeding (which, notwithſtanding my want of ability, I profeſs to underſtand as well as the ingenious and important Dr Gale) to look into it, and know the contents? And I ſubmit it to the public and more eſpecially to the polite and learned Dr. whether it is not agreeable to the nature of man to be curious in theſe matters? and whether the perſon, who looks into an open billet diſcovered at a publick houſe, in a baſket, where from cuſtom he had an undoubted right to look for his own letters, is more guilty of pimping, than he who receives, opens and reads another's private letter, the ſeal before being accidentally broken; Of this the Dr has been publickly accuſed, and I was informed, ſome years ago, by a perſon of undoubted veracity, that he actually did do it.

I obſerve the Dr. in dividing his text, in the firſt place promiſes to acquaint the publick, what he had in his mind to which he alluded by that expreſſion in his billet; and am glad to find he diſcovers ſo great a regard for the truth as not to ſay that the Suſquehannah affair on the one hand, and the publiſhing the proceedings and debates of the houſe of repreſentatives, the ſtate of the publick accounts and tranſmitting the ſame to the ſeveral towns annually on the other hand, were the only matters of importance which he had in mind, when he wrote the billet. The Dr. has not been ſo artful in his evaſion, but that a perſon of mean abilities can eaſily ſee through it. How far the publick might have given credit to the Dr's declaration, that thoſe were the only matters of conſequence which he had in midn, is not for me to determine, as I do not profeſs ſo thorough a knowledge of the Dr's character, as he does of mine; the whole of which, I dare venture to gueſs, he has gained from thoſe, who feel as much friendſhip for me, as the Dr. did, when he found his billet expoſed to the publick view. But admitting thoſe were the only matters he had in mind I muſt again beg leave to put the queſtion. What can we think of a man, that goes to the general Aſſembly as a member, with a determination to ſtand out againſt the dictates of reaſon and conſcience, in any matter that ſhall come under conſideration? No man diveſted of a party ſpirit, in his cool moments, would ſuffer ſuch an expreſſion to drop from his pen: But we muſt impute it to his warmth and engagedneſs for that minor party, whoſe tool he appears to be; as I am informed fire is his principal element. I am rejoiced to find that the Doctor is not ſo much loſt to a ſenſe of honeſty and goodneſs, as not to be moved by the diſcovery of his important ſecret, and thinks it is a great pity he had not avoided ſo many ungenteel reflections. As to my character, I ſhall leave that to the publick, in competition with Dr. Gale's.

Had I followed the example of the modeſt Dr. and taken pains to have ſent abroad falſe and exagerated accounts of my natural abilities perhaps they would have appeared as conſpicuous as his. That he may not evade the charge, I will give the publick the following extract from the Univerſal Muſeum for the year 1766, page 333 viz. "It appears on the authority of Dr Huxham, that Dr. Benjamin Gale, of Connecticut, in New England ſince he has given Mercury antimony in preparing perſons for inoculation, has loſt only one of eight hundred inoculated: whereas before he gave this medicine, he uſually loſt one patient out of one hundred" As ſoon as I met with this account, which was not long after the Muſeum was publiſhed, I aſked a gentleman who was a pupil of the Dr's about the time that the new method of inoculation was introduced, how many perſons Dr Gale had ever inoculated? He told me, he did not know exactly, but would venture to ſay not more than ſeventy: They who are beſt acquainted with the Dr. and his practice in inoculation, muſt judge of the truth of his account.——Whatever motions have heretofore been made on my account in the general aſſembly for a commiſſion of the peace, were unaſked, and I cannot pretend to ſay they were merited, tho' the Dr. ſeems to think I had deſerved ſomthing for paſt ſervices; Not at the head of that little party he ſpeaks of, for that is not likely to flouriſh, but as one of that majority, which for ſeveral years paſt, and I hope will, bear rule in this colony, to the great mortification of the Dr. and his friends, who are coſtantly plotting innovations in the ſtate, and occaſion more expence & oppoſition in endeavouring to advance and reinſtate themſelves, than any one matter which concerns the colony.

I would not have Dr. Gale think my concern for the ſafety of the general aſſembly was the only thing which induced me to publiſh his darling ſecret, as there is not ſo much danger to fear from the attempts and deſings of him and his friends as he imagines but it was to prevent thoſe ſpirited ſtruggles and ſtrifes, which they have occaſioned for one or two ſeſſions paſt, to no purpoſe; and which I am glad to find, my publication has in ſome meaſure prevented in the preſent ſeſſion; as the Dr. and his friends were apprehenſive the eyes of the people were opened, and the views of that party detected. If the can give any anſwer to this that looks like an argument I ſhall think it worth my pains to take notice of it; but if he ſtill continues to leave the main point, and run into abuſive reflection as before, I ſhall not think proper to take any further notice of his publications. In the mean time,

I am with due reſpect, his and the Publicks welwiſher, THAD. BURR

LISBON, March 16.

IN Spite of all the hopes we had conceived of the ill ſucceſs of the undertaking of the Moors againſt Mazagan, we have juſt received the News that that Fortreſs is fallen into their hands. In conſequence of this, the King has ordered a Fleet of 62 Sail as well Ships as Frigates of War as other Veſſels, to put to Sea immediately, in order to recover that Fortreſs.

LONDON.

April 15 The Election of John Wilkes, Eſq; is declared null and void.

This day the ſheriffs are to attend an auguſt Aſſembly with the Poll for the county of Middleſex.

We are informed that a certain late candidate declared that he found himſelf greatly diſappointed in his Expectations from the promiſes of the great.

April 17. The Hon. the Houſe of Commons did not break up till half paſt Two o' Clock Yeſterday Morning.

It is thought that no inſolvent Act will paſs this year; but that an act of Grace will take place early in the year 1770.

A certain patriotic Gentleman, poſſeſſed of 18,000l per Annum in Wales, who was confined to his Bed by the Gout, ordered himſelf to be dreſſed, was put into his Carriage, and polled at Brentford for Mr. Wilkes.

April 10 The Earl of Chatham mends faſt every Day. It is very certain that he has declared his ſentiments on the cauſe of the County of Middleſex, which he ſays, is the cauſe of the whole nation and the moſt eſſential conſtitutional point that has yet been agitated.

Letters from Paris now ſpeak of the Treaty, offenſive and defenſive, ſaid to have been concluded between the court of Vienna, Madrid, and Berlin, as a report, that ſtands in need of as much confirmation as that of the Engliſh Miniſtry having offered to reſtore Canada to France.

On Monday a young Lady of 18 took Poiſon at her Aunt's houſe near Hertford in Kent, and expired before the cauſe of her Illneſs was known in the Family. She had a fortune of near 2000l. a year in her own diſpoſal.

April 18. Yeſterday Morning the Freeholders of Middleſex met at the Mile End Aſſembly Room according to the Advertiſement for that purpoſe. The room was as full as it could be crowded, and is computed to hold about 2500 All the Avenues to the houſe were thronged, and above five thouſand people were aſſembled in the road before it. At Twelve John Sawbridge Eſq; Member for Hithe in Kent, was called to the Chair, and declared the Intention of the Meeting. James Townſhend, Eſq; Member for Weſt Looe in Cornwell, in a very elegant and animated Speech deplored the Neceſſity of ſeeking out ſome new Remedy for a new Grievance; A Grievance which till this Period no King, no Miniſter, no enemy, no power on Earth had ever laid upon this Kingdom ſince it received the name of England

With the greateſt force and Conviction from law, Hiſtory, and the natural rights of Mankind, he aſſerted the privilege of Repreſentation to the people. He declared himſelf ready to run every Riſque and to undergo every Suffering to preſerve this invaluable Bleſſing to his Countrymen and that he would never tamely ſubmit to offer up his Liberty at the ſhrine of any Miniſter or earthly Potentate or Power He concluded with a wiſh, that ſome Freeholders would propoſe a plan that might ſerve to confirm to us the rights (if there are any) that ſtill remain unviolated, and to recover thoſe which have been violently & unjuſtly wreſted from us, eſpecially that important leading Right on which all other depended—the Right of Election.

The Rev Mr. Horne then made a Motion, that a Committee of Grievances and Apprehenſions be appointed to take the ſame into Conſideration particularly the preſent alarming attack made on the right of Election, and at the next General Meeting to propoſe porper conſtitutional Meaſures to be taken for Redreſs.

He ſupported his motion by many ſtrong and convincing arguments, and it was carried Nemine Con. The Chairman in putting the Queſtion declared his entire Approbution of it

April 19. Yeſterday afternoon (and not before) Mr Luttrell took the Oaths and his Seat in the houſe of Commons, as member for Middleſex

We hear that ſtrict orders have been iſſued to the guards for their conſtant attendance in their Barracks and Quarters; and none of the officers can obtain any leave of abſence.

The Militia of this Kingdom was made perpetually on the 12th current It is remarkable the M——y were all for it.

A Wag informs us the preſent ſet of Miniſters are in a deep Conſumption, and that they are given over by their Phyſicians.

On Saturday Night laſt a great Number of Freeholders of Middleſex met at the Swan Tavern at Weſtminſter Bridge, while a great Aſſembly had their late choice under conſideration, when a motion was made, and warmly recommended, for a remonſtrance to be drawn up, ſigned, and delivered that night; but the motion was over ruled by ſome other Gentlemen, who urged, that as a Meeting at Mile-End had been agreed on and advertiſed for monday, it would be better to wait; and take the opinion of the Gentlemen at the ſaid Meeting; & that the going ſuddenly down to the houſe in a body, at that time of night, would be too precipitate a ſtep, and might be attended with diſagreeable Circumſtances.

April 20. Though a certain C—f Juſtice in Air has been long ſtigmatized as he Promoter and adviſer of violent Meaſures, yet it is now aſſured, that he has for once, at leaſt, in his life time, ſpoke on the contrary Side, and thereby prevented ſome haſty ſteps, which, but for his opinion, would have been taken.

It is now ſaid that the record of a certain Tranſaction is abſolutely refuſed to be entered by the proper Officer.

The favourite Toaſt of the day is, "May the Freeholders of this Kingdom hold their tenures as long as they hold their Lives, and tranſmit them unimpaired to their lateſt poſterity!"

April 21. This Day his Majeſty will go to the houſe of Peers; and give the royal aſſent to the following Bills.

The bill for carrying into Execution propoſals made by the India Company for the payment of 400000l. annually to the puplic for a limited time.

The bill for the relief of inſolvent Debtors.

The bill for allowing liberty to carry rice from South Carolina and Georgia to America.

We are informed that a certain great Lawyer has had the honour of a conference with a great perſonage, and has declared his ſentiments in regard to the illegality of ſome late proceedings

The moſt favourite Toaſt now is "Long life to liberty inſtant death to ſlavery, and a deep conſumption to all the abettors of the latter."

April 24. When his Majeſty was going on Friday to the Houſe of Peers, a great number of people aſſembled before the royal palace, & followed his Majeſty down the Mall with loud ſhouts and acclamations of joy, on account of a report prevailing that his Majeſty had ſuſpended Mr. Wilkes's ſecond ſentence, and that he would ſit as member in the houſe of Commons for the county of Middleſex; but they were ſoon informed that this account was groundleſs; and when his Majeſty was returning from the Horſe Guards, it was ſurrounded by a very great mob, who ran up to St. James's by each ſide of it, and, among ſome other high indignities ſhewn by them, exclaimed in his hearing, "Wilkes for ever! No Luttrel!" and continued doing ſo till his Majeſty got out at the Palace.

The Officer of Ordinance have received orders to get ready 20 000 ſets of new Arms with all expedition. As there are always arms in the Tower for 60 000 men at a minute's Warning, and all the arms of the reduced and diſbanded Regiments at the end of the laſt War are ſtill at hand, this Order occaſions much ſpeculation.

If the want of ſpirit ſhould permit the French to poſſeſs themſelves of Corſica, our Mediterranean trade will be ruined; and as our American trade is more than half loſt already, it ſeems probable that this unhappy kingdom may be reduced to the ſituation it was a thouſand years ago, when it had no trade by ſea other than what was carried on in ſmall coaſting Veſſels.

April 26 Monday a grand committee was held at the Cockpit, Whitehall, on affairs ſaid to be of great Importance relative to America: Moſt of the great officers of State aſſiſted.

A lady of high rank being aſked on Sunday laſt what ſhe thought of the preſent Miniſtry, replied "I am no Judge of ſuch THINGS.

We hear that a lady of great conſequence loſt the Sum of 25 000*l, a few days ago at the Game of Hazard.*

April 27. We can with certainty inform the Public (notwithſtanding the many reports which have lately been induſtriouſly circulated) that the greateſt Authority in the law has declared the proceedings of the H—— of C—— with regard to Col. Luttrell, to be perfectly legal and conſtitutional; and it is equally certain, that this is the general opinion of the Gentlemen of the Long robe.

Tueſday was paid Mr. Wilkes's firſt fine of 500l for republiſhing the North Birton, Number 45.

We hear that his Majeſty will go to the houſe of Peers on Tueſday next, and put an end to this Seſſion of Parliament by a moſt gracious ſpeech from the Throne.

The following is a liſt of the Aldermen who, on Tueſday laſt, voted for, and againſt, Mr. Wilkes's being ſent for to take upon him the office of Alderman, in conſequence of the opinion of the majority of the council that he was eligible for the office.

April 29 It is ſaid that a great perſonage has declared that unleſs a certain Petition, now depending, is ſigned by a majority of the whole Freeholders, that it will not be regarded as it cannot be ſaid to be the voice of the county.

We hear that a petition is preparing by the Freeholders of a moſt reſpectable county, ſetting forth apprehenſions of alarming conſequences that may ariſe from Freeholders, or any body of men whatever, canvaſſing, petitioning, or pronouncing on the conduct of the H. of C. with regard to their own Members, or in any reſpect intermeddling in the determination of either houſe of Parliament, on the uſage law of Parliaments, which they apprehend to be as important and conſtitutional as any right, whatever, abſolutely neceſſary to the Freedom, Dignity, and Independency of Parliament.

We are told that it is an invariable principal of the preſent adminiſtration, to meddle with no connections on the Continent, as the blood and treaſures of Great Britain, have been long prodigally laviſhed in fighting the battles of the people.

"At an Indian dance the laſt Week, (the confuſion and diſorder of which when they are ſupplied with ſtrong drink, I can hardly deſcribe to you) two Brothers, overheated with liquor, fell into contention; and one ſo wounded and abuſed the other, that he expired in great agonies in about 30 hours after it, the Felon is taken and laid in Irons, waiting for his trial for ſuch an unnatural piece of wickedneſs.——This inſtance, I think, ſtrongly ſhews the great neceſſity of ſome effectual meaſures being taken to prevent the trade of the Indians with the Engliſh, and thereby the Indians being ſupplied with Rum.

The ſpecial court of Admiralty, mentioned in our laſt, continued ſitting from day to day until Saturday morning, when his Excellency Governor Bernard, as Preſident, by the unanimous concurrence of all the Honourable Judges, pronounced ſentence of acquittance, and the priſoners were thereupon immediately diſcharged without day.

The ſame day a ſheriff of this county went on board his Majeſty's Ship Roſe, and arreſted Mr. Peacock a Midſhipman on board ſaid Ship, in an action of damages, for firing upon, and wounding in the Arm, one of the acceſſaries charged with the murder of Lieut. It has been reported, that ſeveral Merchants at Salem and Marblehead have received Letters from a principal Houſe in Bilboa, cautioning them from ſending any Veſſel with fiſh, as it was tho't there would be a war with France in June;—We have enquired into the report, and find that the Letters were received a Month ago, and are of old Date.

Meſſ. Green & Watson, Printers at Hartford.

Gentlemen,

I AM adviſ'd, by letters, that Mr. Thaddeus Burr has tranſmitted to you, an anſwer to my remarks on his publiſhing my Billet to Theophilus Nichols, Eſq; in which he endeavours to exculpate himſelf, by charging me with publiſhing a private letter ſome years paſt, which he would repreſent equally culpable, as the fault with which he ſtands charg'd; and has likewiſe tranſcrib'd a Paragraph (either from the Gentlemans Magazine or Univerſal Muſeum) by which he would ſuggeſt to the Public I had tranſmitted to Dr. Huxham, falſe and exaggerated accounts of my ſucceſs in the practice of Inoculation, in order to render myſelf of importance on the other ſide of the Atlantic.

If my information are juſt, and you publiſh his account of thoſe matters, (which no doubt will be very curious, and afford much mirth to his friends) I deſire you would inſert the following in your next, which will oblige,

Gentlemen,

your humble Servant,

B. GALE.

To the PUBLIC.

MY Publiſhing a letter ſome years paſt, which had been ſeen, and read, by many perſons of character, before ever it came to my knowledge, is a fact well known; and if Mr. Burr was not loſt to all ſence of decency and good breeding he could not expect a reply. As I am not diſpos'd either to offend the living, or to diſturb the aſhes of the dead, my ſilence on this head I truſt will more readily meet with the approbation of the public, than the occaſion he has given me to reply. I will therefore advert to his other charge, by which he no doubt expects to ſilence my pen, and place my character in a very ridiculous light.

Wherefore KNOW YE,

Meſſ's Thadeus Burr, J. S. his private Secretary, R. W. and E. D. his Aſſiſtant Councellors, & all others whom it doth or may concern. That having wrote a diſſertation on the American method of Inoculation to which I prefix'd ſome hiſtorical memoirs of the ſucceſs of Inoculation in the town of Boſton, at three different periods of time, the firſt A. D. 1720 by Dr Boyliſton, the 2d 1752, the third 1764, after the uſe of Mercury was introduced into practice, the firſt I extracted from Dr. Duglaſs his hiſtory, the ſecond and third from authenticated accounts, under the hands of the ſelectmen of the town of Boſton, all which I tranſmitted to Dr. Huxham of Plymouth in Great Britain, which he caus'd to be read before the Royal Society, and was printed at large in the philoſophical tranſactions, for the year 1765, and from thence abridg'd, and the blunder of the abridger, was copied by the authors of the Magazine and Univerſal Muſeum. Immediately on my ſeeing the Magazine, not knowing my diſſertation was publiſhed in London, I wrote Dr. Huxham requeſting him to correct the error, incloſing the ſame to Dr. Franklin F. R. S. then in London, ſoon after I had forwarded the ſame, I receiv'd a letter from Dr. Huxham, of which the following is an extract.

Plymouth, December 15, 1766.

Dear Sir,

"IN The ſpring of the year 1765, I laid your diſſertation on Inoculation for the Small Pox, &c. before the Royal Society, who receiv'd it well and ordered me to return you their thanks for the communication, in the laſt volume of the Philoſophical tranſactions (No. 55, for the Year 1765) which was publiſhed laſt ſummer, the whole of your diſſertation was inſerted, which is ſeldom done, unleſs the ſociety judge it well merits the public attention, &c. &c.

JOHN HUXHAM."

In May 1767, I receiv'd a letter from Dr. Franklin, dated London, Feb. 23d, 1767, of which the following is an extract.

Dear Sir,

"I RECEIV'd your favour of Nov. 15, with a letter incloſ'd to Dr Huxham, relating to a miſtake in the account given of your ſucceſs in inoculation, as printed in the Gentleman's Magazine of Auguſt laſt, which ſeems to give you great uneaſineſs. It ſeems you have not known that your letter to Dr. Huxham, concerning Inoculation in New England, was read at the royal ſociety e 23d of May, 1765, & is printed at full length in their tranſactions, Vol. LV for that year, it there appears that you give the accounts of the ſucceſs of Inoculation, without and with Mercury, viz. 1 in 80 or 100 without, and 1 in 800 or 1000 with Mercury, as accounts receiv'd from Boſton about the time of your writing, viz in 1764, and not as accounts of your own practice, of which in the laſt Paragraph you expreſly ſpeak, as being ſo ſmall, that it was " unneceſſary to mention your method, as you had not opportunity to Inocculate no more than 70 or 80 perſons before " Inoculation was wholly interdicted by the " legiſlature of the colony." that you ſee in the Magazines are only abridg'd accounts or notes of what is contained in that volume, theſe abridgers often make ſuch miſtakes, which nobody regards & as the account ſtands right, in the only authentic publication, the tranſactions; I think it needleſs to give Dr. Huxham the trouble you requeſt him to take of contradicting the Magazine, therefore as you leave it with me, to ſeal and forward your letter to him or to ſuppreſs it, as I might think proper, I have choſen the latter, which I hope you will approve, &c. &c.

BEN FRANKLIN."

As Mr. Burr, has attack'd my character in a point of ſo delicate a nature, I hope my publiſhing theſe letters will not offend Dr. Franklin, to whom I am under the greateſt obligations, or incur the cenſure of the public; and have lodg'd the original letters with the Printers hereof, for the inſpection of any who may doubt of their being genuine, and ſhall only add, that as I was never honored by an acquaintance with Mr Burr, nor have ever given him any private offence, as he has been induc'd to inliſt a VOLUNTEER in a ſervice, I conceive intirely out of his ſphere, the public muſt conclude it is merely to diſgorge the venom of his party, & at the ſame time to vent his own perſonal pike, at two hon. gentlemen by far his ſuperiors, who perhaps may never have merited his reſentment, and as he muſt be deem'd the aggreſſor, if he ſhould not kindly receive the gentle reproof I have given him, and ſhould again tranſgreſs, I hope the public will excuſe me, if I treat him more freely than I hitherto have done, unleſs I ſhould be prevailed with by the ſolicitations of my friends, to diſregard his future productions as unworthy my Notice and regard.

BOSTON, May 3.

LAST Lord's Day ſome aſſemblies in this Town were greatly diſturbed during Divine Service, by the rattling of Drums and play of the Fifes.——A Party of Soldiers with thoſe noiſy inſtruments paſſed one of thoſe aſſemblies twice in the ſpace of half an hour: As there has been lately no diſturbances of this ſort in the time of Service, it is to be hoped, that this behaviour was accidental, and rather owing to the inattention or wildneſs of the officer who commanded the party than to a deſign of again bringing up the practice.——It has alſo been noticed by ſome perſons, that the ſawing of wood at the barracks, is more heard on the Sabbath, than on Week days; perhaps this may be pleaded for a work of Neceſſity and Mercy, the ſervice the troops are ingaged in, being ſo important as not to permit any other leaſure time being allotted them for this buſineſs.——Col. Mackay, in the Raven tranſport, with the remainder of the 65th regiment arrived from St. Chriſtophers on the Morning of ſaid Day.

May 6. The merchants of this town met according to adjournment, on thurſday laſt, when the committee appointed to make enquiry relative to the Importation of goods, by the Veſſels lately arrived from Great Britain, reported, and then adjourned their meeting to the tueſday after.

For the Satisfaction of the friends of liberty, in this and the Neighbouring Colonies, they are acquainted that there has not been imported in all the ſhips from England; more woollen goods than would fill a long boat.——that the agreement of the merchants has been ſtrictly adhered to: Such of them as have had goods ſent them, having freely engaged to deliver them up to the committee of Inſpection.——A few traders have taken advantage of the virtue and public ſpirit of the merchants; their names may ſoon be made public through the continent, and tranſmitted to poſterity with infamy, in the annals of thier Country.

May 7. The merchants and traders of Salem, Marblehead, Cape Ann, Ipſwich, New Plymouth, Nantucket and other towns in this province have diſcovered a like Firmneſs and virtue, ſuch an union among mercantile intereſt, of this and the nighbouring provinces, relative to a Non Importation, &c. as at preſent ſubſiſts, cannot finally fail, of freeing the trade of the Colonies from its preſent intolerable embarraſſments, and cauſing it to be put on its former Footing, which muſt prove as it will be advantageous to America.

May 8. Laſt week three criminals, ſat upon the gallows and received twenty ſtripes each under the ſame, agreeable to their ſentence of the Superior court, for ſetting fire to the county gaol.——It ſeems the guard of ſoldiers at the Fortification Gates had orders to ſtop all perſons going through, who appeared like ſailors; ſome of the inhabitants being ſtopt among them, it gave great uneaſineſs, and was ſo reſented, that had they not been releaſed, and thoſe orders countermanded, it is apprehended a great tumult might have been the conſequence.

At the above Execution the conduct of —— was tho't calculated to promote an appearance of reſiſtance to the civil authority; a number of inhabitants ſuſpecting this, offered their aſſiſtance to the ſheriff, to prevent an eſcape of the priſoners which would have afforded a noble ſubject for G—— B—— and his Cabal, to build a repreſentation to the miniſtry upon. It is however a fact that the inhabitants of this province in general and this town in particular, are determined to ſupport the execution of juſtice at all events, without any regard to the Quality or ſtation of the offenders.

April 9. The report of his Majeſty's having conferr'd upon G—— B——, the title of a Barronet, is ſuppoſed to have occaſioned the following Congratulatory addreſs.

To Sir ——

As an individual inhabitant of this province, tho' obſcure and mean, I beg leave to preſent my congratulatory Compliment to your —— on the high honour you now ſuſtain, of a Baronet of Great Britain. This is a promotion which the friends of Government, or which is the ſame Thing, your own Friends have long thought you juſtly merited: And even your Enemies, and the factious leaders themſelves, muſt confeſs that, the eminent ſervices you have done for the preſent M——y have been ſuch as my L—— of H——, that patron of true worth, could not fail to ſet forth in the moſt diſtinguiſhing point of Light.——Your promotion, Sir, reflects an honour on the Province itſelf: An honour which has never been conferred upon it, ſince the thrice happy adminiſtration of Sir Edmond Androſs, of precious memory who was alſo a Baronet; nor have the unremitted Endeavours of that very amiable, and truly patritoic gentleman, to render the moſt ſubſtantial and laſting ſervices to this people, upon the plan of a wiſe and uncorrupted ſet of M——rs, been ever parralled till ſince you adorn'd the Ch——r.——Your own letters will ſerve to convince the world, and the lateſt poſterity, that while you have conſtantly preſerved a ſacred and inviolable regard to punctilios of truth, in every repreſentation, which you have made of the people of your G——, you have carefully endeavoured to give the moſt favourable colouring to their conduct and reputation. And the tenderneſs which you have ever remarkably felt for their civil Rights as well as their religion, will not admit of the leaſt room to queſtion, but that were the influence you have evidently employ'd with Succeſs to introduce a military power, and the unwearied pains you took to get them quartered in the body of the town, ſprang from your piety, and benevolence of heart,——Pity it is that you have not a penſion to ſupport your title but an aſſembly well choſen, may ſupply that want even to your Wiſh. Should this fail, a late letter, ſaid to have ſtrongly recommended a Tax upon the improved lands of the colonies, may be equally ſucceſsful with the other letters of the like nature, and funds ſufficient may be rais'd for the uſe and emolument of yourſelf and friends without a dependance upon a "military eſtabliſhment ſupported by the province at Caſtle William." I am, Sir with the moſt profound reſpect, and with the ſincereſt wiſhes for your further exaltation, the moſt ſervile of all your tools,

A Tory.

May 10. The policy of the preſent day is totally different from what it was in former times, that thoſe Governors who diſcover a capacity for that truſt by conciliating the governed, and carrying favourite points for adminiſtration, without alarming the people, do not ſeem to ſtand in ſo fair a way of receiving C——t Favours, as they do who render themſelves quite obnoxious, and are ſo happily ſucceſsful as to throw, not only a ſingle province, but a whole Continent and Kingdom, into anxiety, confuſion, and Diſtreſs.

☞ Notwithſtanding the publication of J——s M——y, the late new made juſtice in all the papers of this day; the facts contained in the journal cannot be controverted, and the journaliſt will take proper notice of the late abuſive attack, in the courſe of his obſervations; but thinks for very obvious reaſons, that 'tis beſt he ſhould remain concealed, tho' abſolutely cerain that every account publiſhed in the journal is ſtrictly agreeable to truth. Many occurrences therein mentioned he was perfectly acquainted with, being an accidental Spectator of them.

LONDON, March 25.

South-Audley-Street, March 24.

On thurſday Mr. Wilkes publiſhed the following addreſs to the county of Middleſex;——

"THE remarkable ſeries of important events, in which you have been of late deeply intereſted requires that I ſhould ſtate fully to you the motives of my conduct. No private conſideration could induce me thus repeatedly to intreat the freeholders of this reſpectable county to ſubmit to the inconvenience of ſo frequent elections.—————I am actuated by a higher principle, by duty to my native country. My ſole motive is the hope of eſtabliſhing by perſeverance your title to a free election, which our forefathers tranſmitted to us as an heriditary claim and our poſterity will demand from us as the guardians of their birthright, of their inheritence. I find that after miniſterial power has been without ſucceſs exerted in every form of corruption, diviſion, and intimidation, to defeat your rights, another plan is at length adopted, and the vain hope of our enemies now is, that you will be tired out by the increaſing expence to which you are compelled. You will however, I am ſure, continue to prove to the world that you are ſuperior to this mean, wretched attempt, unſeduced by corruption, undivided by artifice, and undaunted by every apprehenſion of future vengeance.

"I cannot conceive any thing of greater importance to the preſervation of public liberty than the event of the preſent ſtruggle.——The queſtion is whether the people have an inherent right to be repreſented in parliament by the man of their free choice, not diſqualified by the law of the land! This queſtion is now again agitated in an enligtened age under a Prince of the Brunſwick Line, to whom the exerciſe of this very right gave the ſcepter, in conſequence of the glorious revolution It is cœval with our conſtitution, and ſtands among the firſt principles of our form of government, which reſerves to the people a third part of the legiſlative power. It began to the very firſt faint dawn of liberty in our iſland, and will ſurvive to the laſt convulſive pang of expiring freedom. It is a part of the original compact between the ſovereign of this nation and the ſubject expreſly ſtated in the BILL OF RIGHTS, which declares that in this, as well as in the other inſtances enumereted, our anceſtors, as theirs in like caſe had uſually done, vindicated and aſſerted the true ancient and indubitable rights and liberties of the people of this kingdom, which they CLAIMED, DEMANDED, and INSISTED UPON, and the whole legiſlature enacted, ſhall ſtand, remain, and be the law of this realm FOREVER. Parliamentary authority obliges every ſovereign at the coronation to ſware to the obſervance of that and all the other ſtatutes of this realm, and this excellent act declares, that all officers & miniſters whatſoever ſhall ſerve their Majeſties and their SUCCESSORS, according to the ſame IN ALL TIMES TO COME. This right of the people is no leſs clear by reaſon than by the poſitive ſtatute There can be no repreſentation, but when the greater number to be repreſented have freely choſen a perſon who is legally qualified. A repreſentation without or againſt, the conſent of the parties, is an inſult to common ſenſe, an abſurdity ſcarce to be parallelled, an injuſtice and inſolence not to be forgiven.

" In my caſe, gentlemen, the legiſlature has in no way interfered. A reſolution of only one third part was obtained. The firſt expulſion was cheifly grounded on the pretence of what I had written relative to the maſſacre in theſe fields, which I did from the impreſſion that bloody ſcene had upon me. This I declared afterwards, at the bar of the houſe of Commons, in purſuance of your inſtructions. From thence the firſt expulſion avowedly took its riſe. I made an appeal to my conſtituents. You approved my conduct, and unanimouſly re-elected me. I was then expelled a ſecond time, and no reaſon whatever was aſſigned. The day after this re election, a reſolution paſſed that I was & am incapable of being elected a member to ſerve in this preſent Parliament, and that the late election of a Knight of the ſhire for the county of Middleſex, is a void election; but you, gentlemen, determined for yourſelves, and would not ſurrender your right of choice. By this reſolution the adminiſtration hath unlawfully deprived you of a right acknowledged to be yours For Ever, by an act of the whole legiſlature. To make this caſe, ſo ſubverſive of your right, the more flagrant, it is expreſly ſtated, that there was not any kind of oppoſition to the election. I ſtill proceeded to appeal again to you, & by your favor my third re-election was unanimous as the former. I was the next day expelled, with a ſimilar declaration, that no other candidate was propoſed, and that no elector gave or tendered his vote for any other perſon. In this laſt inſtance both the election and return are declared null and void. This conteſt is now become of the moſt intereſting nature. It is between the adminiſtration and all the electors of Great-Britain. There is nothing perſonal in it. The cauſe is national, and of the firſt magnitude. On this public ground I will ſtand firm. No danger ſhall deter me from my duty, and while I continue to be entruſted by you in this important concern, I ſhall rely on your protection and ſupport. In me you ſhall find obedience to your inſtructions fidelity and indefatigable zeal for the maintenance of every right of this free and brave nation.

I am yours, &c. JOHN WILKES.

LONDON, May 4.

A Letter from Conſtantinople ſays, " Advice being received that a neighbouring power to Poland had aſſembled an army of 40.000 men upon the frontiers, the Porte demanded of the Miniſter from that Crown, with what view his Court has poſted that army: And as he has not given ſatisfaction on the ſubject, it is ſignified to him that he muſt give a poſitive anſwer, ſince it greatly behoves the Grand Signior to know what to do in that reſpect."

May 4. The Privy council, which was to have been held on Friday at St James's, was poſtponed till this day; which cauſes various ſpeculations.

We hear that orders are given to all the principal Officers of each department of S—e, not to be abſent from town this week, on any account whatſoever.

It is now ſaid that a late illneſs was not occaſioned by the mob's going to St. James's, but from a circumſtance that ſince happened at a great houſe a little eaſtward of the palace.

Laſt night's Gazettee contains addreſſes from the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Freeholders, &c of the County of Renfrew, and from the Magiſtrates and Town council of Paſley; which were very graciouſly received by his Majeſty.

The following is a more circumſtantial account of the proceedings at the Half-Moon Tavern yeſterday mentioned in our laſt. Edward Bond, Eſq; was choſen Chirman. A reqeeſt for a Common Hall was agreed to, and immediately ſigned. About 12 o'clock, the Chairman, attended by the whole meeting, waited on the Lord Mayor at the Manſion houſe to reqeſt his Lordſhip to call, as ſoon as poſſible, at Common Hall, in order to take the ſenſe of the Livery of London, on the Meaſures proper to be purſued by them under the preſent moſt alarming ſituation of affairs.—His Lordſhip received them with great politeneſs; obſerved that the reqneſt of ſo reſpectable a part of the Livery of London demanded his moſt ſerious attention; and that though there might be no precedent to juſtify him in complying with this reqneſt of the Livery, yet as it was a matter of ſome doubt whether the peculiarity of our preſent circumſtances would not juſtify the peculiarity of the meaſure, his Lordſhip reſolved to take the opinion of the Common Council on this important point; and declared, that their determination would be of great weight with him; and it is ſaid, that a CommonCouncil will be ſummoned for Friday next.

Upon calling up the names on Monday night at the Ship Tavern at Ratcliffe Croſs, it appeared that 1424 Freeholders had then ſigned the petition.

A counter petition is preparing by the M——y, as a kind of remonſtrance againſt the Mile End proceedings, and which is to be hawked round the county to be ſigned. Many betts are depending and ſome very conſiderable ones, that twenty names are not ſubſcribed to it.

Mr. Seargeant Glyn has declared his approbation of every meaſure taken by the Freeholders of the county of Middleſex in the depending petition, and fully approves of every ſentence in it, and will preſent it, and all reports to the contrary are falſe.

The City is in a violent ferment; Col. Lutterel has taken his ſeat for the county of Middleſex, though Mr. Wilkes had a majority of 847 Votes. The Diviſion of the houſe Penſioners and Placemen, (every man) 199. Againſt Lutterel 145. Difference 54. How this will end no body knows, but the Freeholders of Middleſex threaten to take poſſeſſion of the houſe of Commons, and declare they will not pay the land tax.

A Captain of a government ſloop has informed the miniſtry, that, while he was in the Bay of Cadix, a French ſhip in diſtreſs came in to repair, which had got no leſs than 900 ſoldiers on board, none of whom the commander permitted to go on ſhore, Their deſtination was not known, neither was their deſign to be learned. The above officer left the port before the Frenchman was refitted, and, after having ſailed a few leagues to the North-Weſt, he fell in with three other French veſſels, whom he found to be the conſorts of the other, and which had the like number of ſoldiers on board; he hailed them, inquired whether they were bound, but received no anſwer. reſpecting this intelligence, it is ſaid, the miniſtry are ſomewhat perplexed; and that they have referred it to the conſideration of a certain board, the reſult of which deliberation will ſoon be diſcloſed.

April 22 Yeſterday it was currently reported in town that a manifeſto was arrived from the King of Pruſſia inſiſting upon a very large ſum of money being immediately paid him by this government for arrear due upon the concluſion of the laſt war: & in caſe of refuſal to march forty thouſand men directly to take poſſeſſion of Hanover.

It cannot but give a general alarm at this criſis of affairs between us and our colonies, to find that the government has contracted for ſix thouſand barrels of tar to be ſent to London, from Hamburg and Dantzick, and at the exorbitant price of fifteen ſhillings & nine pence per barrel, when there is one merchant at this preſent moment, who has now in his warehouſe here in London and has actually offered to the government the ſame quantity of North-American tar at half that price, and which is in every reſpect of a much better quality.

April 27. Her Majeſty, among the examples to all mothers has forbid the uſe of white bread to any of her Royal Iſſue, and it is obſerved that no children are more healthy.

HALIFAX. MAY 30.

We hear from Norwood in Surry, (Weſt-Indies) that they have two fools in that Neighbourhood, perhaps worthy of your Notice for the Oddity of the Subject matter:——A gentleman of fortune has made a propoſition to a Publican (his Neighbour) that he will build him a Cave, in which he ſhall continue ſeven years, without ſpeaking to any perſon whatever, except the perſon appointed to attend him: In Conſideration of which the Hermit is to receive a Sufficiency of Meat and Drink for himſelf during his Immurement; his wife and Childeren are to be allowed 12s. per week during ſuch his voluntary Hermitage; with a further Priviſo, that ſhould he ſurvive the ſame, the ſum of 100l. per Ann. ſhould be conſtantly paid to him, and the Cell be his and his Family's property for ever; all which articles are ratified on both ſides, and the Hermitage abſolutely began to be built on the above ridiculous (not to ſay preſumptuous) Terms. There are other articles, (of which the two following are to be moſt ſtrictly obſerved: Namely, that he is not to have any change of apparel, not to cut his Nails, not to converſe with his attendant, otherwiſe than for Neceſſaries, nor be ſhaved, though his Beard at preſent is more than a twelve month's Growth, and makes a frightful appearance.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.

Extract of a letter from London, dat. Feb. 26.

" The American buſineſs is now finiſhed as you will ſee by the late reſolves and addreſs of both Houſes, which I mentioned in a former letter, and to which his Majeſty returned an anſwer.

" The anſwer requires no comment; it muſt ſurely carry conviction with it to thoſe of our countrymen, who ſtill look for juſtice or clemeney from any but God.

" But as pains are taken from hence, to delude the Americans into a hope, that nothing ſevere is intended not the urging this oppreſſion further than the preſent ſeſſion, after which if they are quiet, all will be redreſſed, I think it neceſſary to acquaint you, that Mr. Hans Stanly, who, on the firſt day of this ſeſſion, ſeconded the miniſterial motion for an addreſs, informed the houſe, that the late duty act was intended to fix the right on America, and to co operate with it the troops had been drawn into the large towns. This was underſtood as from the miniſtry, which joined, with the eſtabliſhments of a board of cuſtoms and admiralty courts, and their conduct towards Boſton, cannot, I think, leave a doubt, that a ſettled plan is adopted for abſolutely & permanently enſlaving. Every thing I ſee here confirms me in this opinion. It is of the utmoſt conſequence that our countrymen ſhould be fully convinced of this truth, that hope may not delude them into a fatal inactivity, but that they may determine unanimouſly and ſeriouſly to purſue the conſtitutional means of redreſs which are in their power, the deſiſting from the culture of thoſe things which are moſt profitable to this country, and from the conſumption of Britiſh manufactures.

" It would be the laſt reſourſe of deſperation ſo to oppoſe thoſe deteſtable meaſures, as would neceſſarily draw upon us the denounciation of rebels. Individuals muſt ſhew their patriotiſm without involving the community.

" The ſpirit of deſpotiſm ſhakes the conſtitution here, the ſobereſt men begin to be alarm'd; and ruminate upon the ſcenes of the laſt century.

" I am in doubt whether a ſingle letter will reach you, much leſs a packet, otherwiſe I ſhould ſend you a pamphlet, publiſhed here lately under the title of the controverſy between Great-Britain and her colonies, reviewed. It abounds with ſophiſtry, well calculated for the temper of the times; and among the reſt an attack upon the Farmer; but ſuch an one, as I do not think deſerves his notice.

Once more let me aſſure you. Sir, that from the juſtice of this country nothing is to be hoped; from her fears and intereſts every thing. America muſt alarm and ſhock theſe, or ſhe will in vain appeal to that."

NEW-YORK, June 29, 1769.

Sunday laſt Major ROGERS arrived here from Montreal

Extract from General Orders, New-York, May 8.

THE court is of opinion That Major Robert Rogers is not guilty of any one of the articles laid to his Charge; and therefore doth acquit him of the ſame.

His Majeſty is pleaſed to approve the opinion of the court, in acquiting the ſaid Major Robert Rogers of each of the ſaid articles of charge, and to order that he be releaſed from his confinement.

At the ſame time it appears to his Majeſty, that there was great reaſon to ſuſpect the ſaid Major Robert Rogers entertaining an Improper and dangerous Correſpondence; which Suſpicion, the account afterwards given of his meditating an eſcape, tended to confirm.

WILLIAMSBURGH, June 1.

MONTOR, XI.

My dear Countrymen,

ANIMATED with the ſincereſt zeal for your proſperity and happineſs, founded, as they inevitably are, on the preſervation of our liberties, I have been attentively watching the courſe of events, at this dangerous period, and obtaining the beſt intelligence from Britain, that I might reſume my office of laying before you the intentions of thoſe, who would by fraud or force annihilate our free conſtitution.

I can now furniſh you with ſuch an account of things from the moſt authentic information, as will, I humbly conceive, perſuade you, that the moſt fatal meaſures are meditated and executing againſt the liberties of America, meaſures which we are called upon by every thing ſacred and dear to us, to fruſtrate by a firm and unanimous oppoſition.

On the firſt day of this ſeſſion of Parliament, Mr. Hans Stanley, a Miniſterial man, in ſeconding the motion for an addreſs to the King, declared, that the late duty act was laid expreſsly to bring the queſtion of right to a deciſion, and that care had been taken to draw the troops from the frontiers to the great towns to enforce its ſucceſs.

My Lord North the Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave it, as his opinion, that they ought to have America proſtrate at their feet, before they even deigned to liſten to her complaints.

In both houſes of Parliament every falſe and inflammatory letter, from Governor Bernard and the commiſſioners of the cuſtoms, preſented, peruſed, and heard with applauſe; while every thing that might detect them and vindicate us, is carefully ſuppreſſed; a fate which has alſo attended our petition, memorial and remonſtrance. It is not, that the Parliament is unacquainted with the exiſtence of ſuch papers, but the Miniſtry inform the lords and Commons, they do not think proper to preſent them unleſs called for; at the ſame time they are ſecure of a majority againſt any ſuch motion. By this manœuvre they artfully ſecure themſelves from any future Parliamentary cenſure; and withhold that evidence, which would manifeſt the falacy of their repreſenting the oppoſition in America as partial and factions.

The ſentiments at court it may be depended on, are moſt unfavourable to our rights; and no one is countenanced there, who does not eccho abſolute ſubmiſſion in the ſubject.

With the preſent Miniſters every pernicious talebearer, from America, is heard, applauded and believed; every relator of truth heard, indeed, but not credited. The agent for the Maſſachuſetts Bay, was directed to preſent a petition from the Delaware counties; which, when he preſented, the Secretary of State received, with this obſervation, I ſuppoſe, Sir, this was drawn up at ſome coffee houſe in Philadelphia, and ſent down for them to ſign. Such is the manner, in which the conſtitutional complaints of the people are treated!

In the merchants and manufacturers we can have no hope, but as we make them feel; ſince otherwiſe, they move only to pay their court to the Miniſtry, and for that reaſon have been quiet this ſeſſion, and immoveable by all the efforts of the friends to America.

That you may judge how little benefit we are to expect from any change of Miniſtry, I will give you a ſhort character of the contending parties, from which an arbitrarily inclined court, will always ſelect a Miniſtry adapted to its purpoſes: Theſe parties are diſtinguiſhed by the names of their leaders, into that of Bedford, Rockingham, Grenville and Shelburne. The firſt is now in power, men abandoned in morals, deſperate in fortunes, and deſpicable in abilities; but devoted to the moſt arbitrary deſigns of the court, which they are purſuing with ſuch blind zeal, as muſt ſoon and inevitably work the ruin of the conſtitution, or of themſelves. Theſe are avowed and violent enemies to the liberties of Great Britain, as well as of America. The Rockingham party are friends to trade, to the liberty and happineſs of the people; but to the ſupport of the right of Parliament over us, they are firm, though in the execution they would be more temperate than the former, or than the Grenvillian party, which without virtue or ability has too much cunning to attempt any thing againſt Great-Britain, but are with art, obſtinacy and reſentment eagerly ſoliciting an opportunity of wreaking their vengeance on us; Mr. Grenville's party is therefore in violent oppoſition to the preſent Miniſtry, on every queſtion but that of America. The laſt party, led by our firm and unalterable friend Lord Shelburne, are the only men, who on the great ground of liberty and the conſtitution, ſtill think and maintain, the Parliament has no right to tax us; they are true friends to both countries on various principles, and in a court more favourable to the liberty of the ſubject might hope for countenance and opportunity to ſave the conſtitution from ruin and the people from oppreſſion. But at preſent, there is little proſpect of their ever gaining ſuch aſcendency in adminiſtration as will enable them to complete their benevolent purpoſes; ſo that all we can expect from them is to exclaim without ceaſing againſt meaſures they cannot prevent. We have ſeen Lord Shelburne in adminiſtration; but ſingle againſt all the foes of America, therefore incapable of ſtemming the oppreſſive torrent.

Such, my countrymen, is the true ſtate of affairs in Great Britain, from which I cannot but obſerve, that the preſervation of our liberties depends wholly upon your wiſdom, reſolution and virtue. How invaluable a poſſeſſion liberty is, how eſſential to the ſecurity of every bleſſing you can hope to enjoy yourſelves, or bequeath to your poſterity, has been already ſo fully explained, that I need not dwell upon it now; nor will I entertain a doubt, that any among you will tamely ſee it violated, or heſitate to oppoſe whenever it ſhall be invaded. The eyes of all Europe are now turned upon America, and the friends to freedom expect ſuch a conduct from you, as becomes a people animated with the ſacred ſpirit of liberty, and impreſſed with a juſt ſenſe of your conſtitutional rights. That the means of vindicating your inſulted liberties are in your power, cannot be doubted; and I hope time will juſtify me in thinking your reſolution to uſe them is equally unqueſtionable.

And I further declare, that I us'd to be the Negociator of this Buſineſs, and receive the Wine, Fruit, &c. and diſpoſe of them agreeable to Mr. Cockle's Orders.

ON the firſt Inſtant the Freeholders, and other Inhabitants of this town, met for the choice of Repreſentatives for the enſuing General Aſſembly to be convened on the laſt Wedneſday of this month, agreeable to the Royal Charter.——It is very probable that G—— B—— would have been glad to have had the calling this Aſſembly further poſtponed, as it would have ſerved two Purpoſes, viz. the continuance of the preſent extraordinary ſtate Diſſolution, and more eſpecially the Subverſion of the preſent Conſtitution of the Province, to which as appears by his late Letters, he has diſcovered a pretty thorough Averſion.—But ſuch a ſtep would perhaps have caus'd a Convulſion which would have afforded additional Matter of weighty Repreſentation on the part of the people, which he would have found it difficult to have anſwered,—— previous to this Election the Selectmen of the Town, attentive to its true Intereſt, waited on the commander of his Majeſty's Troops quartered in the town, and acquainted him, that it was expected that the town ſhould be in the full Enjoyment of their Rights of Britiſh Subjects upon this important occaſion, agreeable to the Bill of Rights, which declares that the Election of Members of Parliament ought to be free, upon which the General acquainted the Selectmen, that he would not any further conform to their expectation, than by confining the troops to their Barracks during their Election, which was accordingly done——The town received this Declaration as a Conceſſion of the Juſtice of their Expectation, but by no means adequate to the Extent of their conſtitutional right, to have the troops removed from the Town, and therefore poſtpon'd the Election till they had proteſted, that the reſidence of an armed Force in the town at the time of Election of Members of the General Aſſembly, was a high infringement of their conſtitutional Rights, and that their proceeding under ſuch a circumſtance, was wholly from Neceſſity, and not to be conſidered as a precedent at any time hereafter, or conſtrued as a voluntary proceeding from their inconteſtable Right.—After the Election, they appointed a Committee to prepare Inſtructions for the Members they had choſen, and adjourn'd to the 8th Inſtant.

May 13. At the adjournment on the 8th Inſtant, the Committee appointed for that purpoſe, reported a draught of inſtructions which were accepted by the town Nemine contra dicente.——In theſe Inſtructions, the town direct their repreſentatives when in General Court Aſſembled, to endeavour that the debates may be free, by the Removal of the cannon, and Guards from before the Court-Houſe, and every Thing that might carry the leaſt appearance of an attempt to awe, or intimidate; after which, that Enquiry be made into all the Grievances we have ſuffered by the Military Power; Why they have been quartered in the body of the town, contrary to the expreſs Words and manifeſt Intention of an act of Parliament. Why the Officers, who have thus violated our Rights, have not been called to account; Whether Governor Bernard's appointing an extraordinary Officer to provide Quarters for the troops, was not an Invaſion of the Act of Parliament for Billeting, &c.——The profeſſed rule of their Conduct, with deſign to elude the clauſe of ſaid act, purpoſely provided for the convenience of American Subjects and their Security againſt an exceſs of military power; why the repeated Offences and Violences committed by the Soldiery, againſt the Peace and in open Defiance and Contempt of the civil Magiſtrate and the Law have eſcaped Puniſhment, in the Courts of Juſtice; And whether the attorney General has not in ſome late Inſtances, unduly exerciſed a power of entering "Nolle proſequi," upon Indictments, without the concurrence of the Court, in obſtruction to the courſe of Juſtice and to the great Encouragement of Violence and oppreſſion; and as the quartering troops here has proved the occaſion of many Evils they earneſtly deſire them to uſe their utmoſt Endeavours for a ſpeedy removal of them.——They enjoyn upon them in the moſt ſolemn Manner, by no Means to comply with any Requiſition that may be made for the defraying the expence of Barracks, and Neceſſities for troops pretended to be ſent among us for the aid of the Civil Magiſtrate, at the ſame time that his Majeſty's Council and the other civil Magiſtrates, the Governor excepted, had declared that they neither required, or needed their Aſſiſtance, and which appears to be ſent among us to awe and controul the civil government of this Province——They recommend to them another object of great Importance and which would require their earlieſt Attention the late flagrant and formal attack made by the Governor of the Province upon the Conſtitution itſelf. An attempt not only to deprive us of the Liberties, Privileges, and Immunities of our charter, but the rights of Britiſh Subjects, clearly appearing in a few of his Letters to Lord Hillſborough, authentic copies of which have been received, and they declare it as their expectation, that our Repreſentatives, uſe the whole Influence they may have, that the injurious Impreſſions which they have unhappily made, may be removed, and that an effectual antidote may be adminiſtred, before the poiſon ſhall have wrought the Ruin of the Conſtitution.

May 14. They obſerve, that it is unneceſſary for them again to repeat their well known Sentiments, concerning the revenue which is continually levied upon us to our great Diſtreſs, and for no other end, than to ſupport a great Number of very unneceſſary placemen, and penſioners; nor their expectation that they purſue with unremitted ardour, every Meaſure that may tend to procure us Relief; never yielding their conſent to, or connivance at the leaſt Incroachment upon our Rights.

The town declare, that next to the Revenue itſelf, the late extenſions of the juriſdiction of the Admiralty, are their greateſt Grievance,——and that the American courts of Admiralty ſeem to be forming by Degrees into a Syſtem, that is, to overturn our conſtitution, and to deprive us intirely of our beſt Inheritance, the law of the land [illegible]; it would be thought in England, a dangerous innovation, if the trial of any matter upon land was given to the Admiral; It would be thought more threatning ſtill, if the Power of confiſcation over Ships and Cargoes, for illicit trade was committed to that Court, [illegible] if Forfeitures of Ships and Cargoes, large penalties upon Maſters, and ſuch exorbitant penalties as the treble Value of Cargoes upon every perſon concerned in lading uncuſtomed goods, were by act of Parliament, to be tried by the Admiral, the Nation would think their Liberties irrecoverably loſt; that this however, is the miſerable caſe of North America.

In the 41 Sec. of the Statute of the 4th of George III. Chap. 15 we find that "all the Forfeitures and Penalties inflicted by this, or any other act of Parliament, relating to the trade and Revenues of the Britiſh Colonies, or Plantations in America, which ſhall be incurred there, may be proſecuted ſued for, and recovered in any court of Admiralty in the ſaid Colonies.——That this hardſhip is the more ſevere, as they ſee in the ſame Page of the Statute, and the Section immediately preceding. "That all Penalties and Forfeitures, which ſhall be incurred in Great Britain, ſhall be proſecuted, ſued for, and recovered in any of his Majeſty's courts of record in Weſtminſter, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland." A contraſt that ſtares us in the Face! A partial Diſtinction, that is made between the Subject in Great Britain, and the ſubject in America! The Parliament in one Section guarding the People of the Realm, and ſecuring to them the Benefit of a trial by Jury, and the law of the land, and by the next Section depriving Americans of thoſe important Rights.——That this Diſtinction is a Brand of Diſgrace upon every American? A Degradation below the rank of an Engliſhman? And with reſpect to Americans, a repeal of the 29th Chap of Magna Charta? "Freemen ſhall not be taken or diſſeized of his Freehold or Liberties, or free Cuſtoms, or outlawed, or exiled, or any otherways deſtroyed, nor will we paſs upon him, nor condemn him, but by lawful Judgment of his Peers, or the laws of the land.——The town alſo declares, that that formidable power of theſe courts, and their diſtreſſing courſe of proceedings, have been ſeverely felt within the Year paſt, many of their fellow Citizens have been worn out with attendance upon them in Defence againſt Informations for extravagant and enormous Penalties: And that they have the higheſt reaſon to fear from paſt experience, that if no Relief is obtained for us, the properties and Liberities of this unhappy country, and its Morals too, will be ruined by theſe courts, and the perſons employed to ſupport them.——They therefore earneſtly recommend to them by every legal Meaſure, to endeavour that the Power of theſe courts may be confined to their proper Element, according to the antient Engliſh Statutes; and that they petition and remonſtrate againſt the late Extenſions of their Juriſdiction: Not doubting the other colonies and Provinces, who ſuffer with them will cheerfully harmonize in any juſtifiable Meaſures that may be taken for redreſs.——They conclude with giving it, as their clear opinion, that the houſe of Repreſentatives in any one Province, has an undeniable right whenever a juſt occaſion ſhall offer, to communicate their Sentiments upon a common concern to the Aſſemblies of any, or all the other colonies, and to unite with them in humble, dutiful and loyal Petitions for redreſs of general Grievances.

May 15. Yeſterday, but before divine Service began, Part of the Town had opportunity of hearing NANCY DAWSON from a moſt elegant band of Muſic, the French horns, certainly were inimitable,——It is ſome time ſince we have had ſuch a Sunday Morning's Regale, the Drums and Fifes being the commonEntertainment, and 'tis uncertain to whoſe taſt we owe this: Some think it the Fancy of Madam G——m, while others think that Juſtice himſelf conceived it might be an agreeable relief to the Wardens under the Burthen or their duty.

May 16. A Girl at New Boſton, was lately knock'd down and abuſed by Soldiers for not conſenting to their beaſtly propoſal; a Gentleman hearing the cry of Murder, ran to her Aſſiſtance, one of the Villains, immediately made off, the other the Gentleman ſeiz'd, tho' upon his ſtiffly denying it upon the other Soldier, the Gentleman ſuffered him to depart; preſently after the ſame men aſſaulted a young Gentleman of Character ſuppoſing him to be the perſon who had reſcued the Girl from their Violence; their Oaths, and Inſults brought ſeveral People out of their houſes, upon which the Soldiers made off, but return'd a few Minutes after with a Number of others, and a Serjeant at their head, calling out a Riot! A Riot! They then drew their Bayonets upon the people, and with many Oaths and Execrations, threatning to confine them in the Barracks if they did not immediately diſperſe, accordingly, they began to put their Threats in Execution by ſeizing one of the Company and drag'd him towards the Barracks, but the reſt being reſolute, the Soldiers were obliged to quit him; upon which the whole diſperſed.

May 17. A Woman at the North End enter'd a Complaint with Mr. Juſtice Ruddock againſt a Soldier, and ſome others for a violent attempt upon her, but a Rape was prevented, by the timely appearance of perſons, for Protection; when the Soldier made his Eſcape.

May 18 The Public highly reſent the conduct of thoſe perſons in this Town, who by an Importation of goods from Britain, contrary to the general agreement of the Merchants, have preferr'd their own ſuppoſed private advantage to the common Good of all North America; ſome of them have been turned out of the fire Societies they belonged to, and alſo warned out of their ſtores, the Owners fearing a Backwardneſs of the people to aſſiſt in caſe fire ſhould break out near them,——a Number of their beſt Cuſtomers in the Country, have declined a Trade with them, and taken their ſupplies of thoſe who have diſcovered a public ſpirit in this time of Danger.——Our Merchants in general, are diſpleaſed with thoſe in Britain, who have anſwered any orders from hence, and ſome of them have wrote their Friends, that they ſhall withdraw their Buſineſs from them, if they are guilty of a like inadvertency; and there are of our principal Traders, who have refuſed ſelling their Wares to thoſe who have had any Dealings with our late Importers.

May. 19 Some thouſands of the following addreſs have been diſperſed in hand Billets thro' this and the neighbouring Colonies.

Fellow Citizens and Countrymen.——Inaſmuch, as ſome perſons among us have in a caſe of the utmoſt Importance, preferr'd their own ſuppoſed private advantage to the Welfare and Freedom of America, it is highly proper you ſhould know who they are, who have at this critical time ſordidly detach'd themſelves from the Public Intereſt.——May this diſgraceful, but neceſſary, Publication of their Names, lead them to reflect on the baſeneſs of their crimes; and when they find themſelvs ſlighted and ſhunned by their Neighbours and acquaintance; when their ſhops are deſerted, and they feel their Fortunes miſerably impaired by proſecuting the Plan of pur-blind avarice; when their guilty conſciences have rendered this life inſupportable; may they ſeriouſly attend to the concerns of another: And altho' they muſt ſuffer the Puniſhment due to their Parricide in this world, may a humble and ſincere repentance open the Way to their Forgiveneſs in the next.

ruir

The miſguided Men who have imported goods from England, ſince the late agreement of the Merchants of this town, are,

BOSTON. June 29. 19. 1769

On Wedneſday the 21ſt Inſtant his Excellency the Governor was pleſed to ſend the following Meſſage to the houſe of repreſentatives, viz.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

WHEN at the opening of the Seſſion I recommended to you to give your earlieſt attention to the buſineſs of the Province, I did not think that there was any occaſion to ſpecify the Particulars, of ſuch buſineſs, as they muſt occur to you as readily as to me.

However leaſt this omiſſion ſhould be made, uſe of as an excuſe for your Inactivity, and as you have now entered into your fourth Week, without having done any thing at all, I ſhall now capitulate the principal articles of the public buſineſe, which have hitherto waited for your Notice.

They are, 1. The Support of the Goverment; 2. the Supply of the treaſury; 3. The providing for the Payment of the provincial Debt, which now amounts to one hundred and five Thouſand Pounds; 4. The Tax Bill; 5. Impoſt Bill; 6. The Exciſe Bill, if thought proper; 7. The Eſtabliſhment for Forts and Garriſons; 8. The Continuation of the Truck Trade; 9. The continuation or Revival of expiring or expired Laws &c.

All theſe ſeveral Matters, and ſuch others of the ordinary buſineſs as I may have omited, I now recommend to your immediate conſideration. Such Aſſiſtance as I can give you, eſpecially in removing doubts or Difficulties which may attend any of the ſaid buſineſſes, I ſhall be ready to afford you, ſo far as is conſiſtent with my Duty.

Fra. Bernard.

June 21. 1769.

Yeſterday his Excellency the Governor was pleaſed to ſend the following Meſſge to the Houſe, viz.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

I THINK it proper to inform you that His Majeſty has been pleaſed by his Sign Manual to ſignify to me his Will and pleaſure, that I repair to Great Britain, to lay before him the ſtate of this Province; and has alſo by his Secretary of ſtate, given Directions for the adminiſtration of this Government during my abſence.

Upon this occaſion I think it neceſſary to communicate to you the 53d of his Majeſty's Inſtructions, whereby he orders, that when the Governor ſhall be abſent from the Province, one Moiety of the Salary and the perquiſites and Emoluments which would otherwiſe be due to the Governor, ſhall, during his abſence, be paid to the Lieutenant Governor for his Maintenance, and for the Support of the Dignity of the Government.

I have always conſiderd the Grant of the Salary appointed to me, to be ſubject to this Inſtruction, altho' it was not ſo expreſt in the act, I have no objection at the preſent time, when the abſence of the Governor is foreſeen, that the Grant of the ſalary ſhall be expreſt to be ſubject to this Inſtruction.

And I muſt at the ſame time obſerve to you, that as I am ordered to attend his Majeſty as Governor of this province, and am made to underſtand that I am to be continued in that office, and am inſtructed for the appropriation of the ſalary, whilſt I am abſent from the province, there is the ſame reaſon for the Grant of the Salary now, as there has been at any other time I muſt therefore deſire that according to his Majeſty's 49th Inſtruction, ſuch Grant may be made to precede the other buſineſs of the Seſſion.

LONDON,

April 29 It is remarkable that Mr. Wilkes is exactly the 545th Member of the Society of Hiccobites, which Number produces 45, being read backwards or forwards from the middle Figure.

A great houſe, in a great town, is ſaid to have ſtopped payment for near 200,000l.

ALICANT, March 11. Laſt ſaturday the St. Vincent Ferrier man of war of 80 guns, and the St. Thereſa of 30 guns arrived in this harbour, and landed upwards of 300 ſlaves, men, women, & children, who were redeemed at Algiers, at the king's expence, and are deſtined to form a ſettlement in a little iſland weſtward of this road. Theſe ſlaves are the remainder of ſeveral families who were carried off near 30 years ago from the iſland of Tabarca by the corſairs of Tunis, when this place was laſt beſieged by the Algerines.—Their Prieſt, who met with the ſame fate as his pariſhioners, was immediately releaſed upon his parole, to try if he could raiſe contributions for their redemption, but meeting with little ſucceſs, and being determined not to abandon his flock, he returned back to ſlavery, and continued 28 years ſince a partaker of their ſufferings and miſery.

April 24. In order to reduce the exorbitant price of leather, we are informed, that the free importation of raw hides and ſkins, both from Ireland and the Britiſh Plantations in America, will be allowed for a limited time, under certain regulations and reſtrictions.

It is ſaid that an extraordinary demand on this kingdom by a foreign P—e will not be complied with.

It is ſaid that the Ambaſſador of a certain power will ſpeedly be called from hence.

Another Correſpondent who declares himſelf a lover of peace, ſays, "If the petition of the Freeholders of Middleſex ſhould be drawn up (as has been reported) expreſſive of duty and affection to a great Perſonage, perhaps he may incline to mercy, in compliance with their dutiful requeſt, and to appeaſe the minds of the people. This would probably reſtore peace to the nation, as the cauſe of the preſent clamor would then be removed.

The annual ſum of 1500l. lately wanted to raiſe the Salaries of the ſeveral Clerks in the Secretaries of State's Offices, we hear will be charged on the Revenues ariſing in the General Poſt Office.

We hear orders are iſſued for all Officers, now in foreign ſervice, to join their reſpective regiments.

It is ſaid, that in order to encourage the culture of Raw Silk in America, a bounty will be granted on the importation of the ſame from our Colonies.

We are told that it is an invariable principle of the preſent Adminiſtration, to meddle with no connexions on the Continent, as the blood and treaſures of Great Britain have been too long prodigally laviſhed in fighting the battles of other people.

We hear that a petition is preparing by the Freeholders of a moſt reſpectable County ſetting forth apprehenſions of very dangerous and alarming conſequences that may ariſe from Freeholders, or any body of men whatever, canvaſſing, petitioning, or pronouncing on the conduct of the H· of C. with regard to their own Members; or in any reſpect intermeddling in the determination of either houſe of Parliament, on the uſage and Law of Parliaments, which they apprehend to be as important and conſtitutional as any right whatever, and abſolutely neceſſary to the Freedom, Dignity, and Independency of Parliament.

A letter from Boſton in New England, after giving an account of the perplixities in which the Inhabitants are involved by the late acts of parliament for raiſing a revenue, and of the diſſolution of the aſſembly, adds, "If any attemps are made to alter the civil goverment, and we are to be ruled by a military power, I dread the conſequences!—But I hope for better things, and truſt that I ſhall once more ſee harmony and tranquility eſtabliſhed between Great Britain and her Colonies. Had theſe acts been paſſed ſixty or ſeventy years ago, in the infancy of the colonies, the people muſt have complied with them; but they are now ſo numerous, and their love of liberty ſo ſtrong, that from what I can learn, if their prayers and remonſtrances are not regarded, they are determined not to comply; and I find (by the poll for taking this year) that in the four provinces of New-England we have 215 000 men, from 16 to 60 years of age. It will require all the wiſdom of the legiſlature to treat them, at this preſent juncture, in ſuch a manner as will preſerve their affection.

A*T a meeting of the Society of Arts, &c. on Wedneſday laſt, it was referred to a committee to conſider of the beſt method of rendering a new diſcovered ſpecies of potatoe advantageous to agriculture, for feeding ſheep, or neat cattle —This kind of potatoe appears as curious in its properties, as it promiſes to be uſeful in its application to the above mentioned purpoſes. The roots have ſuch an exceeding great force of vegetation, that they produce an almoſt incredible number of potatoes under the earth, and the herb ſends out fibres from the ſtalk above ground, which bear many likewiſe; and would if the earth was raiſed round them, extend and enlarge themſelves. Theſe potatoes are ſometimes, not leſs than nine or ten pounds weight, and are not round like the common kinds, but ſeem the congeries, or bunch of leſſer ones growing together; and, indeed, that is the real fact; as this magnitude and form appear to be owing to the roots being ſo prolific of the fibres, that they run into each other. From ſetting five of theſe potatoes, 18 buſhels were actually obtained, in a nobleman's garden near London; and it is imagined, that more than three buſhels were left in the ground. If the ſtalks had been earthed as before intimated, it is preſumed the quantity would have been greatly increaſed, perhaps to near double, which would amounted to forty buſhels from the five, on a ſmall ſpot of ground. The taſte of this potatoe is as good as the common ſort; but the ſize and form of the large ones render them leſs fit for table; as ſome parts of them are apt to be over boiled, or burnt before the other be ſufficiently ſoftened. For the purpoſe of agriculture, nevertheleſs, this extraordinary plant gives hopes of great utility. It is not known whence this kind of potatoe was brought to England. That from which the ſpecimen to be produced to the Society, was obtained was found on the coaſt of Northumberland, where it is ſuppoſed to have been thrown out of ſome veſſel, either in conſequence of ſhipwreck, or ſome other accident, and was cultivated by a gentleman of fortune in that country.*

Saturday a quart of green peaſe were ſold in Covent garden market, to a Gentleman's Butler, for 5 Guineas.

BOSTON, July 6.

Private letters from London by the laſt Veſſels mention, that Mr. Pownall made a motion in the houſe of Commons for the repeal of the American revenue act, which was ſtrenuouſly ſeconded by Mr. George Grenville, who was ſupported by Alderman Beckford and Mr. Trecothick, both of them members for the city of London.—The miniſtry were ſilent, and it speared evident to every perſon preſent, that the acts would have been repealed, had the motion not been as warmly oppoſed by the Rockingham party, as it was contended for by Mr. Grenville and his friends. From the ſilence of the Miniſtry, it is not doubted but they wiſhed the acts repealed, tho' they were afraid to take the lead, having already repeatedly ſubjected themſelves to the charge of inconſiſtency; they are certainly in great perplexity, and the kingdom in the greateſt diſorder.——The Houſe will ſoon riſe, and the reaſon of it is ſaid to be, that the Middleſex freeholders, led on by the ſupporters of the bill of rights are determined to petition both houſes of parliament, and even the King himſelf, in behalf of Mr. Wilkes;— all the London mob are to march in proceſſion to the number of ſome hundred thouſands: if the petitions are rejected, or received, and not favourably anſwered, after going through this regular proceſs, the mobility, our preſent ſtate doctors, are to be let looſe to enforce conviction.

Ad——n, however, having information of this plan are taking the proper meaſures to render it abortive, and the houſe will be prorogued, in a few days, before the petition can be delivered.—Licentiouſneſs reigns without any controul; and the ſober part of the community are looking forward with fear and trembling, to the arrival of that moment, which they hourly dread, when our liberties will be totally annihilated by a popular commotion; or will again take firmer root from compleat ſuppreſſion of mobbing, and by impreſſing upon the lower rank, a proper aſpect for the laws of their country.

It is certain, that many gentlemen of great intereſt and good principles, have been induced to join the populace party, being alarmed by the behaviour of ad——n, reſpecting Col. Lutterell's election in preference to Mr. Wilkes, for the county of Middleſex.

A letter from Halifax mentions, that the iſland of St. John's is made a ſeperate government, and that Lieut. Governor Franklin of Nova-Scotia, is appointed governor.

Friday laſt arrived his Majeſty's ſhip Romney, and on Saturday the Senegal, both from Halifax.—We hear that the 64th regiment is to embark next Wedneſday on board theſe ſhips for Halifax.

HARTFORD, July 10.

We hear from Northampton, that laſt Wedneſday afternoon, came up there the moſt ſevere ſtorm of rain, attended with thunder and lightning, that has been known for many years paſt.—It rained ſo hard for ſeveral hours, that the meadows were overflowed with the water between 3 and 4 feet deep—great quantities of hay was carried off by the flood. During the ſtorm the houſe of Deacon ——Hunt of that place, was ſtruck with lightning——the lightning entered at the top of the chimney, and ran down to the lower floor, where two of Deac. Hunt's children were ſtanding, one about 14, the other about 7 years of age, both of which were inſtantly killed. The lightning did the houſe but very little damage.

Laſt Tueſday as three men were loading a battoe, at the ferry in this place, Mr. Joſeph Elmer of East Windſor, who was aſſiſting, accidentally fell overboard, and was drowned —and notwithſtanding immediate aſſiſtance was given, by a number of perſons who ſeed him fall, yet his body could not be found till about three quarters of an hour afterwards. He was about 50 years of age, and has left a ſorrowful widow and nine children.

A Meſſage, ſir!

NOW gentlemen I think it proper,
To make you ſtare, & tell a whapper;
My noble maſter Sirs! I tell you,
Conceives me ſuch a clever fellow,
As to command me to repair
To court,——and bring my budget there:
Where I ſir Mungo Nettle'em, Bart.
By lying, pimping, fraud and art,
Am now advanc'd to ſuch great credit,
" It muſt be true if Mungo ſaid it."
There I ſhall ſtubbornly relate
Chimæras, for your real ſtate;
Legends of lies, my own creation,
but don't be, ſaucy——know my ſtation.
Yet do not wickedly deviſe
When Mungo's gone, that Mungo dies.
For when I've taken my departure,
By Jupiter you'll catch a Tartar;
Lord Paddy, faith, has taken care,
To place T—m Gr-p—ll in the chair:
He'll ſpoil your ſon, I won't bely him,
But he's a crooked dog——as I am
 Upon this very nice occaſion,
I will not brook this ſtrange evaſion;
Down with the Darby, have a care,
Don't think to chouſe me of a hair:
And give my brother Gr-pe his part,
Or elſe—by Jove I'll make you ſmart.
His dignity will want ſupport,
Tho' faith he'll never thank you for't.
The penſion is a lucky hit,
He made good market of his wit;
Five hundred pounds per ann. beſide,
Good Lord! how ſtately T—m will ride.
 I've often thought, and tho't with grief,
That when your high and mighty chief,
Is ordered home——my ſalary's ſplit,
And T—m a Moiety muſt get:
For though I only wear the name
Of your Baſhaw, the thing's the ſame.
The money ſtill becomes my due,
And d—n you all! I'll have it too.
Beſides, to whiſper in your ear,
When I am there, and you are here,
I cannot wickedly pretend that government is at an end,
And puff you off ten thouſand ſtories,
To blaſt the whigs, and raiſe the tories,
In ſhort, if you would but conſider,
The mighty miſchief that I did here,
Moſt chearfully you'd recompence
ſir Mungo for departing hence.
 Therefore as I ſhall ſtill remain
Your great Baſhaw, the reaſon's plain,
That I ſir Mungo muſt be paid,
For reaſons heretofore diſplay'd.
Take heed then, and obſerve our will,
For I muſt have my money ſtill;
So Sirs, conduct the matter fairly,
And make the grant as uſual—early.

IT has been juſtly obſerved. " That the Colony trade is in a Meaſure, a Syſtem of art and Reſtriction; yet the very Principle may be deſtroy'd by multiplying to Exceſs, the Means of ſecuring it." The perſent trade of America has of late Years, been embarraſſed beyond Deſcription, with the Multiplicity and Intricacy of Regulations and Ordinances; our late M—n—ſt, from whom we muſt exclude the Rockingham Adminiſtration, ſeem to be poſſeſſed with ſomething hardly ſhort of a regulation and Reſtriction, they have extended to us their ſeveral Acts of Parliaments, calculated to prevent a Contraband Trade with their French Neighbours, multiplied Bonds, Certificates, Affidavits, Warrants, Sufferances, Cockets &c and every Species of Cuſtom, Houſe Officers, both upon the land and water; have ſupported the new Regulations with ſuch ſevere Penalties, and extended them without the leaſt conſideration of Circumſtances to ſo many Objects; that American Commerce is expiring under them. Upon the firſt Appointment of an American Board of C——ſ——rs, it was trumpetted to the Merchants, by the Tools of Power, that it was an Inſtitution calculated to retrieve the Trade from many of its preſent Embarraſſments; and, that ſome of the Colonies Agents in London, were ſo well ſatisfied, that the Reſidence of the C——m——rs in any trading Province would be greatly advantageous to its Commerce, as to offer in Behalf of their Conſtituents a large Sum of Money, to obtain the Preference.——Our Merchants however, were by no Means diſpoſed to hearken to ſuch deluſory Inſinuations, they conſidered the Project of an American Revenue, to be wholly founded upon Anti Commercial Principles; and that a ſet of Men ſent among us to ſupport this Project, and riot upon its produce, muſt become as obnoxious, as exerciſe of their Power would be diſtreſſing.——Their Conjectures were ſoon realized; to ſay nothing of the haughty imperious, indelicate Behaviour of the B——d as Men, their whole Official Conduct has been ſuch as lead People to conſider them as the greateſt political Curſes that could have been ſeen among us——This B——d ſoon gave Being to ſuch an innumerable train of under Officers, &c. that the whole Revenue raiſed by the late Duties, has been ſcarcely ſufficient to ſatiate their craving Appetites; but the Monies drained from our Merchants, diſtreſſing as it has been, is the leaſt Part of our Sufferings; they have, with the Advice and Aſſiſtance of G—— B—— and the Cabal, gone into every meaſure that has appeared to us moſt likely to cramp and leſſen both a Provincial and Foreign trade, by which we have been ſo impoveriſhed; that thro' Neceſſity, as well as Reſentment, our Farmers and Mechanics, are lopping off many Articles of Superfluities, and going into ſuch Manufactures as may be carried on here to the greateſt Advantage.

We have before adduced many Inſtances of the wanton, cruel, and ſtrange Behaviour of our modern Revenue, Naval, and Cuſtom-Houſe Officers, all of whom are under the Influence or Direction of G——B—— and the C——m——rs, alſo noticed the Injuries included in them. What follows carries the ſame Complexion.

May 23. The Brig Induſtry, which loaded in London, and cleared out at the Cuſtom-Houſe there, for Nantucket; where ſhe arrived, as the Winter was ſetting in, applied to the Naval Officer, fixed upon the Iſland, who gave him a Permit to unload, which he did accordingly, and then took on board Part of another Cargo, for London, and intended to Boſton, there to fill up his Veſſel; he had alſo on board ſome Cheſts of Oyl, owned in Boſton, which were imported in the ſame Bottom; but before ſailing, an Officer of the Cuſtoms, appointed by the C—m—rs arrived; upon which the Capt. of the Brig immediately applied to him, with the Cockets brought from London, in order to pay Duty on ſome Tea, which was the only dutiable Goods he had brought from London; he was accordingly cleared for Boſton, being firſt obliged to give bond for paying the duty of ſaid Tea on his arrival there, the Cockets were alſo ſent for the Inſpection of the Cuſtom-Houſe, where he applied for an Entry on his arrival, but was told they ſhould not enter her, but gave him a Permit to take out the Oyl brought from London; immediately after, by order of the C——m——rs they ſeized his Veſſel, and what Cargo ſhe had on board, and kept her in Poſſeſſion ten Days, to the great Damage of the Owners, but after being petitioned ſeveral times ſaid Veſſel and Cargo was delivered up to the Owners.

May 24. The Maſter of a Coaſting Veſſel, bound to Caſco-Bay, in the Eaſtern parts of this Province, took in by Sufferance, about four hundred of Iron, and a few Coils of Cordage, for the landing of which, on his arrival there, and the producing Certificates thereof, he was obliged to give two Bonds at the Cuſtom Houſe Office.

May 25. Capt. Durphey, Maſter of a veſſel, owned in the Southern part of the Province, on going from Rhode Iſland, to Connecticut, with a Load of Fire-Wood, took on board two Caſks of Molaſſes, without clearing them out, the Molaſſes, having been legally entered, and the Duties paid upon them; but being met with by one of our Engliſh Guarda Coaſtas, they ſeized and detain'd the Veſſel, and thereby obliged ſaid Maſter to make a long and expenſive Journey to this town in order to ſettle for this extraordinary breach of the acts of trade, with the honourable the B——d of C——m——rs.

May 26. Capt. Dean, in a Brig from Green Iſland in Jamaica, was brought too and ſearched on his Paſſage, not by a Spaniſh, but by an Engliſh Guarda Coaſta; the Captain of which, on finding that the Mate of the Brig had omitted clearing out his little Adventure, was pleaſed to ſeize, and take Poſſeſſion of the Veſſel, as well as the Mate's Adventure.

May. 27. A Petty Officer of the Cuſtom-Houſe came on board Capt. Freeman's Ship, lately arrived from London, and behaved in the ſame inſolent Manner this ſet of Men are accuſtomed to; upon finding a Barrel of New-England Rum, which was ſent on board for the Refreſhment of the people at work in unloading, he threatened as if the Ship ſhould be ſeized; they not having, as he told them, a Right to receive and keep on board a larger Quantity than ſix Gallons.

May 28. The Captains of ſeveral Veſſels, lately arrived in different Parts of this Province, report, that they have been ſtopt and detained at Sea by Engliſh Guarda Coaſtas and their Hatches, &c. opened, in order to ſearch for uncleared, or contraband Goods, and that ſome of their Seamen had been impreſſed and taken from them before they were near the Land.

WILLIAMSBURG, June 8.

MONITOR XII.

My dear Countrymen,

I HAVE laid before you a faithful account of the ſtate of our affairs in Great Britain, and of the temper of the preſent Miniſtry. We ſee it too glaringly diſplayed in the King's ſpeech, and the addreſſes in anſwer to it, in the reſolutions of both houſes concerning Boſton, with the addreſs and anſwer. They are too expreſſive to require any comment; they are written in blood, and cannot be miſunderſtood. It is true they aim at one colony only, but this Artifice ſurely cannot deceive you, nor withhold you from conſidering every colony intereſted in the ſufferings of one for a common cauſe. Divide and tyrannize, is the maxim; to ſubdue one at a time, is ſureſt and moſt facile way to cruſh all. With ſuch pregnant proofs before you, of a permanent and complete ſubverſion of your liberties, you cannot without infatuation, liſten to thoſe who would perſuade you, that if you, demean yourſelves into acquieſcence and quiet, this oppreſſive duty act will be repealed, and every grievance redreſſed.

But to be convinced how futile this expectation is, look only upon the deſpotic circle with which they have already encompaſſed our liberties. The Parliament are to raiſe a revenue upon us without our conſent; the commiſſioners are to ſee it collected; the Admiralty Courts are to try all revenue cauſes; whoever a Governor ſhall accuſe of treaſon, is to be ſent to Britain for his trial, or rather, as his Majeſty's moſt gracious anſwer has it, " to be brought to condign puniſhment;" the Governors, Counſellers and Judges, are appointed by the King, and exiſt during his pleaſure; and to render them all as rigorous in the collection of the revenue as poſſible, they are to be paid out of the money thus raiſed upon us without our conſent or participation. From the ſame fund too, is a military and naval force to be maintained, to enforce abſolute obediance to this tremendous ſyſtem of abject ſlavery. Never was a plan of deſpotiſm more abſolute, and in itſelf complete, never were chains better forged; and ſhould our acquieſcence ſuffer them to be riveted, we are undone for ever.

Is the giving our own money to the Crown a dear and valuable right? We are totally deprived of it by the Britiſh Parliament, over which we have no earthly reſtraint, with which no poſſible connection. Is trial by jury an eſſential privilege of freemen, neceſſary to a due diſpenſation of juſtice, and the ſecurity of the ſubject? This is abſolutely wreſted from us by the Admiralty courts, in which one Judge, appointed by the Crown during pleaſure, and paid out of the condemnation money, if it be ſufficient, determines between the King and the ſubject. Are our lives dear to us? Every Governor may devote whom he pleaſes, by charging him with treaſon, and ſending him to England, where he will be tried, if happily this farce be deemed neceſſary to precede the tragedy of execution, by a jury of ſtrangers, infected with the moſt violent prejudice. The Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms only, are veſted with the alarming powers of exciſe, in forcing open, or ordering to be forced, any man's lock.

Deprived thus of the privilege of giving or keeping our money, the executive and judicial powers, as independent of the people, as they are abſolutely dependent on the King; the trial by jury, that great bulwark of ſafety in life and eſtate, taken from us; our houſes, cloſets cabinets, &c. laid open to the will and pleaſure of the Commiſſioners, or the loweſt ſervant belonging to the revenue; and all theſe maintained by us without our conſent; What remains to make our ſlavery complete? Nothing but our acquieſcence and ſubmiſſion What can ſave us from this dreadful bondage? Nothing but an unanimous, determined, permanent oppoſition.

How this is to be conducted is the next queſtion, and it may be very ſhortly diſcuſſed. We have petitioned, reaſoned and remonſtrated in vain; let us try the next gentle method of admoniſhing Great Britain, and recalling her to reaſon and juſtice, that is, to deſiſt from the conſumption of her manufactures, and ſupplying her with thoſe raw materials, from which her trade, manufactures, Merchants and revenue, receive great profits, ſuch as tobacco, tar, pitch, hemp, pot aſh, &c. Inſtead of expending our labour on theſe, let us raiſe grain, proviſions, and all materials for manufactures; in the manufacturing of which, the reſt of our labour may be employed. Some temporary loſs and inconvenience will ariſe from ſo great a change; but the benefits which will flow from it are manifold, great and laſting. It will ſave us from ſlavery otherwiſe inevitable; the yoke is before us, the chains are prepared, there is no alternative but tamely to put them on, or vigorouſly endeavour to make them drop from the enervated hands of our oppreſſors. He who would expoſe himſelf and his poſterity to the hateful inſults of petty authority; he who would devote his life and fortune to the arbitrary will of Governors, Commiſſioners, Judges, Cuſtom houſe Officers, Minions and Paraſites; he who would ſee the whole people of this continent governed without exception by laws to which they gave no conſent, and their once honourable and reſpected Aſſemblies humiliated to mere corporations; let him patiently reſign himſelf to the ſhackles which are forged for him and wonderfully calculated to ſecure theſe fatal conſequences. But when the galling chain ſits heavy on him; when the calamities of which ſlavery is baneful prolific, preſs hard and ſore upon him; in that miſerable ſtate fleeced, deſpiſed, injured and inſulted, let him perſevere in his virtue of reſignation, nor be tempted to execrate his miſerable exiſtence, or accelerate, in wiſh, the ſlave's and wretch's laſt reſource, the band of death.

To render oppoſition effectual, unanimity is greatly requiſite. How neceſſary an union and harmony among ourſelves are to the maintenance of our moſt valuable rights, may be drawn not only from reaſon, but from the great apprehenſion entertained of it by thoſe who would ſubvert them. It was therefore that the congreſs at New York, was ſo loudly exclaimed againſt by the Grenvilian party, and that the circular letter at Boſton was ſuch an alarming meaſure at home, that every art of ſoothing, every influence of threats, were uſed by my Lord Hillſborough, to render it abortive. In purſuance of the old maxim, divide and tyrannize, this artful miniſter is induſtriouſly propagating an opinion, that but for ſuch ſteps as thoſe taken in America, he would certainly have had the late duty act repealed; and this at the very time the Miniſtry are declaring in Parliament, it was intended to fix the dominion of Parliament over America, and therefore to be enforced, if queſtioned. And every meaſure they take, tends to evince the fatal truth of this declaration.

Be aſſured then, my countrymen, and I ſpeak to you from the beſt information, we have every thing to fear from Great-Britain, nothing to expect but inſult, injury and oppreſſion. And from theſe nothing can relieve us, but a determined, unanimous, permanent, oppoſition.

DETROIT, April 29. 1769

THE Inhabitants of this Settlement have been very much alarmed'd lately, on Account of a Report prevailing, that the Indians were determin'd to aſſemble and cut them off, but by the very prudent meaſures taken on this Occaſion, by Capt. Turnbull, not only in Council with ſuch of the nations as were here, but his ordering the building of ſmall Forts for the ſecurity of the inhabitants, and obliging the Militia both of the old and new Subjects to parade, in order to ſhew their Union and that the Savages might ſee, they had not to do with the French only, but might expect to find that the Engliſh were equally concern'd, we have the greateſt Reaſon to hope, that the Blow (if intended is parried, or at leaſt put off: If intended I ſay, for there are not yet ſufficient Proof thereof, tho' certain I am, that the ſeveral Indian Nations are very far from being well contented; I ſhall not pretend to point out the reaſons thereof, as there may be many I know nothing of, one that appears to be very conſiderable among the Chippawas, is, Capt. Pat. Sinclair's being taken away from them, after their adopting him for their Father, hereof they complain heavily, as you will ſee by the incloſed Copy of a Council held here Yeſterday, by Maſſigihaſh the chief, and a Number of the principal people of his tribe, who came all the way from Saguina-Bay, for that Purpoſe. Capt. Sinclair's indefatigable Aſſiduity in learning and ſuiting himſelf to their Manners, Cuſtoms, Language, &c. &c. his Generoſity on all Occaſions in ſupplying their wants, his diligent Attention to their old men, women and children, and the very particular care he always took of their ſick, has endeared him ſo much to them, that they look upon him as a Demi God: They often ſay, they will now have a proof of his Majeſty's regard for them, in ſending back their father. If he does not come, I'm afraid of the Conſequences.

COPY of a Speach delivered by Maſſigihaſh, a Chief of the Chippawas, and twenty two of his Tribe, the 28th of April 1769 in Preſence of George Turnbull Eſq; Captain of his Majeſty's 60th Regiment, commanding Detroit, and it's Dependences, &c. Lieutenant M'Alpin Lieut. M'Dugal, Lieut. Abbott, Mr. Hay, Commiſſary of Indian Affairs; Enſign Duncan Enſign Gage Mr. Robinſon and ſeveral French Inhabitants: With the Anſwer.

Father. YOU have always told us to liſten to you with both Ears and not with One; this has been a Recommendation at all times.

Father. It has always been our ancient Cuſtom to ſpeak to one another, and I ſuppoſe it is the will of the Great Spirit.

Father. Our Father on the other ſide of the Great Lake, recommended to us to have Compaſſion on one another, and to take care of the Veſſel with us, and to be always good Friends. A String of W.

Father. Look upon us with Compaſſion, the Number you ſee of us.

Father. The Chippawas take you faſt by the hand where you are, and all your people.

Father. We ſalute the King, the General, and Sir William Johnſon; he was right to ſay, go to Detroit and take Care of our Children.

Father. Take Compaſſion on us poor little Chippawas, who are eſtabliſhed near the Veſſel.

Father. When we had our former Father there (Lieut. Sinclair) he aſked a Piece of land of us, which we gave him, as he had ſaid, let us live in Friendſhip and help one another.

Father. Our Children even are worthy of Compaſſion, and we beg compaſſion on them.

Father. Lieut. Sinclair had Compaſſion on us, and the Land he cultivated we profited by, for which Reaſon we gave him even the Trees

Father. We beg what we ſay may be put in writing, and this String may remain with a Mark. And the General and Our Father may be informed, that we beg that he may ſend the ſame Perſon back (Lieut. Sinclair) this Demand is even from the children, for what does it ſignify to us, to guard that Veſſel if he does not come, and beſides Things may not go well if he does not come.

Father. Our Men, Women and Children, regret him, if he does not come back we ſhall be loſt, there will be by and by but little Game to kill, and we ſhall be obliged to leave the place we are eſtabliſhed at.

Father. We love you all, and love the Veſſel, and its not for any diſlike to any of you, but we beg you will make this Demand for us.

There is ſome French people there who are worthy of Compaſſion, and may remain and join us in this Demand. A Branch or eight Strings.

Father. You have more Senſe than we, we know nothing; we have heard from our Brothers from Shagwamigen, will come here with Beaver to get what they are paſſionately found of —— Rum.

ANSWER.

Children. YOU ſpoke Truth when you ſaid you had been deſired to liſten with both your Ears, and that it was cuſtomary for us to ſpeak to one another.

Childern, It has likewiſe been deſired that you will live in Friendſhip with all his Majeſty's Subjects, as your happineſs depends upon it. A String of ſix Rows.

Children. I look upon you with Compaſſion, and when you are in Neceſſity do what I can to eaſe you, and beſides this, His Majeſty is at a great Expence, in paying a Smith and Interpreter for your ſervice.

The Veſſel is not kept there for us alone, ſhe is to carry Proviſion to ſupport theſe who bring you cloathing and Ammunition, &c. and conſequently ought to be as dear to you as us.

The Perſon who commands the Veſſel at preſent has it not in his Power to give you as much as the late Commander, as he is not ſo Rich, neither can you expect it from him, but his Intention is always to live in Peace and Friendſhip with you, and any Service you are of in aſſiſting him, will always be recompenced.

Children. The String ſhall remain here according to your Deſire, and the General ſhall be acquainted with it; we have heard of Mr. Sinclair's Arrival at New-York, and perhaps in ſome Months hence we may hear of his arrival in England; and we would be very glad he would return, provided it is agreeable to him.

Children. As to the Game, the people at the veſſel never hunt, ſo that they cannot make it ſcarce, and before there was a veſſel there, you did not receive the ſame benefits you have done ſince.

Children. We know you have been of Service at different times, in getting the veſſel up the Rapids, for which reaſon your preſent neceſſities have been conſidered, and you ſhall have a little clothing for your Children, and a little Rum and Vermillion for your young men but it is expected you will continue to live, with Capt. Robinſon, and all his Majeſty's ſubjects, in the ſame friendly manner you have done heretofore, and not expect things from him that is not in his power to give; always keeping in your mind, the ſolemn engagements you have entered into at different times, with your Father Sir William Johnſon.

A String of Ten Rows

They returned many thanks, ſaying our words went to their Hearts, and we ſhould have no reaſon to find the leaſt fault with their behaviour, and that their intention was to live in the ſame friendly manner with us, that they had hitherto done.

Some of their people were then interrogated, regarding ſome things they ſhou'd have ſaid about Belts coming this year, from the Hurons, in the name of the ſix Nations, Shawaneſe and Delawares, but they ſaid they had not made ſuch report, neither did they know any thing of the Kind.

Extract of a letter from Liſb,ieſt, dated Apr. 28.

"Indian Corn is now in the greateſt ſcarcity, and a famine is apprehended in the neighbourhood of Vienna, and particularly in the province of Galicia; and is an additional misfortune, we had lately ſuch ſtorms of hail and rain, the like not ſeen by the oldeſt inhabitants which cauſed inundations in ſeveral places, and ſwept away ſeveral villages, granaries, cattle, and people, whoſe bodies lay floating in this river, which came down ſo rapidly and bro't with it ſuch a ſurpriſing quantity of reptiles, that both ſhores are filled with them, and many are employed to this hour, in killing ſnakes, Vipers, and toads, which ſeem to be one of the Curſes of Egypt.

PHILADEPHIA, July 10.

Yeſterday the Sloop Sally, Capt. Blewer, arrived here from Charleſtown, South-Carolina, which place he left the firſt Inſt. He informs us that Capt. Lamb, in a Sloop from St. Chriſtophers, ſpoke the ſhip St. Helena, Capt. Arthur, from Briſtol, bound to Charleſtown, who deſired him to inform the inhabitants that the American revenue act was repealed. We alſo hear, by Capt. Blewer, that the merchants in Charleſtown have agreed not to import any goods they can poſſibly do without.

NEW-YORK, July 13.

A gentleman in Carolina, writes his friend in this City, that the veſſel mentioned under the Philadelphia Head, brougt advice that the acts for raiſing a revenue in America, were repealed the 20th of May, [The Story comes thro' a good many Hands——we wiſh it might be true.]

By a Gentleman in town, who left Briſtol the firſt of May, we hear, that the whole mercantile intereſt of England were about to unite in a petition to his Majeſty, on affairs of great moment to the Commerce of England. That it was expected the petition would be preſented in about a Week, and it was thought would have ſo great effect, that if the Parliament ſhould be before that prorogued, it would occaſion their being called together again by Auguſt at furtheſt.

NEWPORT, July 10.

We can aſſure the Public that Spinning is ſo much encouraged among us, that a lady of this town, who is in very affluent circumſtances, and who is between 70 and 80 years of age, has within about three weeks, become a very good ſpinner, though ſhe never ſpun a thread in her life before.—Thus has the love of liberty and dread of tyranny kindled in the breaſts of old and young a glorious flame, which will eminently diſtinguiſh the fair-ſex of the preſent time thro' far diſtant ages.

We hear the liberty ſloop which ſail'd a few days paſt on a cruiſe, has taken a prize; but of what nation, or whither bound, we have not learn'd; but imagine her to belong to ſome of the N. American colonies, as the whole N--v-l Force of h--s B---t--c M—— ſeems to be principally aim'd againſt thoſe colonies, notwithſtanding they are inhabited by the beſt ſubjects that ever ſerv'd a King; moſt remarkable for loyalty and yielding obedience to every juſt and conſtitutional act of parliament.

NEW-HAVEN, July 14.

Laſt week arrived here, in eight weeks from Liverpool, Capt. Hepburn, of this port.---He has bro't a London paper of the 12th of May, but it being miſlaid, we could not procure it.---It is ſaid to contain the King's ſpeech, at the prorogation of the parliament, and a liſt of thoſe members of the houſe of commons who voted againſt Col. Lutterell's being accepted, in the room of Mr. Wilkes; which is all the particulars we have heard.

HARTFORD, July 17.

Laſt Monday night the large & well accompliſhed Iron-Works in Coventry formerly belonging to Mr. Habakuk Turner, was intirely conſumed by fire.—

Laſt week the wife of one Kelley of Simſbury was ſafely delivered of 3 Children, two of which are ſince dead.

ver of Power, are daring Breaches of Truſt, and inſupportable Grievances on the people.

RESOLVED, as the opinion of this houſe, that the late Extenſion of the power of courts of Admiralty in America, is highly dangerous and alarming; eſpecially as the Judges of the courts of Common law, the alone check upon their inordinate power, do not hold their places during good Behaviour: And thoſe who have falſely repreſented to his Majeſty's Miniſters, that no Dependence could be had on Juries in America, and that there was a Neceſſity of extending the power of the courts of Admiralty there, ſo far, as to deprive the Subject of the ineſtimable privilege of a trial by a Jury, and to render the ſaid courts of Admiralty uncontroulable by the ancient common Law of the land, are avowed Enemies to the conſtitution; and manifeſtly intended to introduce and eſtabliſh a Syſtem of inſupportable Tyranny in America.

RESOLVED, as the opinion of this houſe, That the conſtituting a board of Commiſſioners of Cuſtoms in America, is an unneceſſary Burthen upon the trade of theſe Colonies, and that the unlimited Power the ſaid Commiſſioners are inveſted with of making appointments, and paying the appointees what Sums they pleaſe, unaviolably tends ſo enormouſly to increaſe the Number of Placemen and penſioners, as to become juſtly alarming, and formidable to the liberties of the people.

RESOLVED, That it is the opinion of this houſe, "That all trials for Treaſon, or for any Felony or Crime whatſoever, committed or done in this his Majeſty's Colony, by any perſon or perſons reſiding therein, ought of Right to be had and conducted in and before his Majeſty's courts held within the ſaid Colony, according to the fixed and known courſe of Proceedings; and that the ſeizing any perſon or perſons reſiding in this Colony, ſuſpected of any crime whatſoever, committed therein, and ſending ſuch perſon or perſons to places beyond the Sea to be tried, is highly derogatory of the Rights of Britiſh Subjects; as thereby the ineſtimable Privilege of being tried by a Jury from the Vicinage, as well as the Liberty of ſummoning and producing Witneſſes on ſuch Trial, will be taken away from the Party accuſed."

Province of MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

July 13. 1769.

The following Meſſage mentioned in our laſt to be voted by the Houſe, was Yeſterday delivered to his Excellency the Governor at Cambridge. We ſhall give it our readres from the Votes.

In the Houſe of Repreſentatives, July 4 1769.

ORDERED that Mr. Hancock, Mr. Spooner, Mr. Otis, Major Hawley. Mr. Greenleaf, be a Committee to wait upon his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Baronet, with the following anſwer to his Meſſage of 28th June laſt.

THO'S CUSHING Speaker.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

BY your Meſſage to this houſe of the 28th June laſt, we are informed, that his Majeſty has been pleaſed by his Sign Manual, to ſignify to you his will and pleaſure that you repair to Great Britain, to lay before him the ſtate of this Province We are bound in duty at all times, and we do more eſpecially at this Time chearfully acquieſce in the lawful Command of our Sovereign: It is a particular Satiſfaction to us that his Majeſty has been pleaſed to order a true ſtate of this Province to be laid before him; for we have abundant Reaſon to be aſſured that when his Majeſty ſhall be made fully acquinted with the great and alarming Grievances which his truly loyal Subjects here have ſuffered thro' your adminiſtration, and the Injuries they have ſuſtained in their Reputation, as well as every important Intereſt, he will in his great Clemency and Juſtice, frown upon and for ever remove from his truſt all thoſe who by wickedly miſinforming his Miniſters, have attempted to deceive even his Majeſty himſelf. Your Excellency is beſt acquainted with the part you have acted; your own Letters have enabled this houſe and the Publick in ſome Meaſure to form a Judgement. And while you will neceſſarily be employed as this houſe conceives, in ſetting your own conduct in the moſt favourable light before his Majeſty, we are perſuaded we ſhall be able to anſwer for ourſelves and our Conſtituents, to the Satiſfaction of our Sovereign whenever we ſhall be called to it.

You are pleaſed to communicate to the houſe an Inſtruction for the appropriation of the Salary granted to his Majeſty's Governor during ſuch time as he may be abſent from the Colony: But as we are not "made to underſtand" that your Excellency will be continued in your Office as Governor of the Province after your expected Departure from it, the houſe cannot in Faithfulneſs to their Conſtituents make an unprecedented Grant of this Money for Services which we have no reaſon to expect will ever be performed.

Your Excellency muſt be fully ſenſible that the people of this Province have never failed in Duty to his Majeſty, to make ample Proviſion for the Support of his Government. You will be pleaſed to remember that you are fully paid to the Second of Auguſt next, before the Expiration of which Time you will embark for Great Britain. We ſhall then make the neceſſary Proviſion "for the Support of the Dignity of the Government," and when his Majeſty ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to appoint another Governor, we truſt this people will be ready, as they ever have been to grant him an ample Salary, proportioned to their own abilities, and ſuitable to his Station and Merit. Theſe are the only Conſiderations which ought to have any Weight with this houſe in granting the people's Money for the Support of a Governor—His Majeſty's 49th Inſtruction now before the Houſe, and to which you refer us, is a Rule for your Excellency, but we conceive, was never intended for the houſe of Repreſentatives—We have however the pleaſure of obſerving, that your Excellency is not at all reſtrained by it, from ſigning any Bills or other Matters that may be laid before you at any Time preceding the Grant of a Salary for the Support of Government, and therefore we have a juſt right to expect that you will not upon that account retard ſuch publick Buſineſs now before you, as his Majeſty's Service and the Welfare of the people indiſpenſibly requires.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29

From the Penſylvania Journal, June 29, 1769.

As the late outragious inſult and cruel treatment I have received from William Didingſton, commander of the armed ſchooner, Gaſpay, and David Hay, captain of the train, is become the common topic of converſation I think I am bound in juſtice to myſelf and the public, to give a full and true narrative of the whole matter.—What was my caſe yeſterday, may be the caſe of every freeman, who may unfortunately fall within the power of ſuch cowardly inſolent officers, who diſgrace the commiſſions they hold and who ſeem to think that their office intitles them to treat their fellow ſubjects with outrage, inſolence, & abuſe.

On the 26th inſt. going a fiſhing with Mr. Thomas Pedrix, of Cheſter, I ſaw a top ſail ſcooner coming up. As I wanted to ſpeak with a Pilot, who I was informed was in ſuch a ſcooner, I went near and hailed her and aſked what pilot was on board? The Capt. of the ſchooner replied, that the pilot did not chuſe to tell his name. Such an uncivil ungetleman like anſwer provoked me to tell him, that a civil queſtion deſerved a civil anſwer, and that I thought both the Captain and pilot blackgards.—Upon which the Captain ordered out his boat and five men, to bring me on board, at the ſame time preſenting his firelock, and ſwearing moſt violently, that he wold fire upon me, if I did not come along ſide directly. All this time I had no apprehenſion of its being a King's armed Schooner. When the boat came up the Cockſon immediately ſeized me, and in a piratical manner dragged me into the ſchooner, when the Captian accoſted me with the moſt abuſive language.—Finding in what hands I had fallen, I endeavoured to mollify him, by making all the conceſſions which gentlemen ought to demand. I aſſured him I did not know he was a King's officer; that if I had offended him I aſked his pardon. Juſt at this time happening to ſee Capt. Hay, to whom I was known, I appealed to him for my character expecting he would interpoſe his friendly offices. But Capt. Hay in a rude inſulting manner ſaid, "I know him very well, a tavern keeper in Cheſter, a damned horſe-jockey. They are all a parcel of damn'd raſcals." Tho' I heard much of the imperious inſolence of the man, yet I was quite thunder ſtruck at this inſtance of it. He did not ſeem drunk, as it is ſaid he was when he committed the violent outrage in Philadelphia ſome years ago, and attempted to aſſaſſinate a gentleman of that city. The words were no ſooner out of Capt. Hay's mouth, than the commander of the ſchooner ſtruck me in the face with his fiſt, and redoubled his ſtrokes, which I endeavoured to ward off, without offering to return a blow. But in fending off his ſtrokes, my hand happened to touch his face; on which, with an oath, he cried out, "you raſcal, will you ſtrike me on "board my own veſſel." I told I him I did not, that if my hand touched him, it was not deſignedly. "You lie, you raſcal." ſaid Capt. Hay, how dare you ſtrike a Captain of a man of war?" With that they both fell upon me; at the ſame time calling for the mate, who ſeized and held my hands, while the commander and Hay both beat me in a moſt cruel manner. When they had tired themſelves with beating me, that they might add inſult to cruelty, they ordered me to be put in irons, and as if nothing could glut their revenge they thruſt me into the hold, where the commander ſwore he would keep me and would not ſuffer me to ſee the light, nor to have pen, ink, or paper till he had carried me to Halifax, when the commander found that all his threats and menaces did not break my ſpirit, truſting to the protection of the laws of my country, I defied his malice and inſolence: His rage being ſomewhat abated, he ordered the boat with five men to put me on board my boat, if I would fall on my knees and aſk his pardon.—Finding he could not bring me to this, he ordered his men to carry me, bloody as I was, on board my boat, which was about half a mile diſtant, and during this inhuman ſcene he would not ſuffer to come nigh the ſchooner.

DAVIS BEVAN.

As ſoon as Mr. Bevan got to Cheſter, he followed them to this place, where they endeavoured to make up the matter with the caſh, which he nobly ſcorn'd, and has entered an action at civil law againſt each of the Captains.

From the BOSTON GAZETTE,

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

I Lately had occaſion to ſearch into the meaning of the word BARONET, and I find it to be a diminutive term, as the Grammarians ſpeak and that it denotes a little, tiny Baron. And the word Baron is derived from the Latin Baro, which in its primary Signification and as uſed by Cicero, means a Blockhead, a Sot, a Dolt, a Fool.

To the PRINTER;

How doth the city ſit ſolitary? She that was great among the nations, and Princeſs among the Provinces.

Jeremiah.

THOU wert the crowning city, whoſe merchants were Princes whoſe traffickers were the honourable of the earth, but thou ſhalt be deſtroyed that was inhabited by ſeafaring men. The iſlands ſhall tremble in the day of thy fall, when thou ſhalt become a deſolate city, not inhabited; for I will make thee a terror and thou ſhalt be no more; though thou be ſought, thou ſhalt not be found.

All the inhabitants of the weſt ſhall be aſtoniſhed at thee, and the merchants among the people ſhall hiſs at thee; thou ſhalt become a heap of deſolation, a city wherein no man dwelleth, for thy riches, and thy fairs, thy merchandize and thy mariners, thy pilots, thy calkers, and the occupiers of thy merchandize, and all the men of war that are in thee, ſhall fall in the day of thy ruin.

Such was the prediction concerning Tyre; whoſe ruin and deſtruction was partly effected by the luxury of its inhabitants, but principally by the unparallelled corruption, debauches, and every other vice in its adminiſtration, whoſe whole aim was the oppreſſion of the people, and therefore many thouſands of the moſt uſeful mechanics and merchants embarked for Carthage, one of its colonies, where the arts ſoon flouriſhed in the ſame degree that they declined at Tyre, and which ended in its overthrow, whilſt Carthage, for many years, ruled moſt of the nations of the Mediterranean.

The fall of the mother country and the riſe of its colony in the above inſtance, ought to be a warning to us; but inſtead of it, we are treading in her ſteps, and rendering it extremely difficult, and next to impoſſible, for a mechanic to live in this country any longer, and therefore they are embarking for our colonies; where an army which coſts this kingdom five hundred thouſand pounds a year, is ſent to ſupport officers in the collection of duties, which do not amount to one hundred and fifty thouſand; an army compoſed of manufacturers, raiſed at Leeds, Halifax, Mancheſter, Norwich, Birmingham, Sheffield, &c Such are the pains that Adminiſtration takes to complete our ruin, by tranſplanting our manufacturers to the colonies, where every man, deſerting from our army, is better and of more value to America, than his weight in gold.

As the truth of this is undeniable, it is of the utmoſt importance, and abſolutely incumbent on the manufacturers of this kingdom, to petition that our army, which is compoſed of artizans and mechanics, be recalled from our colonies, unleſs they are content to ſink into poverty, miſery and ruin, with the many hundreds or thouſands of diſtreſſed manufacturers whom they employ: and that at the ſame time they petition for the repeal of ſuch acts as impoſe duties in America on our own manufactures, which at preſent operates as a bounty given the Americans to make ſuch goods themſelves.

If therefore ſome ſalutary meaſures be not ſoon taken by the merchants & manufacturers of this kingdom, and application made to Government, to withdraw the army from America, as well as to repeal the revenue acts, they may repent, too late, of their indolence and neglect, when that the whole kingdom ſhall have received its fatal wound from the eſtabliſhment of all our manufactures in the colonies. When our riches and our fairs, our merchandize and our mariners, our pilots and our calkers, and the occupiers of our merchandize, ſhall fall to ruin, and our city become deſolate.

A LINEN DRAPER.

NEW-YORK, July 20

Yeſterday met in this city the commiſſioners from the ſeveral colonies, appointed by his Majeſty, for ſettling and fixing the boundaries between this province of New-York and the province of New Jerſey.

By ſeveral private letters come in Captain Salmon, from gentlemen in London, to their correſpondents here, we are aſſured, there are great diſpoſitions in the parliament to repeal the late Revenue act, could they have it done conſiſtent with their own pretenſions;—and they further ſay, that it will be repealed the next, ſeſſions, on condition the Americans behave with, Submiſſion, and acknowledge their right of taxation;—But if thoſe be the terms, the ſtruggle will not be ſo ſoon over; for tho' the Colonies always have been, and are now, all ſubmiſſive, yet it is hoped they never will yield an unconſtitutional Obedience—Capt. Davis in the ſhip Hope, was to ſail in a day or two after Capt. Salmon, and we hear he has twenty thouſand pounds ſterl. in caſh on board, for the uſe of the king's forces in theſe parts; an article wanted more than goods at this time:—The Capts. Richards, Kemble, Tingley, & Townſend, all of this port, were up for their return, and were expected to ſail in a few weeks:—We are told they have very little elſe on board but ballaſt, the merchants here being determined ſtrictly to adhere to the non importation of goods as the moſt apperent means of legally ſaving their diſtreſſed country; and it is ſaid, the very few goods which are now come, are either to be ſent back or ſtored.

BOSTON, July 20.

Yeſterday was held at Cambridge the anniverſary Commencement: at which John Winthrop, Eſq; SR. S Holliſian Profeſſor of Mathematics, in the vacancy of the Preſident's Chair, preſided. In the Forenoon, the Exerciſes were introduced by a Latin Oration, followed by Syllogiſtic Diſputes in Latin upon ſeveral Queſtions; after which there was a Dialogue in the Hebrew Language, and another in Greek;—a Diſcourſe in French on the advancement of the Sciences—a forenſic Diſpute in Engliſh—a Dialogue in Engliſh;—all performed by the candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts: In the afternoon, beſides the ſyllogiſtic diſputes, was an Oration in Engliſh, and a valedictory Oration in Latin as uſual, by the candidates for the degree of Maſters of Arts. The Solemnity was concluded with an Anthem.

The forenſic diſpute was on this Queſtion, Whether Public Liberty can ſubſiſt without the Freedom of the Preſs.

Thurſday laſt his Excellency the Governor was pleaſed to ſend the following Meſſage to the houſe of Repreſentatives, viz.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of repreſentatives,

I HEREBY communicate to you an extract of a Letter I have received ſome Time ago from general GAGE, deſiring that I would lay before you the accounts of the Expenditures incurred by Quartering his Majeſty's Troops at Boſton, that Funds may be provided for diſcharging the ſame. I accordingly lay before you the ſaid accounts, as communicated to me by Col. Robertſon together with a copy of a letter from him upon the Subject. The Vouchers referred to in the ſaid letter are in the hands of Col. Joſeph Goldthwait, who will produce the ſame to your order. I deſire that you will take theſe accounts into your Conſideration, and provide proper Funds for diſcharging the ſame, ſo far at leaſt as you are required by Law.

I am alſo deſired by the General to make a Requiſition to you, that proviſion may be made for the further Quartering His Majeſty's Forces in the town of Boſton, and Caſtle-Iſland, according to act of Parliament.—— This Proviſion was made for the 65th Regiment whilſt it was quatered in the Caſtle-Iſland by my order, with the advice of Council. But now the general Court is ſitting, it is proper that you ſhould take order in this Buſineſs, and eſpecially in providing Funds for that purpoſe, without which further proviſion cannot be made. I deſire you would act thereupon as ſoon as you can, as I underſtand that the Quartering the 29th regiment in the Caſtle Barracks is delayed for want of it. FRA. BERNARD.

Yeſterday his Excellency the Governor was pleaſed to ſend the following Meſſage to the Houſe of Repreſentatives, viz.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

AS the Seſſion is drawing to a concluſion, I muſt deſire that you will give an Anſwer to my meſſage of Thurſday laſt, and that you will diſtinguiſh between the charge. ariſing from the hiring barracks and turniſhing them, and the charges of purchaſing ſuch proviſions as are directed by act of Parliament to be provided by the province; and that you will alſo give an anſwer, whether you will or will not eſtabliſh funds for the future ſupplying proviſions, according to act of Parliament, to the troops quartered in barracks in the town of Boſton, or which ſhall or may be quartered in the provincial barracks on the Caſtle Iſland, or either of them. And I deſire that you will be explicit and diſtinct in theſe particulars, that there may be no miſtake in the report of your reſolutions on theſe heads.

In my former meſſage I omitted to inform you that the barracks on Caſtle Iſland will not conveniently hold a regiment without an additional building for officers rooms;——the want of ſuch a building has been enquired into by the commiſſary and found to be real; and an eſtimate of the expence has been made, which I underſtand amounts to £.260. I deſire that you will take this alſo into conſideration, and let me know your reſolution thereupon FRA. BERNARD.

THE Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

In the Houſe of Repreſentatives, July 14 1769.

ORDERED, That Mr. Hancock, Col. Bowers, Major Hawley, Col. Buckminiſter, and Mr. Otis, be a Committee to wait upon his Excelency the Governor with the following Anſwer to his two Meſſages of the 6th and 12th Inſtant.

T. CUSHING, Speaker.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives have contemplated your ſeveral Meſſages of the 6th and 12th Inſtant, as fully as the time to which you were pleas'd to limit them would admit.

And as General Gage's Letter on this Subject dated 15th of May, of which we are favour'd with an Extract only muſt have been receiv'd before the Meeting of the General Aſſembly, we think it very extraordinary that your Excellency ſhould ſuffer five or ſix weeks to elapſe befour you thought proper, to give us the leaſt Intimation of this Matter. It is alſo ſurprizing that as the Barrack Maſter General, Colonel Robinſon, was in Boſton near a Month, the greater Part of which Time the General Aſſembly was ſitting, we never before heard of the "Demand, which he has had the Honour to make," as he is pleas'd to expreſs himſelf in his Letter to your Excellency of the 13th of June.

It is wonderful indeed that this houſe ſhould have no Notice of that Demand till the 6th Inſtant, and that a quickening Meſſage ſhould ſo ſoon follow. Between theſe Meſſages Lord's Day intervening, the houſe had adjourn'd as uſual from Saturday to Monday.

But it is truly aſtoniſhing that when the gracious Deſires of Majeſty itſelf, of aids in Men and Money, in the late War in which we freely bled with our Fellow Subjects and Brethren of Great Britain, as well as of America, and on other no leſs arduous Occaſions have with Royal Clemency and great Condeſcenſion ever been intimated in the form only of a Requiſition, the Barrack Maſter General ſhould hold ſo high and peremptory a Tone as the the word Demand muſt neceſſarily imply. The Indignity thus offer'd to your Excellency's Commiſſion would have been an Affair intirely between your Excellency and the Barrack Maſter General, had it not been communicated to us, & as an appendage, accompanied your Meſſage of the 6th Inſtant, the Subject of which we ſhall now more immediately conſider.

The public Proceedings of this houſe, will, we truſt, ſufficiently evince to the whole World and to all Poſterity the Idea we entertain of the ſudden Introduction of a Fleet & army here; of the unparrallelled Methods us'd to procure this Armament, and the Indefatigable Pains of your Excellency and a few intereſted Perſons, to keep up a ſtanding army here by Sea and Land in a Time of profound Peace, under the mere Pretence of the Neceſſity of ſuch Force to aid the Civil Authority. But were it a time of War, and the Neceſſity of ſuch a Force ever ſo great, of which it is admitted the King by Virtue of his undoubted Prerogative of marching his Armies, and directing his Fleets to any part of his Realms or Dominions, is the ſole Judge, yet Sir, it ſhou'd ever be remember'd, that the very Nature of a free Conſtitution requires that thoſe Fleets and thoſe armies ſhou'd be ſupported only by the Aids Voluntarily granted by the Commons. Thus till very lately they have been ſupported, not only in Great Britain and Ireland, but in all the Britiſh Dominions.

May it pleaſe your Excellency, We are now conſtrained to be very explicit upon the Funds propos'd, and the Law alluded to, both in your Meſſage of the 6th Inſtant, and in the Extract of General Gage's Letter before us. By Funds we preſume is meant a Proviſion for the Reimburſement of ſuch Expences as have been occaſioned, or may accrue, in Conſequence of quartering the troops here; and by Law we preſume is meant the Mutiny Act ſo commonly call'd, which was paſs'd in the 6th Year of the Reign of our moſt gracious Sovereign. By this Act it is declared the Officers and Soldiers quatered as therein more particularly expreſs'd ſhall from time to time be furniſh'd and ſupplied by a perſon or perſons to be authoriz'd or appointed for that Purpoſe by the Governor and Council of each reſpective Province, or upon the Neglect or Refuſal of ſuch Governor and Council in any Province, then by two or more Juſtices of the Peace reſiding in or near the Place of quartering, with Fire, and other enumerated articles; and that the reſpective Provinces ſhall repay ſuch Perſon or Perſons all ſuch Sum or Sums of Money by him or them paid for the taking, hiring, and fitting up uninhabited houſes, and for furniſhing the Officers and Soldiers therein, and in the barracks, with Fire, and the other enumerated articles; and ſuch Sum or Sums are by ſaid Act required to be raiſed in ſuch Manner as the public Charges for the Provinces reſpeively are raiſed: And it is alſo further declared by the ſaid Act, that the extraordinary Expences of Carriages ſhall be paid by the Province or Colony where the ſame ſhall ariſe.

From hence it is obvious, that the Governor and Council have no more Right by this act to draw Money out of any Colony Treaſury than two or more Juſtices therein mentioned; The Duty preſcribed to them all is entirely confined to the appointment of a Perſon or Perſons to furniſh and ſupply the articles in ſaid Act mentioned. Such is the unreaſonableneſs and ſeverity of the act that it leaves to the ſeveral Aſſemblies on this Continent not even the leaſt colour of Privilege; and only the pitiful power to raiſe the Sums in ſuch Manner as the public Charges of the Provinces reſpectively are raiſed; hence it is manifeſt how unwarrantably the Governor and Council have acted in the Payments they have ordered between the Diſſolution of the laſt Year's Aſſembly and the convening this, for ſupplying the ſixty fifth Regiment lately quartered at Caſtle-William, it being well known there was no Fund provided, conſequently there could be no Appropriation for that Purpoſe.

With your Excellency's Leave we ſhall now take a nearer View of the act of Parliament above mentioned. This whole Continent has for ſome Years paſt been greatly diſtreſs'd with what are called "acts for impoſing taxes on the Coloniſts for the expreſs Purpoſe of raiſing a Revenue," and that without their Conſent in Perſon or Repreſentative. This Subject has been ſo fully handled by the ſeveral Aſſemblies and in the Publications both in Europe and America, that we ſhall be as brief as poſſible upon this head; but muſt take leave to obſerve, that in ſtrict Propriety all thoſe acts may be rather called Acts for raiſing a Tribute in America for the Purpoſes of Diſſipation among Placemen and Penſioners. And if the preſent Syſtem of Meaſures ſhould be much further purſued, it will ſoon be very difficult, if poſſible, to diſtinguiſh the caſe of Widows and Orphans in America, plunder'd by infamous informers, from thoſe who ſuffer'd under the Adminiſtration of the moſt oppreſſive of Governors of the Roman Provinces, at a Period when that once proud and haughty Republic, after having, ſubjugated the fineſt Kingdoms in the world, and drawn all the Treaſures of the Eaſt to imperial Rome, fell a Sacrifice to the unbounded Corruption and Venality of its Grandees. But of all the new Regulations, the Stamp-Act not excepted, this under Conſideration is the moſt exceſſively unreaſonable. For in Effect, the yet free Repreſentatives of the free Aſſemblies of North-America are called upon, to pay of their own and their Conſtituents Money, ſuch Sum or Sums as Perſons, over whom they can have no Check or Controul may be pleas'd to expend! As Repreſentatives we are deputed by the people, agreeable to the Royal Charter and the Laws of this Province. By that Charter and by the Nature of our Truſt, we are empower'd "to grant ſuch Aids, and to levy ſuch taxes for his Majeſty's Service as are reaſonable," of which if we are free and independant Judges we can no longer be free Repreſentatives, nor our Conſtituents free Subjects. If we are free Judges, we are at Liberty to follow the Dictates of our own Underſtanding, regardleſs of the Mandates of others. It is impoſſible we ſhould be free Judges, if we are but blindly to give as much of our own, and our conſtituents Money, as may be demanded by thoſe we know not.

Your Excellency muſt therefore excuſe us in this our expreſs Declaration, that as we cannot, conſiſtently with our own Honor, our Intereſt, much leſs with the Duty we owe our Conſtituents, we never ſhall make any Proviſion of Funds for the Purpoſes in your ſeveral Meſſages above mentioned.

Saturday laſt his Excellency the Governor was pleas'd to Prorogue the Great and General Court or aſſembly of this Province, to Wedneſday the 10th Day of January next, after making the following Speech.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

AT the opening of this Seſſion, I had in contemplation the expediency of paſſing the public Bills which were neceſſary to the Government with all due expedition, and particularly the Supply bill, without which the whole provincial Debt, by a law then ſubſiſting, would have been levied in one Year, which would have been a great Burthen upon the People. And I had reſolved with myſelf to promote the expediting ſuch neceſſary Bills, and to avoid and remove, as far as I could, all difficulties which might obſtruct the ſame. But you Gentlemen, had not the ſame Diſpoſition: you not only put a ſtop to all real Buſineſs with the moſt trifling pretences for ſome weeks together; but you endeavoured, by all means you could, to oblige me, in the courſe of my Duty, to put an abrut end to the Seſſion, before you would permit the neceſſary Buſineſs of the Province even to be brought before you.

In this, Gentlemen, you had ſome ſucceſs: you put me under the difficulty of either not making proper Proviſion for the neceſſary Service of the Government, which could not be done without continuing the Seſſion, or by a continuation of it, ſhewing a want of regard to the dignity of the Crown. The aſſertions, which you have from the beginning of the Seſſion to this time continued to iſſue, in direct Oppoſition to the Senſe of the ſovereign Legiſlature, as it has been lately declared and in terms entirely inconſiſtent with the Idea of this Province being a Part of the Britiſh Empire, would have demanded of me an immediate Vindication of the honor of the crown, by putting an early End to this Seſſion, if I had not been reſtrained by my concern for the Exigencies of the ſtate. And I muſt rely upon his Majeſty's favourable indulgence in accepting my attention to the Neceſſities of the people, in lieu of the reſentment which was due to the miſbehavior of their Repreſentatives.

To his Majeſty therefore and, if he pleaſes, to his Parliament muſt be referred your invaſion of the rights of the imperial Sovereignty. By your own acts you will be judged: you need not be apprehenſive of any Miſrepreſentations as it is not in the power of your enemies, if you have any, to add to your publications: they are plain and explicit, and need no comment.

It is my duty, and I ſhall do it with regret, to tranſmit to the King true Copies of your Proceedings: and, that his Majeſty may have an Opportunity to ſignify his Pleaſure thereupon before you meet again, I think it neceſſary to Prorogue this General court immediately to the uſual time of its Meeting for the Winter Seſſion.

ADVICES by the PACKET.

From the LONDON GAZETTE.

WESTMINSTER, May 9.

THIS day his Majeſty went to the houſe of Peers, and the commons being ſent for, and come thither, his Majeſty was pleaſed to give his royal aſſent to,

An act for granting to his Majeſty a certain ſum of money out of the Sinking Fund; and for applying a certain ſum, therein mentioned, for the ſervice of the year 1769.

An act for granting to his Majeſty a certain ſum of money, to be raiſed by a Lottery.

An act for applying certain monies, therein mentioned, for the ſervice of the year 1769.

An act for the better ſecuring the Duties of Cuſtoms upon certain goods removed from the Outports and other places to London.

An act for farther encouraging the growth and culture of raw ſilk in America.

An act to permit the free importation of raw hides and ſkins from Ireland and America.

An act for explaining, amending, and continuing an act to reduce the Militia Laws into one act.

An act for defraying the charge of the pay and clothing to the Militia.

And to ſeveral other Bills.

After which his Majeſty was pleaſed to make the following moſt gracious Speech;

" My Lords and Gentlemen

" HAVING thought it neceſſary to give ſo early a commencement to the preſent Seſſion of Parliament, I am glad to find, that by your Zeal and aſſiduity in the Diſpatch of the public Buſineſs, I am now enabled to relive you from your attendance, before the ſeaſon of the year is too far advanced.

' I cannot put an end to the Seſſion, without expreſſing my entire approbation of your conduct, and thanking you for that clear Demonſtration, which your Proceedings, through the whole Courſe of the Seſſion, have afforded to all the world, of the affectionate attechment of my Parliament to my Perſon and Government, as well as of their ſteady adherence to the true Intereſt of their Country.

' It was with much Satisfaction that I obſerved your particular attention to thoſe great national Objects, which, at the Seſſion, I recommended to your more immediate conſideration. The Reſult of your Deliberations, reſpecting the late acquiſitions in the Eaſt-Indies, has ſhewn, that you were not more attentive to the immediate Benefit ariſing therefrom in Point of Revenue, than to the Securing, at all Events, the permanent Commercial Intereſts of the Country, and guarding againſt every poſſible Diſcouragement to our own Manufactures, and to the Induſtry of my Subjects. What more remains to be done, for ſecuring the Poſſeſſion of thoſe acquiſitions, you will, I doubt not, proceed to provide for, with all convenient Diſpatch, at your next Meeting.

' The Meaſures which I had taken regarding the late unhappy Diſturbances in North America, have been already laid before you. They have received your approbation; & you have aſſured me of firm Support in the Proſecution of them. Nothing, in my Opinion, could be more likely to enable the well diſpoſed among my Subjects in that part of the world, effectually to encourage and defeat the deſigns of the Factious and Seditious, than the hearty Concurrence of every Branch of the Legiſlature in the Reſolution of maintaining the Execution of the Laws in every Part of my Dominions. And there is nothing I more ardently wiſh for, than to ſee it produce that good Effect.

' With Reſpect of Foreign affairs, my own Determination, as well as the aſſurances given me by the other Powers of Europe, continue the ſame as I communicated to you at the Beginning of this Seſſion; And however unſucceſsful my attempts have proved for preventing the unfortunate Rupture that happened between Ruſſia and the Porte, I ſhall not fail to uſe my good Offices towards reſtoring Peace between thoſe Powers; and I truſt, that the Calamities of War will not extend to any other part of Europe."

"Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

' My particular Thanks are due to you, as well for the Supplies which you have granted me for the Services of the current Year, as for the Proviſion which you have made for enabling me to diſcharge the debt incurred upon account of my civil Government. Your readineſs in relieving me from the Difficulties increaſing upon me from the continuance of that Debt, I ſhall ever conſider as an additional Motive for me to endeavour to confine the Expences of my Civil Government within ſuch Bounds, as the honour of my Crown can poſſibly admit.

" My Lords and Gentlemen,

' It gives me great Concern to be obliged to recommend to you, with more than ordinary Earneſtneſs, that you would all, in your ſeveral Counties, exert your utmoſt Efforts for the Maintenance of public Peace, and of good order among my People. You muſt be ſenſible, that whatever obſtructs in any degree, the regular Execution of the Laws, or weakens the authority of the Magiſtrate, muſt leſſen the only Security which my People can have for the undiſturbed Enjoyment of their Rights and Liberties. From your Endeavours in this common cauſe, I promiſe myſelf the moſt ſalutary effect: On my part, no Countenance or Support ſhall be wanting; for as I have ever made, and ever ſhall make, our excellent Conſtitution the Rule of my own conduct, ſo ſhall I always conſider it as equally my duty to exert every Power, with which that conſtitution has entruſted me, for preſerving it ſafe from Violation of every Kind; being fully convinced, that in ſo doing I ſhall moſt effectually provide for the true Intereſt and happineſs of my People."

Then the Lord Chancellor, by his Majeſty's Command, ſaid:

" My Lords and Gentlemen,

' It is his Majeſty's Royal will and pleaſure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Wedneſday the 14th of June next to be then held; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Wedneſday the 14th of June next."

LONDON, May 5.

A convention between Paoli and the French Court has been in agitation theſe three months paſt, in order to ſuſpend all hoſtile engagements during this ſummer; and by ſome recent circumſtances not yet publickly tranſpired, it is foretold the conqueſt of Corſica will not be completed, and very likely not undertaken, this year.

There will be no Engliſh forces ſent out of England to the European Continent on any account. As to a certain monarchs's demands, they will not be complied with by this adminiſtration, whoſe maxims are totally anticontinental.

Great pains, it is ſaid, are taken to prevent the Middleſex Petition from being preſented. However, it is upon its travels, and on Saturday laſt was ſubſcribed by full 2000 Freeholders.

May 18. By letters from Corſica we are informed, that General Paoli, in an aſſembly which he held laſt month, told his countrymen, "That before the month of July next, if they behaved properly, they would probably be their own maſters; at the ſame time adviſing them to take whatever ſteps they liked; but that, for his own part, he was determined to defend his country to the laſt drop of his blood, in conjunction with four or five thouſand ſelect friends, whoſe courage and fidelity he could depend on."

It is ſaid that Gen. Paoli has lately numbered the inhabitants of his Iſland, and that he found 40,000 able to bear arms, excluſive of them who had enliſted under the French colours.

It is now ſaid, that notwithſtanding the preſent exultations, the friends of Liberty will ſhortly appear with ſuch eclat as will aſtoniſh all Europe.

May 20. By letters arrived yeſterday from Poland, we hear that Prince Gallitzin, at the head of the Ruſſian army, opened the trenches before Chozim on the 5th inſt. and that the turks had retired, after throwing a body of 10,000 into that fortreſs.

There is a report that the Empreſs of Ruſſia has made very important overtures to the Grand Maſter, and the Knights of Malta, to aſſiſt her in her preſent rupture with the turks, and that warlike community have actually her Imperial Majeſty's propoſals under ſerious conſideration.

Conſiderable wagers have been laid at the Weſt end of the town that (provided the fortreſs of Azoph, as reported, is taken from the Turks) the Ruſſians will be maſters of Conſtantinople before this day twelve month: And large odds have been taken, that the Ruſſian troops will even garriſon that capitol the enſuing winter.

Extract of a letter from Paris, May 10.

" No government ever ſhewed ſtronger ſymptoms of a more convulſed ſtate than France does at this period; the critical moment is arrived, and the power of this Government is at its laſt gaſp; another month determines its greatneſs for ever, or, will render the kingdom of France trifling and contemptible: The Court are Deiſts, the Parliament of France Janſeniſts, the army and people zealous Catholicks; the Miniſter of France ſenſible the revenue of the kingdom is unable another year to ſupport the dignity of its Monarch: The charge of the army, the expences of the marine, and the civil branches of government, has planned a reformation; and conſequently the ſeiſure of the whole eccleſiaſtical revenue. Such a vaſt accumulation of riches, and ſuch an addition of uſeful ſubjects, by the total ſuppreſſion of the religious orders, will give France more real greatneſs and power, than the moſt ſucceſsful war. The army, who are the greateſt obſtacle. The Fineſſe of Corſica, of garriſoning Genoa, of aſſiſting Spain, and the embarkation for Sweden, are to employ many battalions, it is ſaid, ninety. The Swiſs and German troops in the pay of France, are to be encamped not far from Paris, to be reviewed by the King; but, in fact, to awe the capital. The time of the conclave renders it impoſſible for the papal power immediatly to interfere; the Jeſuits then remain the only obſtacle; they are to be bribed by being reſtored to their poſſeſſions in Spain and Portugal, ſwearing allegiance to the Miniſter of France.

Louis the Fifteenth is to ſurpriſe the Parliament of Paris, by a ſudden declaration that all religious orders are inſtantly ſuppreſſed, the office of Farmer General annihilated, and the tax upon ſalt remitted to his beloved ſubjects; that a tenth of the eccleſiaſtical revenue is to be granted to the collegiate churches, another tenth to the public ſchools and hoſpitals; the remainder to the relief of the ſubject, and maintenance of the aged perſons of the different orders. Louis is then to be declared the patron of the Gallican Church, and the ſaviour of France."

NEW YORK, July 27.

On Thurſday laſt arrived here the ſhip Hope, Capt. Benjamin Davies from London, in 8 weeks.

We can aſſure the public, that his Excellency our Governor, has received a letter from Lord Hilsborough (by Capt. Davis) acquainting him, that his Majeſty and his Miniſters would uſe their utmoſt endeavours at the opening of the next Seſſion of parliament to obtain a repeal of all the American revenue acts.

In Capt. Davis came ſeveral paſſengers, which, with the ſhip's crew, juſt amounted to 45!——and he has brought 45 thouſand dollars for the uſe of the government, and was juſt 45 days from his laſt port.

Capt. Kemble was to ſail in about a fortnight after him, to be loaded chiefly with King's ſtores, and was to bring another ſum of nearly the ſame value.

Extract of a letter from London, dated May 3.

" Public affairs here continue in as great confuſion as ever. Wilkes's cauſe, or rather the cauſe of Liberty, gains new Friends every Day. The Freeholders of Middleſex have ſigned a petition to his Majeſty, complaining of a great number of grievances, and particularly of their being deprived of the Freedom of chooſing their own repreſentative to ſit in Parliament. This petition will be preſented in a Day or two: If they are denied Redreſs of their Grievances, it is dangerous to ſay what will be the conſequence. Our American affairs are forgot, amidſt the greater noiſe of the commotions here. It gives great pleaſure to all the Friends of the colonies, to hear that all is quiet in America; by theſe means we ſhall defeat the deſigns of the M——y, who ſeem deſirous to drive us to deſperation. The agreement amongſt our Merchants, to import no more goods, will plead with more eloquence in our favour, than a thouſand petitions. Let us ſtudy OEconomy.——let us encourage our own manufactures,—and above all, let us be united amongſt ourſelves, and we ſhall yet be a rich and powerful people."

Extract of a Letter from London, dated May 13.

" I can give you news which I think can be depended on, highly intereſting to every American. I have this day been aſſured, that the King and council have come to reſolutions favourable to the colonies; and that the acts ſo much complained of, will certainly be repealed, immediately on the meeting of the parliament."

Extract of a letter from London dated May 25.

' You will I ſuppoſe, from your governor be informed of the reſolution of the King and Council, to repeal the acts you complain of the next Seſſions, the American committee refuſed to convey the intelligence to America; a reſolution I ſtrenuouſly ſupported: It appears to me rather extraordinary, that miniſters ſhould publickly venture to anſwer for the reſolutions of parliament; but it is of a piece with their conduct, which has been moſt extraordinary; it ſeems however, to ſhew you, they are heartily ſick of the diſpute, and will tend to preſerve peace and tranquility among you. Will it be likewiſe ſufficient to induce you to cancel your reſolutions? Recind I think is the word, if you do you are——and we ſhall ſoon know what you are made of.

NEWPORT, July 22.

LAST Monday Morning the 17th Inſtant, the armed Sloop Liberty, commanded by Capt. William Reid, arrived here and bro't in a Brig and a Sloop belonging to Connecticut, taken in the Sound, without this colony, on Suſpicion of the Brig's having done ſome illicit act, & that the Sloop had contraband Goods on Board; but as no proof appeared againſt the Brig, ſhe reported her Cargo at the Cuſtom Houſe here;—and on Wedneſday, no Proſecution having been enter'd againſt either of them, Capt. Packwood went on Board his brig in Order to get his ſword and ſome neceſſary apparel, which the Commanding Officer on board, (one of the Liberty's Men) refuſed to let him bring away, and 'tis ſaid, offer'd him Violence; which reduced Capt. Packwood to the neceſſity of drawing his ſword, to force his way into his boat, whereupon the Officer call'd to the liberty's People to fire on Capt. Packwood as he was going aſhore, which they did, and a brace of balls, tis ſuppos'd, went very near but did not hurt him; they then attempted to fire ſeveral more Guns upon him, which they happily all ſnapped or flaſhed and could not be diſcharged.

This attempt of violence by the Liberty's people, whoſe commander had never condeſcended to exhibit his Commiſſion to the Governor of this colony, enraged a Number of perſons, that, the enſuing evening having met Capt. Reid on the Long-Wharf, they obliged him to ſend for his men on ſhore, in order to diſcover the man who firſt fired at Capt. Packwood; upon which Capt. Reid ſent for all his hands except his mate, afterwards a Number of perſons, unknown, went on board the Liberty, ſent the mate away, cut her cables and let her drive aſhore at the point, where they cut away her Maſt, ſcuttled her and carried both her boats to the upper part of this town and burnt them.——While this affair was tranſacting, the ſloop ſuſpected of having contraband goods on board made her eſcape; and the brig has ſince received her papers and ſail'd laſt Friday.

Meſſ. Green & Watſon,

By inſerting the following in your next you will lay a recent obligation on

An Old Cuſtomer.

IN your paper, Nº 235, I find a very extraordinary piece—the ingenious author of this admirable performence, after ſundry learned poſitions concerning union, incorporate bodies, confederacies, &c. hath bro't in a heavy charge againſt the medical corporation of Litchfield county. I was not a little ſurpris'd to find a perſon ſo deſtitute of underſtanding and loſt to all virtue and goodneſs, as to write againſt any attempts for the regulation of the practice of phyſic; when its well known, that all learned and wiſe nations have thought it not only their intereſt, but indiſpenſable duty to encourage phyſical ſocieties—I ſhall not waſte time and paper, in taking notice of the ungenerous and unpolite reflections with which this writer hath loaded the medical corporation; but only remark upon the inconſiſtency and incoherence of his ſatyrical harangues. He ſays, "when any ſociety or body corporate "is found not to anſwer the general good "as was propos'd in its formation, it is "beſt in ſuch caſe to diſband." "Such "(ſays he) I humbly conceive the medical "corporation of Litchfield county to be." What this general good is, that was propos'd in the ſocieties firſt formation, our author tells us, where he ſays the deſign of this ſociety was, "to promote a good agreement amongſt its members, endeavour "to be mutually aſſiſting to each other in the "healing art, and to keep out all quacks "and vain pretenders to phyſic." But this grand thing ſays he which is to keep out quacks and vain pretenders, "can, under "its preſent conſtitution, in no meaſure "be anſwered." We have had, continues he, "too many proofs of this (ſince the ſociety's formation) to doubt of the truth "of the aſſertion." What theſe proofs are, which our author hints at, I am unable to gueſs, unleſs it be true (as he ſays in his cloſe) that, "he has himſelf had the honor to be a "member of the ſociety." the firſt argument brought to prove this daring aſſertion is, that the ſociety have lately received one into their body, who had read ſome, but never liv'd with any practitioner or been in the practice himſelf. To which I anſwer that had the ſociety receiv'd ſuch a one into their body, it would be no argument againſt its honor or rectitude, for this very perſon, with a good genius, and the help of books, might be a good theoriſt, and well qualified for the practice, without ever living with any practitioner. Of this inſtances are notorious: witneſs ſome of the beſt phyſicians in this colony, who were never under the care of any particular tutor. But here I muſt inform our author, that he has made a miſtake; for I have attended every convention of the medical corporation for this two years laſt paſt, and no perſon has been received but who had been (more or leſs) under the tuition of ſome practitioner; nor have any been received, without examination, but ſuch as have been ſome time in the practice; and for the truth of this I appeal to the corporation—I find that this uncommon writer differs very much in his ſentiments from the reſt of mankind. Let us now examine a little to ſee whether he agrees with himſelf. He ſays, that "the deſign of the ſociety was to promote a good agreement & harmony amongſt its members, by aſſiſting each other in the healing art, endeavouring to keep out quacks and vain pretenders." He alſo ſays that "the majority of this ſociety are themſelves quacks and vain pretenders." Now this accurate reaſoner can't be ſo miſtaken in his logic, as to ſuppoſe that this majority of quacks and pretenders had a deſign to keep out quacks and pretenders unleſs he ſuppoſes they had a deſign againſt themſelves: he therefore muſt ſuppoſe that it was ſome of the principal members (as he is pleaſed to call them) who had this noble end in view.—— Well, let us hear what his charity is for theſe principal members.——"I wiſh (ſays he) there was no reaſon to complain of inſincerity even among ſome of the principal members and firſt promoters of the affair. Some who are deſirous to agrandize themſelve, and father their blunders upon their neighbours" Now, if our author believes that the deſign of the principal members of this ſociety is to aggrandize themſelves, and father their blunders upon their neighbours—— —— and alſo believes the majority of this ſociety are themſelves quacks, then he does not believe (as he ſays) that the deſign of the ſociety was to promote a good agreement amongſt its members, endeavouring to aſſiſt each other in the healing art, and to keep out quacks, &c. If he ſhould ſay that altho' the deſign of the ſociety in its firſt formation, was good and honorable, yet it has now loſt its honor and virtue. I will notify him that he has precluded himſelf from ſuch a pretended evaſion becauſe he has ſaid that the very exiſtance and firſt formation of the ſociety is bad, and the deſign of ſome of the principal members and firſt promoters of it is diſhonorable.

Numb. 242.

THE

Connecticut COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

BOSTON, July 27. 1769.

Extract of a Letter from a Peer of the firſt Blood in Britain, to his Friend in N. America, dated April 13.

SIR,

"I Have not been an unfeeling ſpectator of your diſtreſſes, of the common calamities of your native country; but as Tully writes, being neither able to bear the manners of the Princes, or of the People, I have thought fit, under the Shelter of the greateſt examples, to retire from civil broils to my little paternal inheritance.——

'If I had thought that my mingling any longer in the political croud could have done any ſervice to my country, I wou'd not have adopted a plan of domeſtic, ſtudious, or rural retirement. But as things are now ſituated, I think myſelf happy in my ſilent retreat from the unhappy diſſentions of a too much convulſed and corrupted common wealth.

'From this virtuous and contemplative retirement, I will never conſent to withdraw myſelf, whilſt I ſee things in the light I now do: Should any critical events happen to reſtore the loſt manners of the Britiſh empire, and to open a channel for the exerciſe of any little talents of which I may be poſſeſſed, for the good of my country, no one will come forth whith greater pleaſure or alacrity than myſelf: Penetrated as I have been from my tendereſt youth, with the higheſt ſentiments of truth, honor and righteouſneſs of action. I rejoice in writing with ſincerity ſuch a letter to ſuch a man, and even in my ſecret hours of meditation, or in the more animated intercourſes of my little ſociety, I ſhall often wiſh and pray for the accompliſhment of thoſe happy changes for which you breathe, and have often breath'd your benevolent deſires.——

'Farewell Sir, be of good courage, and remember that even in theſe laſt times you had the comfort to receive ſuch praiſes, and ſuch ſympathetic expreſſions of emotion from the deſpiſed remnant of a deſpiſed, and unfortunate, yet a bold and generous race of Patriots. Tell Mr. Cuſhing and thoſe other gentlemen whoſe regards I poſſeſs and value, that I remember them with honor and with pleaſure; tell them, tell all who deſerve to be told ſo, that there is a Peer in Britain who is a true friend to injured innocence and to America; one who loves Liberty and virtuous Exertions for their own ſakes, and not for the popular applauſes which often accompany them. That he withdraws himſelf from his reward, and is preparing himſelf diligently for a better country.

I am with high Conſideration and Eſteem, Sir, your obedient humble Servant ——."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of Diſtinction in London, to his Friend in Boſton, dated May 20 1769.

MY laſt incloſed you the King's Speech, by which you will ſee the Temper of the Miniſtry at that Time: They ſince induſtriouſly ſpread it about the City that the obnoxious acts will be repealed next Seſſion, the firſt Buſineſs it enters upon, if the people of America remain quiet till then: They have adviſed ſeveral Merchants to write over to that Purpoſe.——With regard to my own Sentiments, I cannot adviſe you to lay aſide one Meaſure which you have prudently fixed upon; becauſe if there ſhould be a Diſappointment or Delay, your People will grow impatient, and it will be difficult to return to your Methods of Oeconomy after they have been once ſuſpended: You have other Difficulties which muſt be removed before the affection between the Mother Country and her Colonies can be re-eſtabliſhed.——The Freeholders of Middleſex are preparing a Petition, in which the Concerns of America are introduced, and ſome of the Grievances pointed at which will diſcover the Senſe of that body relative to your affairs.——A united and peaceable Purſuit of the Conduct you have adopted, until you obtain the end you have at heart, is warmly recommended by your humble Servant.

We are aſſured from undoubted authority, that the adminiſtration is well diſpoſed to relieve the colonies againſt all real grievances ariſing from the late acts of revenue: and tho' the preſent miniſters have concurred in the opinion of the whole legiſlature, that no meaſures ought to be taken which can derogate from the legiſlative authority of Great Britain over the colonies, yet they have declared that they have at no time entertained a deſign to propoſe any further taxes upon America for the purpoſe of a revenue, & that it is their intention to propoſe in the next ſeſſion of parliament to take off the duties upon glaſs, paper and colours, upon a conſideration of ſuch duties being contrary to the true principles of commerce.

It is reported in town that two of the commiſſioners are ordered home.

L O N D O N.

In the Courſe of the laſt Seſſions of Parliament, 35 new Members took the Oaths and their Seats, occaſioned by Deaths, Promotions, or conteſted Elections. On Whitſun-Monday and Tuſeday, a great concorſe of People aſſembled in St. Gorge's-Fields, and in honour of the popular priſoner, kept a fare there, which in all probabilty, will for the future be annually held, and called Wilkes's Fare.

It being obſerved at the court end of the town, that Mr. Wilkes had been bought off, a certain Nobleman then preſent ſaid, that it was ungenerous to charge a man with a Crime, which could not be prov'd againſt him, ſhould it appear that Mr. Wilkes had accepted a Penſion, he, tho' one of his warmeſt admirers, would poſt him for a Scoundrel.

The petion of Grievances and apprehenſions will be preſented without any Noiſe, for tho' it has been ſaid to be laid aſide, yet it is upon its Travels, & ſubſcribed by full 3000 of the moſt eminent Freeholders.—The Meeting of the Supporters of the bill of rights, after receiving the report of their committee, and a copy of their Circular letter to be ſent throughout England (declaring the Motives that induced them to unite, and giving an Account of their Subſcriptions, &c.) which received their approbation, adjourned their Meeting to a Fortnight before the next Seſſion of Parliament ſhould commence.

May 25. Yeſterday the petition of the Freeholders of the County of Middleſex, was preſented to his Majeſty at St. James's by Mr. Serjeant Glynn, John Sawbridge, and James Townſhend, Eſqrs. Mr. Bellas, Mr. Aſkew, Mr. Ellis, and the Rev. Dr. Wilſon, which his Majeſty was pleaſed to receive and expreſſed his Satisfaction at their having brought it in ſo private a Way to avoid the leaſt Tumult; he aſſured them that he would refer it to the Conſideration of the Parliament, as ſoon as they ſhould meet for the Diſpatch of Buſineſs.—Mr. Serjeant Glynn, intended to have preſented the Petition, but being unable to kneel, Mr. Aſkew did that honour in his Stead; the ſame day a Cabinet council was held, after which his Majeſty return'd to Richmond,—The Number of Names ſigned to the Petition is 2220, and is the Majority of the Freeholders.

It is abſolutely determined by the Miniſtry, that all the act relative to taxing America, ſhall be repeal'd at the Opening of the next Seſſions of Parliament.

A Daily paper ſays, that the town of Boſton clears £. 253. per Week, by the Reſidence of the Troops there; and it is alſo ſaid, that the Rev. Mr. Apthorp, of that town, for whom the greateſt Intereſt is making for the intended Biſhoprick of America, has given his Opinion, that the moſt proper Place for his Reſidence would be at Philadelphia, it being the centre of the Colonies.

At the anniverſary Meeting of the ſons of the Clergy at St. Paul's, the collection was only £. 794. which was £. 111. leſs then laſt year, the reaſon was partly owing to the Ridotto all Freſco, being the night before at Vauxhall Gardens, there being above Seven Thouſand perſons there, and admitted at half a Guinea each, ſo that inſtead of a Rehearſal of Muſic at St. Paul's for that Charity, it will be better to have yearly a Ridetto all Freſco, at Vauxhall Gardens, above 500 of the perſons who went there, were left dancing till Six a clock in the Morning, there were many fancy dreſſes, and above 500 were admitted by 10 the evening before, that night not a Hanckney Coach was to be ſeen in London.

The parliament had broke up, and nothing done for America, in regard to taking off the duties, but is expected at their next Sitting it will be their firſt attention, and is to be ſettled to the Satisfaction of both: Upon theſe preſumtions and promiſes, ſeveral of the Merchants in London are upon ſhipping goods as uſual, expecting they will be properly received, to the Satisfaction of their correſpondents.

The News brought from the Eaſt Indies by the laſt Ships, has affected India ſtock 20 per cent, as juſt before their arrival it was at 267, and now is as low as 248, and its feared it will fall yet 40 or 50 per Cent. May 25. Yeſterday the Petition of the Freeholders of Middleſex which has been ſo long preparing, was preſented to his Majeſty at St James's, and moſt graciouſly received; to avoid tumults no more than 7 gentlemen went with it.

Lord Willoughby was the nobleman who introduced Mr Serjeant Glynn and the reſt of the gentlemen who delivered the Middleſex petition to his Majeſty, who was graciouſly pleaſed to accept it, and received the petitioners in a manner that does the higheſt honour to the good ſenſe of our auguſt Sovereign, and evinces, in the cleareſt manner, that George, the well-beloved, is ſincerely diſpoſed to reign in the hearts of all his ſubjects.

We are aſſured that no anſwer was given to the above petition, but that in a few days the freeholders will wait on his majeſty again for his anſwer.

The Middleſex Petition, preſented yeſterday to his Majeſty, was ſigned by 1565 Freeholders.

An Evening Paper ſays, "It is now expected, that the firſt hoſtilities, preparative to a war, and previous to a declaration, will be ſtruck againſt our ſettlements in the Eaſt Indies.

Yeſterday a grand council, ſaid to be on plantation affairs, was held at the Cockpit, Whitehall, at which moſt of the great officers of ſtate aſſiſted.

May 29 A certain Great Perſonage, it is ſaid, upon reading over a late Petition, told thoſe that were with him, who were ſmiling at it, "That it required more mature conſideration than they were aware of."

It is alſo rumoured, that a Nobleman obſerved, after reading it, that the Freeholders who ſtand forth as the Patrons and Supporters of the Libery of the Subject have abſolutely, by the mode of delivery & ſome expreſſions in the Petition, ſhewn themſelves deſirous of throwing more power than ever into the hands of Prerogative.

It is reported that when Mr. Meadows, who accompained Lord Pembroke to Corſica, was aſked by the count de Vaux, what he thought of the ſtrength of the Corſicans? He anſwered, that he imagined they were very powerful, and that the reduction of the iſland would be extremely difficult. The French General replied. "Sir, you Engliſhmen think too much of the power and courage of theſe iſlanders, but a few weeks will certainly ſet you right on that head, as I flatter myſelf it is eaſy to make a complete conqueſt of the iſland in that time."

May 30 It is ſaid that the account inſerted in the Papers, that a Great Perſonage would refer the Middleſex Petition to the conſideration of Parliament is premature; and it is further ſaid that a cabinet council will ſhortly be held on account of the ſaid petition.

Yeſterday arrived here the Ship Boſcawen, Capt. Jacobſon from LONDON, but laſt from Plymouth, who bro't a Print of the 5th of June, from which we have taken the following extraordinary, and very intereſting intelligence, Viz.

To the KING'S moſt Excellent Majeſty.
The HUMBLE PETITION of the FREEHOLDERS of the county of MIDDLESEX.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign.

WE, your Majeſty's dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the freeholders of the county of Middleſex, beg leave, with all affectionate ſubmiſſion & humility, to throw ourſelves at your Royal Feet, and humbly to implore your paternal attention to thoſe grievances, of which this county and the whole nation complain, and thoſe fearful apprehenſions, with which the whole Britiſh empire is moſt …

… premote and counſel ſuch meaſures as cannot fail to deſtroy that harmony and confidence, which ſhould ever ſubſiſt between a juſt and virtuous Prince, a free and loyal people.

For this diſaffected purpoſe they have introduced into every part of the adminiſtration of our happy, legal conſtitution, a certain unlimited and indefinite diſcretionary power; to prevent which is the ſole aim of all our laws, and was the ſole cauſe of all thoſe diſturbances and revolutions, which formerly diſtracted this unhappy country; for our anceſtors, by their own fatal experience, well knew in a State where diſcretion begins, law, liberty and ſafety end. Under the pretence of this diſcretion, or, as it was formerly and has been lately called—law of ſtate—we have ſeen

Engliſh ſubjects, and even a member of the Britiſh legiſlature, arreſted by virtue of a general warrant, iſſued by a Secretary of ſtate, and contrary to the law of the land——

Their houſes rifled and plundered, their papers ſeized, and uſed as evidence upon trial——

Their bodies committed to cloſe impriſonment——

The habeas corpus eluded——

Trial by jury diſcountenanced, and the firſt Law officer of the crown publickly inſinuating that juries are not to be truſted——

Printers puniſhed by the miniſtry in the ſupreme court without a trial by their equals, without any trial at all.——

The remedy of the law for falſe impriſonment barred and defeated.—

The plaintiff and his attorney for their appeal to the law of the land, puniſhed by expences and impriſonment, and made by forced engagements to deſiſt from their legal claim—

A writing determined to be a court where it was not cognizable in the firſt inſtance, contrary to law, becauſe all appeal is thereby cut off and inferior courts and juries influenced by ſuch predetermination——

A perſon condemned in ſaid court as the author of the ſuppoſed libel unheard, without defence or trial——

Unjuſt treatment of petitions, by ſelecting only ſuch parts as might be wreſted to criminate the petitioner, and refuſing to hear thoſe which might procure him redreſs——

The thanks of one part of the legiſlature propoſed by a miniſter to be given to an acknowledged offender for his offence, with the declared intention of ſcreening him from law——

Attachments wreſted from their original intent of removing obſtructions to the proceedings of law, to puniſh by ſentence of arbitrary fine and impriſonment, without trial or appeal, ſuppoſed offences, committed out of court——

Perpetual impriſonment of an Engliſhman without trial, conviction, or ſentence, by the ſame mode of attachment, wherein the ſame perſon is at once party, accuſer, judge, and jury——

Inſtead of the ancient and legal civil police, the military introduced at every opportunity, unneceſſarily and unlawfully patrolling the ſtreets, to the alarm and terror of the inhabitants——

The lives of many of your Majeſty's innocent ſubjects deſtroyed by military execution——

Such military execution ſolemnly adjudged to be legal——

Murder abbetted, encouraged, and rewarded.——

The civil magiſtracy rendered contemptible by the appointment of improper and incapable perſons——

The civil magiſtrates tampered with by adminiſtration, and neglecting & refuſing to diſcharge their duty—

Mobs and riots hired and raiſed by the miniſtry, in order to juſtify and recommend their own illegal proceedings, and to prejudice your Majeſty's mind by falſe inſinuations againſt the loyalty of your Majeſty's ſubjects—

The freedom of election violated by corrupt and undue influence, by unpuniſhed violence and murder.——The juſt verdicts of juries, and the opinion of the judges over ruled by falſe repreſentations to your Majeſty;

Obſolete and vexatious claims of the crown ſet on foot for partial and electing purpoſes—

Partial attacks on the liberty of the preſs; the moſt daring and pernicious libels againſt the conſtitution, and againſt the liberty of the ſubject, being allowed to paſs unnoticed, whilſt the ſlighteſt libel againſt a miniſter is puniſhed with the utmoſt rigour——

Wicked attempts to increaſe and eſtabliſh a ſtanding army, by endeavouring to veſt in the crown an unlimited power over the militia; which, ſhould they ſucceed, muſt, ſooner or later, ſubvert the conſtitution, by augmenting the power of adminiſtration in proportion to their delinquency——

Repeated endeavours to diminiſh the importance of members of parliament individually, in order to render them more dependent on adminiſtration collectively. Even threats having been employed by miniſters to ſuppreſs the freedom of debate; and the wrath of parliament denounced againſt meaſures authoriſed by the law of the land——

Reſolutions of one branch of the legiſlature, ſet up as the law of the land, being a direct uſurpation of the rights of the two other branches, and therefore a manifeſt infringement of the conſtitution——

Public money ſhamefully ſquandered and unaccounted for, and all inquiry into the cauſe of arrears in the civil liſt prevented by the miniſtry—

Inquiry into a paymaſter's public accounts ſtopped in the Exchequer, though the ſums unaccounted for by that paymaſter amount to above forty millions ſterling—

Public loans perverted to private miniſterial purpoſes—

Proſtitution of public honours and reward to men who can neither plead public virtue nor ſervices—

Irreligion and immorality, ſo eminently diſcountenanced by your Majeſty's Royal example, encouraged by adminiſtration both by example and precept.

The ſame diſcretion has been extended by the ſame evil counſellors to your Majeſty's dominions in America, and has produced to our ſuffering fellow ſubjects in that part of the world, grievances and apprehenſions ſimilar to thoſe of which we complain at home.

Moſt gracious Soverign.

SUCH are the grievances and apprehenſions which has long diſcontented and diſturbed the greateſt and beſt part of your Majeſty's loyal ſubjects. Unwilling, however, to interrupt your Royal repoſe, tho' ready to lay down our lives and fortunes for your Majeſty's ſervice, and for the conſtitution as by law eſtabliſhed, we have waited patiently, expecting a conſtitutional remedy by the means of our own repreſentatives; but our legal and free choice having been repeatedly rejected, and the right of election now finally taken from us, by the unprecedented ſeating of a candidate who was never choſen by the county, and who, even to become a candidate, was obliged fraudulently to vacate his ſeat in parliament, under the pretence of an inſignificant place, invited thereto by the prior declaration of a miniſter, that whoever oppoſed our choice, though with but four votes, ſhould be declared member for the county. We ſee ourſelves, by this laſt act, deprived even of the franchiſes of Engliſhmen, reduced to the moſt abject ſtate of ſlavery, and left without hopes or means of redreſs, but from your Majeſty or God.

Deign then, moſt gracious Sovereign, to liſten to the prayer of the moſt faithful of your Majeſty's ſubjects; and to baniſh from your Royal favour, truſt, & confidence, for ever, thoſe evil and pernicious counſellors, who have endeavoured to alienate the affection of your Majeſty's moſt ſincere and dutiful ſubjects, and whoſe ſuggeſtions tend to deprive your people of their deareſt and moſt eſſential rights, and who have traiterouſly dared to depart from the ſpirit and letter of thoſe laws which have ſecured the Crown of theſe realms to the houſe of Brunſwick, in which we make our moſt earneſt prayers to God, that it may continue untarniſhed to the lateſt poſterity.

but ſoon after the wind ſhifting to the Eaſt, ſhe anchored again a Mile or two below her former Moorings, where yet lies waiting for a Wind. His Excellency was ſaluted with 15 Guns on his leaving the Caſtle, and with the like Number on his arrival on board the Rippon. Mr. Thomas Bernard, his Excellency's third Son accompanies him. There went Paſſengers in the ſame Ship Col. Hoar, formerly in the Provincial Service, Capt Murray and ſeveral other Officers of the Regulars.

His Excellency upon his embarking having delivered the Province Seal to the Lieutenant Governor, Yeſterday his honour in council took the Oaths appointed by acts of Parliament, in order to take upon him the Adminiſtration of the Province.

(Remainder of the piece began in our laſt)

THE next thing worthy of notice is, what our aut or ſays concerning phyſical ſocieties in general His words are theſe, viz "beſides I am not certain but that a "confederacy of Doctors might be hurtful "to ſociety (even on ſuppoſition they were "never ſo well qualified.) The matter of "medicine lies very much in the dark (with "regard to the vulgar) and its difficult for "common people to determine whether they "are well or ill uſed in demands made upon "them; and a combination of Doctors per- "haps, gives them a greater advantage to "impoſe on mankind, by extravagant de- "mands, than if no ſuch combination had "been formed" Here he has opened his mouth ſo wide that he has ſhewn his heart, and notwithſtanding he pretends to point his virulent javelins againſt the medical corporation of Litchfield county in particular, he hath plainly ſhewn that he is an enemy to phyſical ſocieties in general; and I think we have reaſon to ſuſpect that he is unfriendly to all learning, order and regularity: for in every nation where learning, wiſdom and goodneſs have flouriſhed, there they have always incouraged combination of Doctors, who were countenanced and protected by the legiſlature. He ſays, "a combination of Doc "tors might be detrimental to ſociety on "account of exorbitant demands." To which I anſwer, that a combination of Doctors is the only proper method to regulate phyſical demands; for Doctors and they only, are ſuitable judges in this matter; and altho' pecuniary intereſt is a thing that never yet came under the conſideration of the medical corporation of Litchfield county, yet I preſume that there is not a perſon in this colony (unleſs it be this ſingular writer) but who would chooſe to pay the demands for phyſical buſineſs aſcertained by the ſaid corporation rather than to leave it to every ignorant and extravagant medicaſter to ſet his own prices—our author ſays, "that there "are ſome obligations to the laws of the ſo- "ciety, which he thinks are not well calcu- "lated; one of which (he ſays) is, that no "fellowſhip or council is to be held with "ſuch as are not of their communion. If "any regular practitioner in the county "ſhould, upon the whole, think it not beſt "to join with the corporation, he muſt be "diſcountenanced, & all poſſible injury done "him, &c. To this I reply, that as phyſical good was the great end of the inſtitution of this ſociety, it was thought beſt in order to facilitate its growth to make a reſolve to this purpoſe, viz. "that if any phyſicians in "Litchfield county (after proper notice given "them) refuſed to join the corporation, they "were to be treated with neglect, and not to "be invited by members of the corporation, to "conſult in phyſical caſes" And this reſolve had its deſired effect; for every reputable phyſician in that county, very ſoon join'd the ſociety. Now this reſolve is in no wiſe inconſiſtent with principles of liberty, but perfectly correſpondent therewith: it only injoins members of the corporation to call in ſuch perſons to their aſſiſtance, as they think are able phyſicians; but ſhould a member of the corporation be obliged to hold fellowſhip with every ignorant empyrick, it would be an infringment upon liberty with a [illegible]! Our author conceedes, with a dec[illegible] "has himſelf [illegible] "ber of the ſociety," which [illegible] true, it the only one of any [illegible] made uſe of againſt its honor or rectitude.— And altho' it is in [illegible]

Is not eaſy to expel them, yet as the medical ſociety of Litchfield is compos'd of phyſicians and ſurgeons, and their deſign is to aſſiſt each other in the healing art, and in all operations that may tend to the good of the body, and if our authors laſt declaration is true, I hope they will mutually agree to aſſiſt each other in the expulſion, or amputation of ſuch a uſeleſs and corrupt member.

If ſo then there is no doubt, but by the two important victories, ſo early in this campaign, that the Grand Signor has every thing to fear for the ſafety of his metropolitan reſidence the city of Conſtantinople.

By letters from Amſterdam, which arrived this day, we learn, that the French Court have made a demand upon the Genoeſe for eight millions of money, in order to defray the expences of their invaſion of Corſica.

It is talked that the Ambaſſador of a certain Continental Power has received an anſwer of ſuch a nature, to a late Memorial, that it is expected he will ſoon withdraw himſelf from Court.

We hear that the ſtricteſt ſearch is making into all the records of antiquity, for precedents by which a matter depending this day is to be conducted.

"The French Cavalry have taken poſt near Oletta, on the heights of Monte Bello, and their infantry are encamped in ſuch a manner that they extend to the declivity of the mountains on the ſide of San Fiorenzo. Paoli, with the chiefs of his nation, obſerve all thoſe different camps, and has diſtributed a large body of armed Peaſants, ſome of them on the one ſide of Mariana, and ſome towards Murato, where he is preparing to defend himſelf vigorouſly. The Count de Vaux, on his part, viſits all his poſts every day, eſpecially thoſe on the ſide of Oletta, whither he repairs very frequently with his Staff-Officers, and is continually throwing encroachments there."

BY the laſt Letters from Toulon, we are aſſured, that there were in that Harbour and at Marſeilles no leſs than 300 Tranſports ready to ſail for Corſica, having on board a large body of Troops, ſeveral Pieces of Cannon, and 1800 Horſes; this Reinforcement compoſes the Second Diviſion of the fifteen Battalions deſtined for the Reduction of that Iſland. A Veſſel juſt arrived from Holland, fell in with above Thirty Sail ſeveral Leagues from the land, which are conjectured to be part of this Fleet.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.

Extract of a Letter from London May 22.

"The Seſſion of Parliament is now brought to a Concluſion, without repealing the act you complain of, which I am heartily ſorry for; I am ſorry for it on many accounts; beſides that I think the Repeal would have been granted with a much better grace this Year than in next, or any ſubſequent Seſſion. However, you will have heard by the ſame Packet that brings you the King's Speech, which appears to ſpeak a different Language, that if the Behaviour of the Colonies doth not prevent it, the Repeal will certainly take Place next Seſſion; and I firmly believe it will—— of courſe, all this Miſunderſtand between us will I hope, be at an end. I know ſome People here, whom you are not unacquainted with, think you ought, by no Means, to place any Confidence in the vague Promiſes of a Miniſtry, ſo ſeemingly contrary to the Sentiments delivered by the King. But I am of a quite different Opinion, and time only can ſhew, who is in the Right.

"As for Wilkes, who ſeems only to have been made a tool of, he is like now to ſink into oblivion, and to be left in the Lurch by his pretended abettors, unleſs ſome ſtrange unlooked for accident, ſhould once more recal him into Notice. G. Grenville made a long Speech in his Favour the laſt Day of the Seſſion, to the Aſtoniſhment of every Body that heard him, and which hath loſt him the few Friends his former unworthy conduct had left him; ſo, that I ſee not the leaſt Sign of a Change of Miniſtry. On the countrary, the Duke of Grafton appears to be ſtronger every Day, and will receive no contemptible Acquiſition of power, from his alliance to the Duke of Bedford, whoſe Niece he is to marry in a few days. Hawke and Granby, two popular Men, preſide over the Navy and army, and the other Departments of Adminiſtration are moſtly filled with men, equal to any who are now out of Place, and who rank themſelves among the Patriots of the Preſent day.

The following is the Copy of a Letter, ſent by a Gentleman in London, ſome Time before the Parliament broke up to a perſon ſtrongly connected with the Miniſtry.

Dear SIR,

"Tho' I know you are extremly buſy, yet I cannot help interruping you, to communicate what, if it merits any attention, admits of no Delay.

"I ſee very clearly, that our American Diſputes are growing more and more ſerious every day, and dread the Conſequences during the Summer. Even the moſt moderate of the Colonies have already reſolved to import no more Britiſh goods, till this late act is repealed. Before another Seſſion of Parliament, this will have done irremediable Miſchief, and will divert the trade from its natural Channel, which can never be again wholly recovered. This is no idle or ill-grounded Fear, but Demonſtration itſelf.—The Effect this will have upon the Manufactures all over the Kingdom, and upon thoſe whoſe very Being depends upon the Continuance of our Exports to the Colonies, it is dreadful to think of. But what adds much to my Fears on this Occaſion is, that this real Grievance will be unavoidably blended with the Complaints of the Bill of Rights Gentlemen, and will altogether create ſuch an univerſal Ferment and Diſſatisfaction, as will not only overturn the Miniſtry for the Time being, but endanger the Government and Conſtitution itſelf.—I muſt repeat it, this is no ill grounded Apprehenſion.

"Now, as this act will, in the End, be found not to be tenable, as it is generally expected it will be repealed next Seſſion, and as it is doubtleſs more adviſable to drop it, before all the bad Conſequences apprehened from it, have actually taken Place, what I would humbly propoſe, would be the bringing in a Bill immediately to repeal it, before the Houſes break up. This Meaſure, whatever may be urged againſt it (and I know much may be ſaid with great Plauſibility) will have many ſalutary Effects. It will endear the Parliament to the Colonies; it will render the King and the Miniſtry extremely popular with a great body of the People at home, and it will deprive Wilkes, and the other Incendiaries, of their beſt and only Support, and render all their wicked Induſtry inſufficient. Are not theſe deſirable Objects, and worth the making ſome Sacrifice, at this Juncture, to obtain? But I will not tire you, with endeavouring to diſplay a Situation which you can ſee and comprehend infinitely better than I can. I will only add, that I think the Criſis truly alarming, and that what I have ſaid ariſes from the ſtrongeſt Conviction, that ſuch a Remedy ought quickly to be applied, to prevent the further Progreſs of theſe growing Diſſenſions. If you agree with me, and deem this, worth communicating to any of thoſe whom it more immediately concerns, well. If not, I cannot help it. I could not be eaſy till I had given you this Trouble, I hope from the beſt Motive—an anxious Concern for the untoward Situation of our Country."

WILLIAMSBURG, July 6.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated April 24.

"I have ſent you ſome more news papers, by which you may gueſs how much confuſion this city is in. The papers do not, or indeed dare not, expreſs what is done and ſaid here; in ſhort, people in general ſpeak with ſuch freedom in all companies as not to ſcruple mentioning particular names, no ranks eſcaping the cenſure and virulence of their invectives; the diſturbances proceed from two cauſes; one from the expulſion of Mr. Wilkes, ſaid to be done by means of Miniſterial influence, which has alſo interfered in the laſt election, by ſetting up a candidate, and giving him the ſeat, contrary to the ſenſe of the county of Middleſex. It is affirmed that the great and juſt Lord Chancellor being of opinion this laſt proceeding of the houſe was unconſtitutional, refuſed to regiſter Col. Luttrell as the proper member; but not truſting entirely on his own opinion, had a meeting of all the Judges to conſider of this important point: they were unanimous, it is ſaid, in the ſame way of thinking; the other cauſe is, the preſent unhappy difference with America, by which the trade greatly ſuffers; the merchants and manufacturers being daily more and more ſenſible of it; this alone, and this only (I mean the decline of trade) will open the eyes of ſome, and move the tongues of others, to eſpouſe the poor once diſpiſed Americans, whoſe cauſe gains ground daily, as the firſt projectors begin to think they were wrong in adviſing the acts from whence the diſturbances flow. If I was to adviſe America, from what I have been able to diſcover, it would be for the colonies to be firm and ſteady, exciting each other to œconomy and induſtry, to give a large doſe of opium to luxury, not to be virulent in abuſe, but mix a proper proportion of moderation in all their compoſitions, wait patiently for the event of this regimen, and doubt not but in a ſhort time America will be ſeen to raiſe her countenance, as will create envy in the breaſts of her enemies.

"I ſaw on the 13th (the noted Middleſex election-day, in the afternoon, as the grand proceſſion of freeholders returned through the city) the greateſt concourſe of people that ever was known; I walked from Whitechpel to charing Croſs, a diſtance of about 3 miles, and verily believe there was at leaſt 50 000 people in the ſtreets to ſee the proceſſion paſs; I was ſtunned with the loud huzzaing and acclamations on the event of the day; the proceſſion ſtopped at the palace, while the muſic played, God ſave the King; the ſame was done at the Manſion-Houſe; at night the principal ſtreets in the city were illuminated, & the whole ended without the leaſt miſchief. It is apprehended moſt of the Middleſex freeholders will, in a few days, appear with a petition: It is alſo apprehended the weavers of Spital-fields will aſſemble before a great Houſe with a repreſentation of the decline of trade, by which they are in danger of ſtarving. The military are kept conſtantly in readineſs at an hour's notice, in caſe (as ſuppoſed) any diſturbances ſhould happen; in ſhort, all England ſeems convulſed, the Ladies at Bath are turned boxers. I ſhall conclude at preſent with one remark, that England and America are at preſent in ſo great a ferment, that the grand criſis ſeems not far off, when all diſputes muſt be ſettled for a general good."

Yeſterday morning the following melancholy accident happened near York. One Mr. Thompſon having been early out about his plantation affairs, came home when it grew hot, and lay down upon a bed and fell aſleep, when his wife (who has been long diſordered in her ſenſes, and has been ſeveral times confined) got an ax, with which ſhe ſtruck him on the head, and killed him as he lay.

The Right Hon the Earl of Bute, is expected in Town To morrow.

Extract of a Letter from Leghorn, May 12.

"This day a veſſel arrived from Corſica. The French, immediately after having received their reinforcements, marched through the flat country, where they found all the towns and villages abandoned by the inhabitants; this encouraging them to march father without taking the neceſſary precautions, they found their whole army, conſiſting of 5000 men, ſurrounded by Paoli & his two brothers, who immediately attacked and totally routed them, killing great numbers upon the ſpot, & the fugitives attacked by thoſe few who had abandoned their villages, ſo that very few of them eſcaped: Count de Vaux immediately ſent an expreſs to France to demand freſh reinforcements, or it would be impoſſible to continue the campaign with ſucceſs."

The laſt packet from North-America brought a letter of thanks from the town of Boſton to Col. Barre for his conduct in Parliament, alſo incloſed him a remonſtance to his Majeſty, ſetting forth the grievances they labour under, and particularly mentioning the conduct of Governor ——; alſo the contents of ſix intercepted letters, which diſcovered a project of the moſt dangerous nature.-- The above remonſtrance, we hear, was preſented yeſterday.

A report prevails, that the ſlights and ill treatment our miniſter has lately met with at the Porte from the Turkiſh miniſtry, and which it is ſuppoſed, is owing to the ſecret machinations of the French Ambaſſador there, will, in all probability, occaſion a rupture between us and that power.

The Cabinet Councils that have been lately held, are ſaid to be on Affairs of the utmoſt conſequences, both foreign and domeſtic; but that nothig deciſive has, as yet, been determined on either.

At twelve o'clock on Thurſday laſt the Eaſt-India ſtock ſold at 222. but roſe up to 243 before two o'clock, the ſcale of the court having been thoroughly comprehended by one o'clock.

We are aſſured that a certain Baronet, bought as much India ſtock a few days before the fall, as he has loſt a difference of 53 000. by.

We are informed that one gentleman in the city cleared above 14 000l. the other morning by the fall of Eaſt India ſtock.

A certain merchant on Friday morning ſat down to breakfaſt 12,000 poorer than he was over night, from the fall of India ſtock.

DUBLIN, May 13. On Monday laſt his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant honoured the Printing yard of Meſſrs. Harpur and Cunningham at Leixſlip with his preſence, and viewed minutely their manner of drawing, cutting, and printing, and the copper Plate machine: his Excellency expreſſed his ſatisfaction at ſeeing ſo valuable a branch of the linen manufacture brought to ſuch perfection in this kingdom.

A Gold Medal is now finiſhed by order of an antient Society, of which Alderman Wilkes is a Member, the Explanation is, Mr. Wilkes offering himſelf a Victim at the Shrine of Liberty, who by arms of England by her, repreſents Britannia in Tears at the Sight, Providence pulling him away with one hand, and offering him a Crown of Laurels with the other, a child denoting Poſterity, ſitting on Magna Charta, bewailing itſelf and imploring the Protection of Providence: The Motto is—'Latitia et amicitit'—on the Urn "Libertas."

May 24. As the new ſpecies of Court Arithmetic has lately made ſo much noiſe in the world, we have been favoured with the following toaſts on that ſubject.

Addition to his Majeſty's loyal ſubjects!
Subſtraction to the boot and petticoat!
Multiplication to Mr. Wilkes's friends!
Diviſion to his foes!
Reduction to the national debt!
Practice to Jack Ketch!

Private Letters from America mention, that the Ladies in that Part of the world have unanimouſly declared, that they are ſo well ſatisfied of the ſalutary quality of the tea, which they made from the vegetables that are natives there, that they will drink no more of the Eaſt-India kind that ſhall be imported.

May 23. We hear the Earl of Chatham is ſo well recovered from his late ſevere illneſs that he is able to walk about his garden, and he goes out every day in his carriage.

May 13. It may afford ſatisfaction to our readers to know that in the courſe of this ſummer our diſputes with our colonies will be weighed with the moſt ſcrupulous attention to the dignity of this country and the privileges of the provinces. That the mode of taxation which gives umbrage to the Americans, will be removed next ſeſſion of P——t, without hurting the authority of the legiſlature, or the crown; and that ſuch meaſures are already taken as will preſerve the peace of the Weſtern Europe, without the leaſt encroachment upon the intereſts or dignity of Great-Britain.

People in power may flatter themſelves that affairs in America go on as they ought to do, and that the preſent ferment will ſubſide of its own accord, and be ſpeedily forgot. But I know they will be miſtaken, they may value themſelves as much as they pleaſe upon there firmneſs, but if the baſis is not wiſdom (and whence they ſhould derive it is a myſtery to moſt folks) people will, in general, think it obſtinacy, which differs as much from a wiſe firmneſs as light from darkneſs, truth from error, and vice from virtue. What a glorious ſcene for Britain does the growing power of her colonies exhibit! An aged parent, ſurrounded by a numerous and dutiful offspring, cannot afford greater comfort than the proſpect of ſuch a progeny as our colonies are to Britain, whilſt they are treated with paternal regard. I cannot conceive a mind more depreſſed in ignorance or in error, than that which would rather command by deſpotic force than ſecure by prudence, and philanthropy, the affection and chearful ſubmiſſion of men deſcended from ourſelves, and therefore worthy of our affection and eſteem.

Nothing will enable us to judge more equitably of affairs than placing ourſelves in the ſituation of thoſe upon whom judgment is to be awarded. Let us then aſk ourſelves what treatment is due to thoſe and their deſcendants, who ſprung from the ſame anceſtors who produced us into being, and who have cultivated a wilderneſs country for our immediate benefit as well as their own comfort.

The following Extract from Smollet's hiſtory of England, gave me ſo much ſatisfaction in reading, that I could do no leſs than give it to the Public, thro' the Channel of your Paper.

THE natives of New-England acquired great glory from the ſucceſs of this enterprize (conqueſt of Louiſbugh 1745) Britain, which had in ſome inſtances behaved like a ſtep-mother to her own Colonies, was now convinced of their importance; and treated thoſe as brethren whom ſhe had too long conſidered as aliens & rivals. Circumſtanced as the nation is, the legiſlature cannot too tenderly cheriſh the intereſts of the Britiſh plantations in America. They are inhabited by a brave, hardy, induſterous people, animated with an active Spirit of commerce; inſpired with a Noble zeal for liberty and independence. The trade of Great-Britain, clogged with heavy taxes and impoſitions, has for ſome time languiſhed in many valuable branches. The French have underſold our cloths, and ſpoiled our markets in the Levent. Spain is no longer ſupplied as uſual with the commodities of England: exports of Germany muſt be conſiderably diminiſhed, by the miſunderſtanding between Great-Britain, and the houſe of Auſtria; conſequently her greateſt reſource muſt be in her communication with her own Colony, which conſume her manufactures, and make immenſe returns in Sugar, Rum, Tobacco, Fiſh, Timber, naval Stores, Irons, Furs, Drugs, Rice, and Indico. The Southern plantations likewiſe produce Silk; and with due encouragement might furniſh every thing that could be expected from the moſt fertile ſoil & the happieſt climate. The Continent of N. America, if properly cultivated, will prove an inexhauſtible fund of wealth and ſtrength to Great-Britain; and perhaps it may be an aſylum of Britiſh Liberty, when the Nation in enſlaved by domeſtic diſpotiſm or foreign dominion; when her ſubſtance is waſted her ſprit broke, and the laws and conſtitution of England are no more: then thoſe colonies ſent off by our fathers may receive and entertain their ſons, as hapleſs exiles and ruined refuges.

By the Harriot Packet boat, Capt. Oak, arriv'd at New York from Falmouth, in 7 Weeks, and three days, and the ſhip Boſton Packet, Capt Scott, arrived at Boſton in 6 weeks from London, there is the following advices. viz

L O N D O N, June 20.

Extract of a letter from Leghorn, May 26.

"THE French, with near 40 000 men, are carrying all before them againſt the poor Corſicans, being poſſeſſed of greateſt part of the iſland with the port of Iſola Roſſa. Theſe brave fellows have made a ſurpriſing reſiſtance, but to no effect, for want of aſſiſtance. The commandant of Iſola Roſſa, with four other brave captains, arrived here yeſterday, having abandoned their country rather than ſubmit to the French yoke. They have deſtroyed many of their enemies, but were overpowered by numbers, and treachery amongſt their own people. An Engliſh veſſel carried 50 families from Iſola Roſſa, away to Oniglia. Theſe ſons of liberty would gladly have gone to the aſſiſtance of their general, but he being on the other part of the iſland retired to the mountains; the communication between them was cut off, and the 2000 people under them being overcome, or turned traitors, they had no other alternative than to flee or to be ſlaves to France. They preferred the former, and have forſaken their country, their families, their eſtates, rather be ſubject to the French, to whom it is much feared that the hero of the age (General de Paoli) muſt fall a victim."

On the Day the Ruſſians obtained a freſh advantage over the Ottomans near Choczim 300 men were killed out of the Ottoman and a great number taken.

June 21. It is reported, that the Engliſh Conſul at Leghorn has received orders to offer to the unfortunate Corſicans, expelled their country by the French, a ſafe aſylum in the Britiſh dominions in America.

June 23 It is ſaid petitions from all the manufacturing towns in the kingdom, on the deplorable decay of our trade and foreign commerce, are preparing to be laid before a great Perſonage.

It is ſaid that if the Livery of London ſucceed in their deſign, and elect Mr. Sawbridge and Mr Townſhend, Sheriffs, and Alderman Beckford Lord Mayor, for the year enſuing, that this year will be denominated, by way of diſtinction, The Year of Patriotiſm.

Seven Petitions are expected to be delivered to a great perſonage on Wedneſday next.

June 27. On ſacking the caſtle of Corte, great quantities of rich furniture were found belonging to Paoli, with a throne, richly ornamented.

There are but a few places in Corſica that have not ſubmitted to the French arms; Catio Sa'ſleti ſtill holds out, but as a reward of 50 louis d'ors has been ſet on his head, it was not doubted but he will ſoon be taken. The ſum of 2000 livers are ſaid to be offered to any one who takes Paoli, or gives information of the place where he may be found.

June 28 It is reported, that Colonel Luttrell will, in a few days accept of a conſiderable poſt under the Government, by which his ſeat in Parliament will be vacated; and that if Mr. Wilkes ſhould be re choſen he will be allowed to take his ſeat.

Triennial Parliaments, is now become the patriotic toaſt at both ends of the town.

It is ſaid that 30 0 ſailors have been diſcharged from the merchants ſervices in America, while the French are ready to pick them up, by giving them great encouragement

B O S T O N, August 10

The Parliament, it is ſaid, will not ſit to do Buſineſs until November; when the Duties on Paper, Glaſs, and Painters Colours, would be taken off, but it was tho't that the Duty on Tea would remain; and no other acts repealed.

We hear there are further Copies of Letters from Governor Bernard, to the Earl of Hillſborough; it is ſaid, they are reſpecting the Town.

"You will hear many reports and 'Promiſes of a repeal taking Place next Seſſion But don't give too much credit to Men who would if they dare, enſlave both you and the people of England:—Tho I am young I have learnt to diſtruſt the ſerious Vows of a Miniſter: I ſhould tremble to hear that you entertain'd a moſt diſtant thought of relaxing in your firmneſs and Oeconomy in Conſequence of any leſs being done, than a total Repeal of the Revenue acts, an Extirpation of all the Revenue officers; and in ſhort, a Redreſs of every Grievance, and a Security againſt any future Invaſion:—Let thoſe Principles ſtand impreſſed upon every Man:—May you no have the Liberty you aſk, unleſs you ſeize this favourable Moment, and ſecure it. Your Conduct as yet has been noble and ſpirited; Depend upon it, you have thereby wrought out your own Salvation.—The Union of all America, which has at laſt taken place has extinguiſhed every ſpark of hope which your Enemies had entertained, of reducing you to immediate Revenue taxation: But unleſs you take prudent Meaſures your Trade will in future be ſaddled moſt grievouſly."

The 2d Inſt. at 45 Minutes paſt 7 o'Clock in the Morning, 45 Gentlemen aſſembled at the large Elm Tree, near the Great Bridge, in this Place, agreeable to a previous Appointment for the Purpoſe of a Fiſhing-match; when, after dividing themſelves into proper Companies, embark'd and ſet Sail down Connecticut River, at 45 minutes paſt 8, and at 45 minutes paſt 11 they all arrived at a Place called Keeney's Point, the Place of their Rendezvouz; and after taking a fine Repaſt upon Fiſh, dreſſed in various Manners, according to the genteeleſt Taſte, they all embark'd again at 45 Minutes paſt 6, and arriv'd ſafe at Curry's Wharf where they landed at 45 Minutes paſt 7, from thence proceeded in a regular Manner to the above large Elm, & after drinking 45 loyal Toaſts, the Company broke up at 45 Minutes paſt 9 o'Clock. The whole was conducted with the greateſt Decency and good Order.

The French, immediately after having received their reinforcements, marched through the flat country, where they found all the towns and villages abandoned by the inhabitants; this encouraging them to march father without taking the neceſſary precautions, they found their whole army, conſiſting of 5000 men, ſurrounded by Paoli & his two brothers, who immediately attacked and totally routed them, killing great numbers upon the ſpot, & the fugitives attacked by thoſe few who had abandoned their villages, ſo that very few of them eſcaped: Count de Vaux immediately ſent an expreſs to France to demand freſh reinforcements, or it would be impoſſible to continue the campaign with ſucceſs."

The laſt packet from North-America brought a letter of thanks from the town of Boſton to Col. Barre for his conduct in Parliament, alſo incloſed him a remonſtance to his Majeſty, ſetting forth the grievances they labour under, and particularly mentioning the conduct of Governor ——— ; alſo the contents of ſix intercepted letters, which diſcovered a project of the moſt dangerous nature.-- The above remonſtrance, we hear, was preſented yeſterday.

A report prevails, that the ſlights and ill treatment our miniſter has lately met with at the Porte from the Turkiſh miniſtry, and which it is ſuppoſed, is owing to the ſecret machinations of the French Ambaſſador there, will, in all probability, occaſion a rupture between us and that power.

The Cabinet Councils that have been lately held, are ſaid to be on Affairs of the utmoſt conſequences, both foreign and domeſtic; but that nothig deciſive has, as yet, been determined on either.

At twelve o'clock on Thurſday laſt the Eaſt India ſtock ſold at 222. but roſe up to 243 before two o'clock, the ſenſe of the court having been thoroughly comprehended by one o'clock.

We are aſſured that a certain Baronet, bought as much India ſtock a few days before the fall, as he has loſt a difference of 53 000. by.

We are informed that one gentleman in the city cleared above 14 000l the other morning by the fall of Eaſt India ſtock.

A certain merchant on Friday morning ſat down to breakfaſt 12,000 poorer than he was over night, from the fall of India ſtock.

DUBLIN, May 13. On Monday laſt his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant honoured the Printing yard of Meſſrs. Harpur and Cunningham at Leixſlip with his preſence, and viewed minutely their manner of drawing, cutting, and printing, and the copper Plate machine: his Excellency expreſſed his ſatisfaction at ſeeing ſo valuable a branch of the linen manufacture brought to ſuch perfection in this kingdom.

A Gold Medal is now finiſhed by order of an antient Society, of which Alderman Wilkes is a Member, the Explanation is. Mr. Wilkes offering himſelf a Victim at the Shrine of Liberty, who by arms of England by her, repreſents Britannia in Tears at the Sight, Providence pulling him away with one hand, and offering him a Crown of Laurels with the other, a child denoting Poſterity, ſitting on Magna Charta, bewailing itſelf and imploring the Protection of Providence: The Motto is—' Latitia et amicitie'—on the Urn " Libertas."

May 24. As the new Species of Court Arithmetic has lately made ſo much noiſe in the world, we have been favoured with the following toaſts on that ſubject.

Addition to his Majeſty's loyal ſubjects!
Subſtraction to the boot and petticoat!
Multiplication to Mr. Wilkes's friends!
Diviſion to his foes!
Reduction to the national debt!
Practice to Jack Ketch!

Private Letters from America mention, that the Ladies in that Part of the world have unanimouſly declared, that they are ſo well ſatisfied of the ſalutary quality of the tea, which they made from the vegetables that are natives there, that they will drink no more of the Eaſt-India kind that ſhall be imported.

May 23. We hear the Earl of Chatham is ſo well recovered from his late ſevere illneſs that he is able to walk about his garden, and he goes out every day in his carriage.

May 13. It may afford ſatisfaction to our readers to know that in the courſe of this ſummer our diſputes with our colonies will be weighed with the moſt ſcrupulous attention to the dignity of this country and the privileges of the provinces. That the mode of taxation which gives umbrage to the Americans, will be removed next ſeſſion of P——t, without hurting the authority of the legiſlature, or the crown; and that ſuch meaſures are already taken as will preſerve the peace of the Weſtern Europe, without the leaſt encroachment upon the intereſts or dignity of Great-Britain.

People in power may flatter themſelves that affairs in America go on as they ought to do, and that the preſent ferment will ſubſide of its own accord, and be ſpeedily forgot. But I know they will be miſtaken, they may value themſelves as much as they pleaſe upon there firmneſs. but if the baſis is not wiſdom (and whence they ſhould derive it is a myſtery to moſt folks) people will, in general, think it obſtinacy, which differs as much from a wiſe firmneſs as light from darkneſs, truth from error, and vice from virtue. What a glorious ſcene for Britain does the growing power of her colonies exhibit! An aged parent, ſurrounded by a numerous and dutiful offspring, cannot afford greater comfort than the proſpect of ſuch a progeny as our colonies are to Britain, whilſt they are treated with paternal regard. I cannot conceive a mind more depreſſed in ignorance or in error, than that which would rather command by deſpotic force than ſecure by prudence, and philanthropy, the affection and chearful ſubmiſſion of men deſcended from ourſelves. and therefore worthy of our affection and eſteem.

Nothing will enable us to judge more equitably of affairs than placing ourſelves in the ſituation of thoſe upon whom judgment is to be awarded. Let us then aſk ourſelves what treatment is due to thoſe and their deſcendants, who ſprung from the ſame anceſtors who produced us into being, and who have cultivated a wilderneſs country for our immediate benefit as well as their own comfort.

The following Extract from Smollet's hiſtory of England, gave me ſo much ſatisfaction in reading, that I could do no leſs than give it to the Public, thro' the Channel of your Paper.

THE natives of New-England acquired great glory from the ſucceſs of this enterprize (conqueſt of Louiſbugh 1745) Britain, which had in ſome inſtances behaved like a ſtep-mother to her own Colonies, was now convinced of their importance; and treated thoſe as brethren whom ſhe had too long conſidered as aliens & rivals. Circumſtanced as the nation is, the legiſlature cannot too tenderly cheriſh the intereſts of the Britiſh plantations in America. They are inhabited by a brave, hardy, induſterous people, animated with an active Spirit of commerce; inſpired with a Noble zeal for liberty and independence. The trade of Great-Britain, clogged with heavy taxes and impoſitions, has for ſome time languiſhed in many valuable branches. The French have underſold our cloths, and ſpoiled our markets in the Levent. Spain is no longer ſupplied as uſual with the commodities of England: the exports of Germany muſt be conſiderably diminiſhed, by the miſunderſtanding between Great-Britain, and the houſe of Auſtria; conſequently her greateſt reſource muſt be in her communication with her own Colony, which conſume her manufactures, and make immenſe returns in Sugar, Rum, Tobacco, Fiſh, Timber, naval Stores, Irons, Furs, Drugs, Rice, and Indico. The Southern plantations likewiſe produce Silk; and with due encouragement might furniſh every thing that could be expected from the moſt fertile ſoil & the happieſt climate. The Continent of N. America, if properly cultivated, will prove an inexhauſtible fund of wealth and ſtrength to Great-Britain; and perhaps it may be an aſylum of Britiſh Liberty, when the Nation in enſlaved by domeſtic diſpotiſm or foreign dominion; when her ſubſtance is waſted her ſprit broke, and the laws and conſtitution of England are no more: then thoſe colonies ſent off by our fathers may receive and entertain their ſons as hapleſs exiles and ruined refuges.

By the Harriot Packet boat, Capt. Oak, arriv'd at New York from Falmouth, in 7 Weeks, and three days, and the ſhip Boſton Packet, Capt Scott, arrived at Boſton in 6 weeks from London, there is the following advices. viz

LONDON, June 20.

Extract of a letter from Leghorn, May 26.

THE French, with near 40 000 men, are carrying all before them againſt the poor Corſicans, being poſſeſſed of greateſt part of the iſland with the port of Iſola Roſſa. Theſe brave fellows have made a ſurpriſing reſiſtance, but to no effect, for want of aſſiſtance. The commandant of Iſola Roſſa, with four other brave captains, arrived here yeſterday, having abandoned their country rather than ſubmit to the French yoke. They have deſtroyed many of their enemies, but were overpowered by numbers, and treachery amongſt their own people. An Engliſh veſſel carried 50 families from Iſola Roſſa, away to Oniglia. Theſe ſons of liberty would gladly have gone to the aſſiſtance of their general, but he being on the other part of the iſland retired to the mountains; the communication between them was cut off, and the 2000 people under them being overcome, or turned traitors, they had no other alternative than to flee or to be ſlaves to France. They preferred the former. and have forſaken their country, their families, their eſtates, rather be ſubject to the French, to whom it is much feared that the hero of the age (General de Paoli) muſt fall a victim."

On the Day the Ruſſians obtained a freſh advantage over the Ottomans near Choczim 300 men were killed out of the Ottoman and a great number taken.

June 21. It is reported, that the Engliſh Conſul at Leghorn has received orders to offer to the unfortunate Corſicans, expelled their country by the French, a ſafe aſylum in the Britiſh dominions in America.

June 23 It is ſaid petitions from all the manufacturing towns in the kingdom, on the deplorable decay of our trade and foreign commerce, are preparing to be laid before a great Perſonage.

It is ſaid that if the Livery of London ſucceed in their deſign, and elect Mr. Sawbridge and Mr Townſhend, Sheriffs, and Aldermen Beckford Lord Mayor, for the year enſuing, that this year will be denominated, by way of diſtinction, The Year of Patriotiſm.

Seven Petitions are expected to be delivered to a great perſonage on Wedneſday next.

June 27. On ſacking the caſtle of Corte, great quantities of rich furniture were found belonging to Paoli, with a throne, richly ornamented.

There are but a few places in Corſica that have not ſubmitted to the French arms; Catio Sa'ideli Hill holds out, but as a reward of 50 louis d'ors has been ſet on his head, it was not doubted but he will ſoon be taken. The ſum of 2000 livers are ſaid to be offered to any one who takes Paoli, or gives information of the place where he may be found.

Jnue 28 It is reported, that Colonel Luttrell will, in a few days accept of a conſiderable poſt under the Government, by which his ſeat in Parliament will be vacated; and that if Mr. Wilkes ſhould be re-choſen he will be allowed to take his ſeat.

Triennial Parliaments, is now become the patriotic toaſt at both ends of the town.

It is ſaid that 30 0 ſailors have been diſcharged from the merchants ſervices in America, while the French are ready to pick them up, by giving them great encouragement

BOSTON, August 10.

The Parliament, it is ſaid, will not ſit to do Buſineſs until November; when the Duties on Paper, Glaſs, and Painters Colours, would be taken off, but it was tho't that the Duty on Tea would remain; and no other acts repealed.

We hear there are further Copies of Letters from Governor Bernard, to the Earl of Hilliſborough; it is ſaid, they are reſpecting the Town.

NEW YORK, August 10.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in New-York July 7. 1769.

"You will hear many reports an 'Promiſes of a repeal taking Place next Seſſion. But don't give too much credit to Men who would if they dare, enſlave both you and the people of England:—Tho I am young I have learnt to diſtruſt the ſerious Vows of a Miniſter: I ſhould tremble to hear that you entertain'd a moſt diſtant thought of relaxing in your firmneſs and Oeconomy in Conſequence of any leſs being done, than a total Repeal of the Revenue acts, an Extirpation of all the Revenue officers; and in ſhort, a Redreſs of every Grievance, and a Security againſt any future Invaſion:—Let thoſe Principles ſtand impreſſed upon every Man:—May you no have the Liberty you aſk, unleſs you ſeize this favourable Moment, and ſecure it. Your Conduct as yet has been noble and ſpirited; Depend upon it, you have thereby wrought out your own Salvation.—The Union of all America, which has at laſt taken place has extinguſhed every ſpark of hope which your Enemies had entertained, of reducing you to immediate Revenue taxation: But unleſs you take prudent Meaſures your Trade will in future be ſaddled moſt grievouſly."

Numb. 244.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Both Foreign and Domeſtick.

Further Advices by the laſt Veſſels from Europe.

LEGHORN, May 13.

THE Corſicans have carried off ſixty laden Mules from the French, and entirely defeated a detachment of 200 of their troops, which eſcorted them.

The Count de Vaux having advanced with the greateſt Part of his army by Roſtino, there poſſeſſed himſelf of ſome heights from whence he played his artillery. On this Gen. Paoli making a feint of retiring, the French came down with great impetuoſity, which brought on a moſt furious engagement, the iſſue of which was not at all favourable to the French. General Paoli had even cut off their communication with Baſtia and San Fiorenzo, that they were in danger of being forced to ſurrender. It is added, that in this diſagreeable ſituation, the Count de Vaux had diſpatched a Felucca to Baſtia to demand ſuccour.

The French, who were poſted at Ajaccio, having marched out from thence, advanced as far as Mazzana. But their enterpriſe, according to the accounts, has turned out very unſucceſsfully, they having been beaten and obliged to re-enter into Ajaccio.

Thoſe at Calvi, who purſuant to the plan of operations, had ſet themſelves in motion on the ſame day, had met with the like fate.

Leghorn, May 6. A Body of French having ſallied out of Ajaccio with the View of entrenching themſelves at Two Miles Diſtance from that Town, were attacked on the 28th laſt by the Colonel Abatucci. but we know not yet the Iſſue of this affair. The French Troops had received Orders to hold themſelves in Readineſs on the 30th. It is ſaid that great Numbers of the French go over to General Paoli, who makes very large Promiſes to Deſerters.

Warſaw, May 10. It is ſaid that the Turks will direct their Operations, on one Side towards Moldavia, on the other towards Azoph, in which they are to employ two Armies of 150,000 Men each, One of theſe Armies, which is compoſed for the moſt Part of Tartars, is nothing more than a Collection of wild and ſavage People without any Diſcipline. It requires alſo a great deal of Time before ſuch numerous armies can be aſſembled, beſides that the Porte will have Occaſion for a good Part of them to tame the Sprit of rebellion which manifeſts itſelf in ſeveral Diſtricts, and particularly in Aſia.

As to the Turks which had entered Moldavia, and who quitted that Country on the Approach of the Ruſſians, they were divided into four Corps, under the Command of as many Pachas. One of theſe Generals, named Karaman Pacha, was juſt arrived there, on the 11th of April, with 6000 Men.

Warſaw, May 10. By a Courier arrived from Prince Gallitzin we are aſſured, that that Prince having paſſed the Nieſter, advanced at the head of his army to beſiege Choxim. When his vanguard appeared before the walls, they were very briſkly attacked by 1000 Turkiſh volunteers, who made a ſally from the town, but were obliged to retire after an obſtinate diſpute: On which they ſet fire to the four corners of the place, having firſt thrown themſelves, and ſuch of the principal inhabitants as remained, with their effects, into the citadel. The fire burnt with great fury till the next day, when the Ruſſians began to cannonade the Caſtle.

From the Frontiers of Poland and Hungary,

May 10. During the laſt month no leſs than thirteen Battles have been fought between the Confederates and the Ruſſians; five of which ended to the Advantage of the Rebels, and ſix in favour of the Ruſſians; in the two other, the Succeſs on both Sides was pretty equal. Five Bodies of Confederates are encamped upon theſe Frontiers, under the Sieur Pulawſki, Pudzki, Bierzinſki, Dierzanowſki, and Prince Lubomirſki, who have all publickly declared that they will adhere to the terms of the Confederacy of Bar.

Hanover, May 12. A Treaty of Subſidy is concluded, by Virtue of which the King our Sovereign has taken into his Pay Part of the troops of the Duke of Brunſwick Wolfenbuttel.

Utrecht, May 25. A letter from Cervione in Corſica, dated May 9 and received this Moment, adviſes, that Paoli had received a Courier, from Roſtino with advice, that on the 8th inſtant, there was a ſmart action between the French and the Corſicans in the Deſile of Tendo, in which the former were beaten, and had a great many men killed, beſides the Wounded and Priſoners. This Letter adds, that the French have penetrated without Reſiſtance into Part of the Morato, as far as Lento and Canavaggia.

Paris, May 29. If we may credit letters from Pondicherry, that City is recovering with aſtoniſhing ſplendor. It appears evident, that affairs of the Engliſh have changed their face in the Indies. The Nabob, their intrepid, enemy, has taken from them ſeveral important poſts partly by cunning, partly by force, on the coaſt of Coromandel; and, if he knows how to make uſe of his victories, he may obtain over them ſtill greater advantages.

Hague, May 18. On the 25th inſtant the Baron de Muſſin Pouſchkin, Envoy extraordinary from the Empreſs of Ruſſia, received a Courier with the following diſpatches, which he immediately communicated to the Preſident of the aſſembly of the States General.

"The Ruſſian army commanded by Prince Gallitzin, has defeated, near Choczim, a body of 30000 or 40000 Turks, and taken a great number of priſoners. The Turks, beſides many thouſands of killed and wounded, have loſt all their baggage and artillery, their military cheſt, valued at 50000 Golden Crowns, and 70 Camels loaded with proviſions and valuable effects. As the Turks have burnt the town of Chozim, and deſtroyed all the neighbouring country, Prince Gallitzin, notwithſtanding this advantage, was obliged to repaſs the Nieſter, in order to be near his magazines; which he has, nevertheleſs, brought forward. A more circumſtantial detail of affairs will ſoon be publiſhed."

Paris, May 29. We learn, by a Courier extraordinary deſpatched from Rome the 19th of this month, that on the morning of the day, Cardinal Ganganelli was proclaimed Pope, and had taken the name of Clement XIV. He was born at S. Arcangelo, in the Rimini on the 31ſt of October, 1705, was of the order of Minor Conventual Friars, and created Cardinal the 24th of September, 1759.

From the LONDON GAZETTE.

Florence, May 23.

On Friday laſt Cardinal Ganganelli, a Monk of a branch of the Franciſcan Order, called Minor Conventuals, was elected Pope. He was born at a Village called St. Angelo in Vado, in the Dutchy of Urbino, is ſixty four years of age and was created Cardinal by the late Pope in the year 1759, ever ſince which time he has lived in the cell of the convent of his order at Rome in the moſt private manner. He has now aſſumed the name of Clement XIV. Several Couriers paſſed by yeſterday for Vienna, France, and Spain, with the news of his election; and this morning the Nuncio here received by a Courier the formal notification of it, which he immediately communicated to this Court. We are farther informed from Rome, that the Cardinal Pallavicini, who was lately Nuncio at the Courts of Spain and Naples, has been appointed Secretary of State.

LONDON, May 30.

On Friday a Motion was made in the Court of Common Pleas, for a Rule for a noble Lord to ſhew Cauſe why Mr. Wilkes's Demurrer ſhould not be withdrawn, and the Proceedings go on againſt his Lordſhip, they having been ſtopped by his Plea of Mr. Wilkes's being an Outlaw. The Rule was granted, upon Mr. Serjeant Glynn's producing a Certificate from the Court of King's Bench, that Mr. Wilkes's Outlawry was illegal; and the Court having granted ten Days to his Lordſhip to ſhew Cauſe, &c. long and learned Arguments were made Uſe of by the Counſel, who were, for Mr. Wilkes, Mr. Serjeant Glynn, Mr. Serjeant Leigh; for Lord Halifax, Mr. Serjeant Davy, Mr. Serjeant Naires.

At the ſame Time the Court was moved againſt the Publiſher of a certain Paper, for a Libel on a Gentlemen of Fortune and Probity, by inſerting his Name with an opprobious and invidious Epithet, in a Liſt of thoſe Gentlemen who ſigned the late Addreſs of the Merchants of the City of London, and a Rule of Court was immediately granted to ſhew cauſe.

June 1. Eaſt India Stock was done this day at 220, then at 230, and now is ſtopt for the preſent at 232. The ſurpriſing fluctuation of this ſtock within theſe few days has occaſioned conjectures, and there are not wanting ſome who look upon the whole as a South-Sea Scheme.

A correſpondent in the city informs us, that L—d H—h ſold out all his India Stock yeſterday.

India Stock fell yeſterday to 239. Since this day ſe'nnight it is fallen 42 per Cent.

A paſſenger juſt arrived in one of the Eaſt-India ſhips, informs That the Governor and Council were making great preparations, when he came away, to put the White Town in a ſtate of defence; that our troops were in high ſpirits, notwithſtanding a putrid fever had for ſome time raged among them, and proved very fatal to many; that our people ſeemed under no apprehenſions of a viſit from the French at Pondicherry, which is about 63 miles to the ſouth of Madraſs, they having hitherto, at leaſt to appearance, conducted themſelves in a very peaceable manner towards us; and that the Engliſh will be able to ſuſtain a ſiege a long time, provided the enemy are prevented from depriving them of the freſh water, which they are forced to fetch from ſprings at a good diſtance from town, the front of which ſtands towards the ſea, while a ſalt water river runs on the rear of it, which prevents the freſh water from coming to it.

One of the articles of diſagreeable intelligence from Fort St. George, is ſaid to be an account of the Armenian and Gentoo inhabitants having made an inſurrection in the Black Town, which had been with great difficulty quelled by the Governor.

May 25. Letters from Conſtantinople inform, that notwithſtanding the Activity with which the Armaments for the enſuing War are carried on, public Diverſions engroſs no ſmall Part of the Attention of the People. Great Preparations were making there the latter End of laſt Month for the Grand Tulip Feaſt, which his ſublime Highneſs treats his Ladies with annually in the Month of May. The Gardens of the Royal Seraglio are laid out in a Number of Parterres of fine Tulips, round which little Sheds are erected, where the Grand Signor lays in a Stock of Silks, Tiſſues, Necklaces, Bracelets, and other Trinkets; the favourite Sultanas of his Court are the ſhop Women, and his Highneſs buys from them what pleaſes him beſt. During this whimſical Feſtival, the Gardens are enlivened with excellent Muſick and decorated with triumphal arches, Illuminations, &c. This Diverſion is followed by all the Grandees of the Court, in order to make the Time of their Miſtreſſes paſs away in an agreeable Manner.

May 27. Thurſday a Gentleman paſſing along old Street, ſaw a women begging with a blind Child, which, upon examining, proved to be his own, that had been loſt ſome time, and whom the cruel Woman had blinded. She was immediately taken into Cuſtody, and committed to New Priſon.

Yeſterday was married, at Wooburn Abbey, his Grace the Duke of Grafton, to Miſs Wrotteſley, third Daughter of the Rev. Sir Richard Wrotteſley, Bart. and Dean of Worceſter. The Duke and Dutcheſs of Marlborough, with the Earl and Counteſs Gower, and ſeveral other Perſons of Diſtinction, were preſent on the Occaſion.

May 30. It is ſaid that the Subſtance of the News arrived from the Eaſt Indies is, that the celebrated Heyder Ally having ſent his Son to negotiate Matters with the Nabob, had entered into a ſtrict Treaty with that Potentate, and was ſupplied by him with a body of 30,000 Men, who made an Attack a ſhort Time after upon the advanced Guard of the Engliſh army, who were entrenched in a wild Part of the Country at a great Diſtance from Madraſs; that Heyder Alley loſt a great Number of Men upon this Occaſion, and was obliged to retire; but as the van Guard of the Engliſh were in a Situation that rendered it impoſſible to ſupply them for any Length of time with Proviſions, it was thought neceſſary to order them to join the main body, which they did the following Night; after ſeveral ſlight Skirmiſhes with the enemy, our Troops, having Intelligence that another large Body of Natives had joined Heyder Alley, thought it adviſeable, to prevent being ſurrounded, to retire nearer to Madraſs, which they did in good order; and as they had been reinforced by a number of freſh Troops, and had got a good train of Artillery, they were under little Apprehenſions from their Enemies, when the Letters came away.

Another account ſays, that the Company had marched great Part of its whole military Force into the interior Part of the Country in order to attack, and defeat if poſſible, one of the richeſt and moſt powerful of the Indoſtan Princes; but that the Forces of another Aſiatic Prince had intercepted the Engliſh, and placed them between two Fires, ſo that it was judged at the time of the Ship's ſailing that brought this Intelligence, almoſt impoſſible for the Engliſh to rejoin the main body of their Forces at Bengal without comming to a deciſive Battle, and in which the Engliſh would moſt probably be totally ruined, unleſs ſuperior Bravery and military Skill can get the better of infinitely ſuperior Numbers. It is on this Report the India Stock has fallen ſo much within theſe three Days.

It is ſaid that the Engliſh at Bengal have been groſsly deceived by a Number of French Deſerters which came over to them laſt Year from the Iſlands of Mauritius and Madagaſcar, under Connivance of the French Commander in Chief, and that theſe Deſerters have been employed by the French as Spies upon the Engliſh Armaments in Aſia.

Yeſterday Henry Lawes Luttrell, Eſq; ſet out from his Houſe in South Audley-Street, in order to join his Regiment in Ireland.

June 1. It is ſaid, that notwithſtanding the Parliament gave ſo very great a ſum to pay the civil liſt debt, yet it is imagined that ſum has been otherwiſe diſpoſed of, as the laſt money paid on y one quarter, when near ſix were due, ſo that there ſtill remains near five.

A letter from Leghorn, dated May 6, ſays. "By an account from the Chevalier de Saintgrice, who attacked and carried the paſs of Borgo, we are aſſured, that ſeveral women were found in arms at that place, and that great numbers of them, inſpired with the flame of Liberty had iſſued up n following the main body of Paoli's troops, in order to take care of the ſick and wounded, provide proviſions and forage for the army, and do other offices to leſſen the fatigue of the men.

According to letters from Leghorn, no leſs than three actions are talked of, as having happened between the Corſicans and the French viz. one in the Nebbio, one near Ajaccio, and the third at a ſmall diſtance from Baſtia. Be theſe reports as they may, it is certain, from the diſpoſition of the troops on both ſides, that a general action is very ſoon to be expected.

Laſt night a great number of perſons were taken up by virtue of a preſs warrant, and put on board the Bartholomew Tender, lying near the Tower.

June 3d. Yeſterday there was a very numerous meeting of the proprietors of the Eaſt-India Stock, at their houſe in Leadenhall ſtreet; Sir George Colebrooke in the Chair; who told them, the Directors had prepared extracts from the laſt diſpatches, which were ready, and they were accordingly read twice over by one of the Clerks, and contain the following matters: [Here follow'd a long account of the ſituation of the Company's affairs in the Eaſt-Indies, whereon.]

After ſome altercations, in which Mr. Preſcot, Mr. Burke, Mr. Hodges, Mr. Mackintoſh, and Mr. Stewart, were the principal Speakers the Queſtion was put, and as nearly as can be remembered, in the following words:

"Extracts from different parts of the Company's Settlements in India, being read before a large body of Proprietors, it appeared to them, the Company's affairs are in a very flouriſhing condition, and that there was no real cauſe for the late alarm."

The Queſtion, thus put, was carried in the affirmative unanimouſly.

A ſecond Queſtion was alſo put, namely, "That the firſt queſtion, as abovementioned, be publiſhed in ſome of the daly news papers."

This Queſtion, nem. con. was alſo carried.

At twelve o'clock Eaſt-India Stock ſold at 232, but roſe up to 243 before two o'clock, the ſenſe of the Court having been thoroughly comprehended by one o'clock.

If the Court of Directors of the Eaſt India Company had not been called at the time it was, and the news brought had been kept a ſecret two days longer, the whole eſtates of a great number of Nobility and Gentry, dealers in ſtock who had agreed to ſell at this juncture, would not have paid the difference, as many of thoſe who have honour enough to pay the difference, are already greatly hurt in their fortunes.

LONDON.

June 20. It is ſaid the M——y are far from being conſidered as on a firm baſis. The late contentions among themſelves, about appointing their creatures to offices, the extravagant plan of meaſures laid down to be purſued the next winter, and the mutability of opinion, and the conduct of the premier regarding any ſtep that is propoſed or taken, are reaſons with the judicious, that demonſtrate the declining way the M——y are in at preſent, and the proſpect of their approaching diſſolution.

The John and Margaret, Capt. Alder, from Greenland, is arrived at Shields, with ſeven whales and ninety ſeals; ſhe was only out ten weeks and one day the ſhorteſt voyage ever known to and from theſe ſeas.

The Richmond, Phillips, from Jamaica to Briſtol, foundered at ſea, the crew were taken up by a veſſel and carried to Dublin.

June 24. Yeſterday morning the right Hon. the Mayor held a Wardmote, at Biſhopſgate Church, for the election of an Alderman for Biſhopſgate Ward, in the room of Sir Matthew Blakiſton, Bart. who reſigned; when James Townſhend, Eſq; Member for Weſtloe, in Cornwall, was choſen without oppoſition.

Yeſterday there was no Court of Aldermen held, for want of a ſufficient number to conſtitute a Court conſequently the addreſs of Sir William Baker for the Court's granting the deſired reſignation of his gown, could not be preſented.

Some petitions of a very ſingular nature are ſoon expected from the North ſide of the Tweed.

Monday paſt by Plymouth the fleet under the command of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, and was joined from thence by the Fly, Sloop of War.

Friday Sir William Baker arrived in town from Reading, where he was obliged to ſtop ſeveral days, on account of a relapſe; he ſtill continues extremely ill, inſomuch that his phyſicians have but little hopes of his recovery, though he is perfectly in his ſenſes. The ſame day he drew up an addreſs to the Court of Aldermen, deſiring leave to reſign his gown, and requeſted his ſon to attend that Court To morrow, to acquaint them therewith.

We are informed that ſeveral ſamples of mineral ores, have lately been ſent hither from the North American Colonies, conſiſting of lead, iron, copper, and ſilver, from mines lately diſcovered there, all of which are ſaid to be valuable.

Never was the miniſterial party ſo much alarmed as at preſent, their agents are grown quite deſperate and openly now talk of nothing elſe but dragooning the good people of England into better manners. Alas! little do they know the natural character of Engliſhmen. A child of five years old, as we ſee at the Haymarket, may lead them; but the D—l in H—ll, with fire in one hand, and faggot in the other, cannot drive them.

It is ſaid, by thoſe who have arrived from the country, that there is a generous emulation among the various counties, which ſhall contribute moſt to the ſupport of a popular cauſe; ſo that it is hoped, by the friends of a certain gentleman, that ſo much money will be raiſed by voluntary contributions, before the time of his confinement is elapſed, as to enable the Gentlemen Supporters of the Bill of Rights to pay all juſt debts.

Yeſterday about one o'clock Mr. Sheriff Halifax went to St. James's, to know his Majeſty's pleaſure, when he might be waited on with the Petition of the Livery of the City of London.

BOSTON, Auguſt 7.

Tueſday laſt embarked on board his Majeſty's Ship the Rippon, Sir Francis Bernard of Nettleham, Bart. who for nine Years paſt, has been a Scourge to this Province, a Curſe to North America and a Plague to the whole Empire. He having ſagely fixed on the Firſt of Auguſt, the Day of the Elevation of the Houſe of Hanover to the Britiſh Throne for the Time of his Departure, there were four Cauſes of public Rejoicing. 1. The Acceſſion of the preſent Royal Family. 2. That the King had been graciouſly pleaſed to recall a very bad Governor. 3. The ſure and certain hopes that a very good one will be ſent out, and placed in his ſtead. 4. That a worſe cannot be found on this Side ——, if there.—On Monday Evening the Baronet, being unwilling to give himſelf and Friends, if he has any, the Trouble of a formal Leave, or the People an Opportunity to hiſs him off the ſtage, ſneaked down to Caſtle-William, where he lay that Night. The next morning, he was toated on board the Rippon, in a Canoe, a Tom-God-Catcher, or ſome other ſmall Boat. The Ship was ſoon under ſail but had not proceeded a League, before the Wind ſhifting, ſhe came to Anchor, and lay Wind bound 'till Friday Noon, when ſhe ſailed again with a fair wind after her: The Captain, Thomſon, and the ſhip, both worthy a better Cargo. Should the Johns, on the riſing of the firſt Storm ſign a round Robbin to the Captain to throw the Baronet overboard for fair Weather, and he find his way into a Whale's Belly, it is hoped he will not be caſt out dead or alive, within Soundings.—

So ſoon as the Rippon was under Sail on Tueſday, the Cannon at the Caſtle were fired with Joy—The Union Flagg was diſplayed from Liberty-Tree, where it was kept flying 'till Friday.—Colours were alſo flung out from moſt of the Veſſels in the harbour——And from the Tops of the Houſes in Town.——The Bells were rang, and Cannon fired inceſſantly 'till Sunſet.——In the Evening there was a Bonfire on Fort Hill, and another on the Heights of Charleſtown. The general Joy of this City was ſoon diffuſed thro' the neighbouring towns who gave ſignal demonſtrations of it. There was not the leaſt diſorder committed, and the night was the moſt quiet the town ever enjoyed ſince Auguſt, 1760, the time of the Baronet's arrival here.

PROVIDENCE, Auguſt 12.

By a gentleman who came paſſenger with Capt. Scott we learn, that 10,000 Stand of arms were ſhipped at London for the ſervice of the Corſicans, when news arrived that the venerable and illuſtrious Paoli, with his brave adherents were entirely routed. The conqueſt of Corſica will however coſt the Monſieurs dear, as we are told 7000 of their beſt troops fell in this action. The Corſicans loſt 5000 Men, and boldly diſputed their ground inch by inch, which was covered with blood; but were at length overpowered by numbers. The French commandant, Count de Vaux, is returned to France; but before his departure propoſed preliminaries for ſurrendering the iſland, which the Chief Paoli nobly diſdained, and retired to the mountains.

Laſt Week a man at Glouceſter cut his throat in a very ſhocking manner, after which he plunged the knife into his breaſt, and immediately expired.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.

Monday evening laſt arrived here the Brig Naſſau, Capt. Smith, from London.---The Prints by Capt. Smith are not ſo late as we had laſt Week by Capt. Scott.

By Capt. SMITH from LONDON.

An Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in Boſton, dated June 7, 1769.

THE Deſign of people in power here has been to alter the Conſtitution of your Province, which has been acknowledged by ſome of the Miniſtry, who have alledged that the People had too much power; and I queſtion if the delay of the repeal of the late Acts is not deſiled, by giving Time to tamper with the reſpective Provinces, and thereby break that Union & Harmony which is your Strength, for their Deſigns are not confined to your Province. Lord H——ſb——h has hinted that ſeveral other Charters wanted mending. Governor B——d for a long time has been the Tool of Lord H——ſb——h to promote his oppreſſive Meaſures, for which he is knighted.—Every Effort to relieve you has been tried by your Friends, but the Weight of the Miniſtry has always born them down! Your vindicating yourſelves to them is to no Purpoſe, for they are determined to conſider but one Side of the Queſtion, and receive all their Information from their own Creatures: People in general are alarmed at their Conduct, as you will ſee by the Petition of the County of Middleſex, the moſt oppulent County in England.

Extract of another letter from a Gentleman in London, to his friend in Boſton, dated June 19, 1769.
